Where municipal limits are extended beyond a toll gate, the gate can not thereafter be maintained nor tolls collected.

Turnpike Co. v. Kelley, 41 O. S. 144 (1884).

A turnpike company, having a toll gate properly located outside the prescribed boundaries, may charge and collect toll not only for the eighty rods leading to the city limits, but also for such part of the road as is lawfully within the city limits.

Turnpike Co. v. Springfield, 27 O. S. 584 (1875).

A contract between a turnpike company and a municipality, permitting the company to make a portion of its road within municipal limits, and collect tolls thereon, is to be construed with reference to the laws providing for the location of the toll gates. The company having a toll gate properly located, may collect tolls thereat for the portion within the municipality, if the contract is not otherwise objectionable.

Turnpike Co. v. Springfield, 27 O. S. 584 (1875).

The duty to keep in repair that part of a turnpike which becomes included within municipal limits devolves upon the municipality, as it becomes a street under this section. The words "no toll shall be taken thereon" means no toll therefor or for that part.

Madisonville v. Turnpike Co., 17 W. L. B. 30 (C. P. 1886).

See Lower River Road Co. v. Cincinnati, 13 L. D. 214 (1902); reversed, without report, 71 O. S. 486.

Remedies for illegal maintenance of toll gate. Where a turnpike is maintained within eighty rods of the city limits, the remedy is mandamus against city to institute appropriation proceedings.

Gates v. Turnpike Co., 4 N. P. 235; 6 L. D. 337 (1897).

An injunction against a company maintaining a toll gate within eighty rods of the city limits will not be granted at the suit of a private individual not injured differently from the general public.

Gates v. Turnpike Co., 4 N. P. 235; 6 L. D. 337 (1897).

A corporation organized under a special act, prior to the constitution of 1851, for the sole purpose of managing a road constructed by county commissioners, and collecting tolls thereon to be applied only to its repair and the payment of construction debts incurred by the commissioners, is not prohibited by this section from maintaining a gate and collecting toll within a municipality.

Road Co. v. Riverside, 25 O. S. 658 (1874).

Section 9255. (Compensation for removal of toll-gate and use of road.) Compensation shall be made to the company for the damages it sustains by reason of such removal of its toll-gate, and surrender of such part of its road. If the company and authorities of the city or village do not agree thereon, the damages shall be ascertained in proceedings which the municipal authorities shall commence, to appropriate the property to such use, in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of property by municipal corporations, or, in default of such agreement, or institution of appropriation proceedings, at any time after the removal of the toll-gate, the company may recover its damages from the city or village, by civil action. (R. S. Sec. 3491; March 23, 1869, 66 v. 36, § 1; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 90, § 34; S. & S. 841; S. & C. 339.)

A municipality can not condemn less than the whole of a turnpike within its limits.

Turnpike Co. v. Cincinnati, 2 W. L. B. 126 (1877).

See also, Road Co. v. Riverside, 25 O. S. 658 (1874).

Where, by the extension of the municipality, a turnpike having a toll gate thereon is embraced within the city limits, such toll gate need not be removed until compensation is made to the company.

Avondale v. Turnpike Co., 18 W. L. B. 308 (1887).

Nature of proceedings.

See Plankroad Co. v. Toledo, 31 O. S. 588 (1887).

A municipality can not lay water or sewer pipe under the surface of a turnpike, without the consent of the company, until it acquires the right by appropriation.

Turnpike Co. v. Avondale, 17 W. L. B. 294 (1887).

A corporation organized under a statute providing for the keeping in repair of gravel or macadamized roads, etc., although the road of the company is a plank road, must be regarded as a plank road company, and its only remedy against a municipal corporation, for appropriating a part of its road, is under this section.

Plankroad Co. v. Toledo, 31 O. S. 588 (1887).

Section 9256. (May sell road or bridges to city or village.) Such company, a part of whose road or bridge becomes embraced within the limits of a city or village may contract with the proper authorities thereof, or of the township or county in which it is situated, for the disposal, release, and abandonment of such part of its road or bridge, upon terms agreed upon between the company and the authorities. Such a contract heretofore entered into shall be as valid as if made under this section. (R. S. Sec. 3492; April 11, 1856, 53 v. 180, § 1; S. & C. 338.)

Where a county road was used by a turnpike company and subsequently conveyed by it to a municipality, upon extension of municipal limits, the road remains a county road. State v. Eiriek, 14 C. C. n. s. 577, 584, 17 C. C. n. s. 331, 338 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 84 O. S. 503.

Section 9257. (Foreclosure of mortgage on road.) When such company executes a mortgage upon its road, or a part thereof, the mortgagee, or assignee thereof, after the money thereby secured becomes due, may foreclose the mortgage as if it were upon real estate, and the sale so made shall be held to pass to the purchaser the corporate franchises of such company as fully as the mortgagor held them at the time of executing the mortgage. Laws relating to the foreclosure of mortgages upon real estate shall be applicable to the foreclosure of mortgages upon turnpikes or plankroads. (R. S. Sec. 3493; April 16, 1857, 54 v. 179, § 1; S. & C. 339.)

This section and the next show that the franchise of taking tolls is property in the enlarged sense of the term.

Turnpike Co. v. Parks, 50 O. S. 568, 575 (1893).

Section 9258. (Appraisers; purchaser receives franchises.) In such proceeding the court shall appoint the appraisers. When the road runs into or through more than one county it may order it to be appraised and sold entire or in parcels as to the court seems expedient. The purchaser of such road or part thereof shall be entitled to exercise all the corporate franchises purchased as fully as they belonged to such company before the sale, in any name that the purchaser assumes. (R. S. Sec. 3494; April 16, 1857, 54 v. 179, § 2; S. & C. 339.)

Section 9259. (How road surrendered to county.) A company having its road located or constructed, or the corporate right to construct such a road, through or into any any county or counties of this state, with the consent of three-fourths of its stockholders, and the like consent of all of the commissioners of such county or counties, may relinquish and transfer to the commissioners of the county or counties the whole or any part of its road, together with all rights and privileges appertaining thereto. But the transfer to such commissioners shall be limited to the part of the road within the boundaries of such counties respectively, shall be without consideration, and no tolls shall be collected thereon within such county or counties. (R. S. Sec. 3495; March 11, 1853, 51 v. 405, § 1; January 25, 1861, 58 v. 5, § 1; S. & C. 333; S. & S. 678.)

No valid transfer can be made to the commissioners of the county without the assent of such commissioners.

State v. Turnpike Co., 16 O. S. 308 (1865).

Section 9260. (How transfer evidenced.) Such transfer shall be evidenced by the execution of a written declaration, signed by the president or other principal officer, and the secretary or other recording officer, and under the seal of the company, which shall take effect and have full force when there is deposited with the auditor of the county in which the relinquished road lies, the written declaration, or a copy thereof, and an entry is made upon the journal of the commissioners of the county, signed by all the commissioners of an acceptance of such relinquishment or transfer; which written declaration, so deposited, also shall be entered by the auditor upon his record of roads. Thereafter such road or part of road, shall be under the control of the commissioners of the county in which it lies, who, by a proper order, shall provide that it be a public highway, and that no tolls be collected thereon. (R. S. Sec. 3496; January 25, 1861, 58 v. 5, § 2; S. & S. 678.)

Section 9261. (Private sale of roads.) With the consent of three-fourths of the stockholders, such company, by sale or otherwise, may relinquish and transfer to any person or persons other than commissioners of counties, the whole or a part of its road, together with all rights and privileges appertaining thereto, which sale or relinquishment shall be evidenced by a written deed of conveyance, under the seal of the company, signed by its president or other principal officer, and the secretary or other recording officer thereof, which, before it shall have validity or effect, shall be recorded in the records of deeds of each county within which the road or part thereof so sold and conveyed lies, or be left for record in the office containing such records. Such sale or transfer also may be made upon the consent of the holders of three-fourths of the entire stock of the company, the holders of the stock so consenting in that case to be liable in their individual capacity to a stockholder not assenting, for such loss or injury as he sustains by reason of the sale or transfer. (R. S. Sec. 3497; April 17, 1857, 54 v. 198, § 3; S. & C. 340.)

Section 9262. (Sale to county commissioners.) The board of directors of such company, when authorized so to do by a vote of the holders of a majority of its stock represented at a meeting of the stockholders called for that purpose by such board or by ten stockholders, of which at least twenty days' notice has been given by advertisement in not more than two newspapers published in the county where the road or part thereof is situated, shall sell and convey the whole or part of its road to the commissioners of the county, with all rights and privileges appertaining thereto, which sale or relinquishment shall be evidenced by a written deed of conveyance, under the company's seal, signed by its president or other principal officer and the secretary or other recording officer thereof, which also, before it shall have any validity or effect, shall be recorded in the official records of deeds of each county within which the road or any part thereof so sold and conveyed lies, or be left for record in the office containing such records. (R. S. Sec. 3498; S. & C. 339.)

Section 9263. (When county commissioners may purchase toll-road.) The county commissioners of any county in the state, when petitioned to do so by at least fifty freeholders, citizens of the counties, shall purchase any or all of the toll roads or parts thereof within such counties, as hereinafter provided. Before such purchase is made the commissioners of the county in which the people vote in favor of purchasing the toll roads, shall make an order to that effect on their journals and submit the purchase to the voters of the county either before or after an appraisement of the value of the roads has been had, at any regular election, giving at least ten days' notice thereof, in at least two newspapers published in the county. At such election the voters who favor the purchase shall mark on their ballots, "Purchase of toll roads, Yes;" and those opposed thereto, "Purchase of toll roads, No." If, at such an election, a majority of those voting are in favor of such purchase, the commissioners may make it, but not otherwise. The vote shall be returned by the judges of election to the deputy state supervisors of elections, who shall open, count and declare it as in an election for county officers, and certify it to the county commissioners. (R. S. Sec. 3498a; March 25, 1880, 77 v. 83.)

Section 9264. (How roads voted to be purchased appraised.) In a county where a vote at any general election is in favor of purchasing any or all the toll-roads, or parts thereof, lying within the county, at a price to be fixed by three disinterested appraisers, who shall be appointed as follows: One by the common pleas court of the county, or a judge thereof, resident of the subdivision in which the county is situated, one by the probate judge of the county, and one by the county commissioners, after being sworn faithfully and honestly to discharge their duties in that behalf, the appraisers shall personally inspect the road or roads, or parts thereof, so far as they are within such county, and make and return in writing, to the commissioners, a valuation of each of the roads or parts thereof. If from any cause the commissioners fail to purchase any road or part thereof, other appraisers may be so appointed. Nothing herein shall prevent the commissioners from making or receiving propositions therefor, and from purchasing within two years after an appraisement has been had at the appraised value. (R. S. Sec. 3499; April 15, 1881, 78 v. 149; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 187; Rev. Stat. 1880.)

Section 9265. (The purchase and effect.) If the report is satisfactory, and the commissioners, or a majority of them, indorse their approval thereon as to all or any of the roads, or parts thereof, they shall make an entry to that effect on their journal. Thereupon they may purchase them at a price not exceeding such appraisal, and pay the company or companies, in money or in bonds to be issued as hereinafter specified, whereupon such roads or parts thereof so purchased, shall cease to be toll-roads, and become free roads, to be kept in repair in the manner prescribed in chapter eleven, title four, of part second. (R. S. Sec. 3500; R. S. 1880.)

Section 9266. (The issue of bonds for the purchase and their redemption.) To pay for roads or parts thereof so purchased, the commissioners may issue bonds payable at such times, and in such amounts as shall be as near as practicable equal to the semi-annual collection of taxes levied for that purpose, which bonds shall bear interest not exceeding six per cent, payable semi-annually. Such bonds may be delivered to such companies in payment for the roads, or parts thereof, or sold for money at not less than their par value, but they shall not run more than eight years from date. For the payment thereof the commissioners shall levy, annually, on all the taxable property of such counties, in addition to the taxes they are otherwise authorized to levy, such sum as will fully pay the bonds and the interest thereon. (R. S. Sec. 3501; April 15, 1881, 78 v. 149; R. S. 1880.)

The levying of taxes for the purchase of toll roads, in order to make them free to the public, is a constitutional exercise of the taxing power.
Warder v. Commissioners, 38 O. S. 639 (1883).

Section 9267. (Refunding of taxes and assessments to construct free turnpike.) The commissioners of the counties shall refund to all persons residents of their respective counties, who have paid or may be required to pay, any tax or assessment for the construction of any free turnpike road or roads therein which have not been converted into a toll road. For the purpose of adjusting this refunding of assessments, the auditors of such counties shall prepare a book of the assessments paid in the counties, in which shall be noted all amounts so refunded. But in no instance shall the amount so refunded exceed the amount they paid or may be required to pay towards the purchase of toll-roads, or parts of toll-roads in their respective counties. (R. S. Sec. 3501a; April 26, 1890, 87 v. 335; April 15, 1881, 78 v. 149.)

The levying of a tax to refund assessments is constitutional.
Warder v. Commissioners, 38 O. S. 639 (1883).

Section 9268. (Effect of accepting refunder.) All persons who demand or accept the refunding of the assessments paid by them, or any part thereof, thereby release all right to have the road or roads, to the construction of which they contributed, converted into a toll-road or roads; and in any attempt to convert such road or roads into toll-roads, the names of such persons and the assessments by them contributed, shall be counted against the conversion of such road or roads, or parts thereof, into toll-roads. (R. S. Sec. 3501a; April 26, 1890, 87 v. 335; April 15, 1881, 78 v. 149.)

Section 9269. (Bonds for purpose of refunding.) For the purpose of refunding such assessments the commissioners are authorized to issue bonds in such amounts as will be necessary, which may run not to exceed eight years, and bear not to exceed six per cent interest, payable semi-annually, and for the payment of these bonds they are required to levy on all the taxable property of the county such sum, annually as will fully pay them, and the interest thereon, in addition to the taxes they otherwise may levy. (R. S. Sec. 3501a; April 26, 1890, 87 v. 335; April 15, 1881, 78 v. 149.)

Section 9270. (Appraiser's fees.) Such appraisers, upon the allowance of the commissioners shall be paid by the county three dollars per day and their necessary expenses, for the time actually employed in the business of their appointment. (June 7, 1911, 102 v. 277; R. S. § 3502; R. S. 1880.)

Section 9271. (Effect of sale in one county on balance.) The sale by a company owning a toll road or part of such road as lies within any county, shall not affect its organization or right as to the part or parts of its road as are outside the county. (R. S. Sec. 3503; R. S. of 1880.)

Section 9272. (Transfer not to affect creditors.) No relinquishment, sale or transfer hereinbefore provided for shall prejudice or affect the claim of any creditor of the company nor shall these provisions extend to or be applicable to a road in which the state is interested as a stockholder. (R. S. Sec. 3504; April 17, 1857, 54 v. 198, § 4; S. & C. 340.)

Section 9273. (Additional stock authorized.) The directors of any company may open books of subscription along the line of its road for the purpose of raising additional stock for the completion, extension, planking, or otherwise improving or repairing its road. (R. S. Sec. 3505; March 12, 1853, 51 v. 395, § 1; S. & C. 334.)

Section 9274. (Companies may consolidate.) When two or more turnpike or plank-road companies desire to consolidate themselves into a single corporation, they may do so in the manner and subject to the rules provided for the consolidation of railroad companies. (R. S. Sec. 3506; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 274, § 43; S. & C. 298.)

Section 9275. (May assist road which is an extension.) The directors of such a company may subscribe and pay such sums of money as the majority of the stockholders instruct them to subscribe, to build and keep in repair any turnpike or plank-road that is a continuation or an extension of its road. Such subscription shall not exceed the net revenue of its road. (R. S. Sec. 3507; April 12, 1858, 55 v. 160, § 1; S. & C. 340.)

Section 9276. (May assist intersecting free turnpike.) The directors of any company may subscribe and pay such sums of money as they think advisable to build and keep in repair a free turnpike road that intersects their road. Such subscription shall not exceed the dividends of the company, and three-fourths of their stockholders must consent to the subscription. (R. S. Sec. 3508; May 1, 1854, 52 v. 131, § 1; S. & C. 370.)

Section 9277. (Accounts to be kept by county.) Every such company shall keep a fair and accurate account of the whole expense of making its road, with the expense of toll-gatherers and other necessary agents or officers whom it employs, and of the amount of toll received. The books of a company shall always be open for the inspection of the commissioners of a county through or into which the road passes, or of an agent of the general assembly of the state and of any stockholders. If a company refuses or neglects to exhibit its accounts when required by such commissioners or agent, all the rights granted by this chapter, and its right to be a corporation, shall cease and determine. (R. S. Sec. 3509; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 274, § 40; S. & C. 297.)

Section 9278. (Books to be kept by company.) The directors of such company shall keep books in which shall be entered all the transactions of the company, with the dates thereof; also stock books in which shall be entered the names of the stockholders, the number of shares of stock owned by each, and all transfers of stock made during each year, and by and to whom made. On the first Monday of January of each year the directors shall make a statement in such stock books, showing the names of the owners of the stock and the respective number of shares held by each. All books herein provided for shall, at proper times, be open to the inspection of any stockholder. (R. S. Sec. 3510; April 17, 1868, 65 v. 89, § 1; S. & S. 146.)

Section 9279. (Report of toll-gate keepers.) On the first Monday of January of each year, and at other times as required by the company, a keeper of a toll-gate shall make a report in writing, under oath, showing the amount of toll received at each gate respectively for the preceding year, the amounts paid to the company, the amounts retained on account of salaries to gate-keepers, the amount of tolls outstanding and uncollected, also who and to what amount persons have passed through such gates without paying tolls, and by whose orders such persons have so passed. Such statements shall be submitted to the stockholders at their annual meeting on the second Monday of January of each year. (R. S. Sec. 3511; April 17, 1868, 65 v. 89, § 2; S. & S. 147.)

Section 9280. (Directors' annual report.) The directors of each company shall make, in writing, and submit to the stockholders at the regular meeting thereof on the second Monday of January of each year—notice of which meeting shall be given by the directors, by publication for four consecutive weeks, in a newspaper printed and of general circulation in each county in which any part of the road is situated, a report of the transactions of the company for the year next preceding, showing the amount of revenue received by the company from all sources during the year, and tolls received at each gate respectively. Also a statement in detail of all items of expenditure for all purposes, including the amount expended on each mile of the road respectively, the amount paid to each officer for his services, the amount paid to gate-keepers for salaries or otherwise, and the amount of money on hand after paying expenses of the company; with the outstanding liabilities of the company, to whom owing, and of the amounts due to the company, by whom owing, and how secured. The directors shall order a dividend to be made of the money then on hand, unless otherwise ordered by a majority of persons present at such meeting owning stock in the company. (R. S. Sec. 3512; April 17, 1868, 65 v. 89, §§ 3, 5; S. & S. 147.)

Former statute referred to: Seymour v. Turnpike Co., 10 Ohio 476 (1841).

Section 9281. (Treasurer to hold no other office.) The treasurer of such a company shall hold no other office in the company. When appointed, and before assuming the duties of his office, he shall take an oath of office and give bond, with security to the satisfaction of the board of directors, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties according to law. (R. S. Sec. 3513; April 17, 1868, 65 v. 89, § 4; S. & S. 147.)

Section 9282. (Toll-gate keeper agent of company.) The keeper of a gate on a turnpike or plank-road is the agent of the company or person owning the road. A judgment against such gate-keeper for a violation of this chapter, shall be held to be a judgment against the company or person owning the road, and execution may issue thereon against the gate-keeper and such company or person. (R. S. Sec. 3514; May 1, 1862, 59 v. 101, § 4; S. & S. 150.)

Section 9283. (How obstructing fences removed.) A person whose fence is on, or who erects a fence on the limits of a turnpike or plank-road, or who places within its limits any wood, stone or other obstruction, other than permanent buildings already constructed, so as to interfere with the public travel upon the road, or prevents or interferes with the free passage of water in the side drains or ditches thereof, and who is notified by the president, a director, or the superintendent of the road to remove such fence or other obstruction, but neglects or refuses to comply with such requirements within ten days from the service of notice, shall forfeit and pay to the company owning the road, not less than one nor more than ten dollars for each day he permits such fence or obstruction to remain after the expiration of ten days from the service of notice; which sum shall be recoverable by action in the name of the company, before any justice of the peace of the township where the fence is situated or the obstruction placed. (R. S. Sec. 3515; March 28, 1861, 58 v. 43, § 1; S. & S. 150.)

Section 9284. (Company may assess stockholders.) When the stockholders of a turnpike or plank-road company are individually liable for the liabilities thereof, the proportion that each stockholder is required to pay to meet existing liabilities may be determined and collected in the manner hereinafter provided. (R. S. Sec. 3516; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 99, § 1; S. & C. 338.)

Section 9285. (Notice of meeting for that purpose.) The directors of such a company, desiring to take such action, may give notice to the stockholders by publication for at least thirty days in at least two newspapers published in the counties in which the road is located, for a meeting of stockholders, specifying the time, place and object of the meeting. (R. S. Sec. 3517; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 99, §§ 2, 7, S. & C. 338.)

Section 9286. (Proceedings at such meeting.) At such meeting a detailed statement shall be submitted, showing the assets and indebtedness of the company. A majority of the stockholders may there determine upon the basis for assessing stockholders to meet the indebtedness, and fix the time or times, and the mode, for the payment of the amount assessed against each individual or corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3518; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 99, §§ 3, 4; S. & C. 338.)

Section 9287. (Collection of assessments.) No stockholder shall be liable beyond the sum fixed by the charter of such company, and all assessments, when paid, shall be a credit on his liability. A stockholder who fails to pay, as required, the amount so assessed, shall be liable to an action in the name of the company for its recovery, as in other cases of indebtedness. (R. S. Sec. 3519; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 99, §§ 5, 6; S. & C. 338.)

Section 9238. (Parties assessed for improved roads may incorporate.) When a majority of the landholders whose lands may be assessed to construct a road under the act of March 29, 1867, and the acts supplementary thereto and amendatory thereof, desire to incorporate themselves into a turnpike company, they may proceed in the manner hereinbefore provided. In their articles of incorporation they shall state that the road has already been constructed under and by virtue of such acts, and the amount of capital stock of the company as near as it can be arrived at, shall be the amount expended in the construction of the road. Annexed to the articles of incorporation there also shall be a petition, asking for the incorporation of the persons named in the articles for the purposes therein stated, which petition shall be signed by a majority of the landholders whose lands were taxed to make the improvement, accompanied by a certificate of the auditor of the county wherein the road is located, to the effect that the petition contains the signatures of a majority of the landholders whose lands have been so taxed. (R. S. Sec. 3520; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 131, § 16.)

Section 9289. (Who to be stockholders.) No stock book shall be opened, nor subscriptions received to the stock of such company. The auditor of the county in which the road is located, on demand, shall furnish to the incorporators a certified list of the landholders whose lands were taxed for the construction or improvement of the road. At the first election of directors and officers of the company, each person whose lands were so assessed shall be entitled to one vote, and no more. (R. S. Sec. 3521; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 131, § 17.)

Section 9290. (Certificates of stock to be issued.) After the company is organized its president and secretary shall issue certificates of stock to each landholder for the number of shares and fractions thereof, the sum of which as designated by the directors amounts to the sum assessed upon his lands, and which he paid for making the improvement. They also, after the assessment on each landholder each year is paid, must issue like certificates for the amounts so paid. A person whose lands were assessed, and whose assessments have been paid, at any time after the organization of the company, may become a stockholder therein, by producing and exhibiting to the secretary of the company, the certificate of the auditor and treasurer of the county, showing the amount of the assessment on his lands for the improvement, and that it has been paid. Thereupon the president and secretary shall issue certificates of stock to him for the amount so paid. (R. S. Sec. 3522; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 172, § 18.)

Section 9291. (Powers of such companies.) A company so incorporated shall have the same powers and be subject to the same liabilities as other turnpike companies incorporated under the laws of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3523; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 131, § 19.)

Section 9292. (May increase capital stock.) A company organized as provided in section ninety-two hundred and eighty-eight, with the assent of the holders of a majority of its stock, and the consent of the county commissioners, may increase its capital stock to such an amount as is deemed necessary to extend its road or to build a branch road, not exceeding five miles in length, to form a connection with any other similarly improved road in an adjoining county or state. (R. S. Sec. 3524; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 191, § 1.)

Section 9293. (Proceedings for such purpose.) For increasing the capital stock of such company for the objects heretofore stated, books may be opened for subscriptions, under the direction and at the office of the auditor of the county in which the company is located, upon giving thirty days' previous notice in some newspaper published and of general circulation in the county. All persons may become subscribers to such capital stock, but the aggregate of subscriptions shall not exceed the amount necessary to construct or build the road or branch. If a company so organized refuses its assent to such extension, or the construction of such branch road, for the purposes stated, or refuses by a vote of the holders of a majority of its stock, to increase its capital stock for such purposes, a stock company may be organized as hereinbefore provided, and build such extension or branch, and erect toll-gates, as in other cases. (R. S. Sec. 3525; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 191, § 1.)

Section 9294. (Company may divide road.) A company whose road extends into two or more counties may subdivide it into as many divisions as it determines, as hereinafter provided, and so reorganize the company as to have a separate corporation for each of the subdivisions. (R. S. Sec. 3526; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 527, § 1.)

Section 9295. (Proceedings to effect subdivision.) For making such subdivision there shall be a meeting of the stockholders of the company, at the usual place of meeting, on a notice of at least four weeks. If at such meeting the owners of at least two-thirds of the stock assent thereto, in writing, the subdivision shall be made, and the stock of the entire corporation be apportioned among the several new corporations as previously agreed upon. Each subdivision shall be liable for its proportion of the debts of the original corporation, in proportion to its stock. The action of the stockholders' meeting shall be duly recorded, and when attested by the president and secretary of the meeting, a copy thereof, duly certified by them, shall be filed with the secretary of state, become the articles of incorporation for each of the subdivided companies, and be recorded as are other articles of incorporation. (R. S. Sec. 3527; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 527, § 2.)

Section 9296. (Reorganization of separate companies.) After the certificate is filed with the secretary of state each of the subdivisions shall become a separate corporation, and reorganize as such by the election of a board of directors as other turnpike companies, and thenceforth each of the companies shall have the powers of and be conducted in all respects, as other companies. The rights of stockholders in each subdivision to their stock and property will continue therein as if they had been the sole stockholders in the subdivision prior thereto, subject, however, to the same liabilities of stockholders for debts of the corporation and legislative control as other companies. (R. S. Sec. 3528; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 527, § 3.)

Section 9297. (Names of new companies.) The name of each of the companies of such subdivided corporations shall be such as is assumed and designated in the certificate of incorporation. (R. S. Sec. 3529; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 527, § 4.)

Section 9298. (Roads may be sold on execution.) All turnpikes and plank-roads under the control of individuals or corporations, and held as property or as a franchise, shall be liable to sale upon execution, in the same manner as other property. (R. S. Sec. 3530; May 5, 1868, 65 v. 136, § 1; S. & S. 238.)

Cited, Turnpike Co. v. Parks, 50 O. S. 575 (1893).

Section 9299. (Levy and appraisement.) All such property shall be levied upon, appraised, and sold as real estate is appraised and sold; and the appraisement shall be made with reference to the value thereof for the purposes for which it is or may be used, and shall include the value of the franchise therewith connected. (R. S. Sec. 3531; May 5, 1868, 65 v. 136, § 2; S. & S. 238.)

Section 9300. (When order for appraisement may be made.) When such property is levied upon and not appraised, and portions of it are situated in two or more counties, the court in which the judgment was rendered, upon application of the creditor may order it to be appraised, appoint appraisers, and have it sold entire, or in such parcels as the court deems most advantageous to the debtor. But if no such application be made the sheriff shall proceed as in other cases. (R. S. Sec. 3532; May 5, 1868, 65 v. 136, § 3; S. & S. 238.)

Section 9301. (Purchaser takes franchise.) The purchaser of such a road, upon confirmation of the sale will be entitled to hold and exercise all the corporate franchises purchased at such sale, as fully as they were held and exercised by the debtor before such sale, in any name assumed by the purchaser. (R. S. Sec. 3533; May 5, 1868, 65 v. 136, § 4; S. & S. 238.)

Cited, Turnpike Co. v. Parks, 50 O. S. 568, 575 (1893).

The property vests in the purchaser in the same manner as in the original owner and subject to the same visitation on the part of the state.

Turnpike Co. v. Waechter, 2 C. C. n. s. 21, 24; 15 C. D. 605 (1903).

Section 9302. (Transcript to be filed with secretary of state.) Upon filing with the secretary of state a duly attested copy of the sale, confirmation and conveyance of a franchise as herein provided for, such transfer shall be recorded in the same manner as original articles of incorporation. Thereupon the franchise shall vest absolutely in the purchaser, as franchises vest in original corporators upon recording the certificate of incorporation. (R. S. Sec. 3534; May 5, 1868, 65 v. 136, § 5; S. & S. 238.)

Section 9303. (Right to take toll may be sold on execution.) When a judgment rendered against a turnpike, plank-road, or bridge company, remains unsatisfied for ten days after its rendition, execution may issue thereon against the goods and chattels of the company, which shall be levied upon and sold as in other cases. If sufficient goods and chattels can not be found to satisfy the execution, the officer holding it, if the judgment creditor so directs, may levy upon the right of the company to take toll at any of its gates within the jurisdiction of the officer, which right the officer shall advertise and sell as personal property. The person who pays the amount due upon the execution for the right of using such gate or gates, and of taking toll thereat for the shortest time, shall be the purchaser. Nothing herein is to be construed to deprive the company of the right to give bail for stay of execution, within the same time after the rendition of a judgment, that an individual might have. (R. S. Sec. 3535; March 31, 1879, 76 v. 49, § 1; S. & C. 337.)

Cited, Turnpike Co. v. Parks, 50 O. S. 568, 576 (1893).

In the absence of a statute, the right to take tolls can not be sold on execution.

Seymour v. Turnpike Co., 10 Ohio 476 (1841).

See also, State v. Turnpike Co., 14 Ohio 405 (1846).

Section 9304. (Certificate of sale and effect.) The officer who makes sale of the right to take toll at a gate as above provided, shall give to the purchaser a certificate thereof, which shall be sufficient to authorize him to take possession of such gate, and to hold it during the time for which it was sold. The purchaser may demand and receive the same tolls of and from all passengers passing through the gate as were established and posted up by such company according to law. During the possession thereof the purchaser, or his agent, must conform to all rules, regulations, and contracts of the company, in the manner required of the gatherers of toll, except that he shall hold for his own use all tolls collected at such gate during the time for which he purchased it. He shall keep such part of the road in as good repair, so long as he holds it under such contract, as when possession was taken thereof, ordinary wear and travel excepted. (R. S. Sec. 3536; March 31, 1879, 76 v. 49, § 2; S. & C. 337.)

CHAPTER 5.

BRIDGE COMPANIES.

§ 9305. Powers.	§ 9313. May lay tracks on a bridge.
§ 9306. Sale of bridge.	§ 9314. Mortgage of franchises and sale of obligations.
§ 9307. Rates of toll must be posted.	§ 9315. Railroad companies may subscribe stock.
§ 9308. Toll allowed.	§ 9316. Consolidation of companies.
§ 9309. May make and enforce regulations.	§ 9317. May change span or height of bridge.
§ 9310. Powers of Ohio river bridge companies.	§ 9318. Avenues and approaches.
§ 9311. Further powers.	§ 9319. May maintain ferries.
§ 9312. Rates of toll prescribed.

Section 9305. (Powers.) A company incorporated to construct a bridge over a stream of water in this state shall own the bank of each side of the stream where it is proposed to erect its bridge, or obtain the consent of the owner or owners thereof, in writing, to its occupation. In the manner provided by law, it may appropriate or otherwise acquire and hold, real estate for the site of the bridge, suitable avenues or approaches leading thereto, use so much of a public street, road, or avenue as is necessary for landings and abutments, and may appropriate in the manner provided by law any rights or franchises necessary in the construction of the bridge. (R. S. Sec. 3537; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 185, § 55; April 11, 1856, 53 v. 180, § 1; S. & C. 338.)

Use of railroad bridge as a toll bridge, see § 8774.

The erection of a toll bridge is a public use for which land may be condemned.

Young v. Buckingham, 5 Ohio 485 (1832).

Bridge Co. v. Magruder, 63 O. S. 455 (1900).

See § 9311.

It would seem to be the policy of the state that bridge companies "shall own" the banks of the stream, unless permitted to occupy by a written grant from the owner.

Bridge Co. v. Magruder, 63 O. S. 455, 476 (1900).

Power of congress over navigable waters. Under the power to regulate commerce, congress has power to prevent the obstruction of any navigable water, which is a means of commerce between any two or more states. The exercise of this great public right is not incompatible with the enjoyment of local rights. The public right consists in an unobstructed use of a navigable water connecting two or more states. The local right is to cross such water. The general commercial right is paramount to all state authority.

Works v. Railroad Co., 5 McLain (U. S.) 425; 3 O. F. D. 101 (1853).

See State v. Commissioners, 7 C. C. n. s. 469; 18 C. D. 212 (1905); dissenting opinion, 8 C. C. n. s. 169.

The paramount power of regulating bridges that affect the navigation of the navigable waters of the United States is in congress.

Bridge Co. v. United States, 105 U. S. (15 Otto) 470; 5 O. F. D. 67 (1882).

Such power of congress is free from state interference. When congress in a proper way declares a bridge across a navigable river of the United States to be an unlawful structure, no legislation of a state can make it lawful.

Bridge Co. v. United States, 105 U. S. 470; 5 O. F. D. 67 (1882).

See §§ 9310, 9317.

When congress, by resolution, gave a license to erect and maintain a bridge across the Ohio River, the bridge company, by accepting its provisions, became subject to the reservation of power in congress contained in the resolution, to withdraw the license and to direct necessary alterations of the bridge. The license could be withdrawn without its being judicially ascertained that the bridge, as authorized, did or would substantially obstruct navigation. The United States was held not liable to make compensation for the loss incurred.

Bridge Co. v. United States, 105 U. S. (15 Otto) 470; 5 O. F. D. 67 (1882).

See §§ 9310, 9317.

Section 9306. (Sale of bridge.) The provisions of law as to the sale of a bridge to a municipality by a turnpike company shall apply to bridge companies. (R. S. Sec. 3537; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 185, § 55; April 11, 1856, 53 v. 180; § 1: S. & C. 338.)

Section 9307. (Rates of toll must be posted.) Such company, previous to receiving tolls upon its bridge, shall set up and keep in a conspicuous place thereon a board, on which shall be written, painted, or printed, in a plain, legible manner, the rates of toll charged thereat. If its charter provides that such rates shall be prescribed by the court of common pleas of the proper county, and the company demands and receives a greater rate of tolls than the rate so prescribed, it shall be fined ten dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3538; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 274, § 61; S. & C. 301.)

To post the rates of toll at each end of the bridge is a condition precedent to the right to exact tolls, and until performed the collection of toll is unlawful.

Bonham v. Taylor, 10 Ohio 108 (1840).

Any casual interruption in keeping of the rates of toll, caused by violence or otherwise and for a short period, would not deprive the company of any right, provided it had once performed its duty and there was not unreasonable delay in complying with the law.

Bonham v. Taylor, 10 Ohio 108 (1840).

Section 9308. (Toll allowed.) A company authorized by its charter to take tolls above the rates hereinafter provided may charge and receive the following rates, and no more: For each foot passenger, one cent; each horse, mule or ass one year old and upward, three cents; each horse and rider, ten cents; every chaise, chariot, gig or other two or four-wheeled pleasure carriage, drawn by one horse, fifteen cents; every such vehicle drawn by two horses, twenty-five cents, and if drawn by four horses, thirty cents; every sled or sleigh drawn by one horse or other animal, ten cents, and for each animal in addition three cents; every wagon drawn by one horse or other animal ten cents, and for each animal in addition, three cents; every wagon drawn by two horses or other animals, fifteen cents, and for each animal in addition, three cents; each head of neat cattle, six months old or upward, one cent; and for each head of sheep, goats or hogs, one-half cent. But this section shall not be construed to affect any company in whose charter special rates are provided, and no power is given to the legislature to alter or amend it. (R. S. Sec. 3539; April 15, 1857, 54 v. 177, § 1; S. & C. 352.)

Section 9309. (May make and enforce regulations.) All bridge companies and owners are invested with full power to make and enforce any rule or regulation deemed necessary to preserve and protect their property and collect their tolls, and may prevent any person from crossing a bridge owned by them on foot, or by riding, or driving a team or vehicle, or stock thereon, who fails to pay the regular fare when demanded. The police or watchman of such bridge shall have all the power of policemen of cities, and may arrest any person who violates the law, or the rules of the company or person owning the bridge, without warrant, at or upon such bridge, and take him before the proper civil authority to be dealt with according to law. (R. S. Sec. 3540; April 12, 1867, 64 v. 128; § 5; S. & S. 57.)

Section 9310. (Powers of Ohio river bridge companies.) A company organized to construct a bridge over the Ohio river may construct and maintain such bridge, with suitable avenues or approaches leading thereto, and with a single span or a draw, as it determines; but in either case, in order that the bridge may not obstruct the navigation of the river, it shall be built in accordance with an act of congress approved July 14, 1862, entitled "an act to establish certain post-roads," or any act subsequently passed on the subject. (R. S. Sec. 3541; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 4; S. & S. 203.)

A corporation organized by concurrent legislation of Kentucky and Ohio, receiving from each the same charter, is a domestic corporation in each state, and is liable for the franchise tax on its capital stock in Ohio. A finding by the Ohio taxing officers that the company is a foreign corporation, and the acceptance of reports and franchise tax by the secretary of state, does not conclude the right of the state to its proper tax.

State v. Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 55; 18 L. D. 273 (1907).

The franchise of such bridge company, organized under a special act prior to 1851, which contained special provisions as to taxation, can not be surrendered by its president, without authority from the corporation.

Sebastian v. Covington & Cin. Bridge Co., 21 O. S. 451 (1871).

Taxation of such company, under special provisions of its charter.

Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co. v. Mayer, 31 O. S. 317 (1877).

Franchise of such company as a contract.

See Sebastian v. Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co., 21 O. S. 451 (1871).

Power of congress over navigable waters.

See note to § 9305.

Power of state to fix tolls of bridge between two states where congress has not acted. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1166.

Section 9311. (Further powers.) In the manner provided by law, such company may purchase or appropriate and hold such real estate as, in the opinion of its directors, will be required for the site of the bridge, and of suitable avenues or approaches leading thereto, and may locate it on, or construct it over, a public street, road, avenue, or alley. But in constructing it over a public street, road, avenue or alley it must be at such height as not to interfere with travel passing on, over or along the bridge. No pier or other obstruction, shall be built upon such street, road, avenue or alley, without the consent of the municipal or other authorities having charge or control of it. The company shall be responsible for injuries done to private property, adjacent or near to such bridge, by its elevation and construction, which may be recovered in a civil action brought by the owner, at any time within two years from the completion thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3542; February 8, 1889, 86 v. 25; Rev. Stat. 1880; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 5; S. & S. 203.)

A company organized to construct a bridge over the Ohio River is authorized to purchase, appropriate and hold any interest in real estate, whether an estate in fee simple or a less estate, which, in the opinion of the directors, will be required for the site of the bridge and of suitable avenues or approaches leading thereto.

Covington & Cincinnati Bridge Co. v. Magruder, 63 O. S. 455 (1900).

Section 9312. (Rates of toll prescribed.) Such company may fix and collect reasonable rates of toll for all persons, animals, vehicles, and property passing or transported over the bridge, but which at no time shall exceed those collected at the Covington and Cincinnati bridge. The company shall set up and keep in a conspicuous place, at each end of the bridge, a board on which the rate is written, painted, or printed in a plain, legible manner. (R. S. Sec. 3543; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 6; S. & S. 203.)

Section 9313. (May lay tracks on a bridge.) Such company may lay down a railway track or tracks upon the bridge and its approaches, and contract at any agreed sum or rate, with any railroad company organized in this state in accordance with law, or organized in any other state of the United States, for the use of the bridge, for the purposes of such railroad company. A railroad company organized in this state may enter into such contract with the bridge company; but the bridge company shall not charge or collect from the railroad company for the use of the bridge in the transportation over it of cars, railroad passengers, and freights, a greater toll than the following: For each ton (two thousand pounds) of freight not exceeding fifteen cents; each passenger not exceeding fifteen cents; for each passenger, baggage, mail, or express car not exceeding one dollar; each eight-wheeled freight car fifty cents; and for each four-wheeled freight car not exceeding twenty-five cents. (R. S. Sec. 3544; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 7; S. & S. 203.)

Cited, Mannington v. Railway, 8 O. L. R. 451, 472; 183 Fed. 133; 16 O. F. D. 552 (1910).

Section 9314. (Mortgage of franchises and sale of obligations.) Such company may include all its rights, income, profits, and franchises in any mortgage it lawfully makes and upon a foreclosure of a mortgage of its bridge, land, and franchises, and sale thereof, such sale shall pass to the purchaser the corporate franchises of the company as fully as the company had them at the time the mortgage was executed. The company may dispose of any evidence of indebtedness it lawfully issues as is provided for railroads in like case. (R. S. Sec. 3545; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 8; S. & S. 204.)

Section 9315. (Railroad companies may subscribe stock.)

A railroad company or other private corporation organized under a law of this state, may become a subscriber to the capital stock of such bridge company, to an amount not exceeding one-third of such stock, or purchase, or take by way of pledge, the bonds or other evidences of indebtedness issued by it. (R. S. Sec. 3546; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 9; S. & S. 204.)

Mannington v. Railway, 8 O. L. R. 451, 472; 183 Fed. 133; 16 O. F. D. 552 (1910).

Section 9316. (Consolidation of companies.) A bridge company may consolidate its capital stock with that of a bridge company in an adjoining state, authorized to construct a bridge across the Ohio river, in the manner prescribed for the consolidation of railroad companies, and the two companies thereupon shall be merged into one corporation, possessing within this state all the rights, privileges, and franchises, and subject to all the restrictions, disabilities, and duties of such corporation of this state so consolidated. (R. S. Sec. 3547; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 10; S. & S. 204.)

Section 9317. (May change span or height of bridge.)

Such company may fix or change the span and altitude of a bridge it constructs, but the span shall not be less than three hundred feet in the clear over the main channel, nor less than two hundred and twenty feet in the clear in one of the next adjoining spans. The height of the bridge in the center of the span over the main channel shall not be less than one hundred feet above the surface of the water at low water-mark, measuring for such elevation to the bottom chord of the bridge, and such height above extreme high water-mark as is provided in any act of congress now in force or hereafter passed. This section shall not apply to any bridge built with a draw in accordance with the provisions of an act of congress approved July 14, 1862, entitled "an act to establish certain post roads," or any act subsequently passed on the subject. (R. S. Sec. 3548; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 55, § 11; S. & S. 204.)

Section 9318. (Avenues and approaches.) A company which has constructed a bridge across the Ohio river, may construct, extend and maintain avenues or approaches there-to beyond the point where they are now, or by law are authorized to be constructed. In the construction and main-tenance of such avenues and approaches, it may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges conferred on bridge com-panies by the laws of this state, and borrow money and se-cure the payment thereof as is provided in section eighty-seven hundred and five. (R. S. Sec. 3548a; May 16, 1894, 91 v. 279.)

Section 9319. (May maintain ferries.) Such companies may purchase, hold, receive grants for, and run ferries within one half mile of such bridges across such river, and do all necessary acts in relation thereto, but the rates of ferriage shall be subject to the control of the authorities as in case of ferries owned and run by individuals. (R. S. Sec. 3549; May 7, 1869, 66 v. 136, § 2.)

Section 9320. (Powers.) A company organized for the purpose of supplying gas for lighting the streets and public and private buildings of a city, village, or township, may manufacture, sell, and furnish the gas required therein for such or other purposes, and a company organized for the purpose of supplying the inhabitants of a city, village or township with water may sell and furnish any quantity of water required therein for such or other purposes. Such companies may lay conductors for conducting gas or water through the streets, lands, alleys, and squares in such city or village with the consent of the municipal authorities of the city or village, or with the consent of the trustees of the township, under such reasonable regulations as they prescribe. (R. S. Sec. 3550; April 17, 1867, 64 v. 255, § 53; S. & S. 157.)

The right to use the streets of a municipality, for the laying of gas pipes, is a franchise and must emanate either directly or indirectly from the legislature.

State ex rel. v. Cincinnati Gas, etc., Co., 18 O. S. 262, 291.

The right to operate gas works is a franchise granted directly by the legislature. Consent of the municipality is only necessary for the use of the streets.

Defiance v. Peoples Gas & Electric Co., 12 L. D. 424.

Consent of the municipality is essential to use of the streets.

Brush, etc., Co. v. Jones, etc., Co., 5 C. C. 340; 3 C. D. 168; aff'd, no rep., 29 W. L. B. 72.

Consent to use streets is irrevocable when accepted and acted upon.

Defiance v. Peoples etc., Co., 12 L. D. 424.

But grants of franchises are subject to the tacit condition that they may be lost for non-user or mis-user. The condition thus implied is a condition subsequent. Where no steps to exercise a franchise are taken within a reasonable time, it may be revoked by the municipality. N. Y. Electric Lines v. Empire City Subway, 235 U. S. 179 (1914).

This section does not purport to grant, either directly or by permission of the municipality, an exclusive gas franchise in a municipality. To enable a municipality to make an exclusive grant, the power must be clearly conferred upon it by the legislature.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309, 339.

State ex rel. v. Cincinnati Gas Co., 18 O. S. 262, 289; approved 115 U. S. 659; 118 U. S. 371.

State ex rel. v. Hamilton, 47 O. S. 52, 70, 71; affirmed, 146 U. S. 258. See also G. C. § 3989.

Where a franchise required the grantee to furnish gas for public buildings free so long as the grantee had the exclusive right to use the streets, it was held that so long as the grantee exclusively used the streets, it was bound to furnish free gas. Where another franchise was granted, but was abandoned and forfeited, and not exercised, the obligation to furnish free gas was held to continue.

Newark, etc., Co. v. Newark, 7 N. P. 76; 8 L. D. 418.

A franchise granted to a gas company does not confer vested rights which are violated by the municipality erecting its own gas plant.

State ex rel. v. Hamilton, 47 O. S. 52.

Hamilton, etc., Co. v. Hamilton, 146 U. S. 258.

A franchise can not be abrogated by a vacation of the street. Where a street was vacated after gas pipes were laid under a franchise, and the abutting owner, a railroad company, uncovered the pipes and necessitated the relaying thereof, the railroad company is liable to the gas company for the cost of relaying.

Union, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 171 (1913).

Where a franchise was granted without limitation for pipes, extensions, repairs, etc., a permit for an extension is unnecessary.

Defiance v. Peoples, etc., Co., 12 L. D. 424.

Every grant in derogation of the rights of the public in the streets will be construed strictly against the grantee and liberally in favor of the public, and never extended beyond its express terms when not indispensable to give effect to the grant.

East Ohio Gas Co. v. Akron, 81 O. S. 33, 52.

Cleveland Electric Ry. Co. v. Cleveland, 204 U. S. 116.

Natural gas pipes in street, an additional burden. The laying of natural gas pipes in the street of a municipality is an additional burden and servitude for which abutting owners are entitled to compensation.

Webb v. Ohio Gas Fuel Co., 16 W. L. B. 121.

Federal Gas & Fuel Co. v. Townsend, 1 N. P. n. s. 289; 14 L. D. 5.

See Stone v. Cuyahoga Light Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 545; 20 L. D. 130.

Terms and conditions of franchise.

— Annual payment by company. A municipality may, in an ordinance granting a franchise in its streets, require a gas company to pay a specified sum annually to the municipality, as compensation for inspection. When accepted by the gas company, the ordinance becomes a contract obligating the company to pay.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309, 334; reversing 2 N. P. n. s. 37.

Where a municipality granted a franchise in its streets to a gas company, one of the terms of which required the gas company to make annual payments to cover the expense of inspection, it is no defense to an action by the municipality to recover payments, that the municipality subsequently made grants to other gas companies.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309 ; reversing 2 N. P. n. s. 37.

A sum required to be paid annually by a gas company to compensate the municipality for supervision is presumed to be reasonable, in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 333; reversing 2 N. P. n. s. 37.

— Percentage of receipts. In granting a franchise in its streets to a natural gas company a municipality may require the grantee to pay a percentage of its receipts to the municipality; although such payments are expressed to be for the benefit of the general expense fund of the municipality.

Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 10 N. P. n. s. 305; 21 L. D. 179; 22 L. D. 250 (1910); s. c., 13 N. P. n. s. 394 (1910).

Telephone Co. v. Columbus, 88 O. S. 466 (1913).

Under a franchise providing for the payment of "ten percent of all moneys received from the sale of all natural gas sold at a price exceeding fifteen cents per thousand cubic feet", the basis of computation is "all moneys received" when the charge exceeds fifteen cents. Gas Co. v. Columbus, 96 O. S. 530 (1917).

A company which has accepted ordinances granting a franchise to lay pipes in consideration of a percentage of its receipts, and laid and maintained its pipes in the streets, is estopped from questioning the validity of such ordinances.

Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 394 (C. P. 1910).

— That natural gas shall not be furnished for illuminating purposes. A provision in an ordinance, granting a franchise to a natural gas company, that natural gas shall not be furnished for illuminating purposes, but for heat and power only, is void.

Springfield v. Springfield Gas Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 392; 21 C. D. 446; aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 537.

See Comment, 58 Bull. 125.

Gaslight Co. v. Findley, 2 C. C. 237; 1 C. D. 463.

— Lease of plant to municipality with option to purchase. A franchise providing for a lease of the plant to the municipality, with an option to purchase, is not invalid as indefinite, uncertain and containing more than one subject.

Moore v. Elmore, 13 N. P. n. s. 651; 23 L. D. 50 (C. P. 1910).

— Service pipes. A provision requiring the company to construct service pipes to the inside curb line was held to inure to the benefit of the municipality as well as private consumers. Cincinnati v. Gas Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 513; 24 L. D. 23 (1913).

— Indemnity against damages from excavations in streets. Where the franchise of a gas company required it to pay all judgments for damages recovered against the municipality resulting from excavations in the streets, in a suit by the municipality to recover the amount of a judgment paid by it, the charge of the court in the former action as to the issue submitted to the jury therein is conclusive. Gas Co. v. Elyria, 18 C. C. n. s. 156; aff'd, no rep. 85 O. S. 472.

Invalid conditions not going to the life of the franchise do not render the franchise inoperative.

Columbus v. Federal Gas & Fuel Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 277; aff'd, no report, 72 O. S. 632.

Invalid franchise. Suits to enjoin exercise of.

See notes to §§ 9101 and 3714.

Duration of franchise. When a grant is silent as to its duration, the franchise is not perpetual, but exists only so long as the parties mutually agree thereto.

East Ohio Gas Co. v. Akron, 81 O. S. 33.

Expired franchise. Rights of parties. After the expiration of its contract with a municipality, a gas company may wholly withdraw and cease to exercise its franchise. The municipality can not compel it to continue to furnish gas.

East Ohio Gas Co. v. Akron, 81 O. S. 33.

After the expiration of its grant in the streets, a gas company has no right to the further use of the streets without a new grant. In making such new grant the municipality is not limited to regulating the price and mode of use of gas, but may impose other reasonable conditions and regulations.

Columbus v. Columbus Gas Co., 76 O. S. 309, 329, 330; reversing 2 N. P. n. s. 37.

The municipality may require the company to remove its equipment from the streets within a reasonable time.

Detroit United Ry. v. Detroit, 229 U. S. 39 (1913); affirming, 156 Mich. 106.

The adoption of an ordinance granting a renewal of a franchise, but on different terms, does not repeal the original franchise ordinance, and is not binding on the company until acceptance. The company may remove from the municipality at any time and an action does not lie to enjoin discontinuance of impairment of service. Newcomestown v. Gas Co., 30 O. C. A. 283 (1919); aff'd, 100 O. S. 494.

So long as a gas company continues to furnish gas, after expiration of its franchise, it must charge the same rate as during the period while the franchise was in force. Newcomestown v. Gas Co., 30 O. C. A. 283 (1919); affirmed, 100 O. S. 494.

Right of municipality to change grade of street after pipes installed. A gas company laying its pipes in a street does so subject to the right of the municipality to change the grade of the street. In the absence of negligence the municipality is not liable to the gas company for damage occasioned by the necessity of relaying the pipes.

Gas Light & Coke Co. v. Columbus, 50 O. S. 65.

New Orleans, etc., Co. v. Drainage Commission, 197 U. S. 453, 462.

See Union, etc., Co. v. Railway Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 171 (1913).

Where a street in which gas mains have been placed is vacated by order of court at the petition of the abutting owners, upon condition that the gas company be permitted access to lay, repair, change or remove its mains, and thereafter the grade is changed by the owner, he is not liable to the gas company for the cost of changing the location of its mains. Railway Co. v. Gas Co., 6 Ohio App. 213; 28 O. C. A. 333 (1916).

Natural gas company, having franchise for fuel purposes, can not be enjoined from furnishing illuminating gas, by artificial gas company, whose franchise has expired. An artificial gas company, whose contract with the municipality has expired, can not enjoin a natural gas company from furnishing natural gas for illuminating purposes, although the franchise of the natural gas company is for fuel purposes.

See Springfield v. Springfield Gas Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 392; 21 C. D. 446; aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 537.

Liability for damages for explosion of gas in connecting pipes installed by consumers. Where pipes from the curb line into buildings were installed by consumers, and properly inspected before use, the gas company is not liable for damage caused by subsequent defects in the pipes, in the absence of a contract or other obligation requiring the company to inspect the same. Cooper v. Gas Co., 3 Ohio App. 77; 19 C. C. n. s. 481 (1914).

But the company may be liable to third parties, if it fails to take protective measures after notice that gas is escaping. Lennon v. Gas Co., 4 Ohio App. 153; 22 C. C. n. s. 247 (1915).

Water company failing to furnish water to municipality, not liable to residents for fire losses. Where property in a municipality is destroyed by fire through the failure of a water company to furnish water and fire apparatus to the municipality in accordance with its contract with the municipality, the owner of such property can not recover damages from the water company.

Section 9321. (Gas or electric companies may manufacture and supply both electricity and gas.) Every corporation organized under the laws of this state to manufacture and supply artificial gas for light, heat and power purposes or for any of such purposes, and every corporation organized under the laws of this state to manufacture and supply electricity for light, heat and power purposes, or for any of such purposes, in addition to all powers heretofore conferred, but subject to statutory provisions in force relating to the granting of franchises by municipalities for either of such purposes at the time of granting the franchise, may manufacture and supply electricity and artificial gas, respectively, for light, heat and power purposes, and to make all contracts, and do all things necessary and convenient for furnishing the same for both public and private objects. (R. S. Sec. 3550a; 98 v. 150; 97 v. 258; 90 v. 291.)

A corporation organized to manufacture gas for lighting purposes may amend its charter under G. C. § 8719 so as to employ both gas and electricity.

Picard v. Hughey, 58 O. S. 577.

Section 9322. (Consent of municipality.) Nothing herein confers any right to engage in such business or to erect or maintain structures in a street, alley or public place without the consent of the municipality in which it is to be constructed. (R. S. Sec. 3550a; 98 v. 150; 97 v. 258; 90 v. 291.)

Section 9323. (Contract with municipality.) Ordinances and resolutions heretofore passed by any municipal corporation, and contracts heretofore made by and between any municipality and company organized to manufacture and supply gas, which were and still are intended to provide for supplying electricity for a municipal purpose and as to which the time of performance has not begun to run, or has not expired, shall be as valid and binding as if this statute had been in force when such ordinance or resolution was passed or contract made. (R. S. Sec. 3550a; 98 v. 150; 97 v. 258; 90 v. 291.)

For constitutionality of this section, see Kumler v. Silsbee, 38 O. S. 445.

Section 9324. (Contracts with municipality for light and water.) The municipal authority of any city or village or the trustees of any township, in which a gas or water company is organized, may contract with such company for lighting or supplying with water the streets, lands, lanes, squares and public places in such city, village, or township. (R. S. Sec. 3551; 98 v. 150; 71 v. 93, § 54.)

See §§ 3981, 3994 and notes.

One who has furnished gas to a municipality can not recover therefor in the absence of a contract. There is no implied liability to pay on the part of the municipality.

Contra, Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 298.

Section 9325. (Gas company may extend mains beyond city.) A gas company in a city or village may extend its pipes used for conveying gas to the various localities and inhabitants of the city or village, to any place in the vicinity thereof, outside the corporate limits; but the right of way must be obtained from the corporate or other authorities, or person having control of the places to be affected by such extension. (R. S. Sec. 3552; 56 v. 92, § 1.)

Where a gas company, under the provisions of this section, extends into a village its pipes used for conveying gas, and is vested with the right of way where such pipes are laid, and uses such pipes to convey to the village lamps, gas manufactured outside of such village, and uses such manufactory and pipes as one plant, such company may be regarded as established in such village, within the meaning of section 3982; and such extension of pipes may be regarded as the extension of gas works for supplying the village with gas, within the meaning of section 3989.

Cincinnati Gas Co. v. Avondale, 43 O. S. 257.

Section 9326. (Standard measure for gas.) The standard or unit of measure for the sale of illuminating gas by meter shall be the cubic foot, containing sixty-two and three hundred twenty-one one-thousandth pounds avoirdupois weight of distilled or rain water, weighed in air, of the temperature of sixty-two degrees Fahrenheit's scale, the barometer being at twenty-nine and one-half inches. (R. S. Sec. 3553; 63 v. 164, § 5.)

Section 9327. (Meter must be sealed and stamped.) No meter shall be set unless it is tested by a meter-prover, sealed and stamped as hereinafter provided. A company authorizing the setting of a meter, or allowing it to be used by a consumer of gas, without being so sealed and stamped, shall forfeit and pay not less than twenty-five nor more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered upon the complaint of such consumer, in the name of the state, before any court of competent jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 3554; 64 v. 39, § 6.)

This section is constitutional.

Section 9328. Repealed. (106 v. 554; R. S. Sec. 3555; 88 v. 123; 63 v. 164, § 7.)

Section 9329. (Meters, testing of.) Meters in use shall be tested on the request of the consumer, in his presence, if desired, with a meter-prover, tested and sealed as provided by law, by an officer or servant of the company. If the meter be found to be correct, and it shall be deemed correct if there be no greater variation than three per cent, the party requesting the inspection shall pay a fee of twenty-five cents, and the expense of removing it for the purpose of being tested. The re-inspection shall be stamped on the meter. If proved incorrect, no fees or expense shall be paid by the consumer, and the company shall furnish a new meter without charge to the consumer. No gas company shall charge rent for meters. (R. S. Sec. 3556; 99 v. 471; 64 v. 39, § 9.)

This section is constitutional.

Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. State, 18 O. S. 237.

This section prohibits a private company from charging rent for meters, although § 3982 provides that the council may fix the rental charge for meters. A municipality, operating its own gas plant, may charge rent therefor. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1805.

Section 9330. (To what companies applicable.) The provisions of the preceding section shall apply to all gas companies, supplying the public with either natural or artificial gas. The failure of any person, firm or corporation so providing either natural or artificial gas to the public to comply with the provisions of such section shall cause the person, firm or corporation to forfeit and pay to the state not less than twenty-five dollars, nor more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered upon the complaint of any consumer of such gas in the name of the state before any court of competent jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 3556; 99 v. 471; 64 v. 39, § 9.)

Constitutionality, see Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. State, 18 O. S. 237.

Section 9331. (Merchantable gas.) Illuminating gas which has a minimum value of less than twelve candles—that is, a burner consuming five cubic feet per hour must give a light, as measured by photometric apparatus in ordinary use, of not less than twelve standard sperm candles, each consuming one hundred and twenty grains per hour—shall not be merchantable. (106 v. 554; R. S. Sec. 3557; 64 v. 39, § 10.)

Section 9332. (May enter premises to inspect meter.) If duly authorized in writing by the president, treasurer, agent or secretary of a gas company, at any reasonable time, its officer or servant may enter any premises lighted with gas supplied by such company, for the purpose of examining or removing the meters, and of ascertaining the quantity of gas consumed or supplied. If a person, directly or indirectly, prevents or hinders such officer or servant from so entering such premises, or from making such examination or removal, on complaint by the officer or servant, under oath, to a justice of the peace of the county wherein such premises are situate, stating the facts in the case, so far as he has knowledge thereof, the justice may issue a warrant, directed to any constable of the city or village where such company is located, commanding him to take sufficient aid, and repair to such premises, accompanied by such officer or servant, who shall examine such meters and ascertain the quantity of gas consumed or supplied therein, and, if required, remove any meters belonging to the company. (R. S. Sec. 3558; 63 v. 164, § 11.)

Constitutionality, see Cincinnati, etc., Co. v. State, 18 O. S. 237.

Section 9333. (Company may shut off gas.) If any person so supplied with gas neglects or refuses to pay the amount due therefor, or for rent of articles hired by him of the company, it may stop the gas from entering the premises of such person. In such cases after twenty-four hours' notice, the officers, servants or workmen of the gas company may enter the premises of such parties, between the hours of eight in the forenoon and four in the afternoon, take away such property of the company, and disconnect any meter from the mains or pipes of the company; but it shall not refuse to furnish gas on account of arrearages due the company for gas furnished to former occupants of the premises. (R. S. Sec. 3559; 63 v. 164, § 12.)

A municipal corporation owning and operating its own waterworks may make a rule providing that water shall be shut off, if a consumer is delinquent in payment, and providing a reasonable charge for turning the water off and on. The determination by city officials, of the amount due, is not final, and a consumer may apply to the courts for a determination of the amount, and to restrain the enforcement of such rule pending such determination.

Mansfield v. Humphreys Mfg. Co., 82 O. S. 216.

Section 9334. (Cash deposit; interest.) No person, firm, or corporation engaged in the business of furnishing gas, water or electricity to consumers of such products, shall demand or require a consumer to deposit cash in any sum whatever as security for the payment of any bills for any such commodity to be so furnished, if the proposed consumer be a freeholder who is financially responsible or a person who is able to give a reasonably safe guaranty in an amount sufficient to secure the payment of bills for fifty days' supply. In case no such security can be furnished, a deposit not exceeding the amount of the monthly average of the annual consumption by such consumer plus thirty per cent may be required, upon which deposit there shall be allowed and paid to the consumer, interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, provided it remains on deposit six consecutive months. (R. S. Sec. 3559a; 99 v. 445.)

Section 9335. (Contrary rule unlawful.) The making of any rule, regulation or requirement in conflict with any of the provisions of the preceding section, is strictly forbidden, and hereby declared to be unlawful. (R. S. Sec. 3559a; 99 v. 445.)

Section 9336. (Forfeiture.) Any person, firm or corporation violating any of the provisions of the second preceding section, upon conviction thereof, shall forfeit all right to collect or receive any sum whatever from such consumer for gas, water or electricity so furnished. (R. S. Sec. 3559b; 99 v. 445.)

Section 9337. (Tampering with meter.) Every person who wilfully or fraudulently injures, or suffers to be injured, a meter belonging to a gas company, or prevents a meter from duly registering the quantity of gas supplied through it, or hinders or interferes with its proper action or just registration, or attaches a pipe to a main or pipe belonging to such company, or otherwise burns or uses or causes to be used, gas supplied by such company, without the written consent of an officer thereof, unless it passes through a meter set by the company; or fraudulently burns the gas of the company, or wastes it, for every such act shall forfeit and pay to the company not more than one hundred dollars, to be recovered in an action brought by it against such offender, and in addition thereto, pay the company the amount of damage by it sustained by reason of such injury, prevention, waste, consumption or hindrance. (R. S. Sec. 3560; 63 v. 164, §§ 13, 14.)

Section 9338. (Meter-prover and photo-meter; penalty.) All gas companies supplying the public with artificial or natural gas, which are not supplied with such apparatus, forthwith shall provide for their use a meter-prover, the holder of which must contain not less than five feet, such prover to be tested in the place where it is to be used and stamped and sealed by the public utilities commission of Ohio, all such tests to be open to the public. All gas companies supplying artificial or natural gas for illuminating purposes shall on the order of the public utilities commission of Ohio provide for their use a photometer of a type approved by such commission. The failure on the part of any person, firm or corporation supplying the public with artificial or natural gas to comply with the provisions of this section shall cause said person, firm or corporation to forfeit and pay to the state not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one hundred dollars to be recovered upon the complaint of any such consumer, in the name of the state, before any court of competent jurisdiction. (106 v. 554; R. S. Sec. 3561; 99 v. 471; 88 v. 123; 73 v. 227, § 3.)

DOMESTIC.

Section 9339. (Purpose for which may be formed.) Any number of persons, not less than thirteen, may associate and form a company to make insurance upon the lives of individuals, and every insurance appertaining thereto or connected therewith, on the mutual or stock plan, and grant, purchase, or dispose of annuities. (R. S. Sec. 3587; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 1.)

Classification of life insurance companies. The Ohio statutes divide life insurance companies, other than fraternal, into two classes, (1) companies that have a capital stock, or at least capital, and (2) companies that have neither capital stock nor capital. The general powers of the first class are granted by § 9339 and those of the second class by § 9427 et seq.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1, 7 (1898).

Corporations organized under Ohio laws are of two classes: (1) Those organized for profit, which must have a capital stock owned by stockholders. (2) Those organized for purposes other than profit, consisting of members associated together for a lawful purpose. Corporations formed under § 9427 et seq. belong to the second class.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

Representations made by a stock company that it was doing a mutual insurance business, and the fact that policy holders, who elected to take participating contracts, had written in their contracts a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as apportioned by the company" do not transform such company into a mutual company or even make the participating contracts mutual insurance contracts, or estop the company from treating, as belonging to its stockholders, a surplus fund which clearly arose from profits of the non-participating business.

State v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

See Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); s. c., 87 O. S. 475.

Powers of each class. The powers of a company of the first class (§ 9339 et seq.) are unlimited as to the individuals it may insure, but are limited to insuring "on the mutual or stock plan." A company or association of the second class (§ 9427 et seq.) can only insure a member of the corporation, and its business must be transacted "on the assessment plan."

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1, 8 (1898).

The first class has no authority to transact business "on the assessment plan." The lack of such power results solely from the omission of the legislation to grant it.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

But a foreign corporation, authorized, by the laws of its home state, to transact business on the assessment plan should not be refused admission to do such business in Ohio, under § 9435, because it has a capital stock.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

A foreign company which carries a line of assessment or stipulated premium policies can not be admitted to Ohio to do business on the mutual or stock plan as a full legal reserve company and to write only full legal reserve business.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 679 (1902).

Forfeiture of franchise. Where an insurance company has misused its franchise it may be ousted therefrom by a proceeding in quo warranto.

See § 12304.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

In such a quo warranto proceeding the court can not concern itself with the rights of policy holders or stockholders, but can only consider whether some public mischief is being done or threatened.

State v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

A judgment, in a quo warranto proceeding brought by the attorney general to test the right of a company to declare a dividend out of a surplus fund, dismissing the petition, is no defense to an action by holders of participating policies seeking to conserve their interest in such surplus fund, where the policy holders were not parties to the quo warranto proceeding.

Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); s. c., 87 O. S. 475.

Application of general corporation law to life insurance companies. G. C. § 8623 does not authorize the incorporation of insurance companies, as the organization of such companies is specially provided for in title IX, division III, G. C.

State v. Pioneer Live Stock Co., 38 O. S. 347 (1882).

Corporations formed under § 9427 et seq., though not subject to the provisions of title IX, division III, chapter 1 of the General Code relating to life insurance companies "on the mutual or stock plan" are subject to all the general provisions of title IX, division I, chapter 1, G. C., which apply to corporations not for profit.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

Powers of life insurance companies.

See § 9385 and note.

Deposit of securities. A company organized under this section must furnish security for the assured, as required by § 9346.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7, 11 (1882).

Section 9340. (Articles of incorporation.) Such persons shall file in the office of the secretary of state articles of incorporation, signed by them, setting forth their intention to form a company for the purposes named in this chapter, which articles shall comprise a copy of the charter they propose to adopt. The charter shall set forth the name of the company, which shall not be the corporate name or title used to designate any fire, life, marine, or other insurance company existing under the laws of this state, the place where it is to be located, the kind of business to be undertaken, the manner in which its corporate powers are to be exercised, the number of directors or trustees, the manner of electing them and other officers, a majority of whom shall be citizens of this state, the time of such election, the manner of filling vacancies, the amount of capital to be employed, and such other particulars as are necessary to explain and make manifest the objects and purposes of the company, and the manner in which it is to be conducted. Such directors and trustees must be stockholders or members, and the number thereof may be increased at the will of the stockholders representing a majority of the stock, or of a majority of the members, to not more than twenty-one. (R. S. Sec. 3588; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 4; April 11, 1863, 60 v. 75, § 1; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 557, § 1; S. & S. 217; S. & S. 219.)

The words "the amount of capital to be employed" mean authorized capital stock.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 80, 82.

The par value and number of shares may, but need not, be stated. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 24.

The articles may be amended under § 8719. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 24.

Section 9341. (Approval by attorney-general.) When such articles are filed in the office of the secretary of state, and the name assumed by the company is not so nearly similar to that of any other company organized in this state as to lead to confusion or uncertainty on the part of the public, the secretary of state shall submit them to the attorney-general, for examination. If found by him to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of the United States and of this state, he shall certify to and deliver them to the secretary of state, who shall cause them, with the certificate of the attorney-general, to be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose. Upon application of the signers thereof the secretary of state shall furnish to them a certified copy of such articles and certificate. (R. S. Sec. 3589;

April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 5; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 557, § 1; S. & S. 219.)

A corporation organized to act as insurance agent is not an insurance company. The articles need not be approved by the attorney general. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2357.

The provisions of this section, as to name, do not apply to mutual protective associations organized under § 9427 et seq.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 343 (1890).

Section 9342. (Opening of subscription book.) When the signers of such articles receive from the secretary of state a certified copy thereof, and desire to organize such company, they shall publish their intention in a paper published and having general circulation in the county in which the company is to be organized. After the publication has been made for six weeks, they may open books to receive subscriptions to the capital stock, keep them open until the amount required by this chapter is subscribed, distribute the stock among the subscribers, if more than the necessary amount is subscribed, collect the capital and complete the organization of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3590; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 6; S. & S. 219.)

Certain provisions required in subscription contract, § 6373-12.

Organization expense limited, § 6373-12.

Duty of superintendent of insurance, § 6373-19.

Directors and officers can not be elected until the entire authorized capital stock is paid in.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 80.

This section and § 9343 are "special provisions" within the meaning of § 8737 and supplant the provisions of the general corporation law, §§ 8630 to 8635.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 80, 84.

Section 9343. (Whole capital must be paid in and invested.) No joint stock company shall be organized under this chapter with less than one hundred thousand dollars capital. Before proceeding to business, the whole capital shall be paid in and invested in treasury notes, in stocks or bonds of the United States, or of the state of Ohio, or of any municipality or county thereof, or in mortgages on unincumbered real estate within this state worth double the amount loaned thereon. (R. S. Sec. 3591; March 5, 1902, 95 v. 38; April 27, 1894, 91 v. 39; April 9, 1873, 70 v. 118, § 7; S. & S. 219.)

Investment of accumulations, § 9357.

Directors and officers can not be elected until the entire authorized capital stock is paid in.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 80.

The capital stock can not be reduced, although in excess of $100,000.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 80, 110.

Where a note and mortgage were executed by a stockholder in payment of his stock subscription, the stock, under this section, was regarded as paid up, and the note and mortgage as given for money loaned or invested by the company. The liability of the stockholder on the note and mortgage was held to be not less than that of any other borrower, and his rights as a stockholder not superior to those of non-borrowing stockholders.

Insurance Co. v. Curtis, 35 O. S. 343, 350 (1880).

See also, as to liability of stockholders on notes given in payment for stock.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 41 O. S. 1 (1884).

Usurious interest, effect of stipulations for, see note to § 8627.

Unincumbered real estate. The view has been expressed that a building restriction constitutes an incumbrance within the meaning of this section, and that an insurance company can not invest in a first mortgage on restricted property.

Rep. Atty. Gen. (1909-1910) 343.

Compare, Engle v. Morrison, 6 C. C. n. s. 609 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 388.

Section 9344. (Insurance of structures on mortgaged lands.) If the amount loaned exceeds one-half the value of the land mortgaged, exclusive of structures thereon, such structures shall be insured in an authorized fire insurance company in any amount not less than the difference between one-half the value of such land exclusive of structures, and the amount loaned, and the policy assigned to the mortgagee. (R. S. Sec. 3591; March 5, 1902, 95 v. 38; April 27, 1894, 91 v. 39; April 9, 1873, 70 v. 118, § 7; S. & S. 219.)

Section 9345. (Increase of capital stock.) When in the opinion of the board of directors thereof, a company organized under any law of this state, requires a larger amount of capital than that fixed by its articles of incorporation, if authorized by the holders of two-thirds of the stock, they shall file with the secretary of state a certificate setting forth the amount of the desired increase, and thereafter the company shall be entitled to have the increased amount of capital fixed by the certificate, which shall be invested as required by the preceding two sections. (R. S. Sec. 3592; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 6.)

A surplus fund, arising from the profits of the company, may be applied toward payment of increased stock, and a stock dividend declared therefrom. The fact that the company falsely represented that it was doing a mutual business, and inserted in the contracts of many policy holders a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as apportioned by the company," does not estop the company from treating, as belonging to its stockholders, a surplus fund which clearly arose from profits on the non-participating business.

State v. Life Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

See Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911).

A legal reserve life insurance company can not reduce its capital stock under G. C. § 8700.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 80, 110.

But by amending its articles under § 8719 it may change the par value and number of its shares. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 24.

Section 9346. (Deposit of securities with superintendent.)

Any such company may invest its capital in such stocks, bonds, or mortgages, and change and invest it or any part thereof in like manner, at pleasure. But no company shall commence business until it has deposited with the superintendent of insurance at least one hundred thousand dollars, in such stocks, bonds, and mortgages, or one or more of them, duly made or assigned to the superintendent in trust for the purposes mentioned in this chapter. When a mortgage of real estate is assigned to the superintendent, the assignment shall be immediately entered in the records of the county in which the real estate is situated, the fee for the recording of which shall be paid by the company. (R. S. Sec. 3593; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 8; S. & S. 219.)

Collection of claims from securities, see § 641.

This section relates to domestic companies organized under § 9339. Deposits by foreign companies are regulated by § 9367.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7, 11 (1882).

The deposit is solely for the security of policy holders, and not for the security of general creditors, and before resort can be had to this fund, there must be shown some specific amount due, or that may become due, on account of such policy holders.

Falkenbach v. Patterson, 43 O. S. 359 (1885).

Where accommodation securities are given to the company, for the purpose of being deposited with the superintendent, upon the insolvency of the company, such securities are subject to the claims of the policy holders; but as against general creditors, the same defenses may be invoked as against the company. The makers of such accommodation securities, as against policy holders, are estopped to deny the existence of the corporation and its powers to issue such policies.

Falkenbach v. Patterson, 43 O. S. 359 (1885).

See Cooke v. Warner, 56 Conn. 234 (1888).

Securities deposited in trust for the benefit and protection of policy holders, can not be recovered from the superintendent of insurance by the assignee for creditors of the insurance company, without showing that the company is no longer liable to any of its policy holders. It is the duty of the superintendent, where a company becomes insolvent, to distribute the funds deposited pro rata among the policy holders, and, when their claims are satisfied, to pay the balance to the company, its successors or assigns.

State v. Matthews, 64 O. S. 419 (1901).

Section 9347. (Change of deposits and collection of interest.) The superintendent of insurance shall hold such securities as security for policy holders in the company; but so long as any company so depositing continues solvent he shall permit it to collect the interest or dividends on such securities, and from time to time to withdraw them, or a part thereof, on depositing with him other securities of the kinds heretofore named, and of equal value with those withdrawn. (R. S. Sec. 3594; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 149; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 9; S. & S. 220.)

Section 9348. (Deposit in excess of required amount.) In case a company making or maintaining such deposit, through inadvertence or by reason of not having securities in such denomination as to make the exact sum of one hundred thousand dollars, deposits securities in excess of the requirement, such excess shall be held in trust for the company and not for the benefit of policy holders, and shall be returned to the company making the deposit on its demand. (R. S. Sec. 3594; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 149; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 9; S. & S. 220.)

This section authorizes a company to reclaim an excessive deposit made by it.

Rep. Atty. Gen. (1908-1909) 177.

Section 9349. (When company may commence business.) When the company is fully organized and has deposited the requisite amount of securities, it shall file with the superintendent of insurance a duly certified copy of its articles of incorporation and approval of the attorney general, and a copy of its by-laws or constitution. If the superintendent finds that the company is duly organized and that its capital stock has been subscribed, paid in and invested as required by law, unless he finds the name assumed by the company so nearly similar to the name of another company doing business in this state as to lead to confusion or uncertainty on the part of the public, he shall furnish the company with his certificate of such deposit, and with a license duly reciting that the company has complied with the law and is entitled to transact the business defined in section ninety-three hundred and eighty-five, which license shall be its authority to commence business and issue policies. (R. S. Sec. 3595; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 149; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 10; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 557, § 2; S. & S. 220.)

Section 9350. (Renewal of license.) So long as the company complies with the law, the superintendent, annually, upon its application, shall renew such license. Certified copies thereof may be used in evidence for and against the company in all actions. (R. S. Sec. 3595; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 149; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 10; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 557, § 2; S. & S. 220.)

Section 9351. (Consolidation and reinsurance.) No company organized under the laws of this state to do the business of life, accident or health insurance, either on stock, mutual, stipulated premium or assessment plan, shall consolidate with any other company, or reinsure its risks, or any part thereof with any other company, or assume or reinsure the whole of or any portion of the risks of any other company, except as hereinafter provided. Nothing herein contained shall prevent any such company from reinsuring a fractional part of any individual risk, not exceeding four-fifths thereof, in a company duly authorized to transact business in this state, or, with the permission of the superintendent of insurance, the whole of such risk; but no company, except as hereinafter provided, shall reinsure any part of any of its risks when the aggregate amount of its risks reinsured shall equal fifty per cent. of its total insurance in force. (April 22, 1913, 103 v. 174; R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Reinsurance defined.

Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 38 O. S. 11, 15 (1882).

See note to § 9555.

Penalty for violation of this section, see § 13416.

Section 9352. (Petition to superintendent of insurance.)

When any such company proposes to consolidate with any other company, or enter into any contract of reinsurance, it shall present its petition to the superintendent of insurance, setting forth the terms and conditions of the proposed consolidation or reinsurance, and praying for the approval or of any modification thereof, which the commission hereinafter provided for may approve. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

An Ohio company, authorized to do business in Ohio, in entering into a contract to assume the business of a company organized under the laws of another state, must follow the procedure provided in §§ 9352-9356. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1104.

Section 9353. (Notice to policyholders.) The superintendent thereupon shall issue an order of notice, requiring notice to be given by mail to the policyholders of such company, of the pendency of such petition, and the time and place at which it will be heard, and the publication of the order of notice and petition, in five daily newspapers to be designated by him, at least one of which shall be published in the city of Columbus, for at least two weeks before the time appointed for the hearing on the petition. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Section 9354. (Commission to hear and determine petition.) The governor or in the event of his inability to act, some competent person resident of the state to be appointed by him, the attorney-general, and the superintendent of insurance, shall constitute a commission to hear and determine upon such petition. At the time and place fixed in such notice, or at such time and place as is fixed by adjournment, the commission shall proceed with the hearing, and may make such examination into the affairs and condition of the company as it may deem proper. The superintendent of insurance may summon and compel the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of books and papers before the commission. Any policy-holder or stockholder of the above named company or companies may appear and be heard in reference to such petition. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Section 9355. (Approval and order of commission.) If satisfied that the interests of the policy-holders of such company or companies are properly protected, and that no reasonable objection exists thereto, the commission may approve and authorize the proposed consolidation or reinsurance, or of such modification thereof as seems to it best for the interests of the policy-holders, and make such order with reference to the distribution and disposition of the surplus assets of any such company thereafter remaining, as shall be just and equitable. Such consolidation or reinsurance shall only be approved by the consent of all the members of the commission, whose duty it will be to guard the interests of the policy-holders of any such company or companies proposing to consolidate or reinsure. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Consolidation of several companies having an aggregate capital and surplus in excess of $100,000 into one company with a capital stock of that amount only, under a plan contemplating distribution of surplus assets of $2,000,000 to holders of common trust certificates could not lawfully be sanctioned. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 171.

Section 9356. (Costs.) All expenses and costs incident to such proceedings shall be paid by the company or companies bringing such petition. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Section 9357. (Investment of accumulations by insurance companies.) A company organized under the laws of this state may invest its accumulations as follows:

1. In United States, state, county, school or city bonds, if their market value at the date of purchase is at least eighty per cent. of their par value.

2. In bonds and mortgages upon unincumbered real estate, the market value of which is at least double the amount loaned thereon, at the date of the investment, and in bonds and mortgages upon leasehold estates on real estate for ninety-nine years renewable forever, unincumbered, except rentals accruing therefrom to the owner of the fee, the market value of which leasehold estate is at least double the amount loaned thereon at the date of investment. If the amount loaned exceeds one-half of the value of the land mortgaged, or one-half of the value of the leasehold estate mortgaged, exclusive of structures thereon, such structures must be insured in an authorized fire insurance company or companies, in an amount not less than the difference between one-half the value of such land, or leasehold estate, exclusive of structures, and the amount loaned, and the policy, or policies shall be assigned to the mortgagee. The value of such real or leasehold estate shall be determined by valuation, made under oath, by two real estate owners, residents of the county where the real estate, or leasehold, is located.

3. In loans upon the pledge of such bonds or mortgages, if the current market value of the bonds or mortgages is at least twenty-five per cent. more than the amount loaned thereon.

4. In loans upon its own policies, not exceeding the reserve or present value thereof, computed according to the American experience table of mortality with interest at four per cent. or according to such other higher standard or standards as the company has adopted, the reserve being the amount of debts of life insurance companies by reason of their outstanding policies in gross, and which may be so treated in the returns for taxation made by them. Such companies may sell, change, or reinvest such investments, or any part thereof, at pleasure. (June 9, 1911, 102 v. 356; R. S. § 3598; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 180; March 5, 1902, 95 v. 39; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 576, § 11; S. & S. 220.)

Investment of capital stock, see § 9343.

Real estate loans. A loan evidenced by a promissory note, instead of by a bond, and secured by mortgage, is substantially in compliance with this section and the note and mortgage are valid.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 41 O. S. 1 (1885).

It is said that a building restriction is an incumbrance within the meaning of this section, and that an Ohio company can not make a loan on property restricted to residence purposes.

Rep. Atty. Gen. (1909-1910) 343.

Compare, Engle v. Morrison, 6 C. C. n. s. 609 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 388.

Where an insurance company, authorized to acquire notes and mortgages, under certain circumstances, purchases a note and mortgage, in a mode or for a purpose not authorized, its title thereto can not be defeated by the maker of the note and mortgage, who is a stranger to the agreement by which the property was acquired and who is not injured by the transfer.

Ehrman v. Insurance Co., 35 O. S. 324 (1880).

See also note to § 8627. Ultra vires acts.

Loans on policies. See also § 9420-(7) (9).

Where a company loaned more than the reserve value of a policy, in violation of this section, and in the note provided that the policy should lapse for non-payment of premiums, the provision for forfeiture of the policy was held to be invalid.

Hoover v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. 369; 6 L. D. 432 (C. P.); (modified, 61 O. S. 656).

But the insurance company in such case is entitled to the amount of the loan, with interest.

Insurance Co. v. Hoover, 61 O. S. 656 (1899); modifying, 7 N. P. 369; 6 L. D. 432.

Beneficiaries, who have been compelled to pay a loan made by the insured on the policy for his own benefit, may recover from his estate the amount of the debt so paid. Schuerman v. Twachtman, 24 C. C. n. s. 459 (1916).

Requirement that borrower take out insurance. Usury. Where a life insurance company requires an applicant for a loan at the same time to take out an insurance policy on his life on the usual terms and conditions, such insurance and the premium paid thereon will not be considered as compensation in addition to legal interest for the loan or usurious.

Insurance Co. v. Morrow, 16 C. C. 351; 8 C. C. 419 (1898); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 661.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478, 493 (1900).

And when the policy issued is on the life of a third person, in whose life the borrower has no insurable interest, the borrower jointly signing premium notes with the insured, the transaction is not usurious.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478 (1900).

Taxation. The reserve fund is not a debt owing to the policyholders, and can not be deducted from credits in the tax return of the insurance company.

Hynicka v. Insurance Co., 4 N. P. n. s. 297; 17 L. D. 80 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1906); aff'd, 5 N. P. n. s. 255; 18 L. D. 1.

Accumulated deferred dividends or undivided profits are not a part of the reserve fund, and are not debts of the company, but constitute assets which must be returned for taxation.

Insurance Co. v. Hynicka, 5 N. P. n. s. 255; 18 L. D. 1 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1907); affirming, 4 N. P. n. s. 297; 17 L. D. 80.

Section 9358. (Investments.) The preceding section shall not prohibit a company from accepting any other assets than therein enumerated in payment of debts due it, in order to protect its interests, or from acquiring real estate for its own use, or by foreclosure in accordance with the laws of this state, provided that unincumbered real estate as referred to in the preceding section shall be held to mean real estate not subject to any other lien, except taxes or assessments not yet due. (May 17, 1910, 101 v. 254; R. S. § 3598; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 180; March 5, 1902, 95 v. 39; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 576, § 11; S. & S. 220.)

Section 9359. (What real estate company may acquire.) No company organized under the laws of this state shall purchase, hold, or convey real estate, except for the purposes and in the manner herein set forth:

1. Such as is requisite for its immediate accommodation in the transaction of its business.

2. Such as has been mortgaged to it in good faith, by way of security for loans previously contracted, or for money due.

3. Such as has been conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.

4. Such as it has purchased at sales upon judgments, decrees, or mortgages obtained or made for such debts. (R. S. Sec. 3599; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 12; S. & S. 220.)

Where property which a corporation, under certain circumstances, is authorized to acquire, is purchased in a mode or for a purpose not authorized, the title of the corporation to the property can not be defeated by a party, who is a stranger to the agreement by which the property was acquired, and who is not injured by the transfer.

Ehrman v. Ins. Co., 35 O. S. 324 (1880).

Section 9360. (When real estate to be sold.) All real estate so acquired, and which is not necessary for the accommodation of a company in the convenient transaction of its business, shall be sold and disposed of within two years after the company acquires the title. It shall not hold such real estate for a longer period unless it procures a certificate from the superintendent of insurance that the interests of the company, will suffer materially by a forced sale of it, in which event the time for the sale may be extended to such time as the superintendent directs in the certificate. (R. S. Sec. 3600; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 13; S. & S. 221.)

Section 9361. (Certain action authorized.) Actions may be maintained by a company formed under the laws of this state, against any of its members, officers, policyholders, or stockholders, for any cause relating to its business; and actions may be prosecuted and maintained by any member, stockholder, or policyholder, or the heirs or legal representative of either, against the company, for losses which accrue on any risk, if payment be withheld more than two months after the losses become due. (R. S. Sec. 3601; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 15; S. & S. 221.)

Stipulation in policy limiting time for bringing suit.
See § 9421 and note.

Section 9362. (Dividends.) The directors, managers or officers of any company organized under the laws of this state shall not, directly or indirectly, make or pay a dividend, or pay any interest, bonus, or other allowances in lieu thereof, to its stockholders, except from surplus funds, after setting aside an amount equal to the reserve on all its outstanding risks and policies, calculated by what is known as the American Experience Table, with interest at four per cent, per annum, or by such other higher standard or standards as the company may have adopted, and the unearned premium on all personal accident and sickness insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3602; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 181; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 15.)

Surplus profits may be applied toward the payment of increased stock and distributed among the stockholders as a stock dividend.

The fact that a company falsely represented that it was doing a mutual insurance business and inserted in the contracts of many policyholders a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as apportioned by the company" does not estop the company from declaring a stock dividend out of a surplus fund that was clearly derived from profits on non-participating business.

State v. Life Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

A judgment in a quo warranto proceeding, brought to test the right of a company to declare a dividend out of a surplus fund, is no defense to an action by holders of participating policies, seeking to preserve their interest in such surplus fund, where the policyholders were not parties to the quo warranto proceeding.

Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); but see s. c., 87 O. S. 475.

Accumulated deferred dividends or undivided profits are not a part of the reserve fund and are not a debt of the company but constitute taxable assets.

Insurance Co. v. Hynicka, 5 N. P. n. s. 255; 18 L. D. 1 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1907); affirming, 4 N. P. n. s. 297; 17 L. D. 80.

Section 9363. (Annual statements.) The president or vice-president, and secretary or actuary, or a majority of the directors of each company organized under the laws of this state, annually on the first day of January, or within sixty days thereafter, shall prepare, under oath, and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance, a statement showing the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December, then next preceding, exhibiting the following facts and items, in the following form:

1. The number of policies issued during the year.
2. The amount of insurance effected thereby.
3. The amount of premiums received during the year.
4. The amount of interest, and all other receipts, specifying the items.
5. The amount paid to policyholders of the company for losses during the year.
6. The amount of all other expenditures and disbursements of the company, specifying such items as the superintendent calls for.
7. Amount of losses unpaid.
8. Whole number of policies in force.
9. Amount insured thereby.
10. Amount of reserve on all policies in force, calculated by what is known as the American Experience Table of Mortality, with interest at four per cent per annum, or by such other higher standard or standards as the company may have adopted, and the unearned premium on all personal accident and sickness insurance in force.
11. Amount of capital stock, specifying amount paid and unpaid.
12. Amount of dividends unpaid; also amount of all other liabilities.
13. A detailed statement of all the assets of the company, and the manner of their investment.
14. A statement that such company has not violated any provision of sections eighty-seven hundred and twenty-nine or eighty-seven hundred and thirty, in the form required by the superintendent of insurance.
15. An exhibit of the policy obligations of the company, which shall include, in the first annual statement, a schedule showing the number, date, age when insured, amount insured, term of policy, term of premium and amount of premium, of all policies issued and schedules of all policies cancelled, revived, changed, reduced or increased and schedule of reinsurances in other companies; and in every succeeding annual statement a schedule of the foregoing items as to all policies issued during the year, and similar schedules of policies cancelled, revived, changed, reduced or increased during the year, together with schedules of reinsurances in other companies and schedules of additions to policies and a list of all other obligations of the company requiring valuation. Such exhibit of the policy obligations of the company may be required oftener than once a year. (R. S. Sec. 3603; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 182; April 9, 1873, 70 v. 118, § 17; S. & S. 221.)

An indictment for perjury against the secretary of an insurance company for a false statement under this section need not allege that the statement was also sworn to by the president or vice-president.

Section 9363-1. (Valuation of bonds; method.) All bonds or other evidences of debt having a fixed term and rate held by any insurance company, assessment life association or fraternal benefit society authorized to do business in this state, may, if amply secured and not in default as to principal and interest, be valued as follows: If purchased at par, at the par value; if purchased above or below par, on the basis of the purchase price adjusted so as to bring the value to par at maturity and so as to yield in the meantime the effective rate of interest at which the purchase was made; provided that the purchase price shall in no case be taken at a higher figure than the actual market value at the time of purchase; and, provided further, that the superintendent of insurance shall have full discretion in determining the method of calculating values according to the foregoing rules. (110 v. 260.)

Section 9364. (Companies heretofore organized.) All companies organized under any law of this state shall continue corporations for the purpose for which they were chartered, but subject to all the provisions, requirements, and penalties imposed on companies organized under this chapter, and entitled to all the benefits and privileges of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 3627; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 29.)

FOREIGN.

Section 9365. (Companies organized by congress or in other state.) No company organized by act of congress, or under the laws of any other state of the United States, shall transact any business of insurance defined in section ninety-three hundred and eighty-five, on the capital stock or mutual plan, in this state, until it procures from the superintendent of insurance a certificate of authority so to do; nor shall any person or corporation, directly or indirectly, act as agent in this state for such a company, either in procuring applications for insurance, taking risks, or in any manner transacting the business of insurance, until such person or corporation procures from the superintendent of insurance a license so to do, in which he shall state that the company has complied with all requirements of the laws of this state applicable to it, and deposits a certified copy of such license in the office of the recorder of the county in which the office or place of business of such agent is established; for which filing the recorder may charge ten cents. (R. S. Sec. 3604; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 153; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18; S. & S. 223.)

Before the amendment of § 9441 and 9427 in 1891 (88 v. 251, 252) it was held that a foreign insurance company organized for "insuring lives on plan of assessment upon surviving members," without limitation, must comply with § 9365 et seq. and not § 9435.

A foreign life insurance company, authorized by its charter to write liability insurance, may be licensed and permitted, under § 9385, to transact such business in Ohio, although domestic life insurance companies are not, in express terms, authorized to transact liability business.

State v. Insurance Co., 69 O. S. 317 (1903).

Sections 646 et seq., 9365 et seq., and 9559 et seq., are statutes in pari materia and should be construed together.

Citing State v. Guilbert, 58 O. S. 637.

A foreign company which carries a line of assessment or stipulated premium policies can not be admitted to Ohio to do business on the mutual or stock plan as a full legal reserve company and to write only full legal reserve business.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 679 (1902).

It is said that a foreign insurance company, the majority of whose stock is held by a holding company, is not entitled to admission to do business in Ohio.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 540.

Discretionary power of superintendent of insurance. The issue of a license is a ministerial and not a judicial act.

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

Where a foreign company, tendering compliance with Ohio laws, applies for authority to do business within this state, the superintendent of insurance has no mere arbitrary discretion to refuse such admission.

State v. Moore, 42 O. S. 103 (1884).

But the superintendent may inquire into the financial soundness of the company, and if, upon such inquiry made in good faith, he is not satisfied of its financial soundness, he has discretionary power to refuse admission, and his exercise of such discretion will not be controlled by mandamus.

State v. Moore, 42 O. S. 103 (1884).

The superintendent has discretionary power to refuse a license to an agent who has previously solicited insurance, without a license, and offered rebates of premium.

Vorys v. State, 67 O. S. 15 (1902).

Revocation of certificate, see § 9384.

The certificate, so long as it remains in force, confers the right and privilege of carrying on its business in the state. Such privilege is a franchise, which emanates from the state.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

A certificate is not a bar to a proceeding in quo warranto where the company is charged with exercising franchises without authority of law.

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

Transacting business in the state; what constitutes. The loaning of funds upon property in this state is not the doing of business prohibited by this section.

Ouster by quo warranto. A foreign company exercising, in this state, franchises and privileges without authority of law may be ousted therefrom by quo warranto.

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

A foreign company or association which transacts insurance business in the state without a certificate of authority is unlawfully exercising a franchise under G. C. § 12303 and may be ousted from the transaction of such business.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

Where the acts of a foreign unincorporated insurance association are such as appertain to corporations, or are done after the manner of corporations, it is acting as a corporation without being legally incorporated within G. C. § 12303.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

A license or certificate of authority from the superintendent of insurance is not a bar to a proceeding in quo warranto where the insurance company is charged with exercising franchises without authority of law.

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

Effect on policy. A policy issued by a foreign company, which has not complied with this section, is not void.

Brand v. Murray, 7 Ohio App. 175; 28 O. C. A. 37 (1916).

In an action against the company on such policy, the failure of the company to comply with this section does not excuse the policyholder from paying premiums according to the terms of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. McMillen, 24 O. S. 67 (1873).

Actions by and against the company. A foreign insurance company, doing business in this state without complying with this section, can not maintain an action in the state courts to recover premiums.

Section 9366. (Other requirements of foreign companies.)

Any such company shall not take risks or transact any business of insurance in this state, unless possessed of the amount of actual capital required of similar companies organized in this state under the provisions of this chapter, nor unless the entire capital stock of the company is fully paid up and invested as required by the laws of the state where organized. But if it is a mutual company, actual cash assets of the same amount and description, invested and deposited as required by the laws of the state where it was organized, shall be accepted in lieu of capital stock. (R. S. Sec. 3604; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 153; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572; § 18; S. & S. 223.)

Cited, State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1, 15.

See note to § 9365.

The purpose of these sections is to protect policyholders and others dealing with the company.

Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388, 396 (1877).

This section requires the entire capital stock of a foreign company to be fully paid up, and not merely paid up to the extent required by the laws of its home estate.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 453 (1892).

Where the capital stock of a foreign company has been increased, all of the increased stock must be paid up and invested, although its original paid-up stock equalled or exceeded in amount the requirements of § 9343. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 738.

A foreign company which issued a contract providing for assessments at certain specified rates was held not authorized to levy assessments in excess thereof. Insurance Co. v. Douds, 103 O. S. 398 (1921); aff'd, — U. S. — (1923); 67 L. Ed. 488.

Section 9367. (Deposit with superintendent of insurance or other officer.) No such company shall transact any business of insurance in this state unless at least one hundred thousand dollars of its assets are invested in the interest paying bonds or stocks of the United States, or of this state, or of any municipality or county thereof, or in the interest paying state bonds or stocks of some other state of the United States, of the market value of one hundred thousand dollars in the city of New York, or in bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real estate in this state, or in the state under the laws of which it was organized, of at least double the value of the amount loaned thereon, and such bonds and mortgages are deposited with the superintendent of insurance of this state or the chief financial or other officer of the state in which such company was organized, designated by the laws of such state to receive them. If such bonds and mortgages are deposited with the superintendent of insurance or other officer of another state, the superintendent of insurance of this state shall be furnished with the certificate of such state officer, under his hand and official seal, that he as such officer, holds in trust and on deposit, for the benefit of the policy holders of such company, the securities above mentioned, giving the items thereof, and stating that he is satisfied such securities are worth at least one hundred thousand dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3605; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 153; February 27, 1894, 91 v. 40; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18; S. & S. 223.)

Taxation of securities deposited by foreign insurance companies, see § 5437.

Subjection of deposit to claims of policyholders, see § 641.

Section cited, State v. Moore, 39 O. S. 490 (1883).

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 17 (1898).

A company organized under the laws of the District of Columbia may be admitted to do business in Ohio. A rule adopted by the commissioners of the District and approved as authorized by act of congress may be regarded as a law of the state within § 9367.

As § 9367 requires a certificate by the superintendent of insurance or other officer of the home state of the foreign company, that he holds in trust and on deposit the requisite securities, a certificate that the securities have been deposited in a bank is not a sufficient compliance. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 840.

Section 9368. (Filing copy of charter and statement.)

Such company also shall file with the superintendent a certified copy of its charter, or deed of settlement, together with a statement, under the oath of the president, vice-president, or other chief officer or manager, and the secretary of the company, stating the name of the company, the place where it is located, and the amount of its capital, with a detailed statement of all the facts required in the annual statement of companies organized under this chapter, except as to the statement required by item fifteen of section ninety-three hundred and sixty-three, which statement shall be filed by such company only when required by the superintendent of insurance for purposes of actual valuation, as provided by the insurance laws of this state; also, a copy of its last annual report, if any was made. Section 9369. (Filing of waiver.) Any such company, desiring to transact such business in this state by an agent, shall file with the superintendent of insurance a written instrument, duly signed and sealed, authorizing any agent of the company in this state to acknowledge service of process for and in behalf of the company in this state, and consenting that the service of process, mesne or final, upon any such agent, shall be taken and held to be as valid as if served upon the company according to the laws of this or any other state or government, and waiving all claims or right of error by reason of such acknowledgment of service, and that if it be sued after it ceases to do business in this state, and it has no agent in the county in which suit is brought upon whom service of process can be had, as provided in section ninety-three hundred and eighty, service upon it shall be had by the sheriff mailing a copy of the summons or other process, postage prepaid, addressed to it at the place of its principal office located in the state where it was organized, or if it is a foreign insurance company, to it at the place of its principal office in the United States, at least thirty days prior to the date of taking judgment in suit. The sheriff's return shall show the time and manner of such service. (R. S. Sec. 3607; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18.)

This section is constitutional.

Where a foreign insurance company wrongfully collected assessments in excess of rates specified in its policy, the insured was held entitled to an accounting and judgment, where his proof did not necessitate an "exhaustive visitation and examination of the books of the company". Insurance Co. v. Douds, 103 O. S. 398 (1921); aff'd, — U. S. —; 67 L. Ed. 488.

Section 9370. (Annual statement of foreign company.)

Every such company doing business in this state, annually shall file a statement of its condition and affairs in the office of the superintendent of insurance, and in the form and manner required of similar companies organized under the laws of this state. But in such statement no such item as "all other expenditures," or "incidentals," shall be allowed or recognized. Every item of disbursement or expenditure must be clearly and distinctly stated and classified when required by the superintendent of insurance, for the protection of the interests of policy-holders in this state, as provided by law. (R. S. Sec. 3608; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 307; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 20; S. & S. 223.)

State v. Tual, 16 C. C. 686; 9 C. D. 42.

Section 9371. (Statement as to tontine policy.)

Any such company issuing policies on tontine or semi-tontine plan, or which claims to be mutual as to its profits to residents of this state, after the payment of the first premium thereon, and not more than sixty days and not less than ten days prior to the maturity of each and every premium, thereafter in writing shall notify every such policy holder, namely the person whose life is insured or the assignee of such policy, if the company has been notified of its assignment, and the address of the assignee given residing in this state, of the time of payment of such premium. Proof of the depositing of the notice to the policy holder or assignee in the postoffice by the company or its agent, postage prepaid to the last address as given by the policy holder or assignee to the company, shall be conclusive proof of its service. Such notice shall set forth fully the amount of the dividend belonging to the policy, when requested by the policy-holder if it be a participating policy, and at the end of the tontine or semi-tontine period of each policy, the company issuing it shall make a statement to the policy-holder of all the dividends and profits accruing thereon, and from what sources they have been derived. (R. S. Sec. 3608; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 307; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 20; S. & S. 223.)

A policyholder who is accustomed to deduct dividends from premiums, is entitled to rely on a custom of the company to mail bills for premiums with notices of dividends; and where no notice of dividends was mailed, and the policyholder in remitting his premium deducted too large a sum for dividends, the company was held not entitled to return the premium and forfeit the policy.

See Insurance Co. v. Pottker, 33 O. S. 459 (1878).

Ohio policyholders in a foreign mutual life insurance company can not maintain a bill in equity in a federal court, sitting in Ohio, to compel an accounting of funds alleged to have been diverted from the tontine dividend fund where the accounting relates to the internal affairs of the corporation. Eberhard v. Insurance Co., 210 Fed. 520 (D. C. 1914).

Section 9372. (Renewal certificates of authority.) If such annual statement be satisfactory evidence to the superintendent of insurance of the solvency and ability of the company to meet all its engagements at maturity, and that the deposit is maintained as above required and provided, he shall issue renewal certificates of authority to the agents of the company, certified copies of which must be filed in the recorder's office of the county wherein the agency is located. Such renewal certificates shall be the authority of such agents to issue new policies in this state for the ensuing year. (R. S. Sec. 3609; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 21; S. & S. 223.)

See note to § 9377.

Section 9373. (Deposit of foreign companies; appointment of agent for service.) No person shall act in this state as agent or otherwise, in receiving or procuring applications for life insurance, nor in any manner aid in transacting the business of any company, partnership, or association incorporated by or organized under the laws of any foreign government, until such company, partnership, or association deposits with the superintendent of insurance, for the benefit of the policy holders of the company, partnership, or association, who are citizens or residents of the United States, securities to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars, of the kind required for similar companies of this state, executes a waiver as provided in section ninety-three hundred and sixty-nine, and appoints an agent or attorney, in each county in this state in which the company establishes an agency, on whom process of law can be served, and files with the superintendent of insurance a duly certified copy of its charter, or deed of settlement, and a duplicate original copy of the letter or power of attorney of the company, partnership, or association, appointing the attorney thereof, which appointment shall continue until another attorney is substituted. (R. S. Sec. 3610; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 22; S. & S. 222.)

This section was not repealed by the amendment of § 656 (101 v. 147) providing for the withdrawal of deposits by companies retiring from business in Ohio.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 817.

Section 9374. (Annual and other statement to be filed.) Such company, partnership, or association, also shall file a statement of its condition and affairs in the office of the superintendent of insurance, in the form and manner required for the annual statements of similar companies organized under the laws of this state, and annually, on the first day of January, or within sixty days thereafter, file with the superintendent of insurance a statement of all its affairs, in the manner and form required of similar companies of this state, except as to the requirements of schedule of item fifteen in section ninety-three hundred and sixty-three, which schedule shall be filed only when required by the superintendent for purposes of actual valuation, as provided by the laws of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3611; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 24; S. & S. 224.)

Section 9375. (Supplementary statements.) Such annual statement shall be accompanied by a supplementary statement, duly verified by the attorney or general agent of the company, partnership, or association in this state, giving a detailed description of the policies issued, and also those which have ceased to be in force, during the year, the amount of premiums received, and claims and taxes paid in this state and the United States, for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December. Such statement shall also contain a description of the investments of the company, partnership, or association in this country, and such other information as may be required by the superintendent of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3612; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, §§ 25, 26; S. & S. 224.)

Section 9376. (Renewal certificates of authority.) If the annual statement be satisfactory evidence to the superintendent of the solvency and ability of the company, partnership, or association to meet all its engagements at maturity, he shall issue renewal certificates of authority to the agents thereof, certified copies of which must be filed by them in the recorder's office of the county where the agency is located. Such renewal certificates shall be the authority of the agents to issue new policies in this state for the ensuing year. (R. S. Sec. 3613; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 26; S. & S. 224.)

Section 9377. (Certificates of authority to act as agent.)

No person, company, or corporation, directly or indirectly, shall act as agent for any such company, partnership, or association, either in procuring applications for insurance, taking risks, or in any manner aiding in the transaction of the business of life insurance in this state, until it procures from the superintendent a certificate of authority, which shall be renewable annually, stating that the requirements of this chapter as to such company, partnership or association have been complied with, and setting forth the name of the attorney for such company, partnership or association, a certified copy of which certificate must be filed in the recorder's office of the county where the agency is to be established, and which shall be the authority of such company, partnership, or association, and its agent, to do business in this state. (R. S. Sec. 3614; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 27; S. & S. 223.)

A personal duty is imposed on the agent to procure a certificate and file it with the recorder, and a violation of this duty subjects him to a penalty.

Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877).

These regulations are for the benefit of policyholders and others doing business with the company.

Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877).

The acts of an agent, within the scope of the authority conferred upon him by the company, are valid and binding, not only in favor of third persons, but as between principal and agent, notwithstanding his failure to procure and file a certificate.

Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877).

In an action against such agent and his sureties on a bond given for the faithful performance of his duties, his failure to comply with this section is no defense in favor of such sureties.

Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877).

Section 9378. (Failure to make statement.) If a company, partnership, or association, organized without this state, neglects or refuses to make such annual statements, all persons acting in this state as its agents, or otherwise, in transacting the business of insurance, shall be subject to the penalties provided by law in case of the failure of an insurance company organized under the laws of this state to make an annual statement. (R. S. Sec. 3615; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 28; S. & S. 225.)

Section 9379. (Duration of licenses.) All licenses granted by the superintendent of insurance in pursuance of this chapter shall continue in force, unless suspended or revoked, until the first day of April next after the date of their issue. (R. S. Sec. 3616; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 19.)

Licenses granted at any time during the year expire on the first day of April following.

State v. Insurance Co., 47 O. S. 167, 178 (1890).

Revocation of licenses.

For violation of insurance laws, § 617.

For removal of suit to federal court, see § 9384.

Of unsound foreign company, § 635.

For non-payment of excise tax, § 5434.

For placing risks with unauthorized company or agent, § 5441.

Of agent, solicitor or broker, §§ 648-3, 654-1.

Injunction, not mandamus, is the proper remedy to prevent wrongful revocation of a license.

State v. Hahn, 50 O. S. 714, 718 (1893); overruling, State v. Reinmund, 45 O. S. 214.

It is said that the superintendent of insurance has power to revoke a license which was issued, by mistake, to a foreign insurance company not legally entitled to do business in Ohio.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 169 (1883).

Section 9380. (When foreign companies must appoint agents to receive service.) If a company, partnership, or association, organized under the laws of any other state or government, ceases to do business in this state according to law, it shall appoint, in the manner herein provided, in every county wherein an agency existed at the date of such discontinuance, one or more agents for the purpose of receiving service of process in all actions upon policies of insurance issued to the citizens of this state while it was lawfully transacting the business of insurance in this state. Service of process upon such agents, in such actions, shall be as valid as actual service upon the company, partnership, or association. (R. S. Sec. 3617; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 19.)

Section 9381. (Failure to appoint agent.) In every case where no such agent is appointed, the agent last designated and acting for the company, partnership, or association shall be deemed and taken to be duly authorized by it to receive service of process. The officer who serves such process shall also send a copy of the process served on the agent, by mail, to the address of such company, partnership, or association, at the place of its principal or home office at the time it ceased to do business in this state, and his return must distinctly show that such copy was so mailed at least thirty days before any judgment shall be rendered in such action. (R. S. Sec. 3617; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 19.)

Section 9382. (Who are agents to receive service.) If any such company, partnership, or association ceases to transact business in this state according to the laws thereof, the agents last designated, or acting as such for it, shall be deemed to continue agents for it, for the purpose of serving process, and for commencing actions upon any policy or liability issued or contracted while it transacted business in this state; and service of process upon any such agent, for such causes, shall be a valid service upon the company, partnership, or association. (R. S. Sec. 3618; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 23; S. & S. 223.)

Section 9383. (May change securities and collect interest.) Nothing in this chapter shall prevent the company, partnership, or association from collecting the interest on any securities deposited by it, so long as it continues solvent, and complies with all the provisions of this chapter applicable to it, nor from exchanging them for other securities of equal value, and of the kind hereinbefore named, with the officers having them in trust. (R. S. Sec. 3619; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18.)

Section 9384. (Authority may be withdrawn in certain cases.) If any company, partnership, or association organized without the limits of this state, and doing business herein, makes an application for a change of venue, or to remove any suit or action to which it is a party, in any court of this state, to the United States district or circuit court, or to any federal court, the superintendent of insurance forthwith shall revoke and recall the license or authority to such company, partnership, or association to do or transact business within this state. No renewal or authority shall be granted to such company, partnership, or association for three years after such revocation, and thereafter it shall be prohibited from transacting business in this state until again duly licensed and authorized. (R. S. Sec. 3620; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18.)

The license of a company can not be revoked under this section unless the removal of the suit was authorized by the company. The general counsel of a company, authorized by its by-laws only "to give such legal advice and assistance as may at any time be solicited by the board, or committees or the officers of the company" can not bind the company by ordering the removal of a suit.

Rep. Atty. Gen. (1909-1910) 337.

Constitutionality. A former statute required foreign insurance companies, as a condition precedent to doing business in this state, to waive the right to remove actions to federal courts.

That statute was held constitutional in Insurance Co. v. Best, 23 O. S. 105 (1872), but was declared invalid in Assurance Co. v. Pierce, 27 O. S. 155 (1875) on the authority of Home Ins. Co. v. Morse, 20 Wall. 445 (1875).

See Rowland v. Ins. Co., 2 W. L. B. 57.

This section is probably unconstitutional. A state may not revoke the license of a foreign corporation because such corporation has removed a suit to federal court. Terral v. Burke Construction Co., — U. S. — (1922); 66 L. Ed. 223; overruling, Doyle v. Insurance Co., 94 U. S. 535.

DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN.

Section 9385. (What kind of business such companies may do.) No company, organized under the laws of this state, shall undertake any business or risk, except as herein provided, and no company, partnership or association, organized or incorporated by act of congress, or under the laws of this or any other state of the United States, or by any foreign government, transacting the business of life insurance in this state, shall be permitted or allowed to take any kind of risks, except those connected with, or appertaining to making insurance on life or against accidents to persons, or sickness, temporary or permanent physical disability, and granting, purchasing and disposing of annuities; nor shall the business of life insurance, or life and accident insurance, in this state, be in any wise conducted or transacted by any company, partnership or association which in this state, or any other state or country, makes insurance on marine, fire, inland, or any other risk, or does a banking or any other kind of business in connection with insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3596; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 355; March 27, 1888, 85 v. 119; R. S. 1880; April 4, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 3; February 20, 1874, 71 v. 12, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Life and accident insurance. A life insurance policy is not merely a contract of indemnity. It is a contract to pay to the beneficiary a sum certain in the event of death; and if the contract was valid in its inception and so continues until its maturity the beneficiary is entitled to the whole of the stipulated sum.

Robert v. Insurance Co., 2 Dis. 106; affirming, 1 Dis. 355.

Life and accident insurance is a contract whereby one party, for a stipulated consideration, agrees to indemnify another against injuries by accident, or death from any cause not excepted in the contract.

State v. Railway, 68 O. S. 9, 30 (1903).

A railway relief association, composed of employes and the company, to maintain a relief fund created by voluntary contributions, is not engaged in the business of insurance.

State v. Railway, 68 O. S. 9 (1903).

Employers' liability insurance may be classed as accident insurance. It is a risk "connected with or appertaining to accidents to persons."

State v. Insurance Co., 69 O. S. 317, 323, 326 (1903).

Accident insurance companies, see §§ 9542, 9543 and 9445 to 9451.

A policy issued by an accident company, as applicable to injuries resulting in death, is but a contract of life insurance limited to specified risks.

Insurance Co. v. Saylor, 2 N. P. n. s. 305, 309; 15 L. D. 137 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1904); affirming, 1 N. P. n. s. 217.

Policies of life insurance.

Provisions in, and liability under, see note to § 9410.

Powers of life insurance companies. Powers in general.

An insurance company may be liable for libel.

Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 2 W. L. B. 269.

Foreign companies. A foreign life insurance company, authorized by its charter to write employers' liability insurance, may be licensed and permitted, under § 9385, to transact such business in Ohio, although the statute does not in express terms authorize domestic life insurance companies to do an employers' liability business.

State v. Insurance Co., 69 O. S. 317 (1903).

A foreign life insurance company, authorized by its charter to transact business on the assessment plan, should not be refused admission to do such business in Ohio, under § 9435, merely because it has a capital stock.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

Ohio companies. A company, authorized to do an accident insurance business, may write employers' liability insurance.

State v. Insurance Co., 69 O. S. 317, 323, 326 (1903).

Banking business. The loaning of its money by an insurance company upon property in this state is not banking business although the company restricts its loans to its policyholders.

Hall v. Kummer, 7 N. P. 394; 5 L. D. 176 (Dist. Ct. 1883).

In State v. Insurance Co., 14 Ohio 6 (1846) it was held that a clause in the special charter of an insurance company, prohibiting the exercise of banking powers, prohibited only the issue of currency, and did not prohibit the receiving of money on deposit.

For taxation of insurance company, transacting banking business under a special charter, see

Ohio, etc., Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. (57 U. S.) 416; 3 O. F. D. 170.

The special charter of an insurance company, authorizing it to loan its funds, but prohibiting it from engaging in the business of exchange or of money broker, was held not to prohibit the purchase of a bill of exchange.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 12 O. S. 601 (1861).

Joint fire and life business. It is said that an English company, authorized by laws of that country to do both a fire and life business, with an absolute separation of assets so that the assets of one department are not liable for losses of another department, is not thereby barred from admission to Ohio.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 793 (1897).

Section 9386. (Statements as to participating and non-participating policies.) Every life insurance company doing business in this state and issuing policies on both the participating and non-participating plans shall file with the superintendent of insurance separate annual statements of profits and losses with reference to each of such kinds of insurance. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 176, § 1.)

Where a stock company, before the enactment of this section, falsely represented that it was doing a mutual insurance business and inserted in the contracts of many policyholders a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as appropriated by the company," it was held that the fact that no separate account was kept of the participating and non-participating profits did not prevent the company from declaring a stock dividend out of a surplus fund which was clearly derived from non-participating business.

State v. Life Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

But, in such case, the holders of participating policies may maintain an action to conserve, for their benefit, the surplus fund derived from the Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); reversed, no rep. 87 O. S. 475.

Section 9387. (Policyholders entitled to copies of applications.) Every person holding a policy of insurance issued by a company on the life of any person shall be entitled to be furnished by the company with a copy of any application or document, either written or printed, or both, held by it, upon which such policy was issued, or which may affect its validity. Upon demand made for such copy, by the holder of a policy, or by any person upon whose life it was so issued, the company shall make and forthwith furnish to such person, a certified copy of all such applications or friends' certificates, under the hand of the president, secretary, or other proper officer of the company, and under its seal. (R. S. Sec. 3621; May 5, 1877, 74 v. 181, §§ 1, 3.)

This section does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

Gilligan v. Royal Arcanum, 5 C. C. n. s. 471; 16 C. D. 42 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 672.

See § 9465.

This section requires delivery to the insured during his life. Delivery, after his death, to persons interested in the policy is not a compliance.

Dickmeier v. Insurance Co., 4 N. P. 13; 6 L. D. 161 (C. P. 1896).

Section 9388. (Effect of failure to deliver copies.) If such company neglects or fails for thirty days from the time of such demand to furnish to such person a copy of all papers mentioned in the next preceding section, and as provided therein, it thereafter shall be forever barred from setting up, by way of defense to a suit on the policy of insurance, any error or incorrectness, or fraud or misrepresentation of the person making them, or any mistake therein whatever; and such application or other paper or document shall thereafter be taken and held, so far as it may affect any claim under such policy, or fund secured thereby, to be in all respects true and correct. (R. S. Sec. 3622; May 5, 1877, 74 v. 181, § 2.)

This section does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

Gilligan v. Royal Arcanum, 5 C. C. n. s. 471; 16 C. D. 42 (1904);
aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 672.

See § 9465.

Section 9389. (Copies of applications to accompany policies issued.) Every company doing business in this state shall return with, and as part of any policy issued by it, to any person taking such policy, a full and complete copy of each application or other document held by it which is intended in any manner to affect the force or validity of such policy. A company which neglects so to do, so long as it is in default for such copy, shall be estopped from denying the truth of any such application or other document. In case such company neglects for thirty days after demand made therefor, to furnish such copies, it shall be forever barred from setting up as a defense to any suit on the policy, any incorrectness or want of truth of such application or other document. (R. S. Sec. 3623; May 5, 1877, 74 v. 181, § 3.)

This section does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

Gilligan v. Royal Arcanum, 5 C. C. n. s. 471; 16 C. D. 42 (1904);
aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 672.

See § 9465.

Where a complete copy of the application was not returned with the policy, the insurance company is estopped from denying the truth of the application, but to make such estoppel available the facts constituting the estoppel must be pleaded.

Insurance Co. v. Howle, 68 O. S. 614 (1903).

A copy of an application made at the time of a renewal must be returned to the insured. This section contemplates that there may be more than one application in connection with a policy, and the requirement is not limited to the time of the original issue of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Gilligan, 7 C. C. n. s. 397; 18 C. D. 609 (1905).

Where discrepancies appear between the original application, and the copy which is returned with the policy, and the discrepancies are matters of substance, it is not error to exclude them as evidence, if the court finds that they were of such a character as to afford a reasonable ground for a defense.

Insurance Co. v. Hoffman, 13 C. C. n. s. 127 (1910); aff'd, no rep., 83 O. S. 477.

An insurance company must show that it has returned copies of the application to the insured, before it can introduce the original application in evidence.

Andrews v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. 322; 7 L. D. 307 (C. P. 1897).

Where answers in the application are filled up by the agent from his own knowledge, the fact that a copy of the application is attached to the policy will not bind the assured as to statements thus made.

Donnelly v. Insurance Co., 70 Iowa 693 (1886).

Section 9390. (Application to be in ordinary written or printed language.) No company doing business in this state shall take any application, medical certificate, or other document, for insurance upon the life of any person, in cipher, or by character of any sort other than ordinary written or printed language. Such application, medical certificate, or other document taken in violation of this section, shall be held to be void and of no effect as against any person claiming under a policy of insurance issued thereon. (R. S. 3624; May 5, 1877, 74 v. 181, § 4.)

This section does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

Gilligan v. Royal Arcanum, 5 C. C. n. s. 471; 16 C. D. 42 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 672.

See § 9465.

Section 9391. (When false answer material.) No answer to any interrogatory made by an applicant, in his or her application for a policy, shall bar the right to recover upon any policy issued thereon, or be used in evidence upon any trial to recover upon such policy, unless it be clearly proved that such answer is wilfully false, was fraudulently made, that it is material, and induced the company to issue the policy, and that but for such answer the policy would not have been issued; and, also that the agent or company had no knowledge of the falsity or fraud of such answer. (R. S. Sec. 3625; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 18.)

Section compared with § 9583 relating to fire insurance.

Insurance Co. v. Webster, 7 C. C. 511; 4 C. D. 714 (1893); aff'd, 53 O. S. 558.

The insurer may, by suit, compel the surrender and cancellation of a policy obtained by false statements as to health. Insurance Co. v. Wertheimer, 272 Fed. 730 (D. C. Ohio 1920).

But where, under the issues joined, the burden of proof was on the fraternal society, it can not, after trial and verdict, claim the exemptions provided by § 9465.

Brotherhood v. Daley, 11 C. C. n. s. 464; 21 C. D. 391 (1908).

A foreign insurance company which has complied with the laws of Ohio, and issued a policy to a resident of Ohio, is subject to this section.

This section applies to a New York contract sued on in Ohio.

Insurance Co. v. Richardson, 11 Ohio App. 305; 30 O. C. A. 556 (1919); motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 365.

This section applies to companies doing an "accident" as well as a "life" insurance business.

Insurance Co. v. Sayler, 2 N. P. n. s. 305; 15 L. D. 137 (1904); affirming, 1 N. P. n. s. 217.

Common law rule as to false answer. Where a policy, issued before the enactment of this section, was issued and accepted upon the expressed condition that the answers and statements of the application were warranted true in all respects, and that if the policy was obtained by any untrue answer or statement, or, by any fraud, misrepresentation or concealment, it should be null and void; and certain of the answers were untrue, although made without actual fraud, and under an innocent misapprehension of the purport of the questions, it was held that no contract of insurance was thereby made, but it was void ab initio; and that the applicant was entitled to recover premiums paid thereon.

Insurance Co. v. Pyle, 44 O. S. 19 (1886).

False answer as a defense under this section. This section was enacted for the purpose of abrogating the common law rule as declared in Insurance Co. v. Pyle, 44 O. S. 19.

Insurance Co. v. Warren, 59 O. S. 45, 53 (1898).

Grand Lodge v. Daly, 11 C. C. n. s. 464, 466; 21 C. D. 391 (1908).

A statement in an application for the renewal of a lapsed policy is within the purview of § 9391. Assurance Co. v. Early, 23 C. C. n. s. 418 (1912).

Under this section to constitute the answer to an interrogatory a defense to a recovery on a policy, it must be clearly proven that such answer was wilfully false and was fraudulently made, that it is material, and induced the company to issue the policy upon it; that but for such answer the policy would not have been issued, and that the agent and company had no knowledge of the falsity or fraud of such answer.

motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 275.

These elements of fraud must be pleaded in the answer.

Insurance Co. v. Warren, 59 O. S. 45.

A material fact is one which, if communicated to the insurer, would either induce him to decline the insurance altogether, or not to accept it, unless at a higher premium.

Mieritz v. Insurance Co., 8 N. P. 422; 11 L. D. 759 (C. P.).

Under this section the mere omission of statements or a mere error in statements do not affect the validity of a policy.

Insurance Co. v. Sickles, 2 C. C. n. s. 222, 231; 13 C. D. 594 (1902).
Certificates or statements as to health should be construed favorably to the applicant for insurance. A statement, in a renewal certificate, that the applicant is, to the best of his knowledge, in the same sound condition of health as when last examined by the company's physician when in fact he was suffering from some disease or injury, does not constitute a defense unless it appears that he knew of the disease or injury, and knew that it affected his sound health.

Life Ass'n v. Draddy, 8 N. P. 140; 10 L. D. 591 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1900).

A statement that no life insurance company or association had refused the applicant as a risk is not disproved by evidence that a mutual benefit association had refused to accept him.

White v. Insurance Co., 30 W. L. B. 237 (C. P. 1890).

The defense of fraud was held to be sustained, where the insured, who died within a few months after the policy was issued from the effects of enlargement of his spleen to twenty-six times its normal size, failed to disclose his condition to the examining physician, although three physicians had told him of the condition of his health, one of whom had refused to pass him for life insurance, one had told him he had heart disease, and one had discovered the enlargement. This is true although the examining physician failed to discover his condition and numerous acquaintances testified to his apparent good health.

Where an answer, alleging wilfully false, etc., statements by the insured, is controverted by a reply, the burden of proof of falsity rests on the insurer, and is a question for the jury.

Insurance Co. v. Risley, 22 C. C. 160; 12 C. D. 186 (1901).

This section can not be nullified or evaded by provisions in the policy relating to answers to interrogatories, such as, a provision that the answers are to be regarded as warranties, and that the company shall not be bound by knowledge of statements made to agents unless written upon the application.

Insurance Co. v. Sickles, 2 C. C. n. s. 222; 13 C. D. 594 (1902).

Nor can a foreign insurance company, which has complied with the laws of Ohio and transacted business in this state, evade the provisions of this section by a stipulation that the policy shall be governed by the laws of its home state.

Insurance Co. v. Dorney, 68 O. S. 151 (1903).

A schedule of warranties by the insured attached to a policy was held to be within the contemplation of G. C. § 9391, although no independent application containing interrogations and answers, was made.

Pacific, etc., Ins. Co. v. Barnes, 15 C. C. n. s. 407 (1910).

Knowledge of agent or company. In filling up an application for a policy, the soliciting agent is the agent of the company and not of the insured; and where the agent makes a mistake in wrongly stating facts, correctly given him by the insured, the company is bound by and responsible for the mistake.

Insurance Co. v. Sickles, 2 C. C. n. s. 222; 13 C. D. 594 (1902).

It has been held that the company is bound by the knowledge of the agent, as to the falsity of the answers, although the agent and the insured acted in collusion.

See Insurance Co. v. Eshelman, 30 O. S. 648 (1876).

Where a subagent, appointed by a duly authorized general agent, filled in an application in the presence of the applicant, after a conversation with the applicant disclosing all the facts to be stated in the application, and the statements written in the application were the suggestion of the subagent, and there is reason to believe that the facts were all made known to the general agent, the knowledge of the subagent as to falsity of the statement is the knowledge of the company.

Where the insured was practically blind in one eye and the sight of the other was impaired, a defect apparent to all who met him, and the agents of the company who originally insured him collected premiums from him for several years, fraudulent intent on the part of the insured is not shown by answers to the effect that he was in sound condition mentally and physically and not suffering from any bodily infirmity or disorder.

The original application is not admissible in evidence on behalf of the company until it is shown that a copy had been furnished to the insured.

Andrews v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. 322; 7 L. D. 307 (1897).

It is not competent to inquire of the president whether, if the true condition of the health of the insured had been known to the company, the policy would have been issued. The opinion of the witness is not competent testimony.

Insurance Co. v. Eshelman, 30 O. S. 647 (1876).

In an action on a policy, issued upon a spurious application made by the agent and substituted for a genuine one made by the insured, the premium rates of the company, when not put in issue, are not competent testimony to show complicity of the assured in the fraud, or want of knowledge by the company, when the spurious application reached the home office, that another and genuine application had been made.

Recovery of premiums paid. See note to § 9420.

Section 9392. (Estopped from certain defenses.) After having received three annual premiums on a policy issued on the life of any person in this state, all companies are estopped from defending upon any other ground than fraud, against any claim arising upon such policy by reason of errors, omissions, or misstatements of the assured in an application made by him on which the policy was issued, except as to age. Evasion of statute by provision in policy. This section can not be evaded by a provision in a policy, issued by a foreign insurance company which has transacted business in Ohio after complying with its law, to the effect that the policy shall be governed by the laws of its home state.

Insurance Co. v. Block, 12 C. C. 224; 6 C. D. 166 (1893).

Application and effect of section. A stipulation, in an accident policy, that the company will not be liable on account of the death of the insured, if it results from infirmity or disease, is available as a defense notwithstanding §§ 9391 and 9392, whose effect is limited to defenses founded on fraud or misstatement in the application.

Insurance Co. v. Dorney, 68 O. S. 151 (1903).

A provision in a policy that "this policy shall be incontestable after two years, except for fraud or misstatement or age" is similar to this section and relates entirely to what occurred at the time the policy was issued or the application made, and has no reference to default in payment of premiums.

Section 9392-1. (Minor's contract for life insurance.)

In respect to insurance heretofore or hereafter issued upon the life of any person between the ages of fifteen and twenty-one years, for the benefit of such minor, or for the benefit of the father, mother, husband, wife, child, brother or sister of such minor, the insured shall not, by reason only of such minority, be incompetent to contract for such insurance, or for the surrender of such insurance, or to give a valid discharge for any benefit accruing, or for money payable under the contract. (May 10, 1910, 101 v. 382.)

Decisions before the enactment of this section. Upon repudiating his contract for life insurance and surrendering the policy to the company, an infant may recover the whole amount of premiums paid by him thereon.

Insurance Co. v. Fuller, 9 C. C. n. s. 441; 19 C. D. 415 (1907); aff'd, no rep., 79 O. S. 451.

A policy on the life of a minor, payable to him if living at maturity, and to his executors, administrators or assigns in case of death before maturity is not absolutely void, nor are notes given by him for premiums void, although he has power to elect to avoid both on arriving at majority. Nor is his written assignment of the policy during minority necessarily void.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478 (1900).

Section 9393. (Who may be beneficiary.) Any person may affect an insurance on his life, for any definite period of time, or for the term of his natural life, to inure to the sole benefit of his wife and children, or of either or other relative or relatives dependent upon such person or any creditor or creditors as he may cause to be appointed and provided in the policy. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 558; in effect August 7, 1913; R. S. Sec. 3628; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 130; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

This section does not prohibit a person from insuring his own life for the benefit of persons other than his wife and children.

Keckley v. Coshoccon Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912); affirming 13 C. C. n. s. 229, 240; 21 C. D. 665, 676.

Distinction between §§ 9393-9396 and 9397-9400. Sections 9393-9396 apply where the insurance is effected by the person whose life is insured, for the benefit of his widow and children, or both. The policy is a chose in action belonging to the husband, subject to the limitations of these sections.

Sections 9397-9400 apply where the insurance is effected by the wife on the life of her husband, and although the premiums may have been paid by him, the policy is yet the wife's separate property, upon which the husband's creditors have no claim, unless the payment of premiums by him has had the effect of withdrawing funds to which the creditors were entitled. As to creditors whose claims existed when such payments were made, fraud might be presumed; as to subsequent creditors it would be necessary to show that there was fraudulent intent.

Weber, Loper & Co. v. Paxton, 48 O. S. 266, 271 (1891).

To what companies applicable. §§ 9393-9396 apply to policies issued by foreign life insurance companies as well as to policies issued by domestic companies.

Cross v. Armstrong, 44 O. S. 613 (1887).

But not to policies issued by foreign companies which do business on the assessment plan.

In re Andress, 5 N. P. 253; 6 L. D. 174 (C. P. 1897).

See § 9441.

Interest of wife in policy. When a husband, acting as agent for his wife, takes out in her name, and for her sole use, a policy on his life, the wife as to such policy must be regarded as a feme sole. The policy becomes her separate property, and is placed beyond the reach of her husband and his creditors.

Jacob v. Insurance Co., 1 C. S. C. R. 519 (1871).

Insurance Co. v. Applegate, 7 O. S. 293 (1857).

Acts of insured after issue of policy; effect. When the husband, in his application for the policy, has made certain representations as to his health, which representations are made a part of the policy, his subsequent declarations, made pending his unauthorized negotiations for the surrender of the policy, and tending to show the false or fraudulent character of the representations in the application, are not competent evidence in an action brought by the wife upon the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Applegate, 7 O. S. 293 (1857).

In an action by the wife, on a policy issued upon the joint application of her husband and herself, and for her sole benefit, the declarations of her husband made prior to the application, and showing that certain statements therein are untrue, are not admissible.

Insurance Co. v. Cheever, 36 O. S. 201 (1880).

Where by the terms of the policy the premium is reduced, by reason of the participation by the beneficiary in the earnings of the company, and it has been the uniform practice of the company to notify the beneficiary of the amount of premium due, and by reason of neglect to give such notice a premium is not paid at the time specified in the policy, such failure to pay will not bar a recovery upon the policy, although by its terms the same is to be forfeited in case of failure to pay premiums upon the specified dates.

See Insurance Co. v. Pottker, 33 O. S. 459 (1878).

Insurance Co. v. Troy, 20 C. C. 644 (1900).

Where the company has uniformly sent notices of the amount of premium due to the insured (the husband of the beneficiary) and he has regularly paid the same, he will be regarded, in making such payments, as agent for the wife, but where the company has been notified by the husband, shortly after notice sent, that he and the wife have separated, the company is not justified in treating him as her agent, for the purpose either of receiving notice for her or making surrender of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Smith, 44 O. S. 156 (1886).

In such case the attempt by the husband, without knowledge of the wife, to surrender the policy to the company is inoperative, and does not impair the rights of the wife.

Ryan v. Rothweiler, 50 O. S. 595 (1893).

Frank v. Bauman, 35 W. L. B. 59 (1896).

A married woman, named as beneficiary in a policy of insurance on the life of her husband, is entitled to the proceeds of the policy notwithstanding a divorce obtained by her.

Overhiser v. Overhiser, 63 O. S. 77 (1900).

An insured designated "Elizabeth L. Hartlieb, beneficiary, wife of the insured". Subsequently they were divorced, she resuming her maiden name, and the insured remarried. Upon his death without changing the beneficiary, the first wife was held entitled to the insurance, the words "wife of the insured" being words of description. Huff v. Hartlieb, 14 Ohio App. 191 (1920); motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 15.

Children. Grandchildren take no interest under a policy payable to their grandmother, or, in case of her death before that of the insured, then to her "children", where the death of the parent through whom they claim preceded that of their grandmother. Lucking v. Insurance Co., 8 Ohio App. 414; 29 O. C. A. 161 (1918); affirming, 21 N. P. n. s. 200; motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 108.

Section 9394. (Exemption from claims of creditors.)

All policies of life insurance upon the life of any person, which may hereafter mature, and which have been or shall be taken out for the benefit of, or bona fide assigned to the wife or children, or any relative dependent upon such person, or any creditor, shall be held subject to a change of beneficiary if desired, for the benefit of such wife or children, or other relative or creditor, free and clear from all claims of the creditors of such insured person; and the proceeds or avails of all such life insurance shall be exempt from all liabilities from any debt, or debts, of such insured person. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 558, in effect August 7, 1913; R. S. Sec. 3623; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 130; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

See note to § 9393 and article by M. P. Mooney, 19 O. L. R. 590, 603.

The word "representatives" in an earlier form of this section was held to mean personal representatives.

Insurance Co. v. Bank, 173 Fed. 390 (C. C. 1909).

A policy payable to the "legal heirs" of the insured, who has no wife or children, is payable to his next of kin.

This section should be liberally construed.

Richardson v. Michener, 30 W. L. B. 120 (C. P. 1893).

The exemption of § 9394 applies as against the trustee in bankruptcy of the insured, whose remedy is limited to recovery of premiums paid in fraud of creditors under § 9395. In re Fetterman, 243 Fed. 975 (D. C. Ohio 1917).

Where a policy provided for an annuity to the insured, and, at his death, for a certain sum to be paid to his wife, the trustee in bankruptcy of the insured is entitled to the annuity only. The present value of the policy is exempt from the claims of creditors.

In re Schaeffer, 9 O. L. R. 357; 16 O. F. D. 637 (D. C. 1910).

For statute exempting the proceeds of policies from claims of creditors, or beneficiaries, under fraternal benefit policies, held unconstitutional, see Williams v. Donough, 65 O. S. 499 (1901).

Interpleader. In an action, on a policy, payable to the widow, brought by her in the state where the company is located, the administrator of the deceased, a resident of this state, can not be compelled to interplead, and a judgment of such foreign court can not bar his rights against the widow as to such insurance.

Cross v. Armstrong, 44 O. S. 614 (1887).

An insurance company which in good faith files a bill of interpleader in federal court against adverse claimants to the proceeds of a policy and pays the money into court is entitled to its costs and counsel fees from the fund.

Insurance Co. v. Bank, 173 Fed. 390 (1909).

Section 9395. (Premiums paid in fraud of creditor.)

Subject to the statute of limitations, the amount of any premiums for insurance for the benefit of wife and children, or of either, or other relatives dependent upon such person or any creditor, paid in fraud of creditors, with interest thereon, shall inure to their benefit from the proceeds of the policy. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 558, in effect August 7, 1913; R. S. Sec. 3628; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 130; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

See also notes to §§ 9393, 9394 and 9398.

The administrator of the estate of an insolvent decedent, who paid premiums in fraud of creditors, may maintain an action under this section to recover such premiums, to be distributed as a part of the estate.

Insurance Co. v. Bank, 173 Fed. 390 (C. C. 1909).

The assignment, by an insolvent husband to his wife, of a policy of insurance then in force on his life, is not a transfer in fraud of creditors or to hinder or delay creditors within the contemplation of § 11102 et seq. In such case the only remedy of creditors is to recover premiums, wrongfully paid, under § 9395.

See Child v. Graham, 7 W. L. B. 43 (1882).

A policy purporting on its face to have been effected by a married woman on the life of her husband wherein the company agrees to pay such insurance to her, and if not living, then to her children, is prima facie the sole property of the wife, and as such is not affected by §§ 9393-9396.

Weber, Loper & Co. v. Paxton, 48 O. S. 271 (1891).

The fact that the premiums have been paid by the husband is not sufficient, of itself, to overcome the legal effect of the terms of the contract.

Weber, Loper & Co. v. Paxton, 48 O. S. 266, 271 (1891).

Where creditors of the husband seek to reach the proceeds of such policy, they must establish not only that the husband was insolvent at the time of his decease, but that such payments, or some of them, were made in fraud of existing creditors.

Weber, Loper & Co. v. Paxton, 48 O. S. 266, 271 (1891).

Former law. Prior to the amendment of this section of April 19, 1898 (93 v. 130), the amount of premiums payable for exempt insurance was limited to $150 per annum. In case of excess, the beneficiaries were entitled to such portion of the insurance as $150 would bear to the entire annual premium, and the residue was payable to the representatives of the deceased.

See Cross v. Armstrong, 44 O. S. 613 (1887).

Under the former statute it was held that the premium on each policy must be taken by itself, and not that of several policies added together.

Section 9396. (When company liable to creditor.) The company issuing the policy shall be discharged of all liability thereon by payment of its proceeds in accordance with its terms, unless, before such payments, notice is given to it by a creditor, specifying the amount of his claim and the premiums which he alleges have been so fraudulently paid. (R. S. Sec. 3628; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 130; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

Section 9397. (Wife may insure life of husband.) A married woman may by herself, and in her own name, or in the name of a third person, with his assent as her trustee, cause the life of her husband to be insured for her sole use, for any definite period, or for the term of his natural life, and if she survives such period or term, the amount of insurance becoming due and payable by the terms of the insurance shall be payable to her, free from the claims of the representatives of the husband, or any of his creditors. (R. S. Sec. 3629; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, •

Under this section a policy taken out by a wife on the life of her husband is her separate property and is beyond the reach of her husband and his creditors.

See Insurance Co. v. Applegate, 7 O. S. 292, 296 (1857).

A policy purporting on its face to have been effected by a wife on the life of her husband, for the benefit of herself, or her children, is prima facie her sole property.

Weber, Loper & Co. v. Paxton, 48 O. S. 266, 271 (1891).

This section applies only to policies in which the wife is the sole beneficiary named, and which are issued for her sole use.

A policy, issued by a foreign company doing business on the assessment plan, under § 9427 et seq., is not subject to this section.

In re Andress, 5 N. P. 253; 6 L. D. 174 (C. P. 1897).

Insurance without consent of husband. Where a policy was issued to a wife on the life of her husband, without his knowledge or consent, but without fraud or wrongdoing on her part, and the wife, after paying premiums for several years, discovered that, under the contract, the consent of the husband was necessary to its validity, she is entitled to recover back the premiums paid.

Insurance Co. v. Felix, 73 O. S. 46 (1905).

But where a wife insured the life of her husband, without his knowledge or consent, and, in her dealings with the company, concealed this fact after she knew that it was necessary under the contract, she can not recover back the premiums paid.

Marling v. Insurance Co., 6 O. L. R. 99 (C. P. 1908).

Section 9398. (Policy assigned to married woman.) A policy of insurance on the life of any person, duly assigned, transferred, or made payable to a married woman, or to any person in trust for her or for her benefit, whether such transfer is made by her husband or other person, shall inure to her benefit, and that of her children, independently of her husband or his creditors, or of the person effecting or transferring the policy or his creditors. (R. S. Sec. 3629; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 30; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, §§ 2, 3; June 12, 1879, 76 v. 160, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

This section does not apply to policies issued before its enactment.

The assignment, by an insolvent husband to his wife, of a policy of insurance then in force on his life, is not a transfer in fraud of creditors or to hinder or delay creditors within the meaning of § 11102 et seq. In such case the only remedy of creditors is under § 9395.

Lytle v. Baldinger, 84 O. S. 1 (1911).

See Child v. Graham, 7 W. L. B. 43 (1882).

A trustee in bankruptcy acquires no rights in a policy, payable to the bankrupt's wife, by reason of the fact that the insured is entitled to change the beneficiary, or to receive the cash surrender value. In re Young, 208 Fed. 373 (D. C. 1912); In re Fetterman, 243 Fed. 975 (D. C. 1917).

But an endowment policy, payable to the insured, or to his wife in the event of his death, he having a right to change the beneficiary, passes to the trustee, the wife being merely a contingent beneficiary. In re Young, 208 Fed. 373.

A bequest, by a wife to her husband, of all her real and personal property, includes a policy of insurance on his life payable to her, her executors, administrators or assigns. Schlachter v. Teeppen, 24 C. C. n. s. 30 (1915); affirming, 18 N. P. n. s. 33.

The pledgee of a policy under a pledge made by a wife, may reimburse himself out of the proceeds of the policy for premiums paid to keep the policy in force, and interest thereon.

Section 9398-1. (Proceeds of policy not subject to transfer, incumbrance or legal process in certain cases.) That any life insurance company incorporated under the laws of this state shall have power to hold the proceeds of any life insurance policy issued by it, payable or assigned to the parents, wife, husband, children or legally adopted children of the policyholder, upon such terms and subject to such limitations as to revocation by the policyholder and control by the beneficiaries thereunder, as shall have been agreed to in writing by such company and the policyholder; and if the said agreement shall so provide, the benefits accruing thereunder shall not be transferable nor subject to commutation or incumbrance, or to legal process. (107 v. 606.)

Section 9398-2. (Rights of creditors.) The provisions of this section shall not impair or affect the rights of creditors under section 9395 of the General Code. (107 v. 606.)

Section 9399. (Beneficiary in case of death of wife.) The amount of the insurance so provided for in the preceding sections, may be made payable, in case of death of the wife before the period at which it becomes due, to his, her, or their children, for their use, as provided in the policy of insurance, or to their guardian, if under age.

If there are no children, upon the death of the wife, such policy shall revert to and become the property of the party whose life is insured, unless it has been transferred as hereinafter provided. When by its terms, or a transfer thereof, a policy is payable to a married woman solely for her own use, she may sell, assign, or surrender it, but the party whose life is insured, shall concur in and become a party to the transfer. (R. S. Sec. 3629; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 30; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, §§ 2, 3; June 12, 1879, 76 v. 160, § 1; S. & C. 737.)

This section does not apply to policies issued before its enactment.

Reakirt v. Besuden, 3 N. P. n. s. 646, 648; 16 L. D. 697 (1903).

Policy payable to wife, or to the children, if she dies before the insured; necessity of consent of guardian of children to exchange of policy.

See Jander v. Insurance Co., 16 C. C. 536; 9 C. D. 462 (1898).

Where a policy was issued to a married woman on the life of her husband, for her benefit, and payable to "her executors, administrators or assigns," or, in case she died before her husband, to "their children," and the wife died, without children, but the husband thereafter paid the premiums for several years, it was held that the company, having treated the husband as beneficiary, was estopped to deny his right to sue for a paid up policy under the terms of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Hamilton, 41 O. S. 274 (1884).

Where a testator bequeathed to the children of his deceased wife all his interest in a policy, which he had assigned to her during her life, the bequest being made "without abatement on account of premiums heretofore or hereafter paid," such premiums can not be set off against a note executed by the decedent and held by the estate of his wife.

Claypool v. Claypool, 4 C. C. n. s. 577; 15 C. D. 327 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 75 O. S. 578.

Grandchildren. Grandchildren take no interest under a policy payable to their grandmother, or, in case of her death before that of the insured, then to her "children", where the death of their parent preceded that of their grandmother. Lucking v. Insurance Co., 8 Ohio App. 414, 29 O. C. A. 161 (1918); affirming, 21 N. P. n. s. 200; motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 108.

Assignment of policy by wife. A policy on the life of a husband, assigned by him to his wife, "and her assigns," and contemplating, by its terms, a reversion back to the insured in the event of the wife's prior death, is assignable by the wife without the consent of her children. The words "and her assigns" indicate an intention to create an estate "solely for her use" within the meaning of this section.

Reakirt v. Besuden, 3 N. P. n. s. 646; 16 L. D. 697 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 383.

The provision of this section as to assignment applies only to policies in which the wife is the sole beneficiary named, and which are issued for her sole use.

Section 9400. (Policy to defraud creditors.) If a policy be procured by a person with intent to defraud his creditors, an amount equal to the premium paid thereon, with interest, shall inure to the benefit of his creditors, subject, however, to the statute of limitations. (R. S. Sec. 3629; June 12, 1879, 76 v. 160, § 1; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 30; February 8, 1847, 45 v. 53, §§ 2, 3; S. & C. 737.)

Section 9401. (Discrimination against persons of African descent prohibited.) No life insurance company organized or doing business, or that may be organized and do business within this state, shall make any distinction or discrimination between white persons and colored, wholly or partially of African descent, as to premiums or rates charged for policies upon the lives of such persons; nor demand or require greater premiums from such colored persons than are at that time required by the company from white persons of the same age, sex, general condition of health and hope of longevity; nor make or require any rebate, diminution or discount upon the sum to be paid on such policy in case of the death of such colored person insured, nor insert in the policy any condition, nor make any stipulation whereby such person insured binds himself, his heirs, executors, administrators or assigns to accept any sum less than the full value or amount of such policy in case of a claim accruing thereon by reason of the death of the person insured, other than such as are imposed upon white persons in similar cases. Any such stipulation or condition so made or inserted shall be void. (R. S. § 3631-1; March 28, 1889, 86 v. 163.)

Limitation, see § 12955.

Section 9402. (Procedure when application of such persons refused.) Any such company, which refuses the application of a colored person for insurance upon his life, shall furnish him with the certificate of some regular examining physician of the company who has made examination of such person, stating that his application has been refused, not because he is a person of color, but solely upon such grounds of his general health and hope of longevity as would be applicable to white persons of the same age and sex. (R. S. Sec. 3631-1; March 28, 1889, 86 v. 164, § 2.)

Penalty for violation, see § 12954.

Section 9403. (Discriminations prohibited.) No life insurance company doing business in this state shall make or permit any distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals between the insured of the same class and equal expectation of life in the amount of payment of premiums, or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any other of the terms and conditions of the contracts it makes; nor shall any such company, or any agent thereof, make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract, other than is plainly expressed in the policy issued thereon. (R. S. § 3631-4; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 183, § 1; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 345; April 10, 1889, 86 v. 220.)

Penalty for violation, see §§ 9405, 13136.

This section constitutes no defense to an action to recover premiums paid on a policy which the plaintiff was induced to take, by fraudulent representations as to future profits, based on past experience and present condition of the company. Life Soc. v. Statler, 17 C. C. n. s. 59; 24 C. D. 391 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 549.

Before the amendment of this section (99 v. 183) it was held that an agreement that a note given for a premium should be discounted with a brokerage firm of which the insured was a member, and brokerage allowed such firm, otherwise the insurance should be void and the policy cancelled, was not in violation of this section.

Dailey v. Chappell, 12 C. C. n. s. 561; 21 C. D. 509 (1909).

Insurance companies may classify insureds if the classification does not operate as a distinction or discrimination. A non-mutual company may write supplemental contracts providing for guaranteed income, when supported by sufficient premiums.

Rep. Att. Gen. (1908-1909), 160.

It has been said that a stock option contract, permitting insureds to purchase stock in the company, the insureds paying an increased premium, part of which is credited on the purchase price of the stock, is in violation of this section.

Section 9404. (Rebates or special favors prohibited. Discrimination no ground for refusal of testimony.) No life insurance company doing business in this state, or any officer, agent, solicitor, employe, or representative thereof, nor any other person, shall pay, allow or give, or offer to pay, accrue thereon, or any paid employment or contract for allow or give, directly or indirectly, as inducement to insurance, nor shall any person, co-partnership or corporation knowingly receive as such inducement to insurance any rebate of premium payable on the policy or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or any special advantage in the date of a policy or date of the issue thereof; or any valuable consideration or inducement whatsoever; or give or receive, nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to forbid a company, transacting industrial insurance on a weekly payment plan, from returning to policy holders, who have made premium payments for a period of at least one year, directly to the company at its home or district offices, a any insurance company or other corporation, association, partnership or individual, or any dividends or profits to services of any kind, or anything of value; provided, that sell or purchase, or offer to give or receive, sell or purchase, as inducements to insurance or in connection therewith any stock, bonds or other obligations or securities of percentage of the premium which the company would have paid for the weekly collection of such premium.

No person shall be excused from attending or testifying or producing any books, papers or other documents before any court or magistrate having jurisdiction, upon any investigation, proceeding or trial for a violation of any of the provisions of this section or of section 9403, upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony or evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate or degrade him, but no person shall be prosecuted or subject to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, except for perjury committed in so testifying. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 509; R. S. § 3631-4; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 183, § 1; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 345; April 10, 1889, 86 v. 220.)

Penalties for violation of this section, see §§ 9405, 13137.

The superintendent of insurance may, in his discretion, refuse a license to an agent who has previously solicited insurance, without a license, and offered rebates of premium.

Vorys v. State, 67 O. S. 15.

The policy itself is not declared void by this section; but a note and post dated check, given in payment of the premium, less the amount of the rebate, are void.

Tillinghast v. Craig, 17 C. C. 531, 535; 9 C. D. 459 (1893).

Where the contract for the policy and amount of the premium were agreed upon before a 60-day note without interest for the first premium was given, such note is not an inducement prohibited by this section. And where the insured made no complaint until after the note fell due and the agent had paid the premium to the company, the insured was held not entitled to defend on the ground that the note was void under this section. McDonald v. Schervish, 6 Ohio App. 88; 26 C. C. n. s. 394 (1916); s. c., 8 Ohio App. 386; 28 O. C. A. 325.

ence and present condition of the company. Life Soc. v. Statler, 17 C. C. n. s. 59; 24 C. D. 391 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 549.

Before the amendment of this section in 1908 (99 v. 183) it was held that an agreement that a note given for a premium should be discounted with a brokerage firm, of which the insured was a member, and brokerage allowed such firm, otherwise the insurance should be void and the policy cancelled, did not thereby make the insured the beneficiary of a rebate, or invalidate the note.

Section 9405. (Penalty.) Every corporation which shall violate any of the provisions contained in section 9403, or in section 9404, shall forfeit and pay any sum not less than one hundred dollars nor exceeding five hundred dollars, to be recovered by action in the name of the state and the amount so recovered, shall be paid to the county treasurer for the benefit of the common school fund. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 509; R. S. § 3631-5; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 345; April 10, 1889, 86 v. 220.)

Other penalties, see §§ 12956, 13136, 13137.

Section 9406. (Revocation of license.) It shall be the duty of the superintendent of insurance upon conviction of any such life insurance company, or of any agent thereof for violation of any of the provisions of section 9403, or of section 9404, or upon being satisfied of the violation of either of said sections and after reasonable notice to the accused of the time and place of hearing, to revoke the license of the company or agent so offending, and no license shall be granted to such company, or agent, for a period of three years after such revocation. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 509; R. S. Sec. 3631-7; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 345.)

See note to § 9404.

Section 9407. (Solicitor is agent of company.) Any person who solicits an application for insurance upon the life of another in any controversy between the assured or his beneficiary and the company issuing a policy upon such application shall be regarded as the agent of the company and not the agent of the assured. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 175, § 1.)

See § 9586 and note.

See also note to § 9391. Knowledge of agent.

A corporation may act as agent, when such powers are authorized by its charter.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 176.

A bank or trust company has no power to act as agent for an insurance company.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 195.

Duties required by law to be discharged by the company can not, by contract, be imposed upon a general agent.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 173.

When an agent procured from the company a policy on his own life, but was unable to pay the premium, and a member of his family paid the premium to the agent, as agent for the company but the money was never accounted for or paid to the company, and the company had no knowledge of the transaction, it was held that such payment was not a compliance with a provision in the policy making payment of the first premium a condition precedent to the taking effect of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Harvey, 72 O. S. 174 (1905).

Where an application for life insurance was revoked by the applicant before the policy was issued, the agent who procured the application cannot maintain an action in his own name against the applicant to recover the premium or the amount of his commissions. The right of action, if any, is in the company.

Chapin v. Betts, 14 C. C. 335; 7 C. D. 422 (1897).

A physician, employed to examine an applicant for insurance, and make a report thereof to the company, without further duty or authority, after making an examination and report obtained further knowledge of the applicant's physical condition but did not communicate it to the company. Held, such knowledge was not binding on the company and did not operate as a waiver of a provision in the application that the policy would become effective upon approval at the home office of the company "while the person to be insured is in the same condition of insurability". Myers v. John Hancock, etc., Co., — O. S. — (1923); syl. 21 O. L. R. 140.

The sale of a fire insurance agency business, with good will, does not affect the right of the insurance companies to revoke the authority of the purchaser and to appoint a new agent. Custom of insurance agents does not entitle the purchaser to an injunction against the new agent, to prevent the securing of renewals by the new agent. Bryson Co. v. Archer, 18 C. C. n. s. 437 (1912); aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 413.

Authority to a broker to collect premiums does not include authority to indorse and collect checks payable to the company. A bank which cashes them is liable to the company as for conversion. Bank v. Insurance Co., 24 C. C. n. s. 485 (1905).

Prior to the enactment of this section, an agent accepting a premium, and issuing a receipt other than the official receipt provided for in the policy, was held to be an agent of the insured. Insurance Co. v. Trust Co., 22 C. C. n. s. 161 (1908).

Agent's contracts for commissions. An agreement by a life insurance agent to pay another person a commission on the "first installment of premium" received from a person recommended to the agent by him, was construed to mean a commission on the first annual premium.

Connelly v. Pickard, 4 N. P. n. s. 294; 17 L. D. 116 (1906).

For a contract between a general agent and subagent, construed to bind the general agent only and not the company, see Bigger v. Insurance Co., 8 N. P. n. s. 27; 19 L. D. 704 (1908).

Under a general agency contract which required the agent to produce a specified amount of business, he can not recover damages for wrongful discharge where he failed to produce the required business. Boswell v. Insurance Co., 26 C. C. n. s. 385 (1916).

Section 9408. (Misrepresentations prohibited.) No life insurance company doing business in this state, and no officer, director or agent thereof, shall issue or circulate or cause or permit to be issued or circulated any estimate, illustration, circular or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of the policies or policy issued by it, or the benefits or advantages promised thereby, or the dividends or shares of surplus to be received thereon, or use any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof, nor shall any such corporation, or any officer, agent, solicitor or representative thereof, or any other person or persons, make any misrepresentations to any person insured in any life insurance company for the purpose of inducing or tending to induce such person to lapse, forfeit or surrender his said insurance. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 509; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 175, § 1.)

Where a stock company, before the enactment of this section, falsely represented that it was doing a mutual insurance business and inserted in the contracts of many policy-holders a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as appropriated by the company," it was held that the fact that no separate account was kept of the participating and non-participating profits did not prevent the company from declaring a stock dividend out of a surplus fund which was clearly derived from non-participating business.

State v. Life Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

But, in such case, the holders of participating policies may maintain an action to conserve, for their benefit, the surplus fund derived from the participating business.

Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); reversed no rep. 87 O. S. 475.

Section 9409. (Penalty.) Every corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of section 9408 shall forfeit and pay not less than one hundred dollars, nor more than five hundred dollars, to be recovered by action in the name of the state and the amount so recovered shall be paid to the county treasurer for the benefit of the common school fund. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 509; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 175, § 2.)

STANDARD FORMS, PROVISIONS AND PROHIBITIONS.

§ 9410. Unauthorized policies shall not be issued.	§ 9420. Policies other than standard forms.
§ 9411. Standard forms.	§ 9421. Provisions prohibited.
§ 9412. "Ordinary" or "limited payment."	§ 9422. Preliminary term policies, not standard, subject to certain provisions.
§ 9413. Endowment.	§ 9423. Forms of policies must be submitted to superintendent of insurance.
§ 9414. "Ordinary" or "limited life" fixed survivorship annuity.	§ 9424. Policies may contain provisions prescribed by state where organized.
§ 9415. Endowment fixed survivorship annuity.	§ 9425. To what this chapter shall not apply.
§ 9416. Term.	§ 9426. What the word "company" includes.
§ 9417. Term with right to renew and change.
§ 9418. Single premium and non-participating policies.
§ 9419. Preliminary term.

Section 9410. (Unauthorized policies shall not be issued.)
 No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state and no policy of life insurance of a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state shall be issued unless authorized by the provisions of this chapter. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 139, § 1.)

Parol contract of insurance. A valid contract of insurance may be made by parol, when not forbidden by statute, or by a provision of the company's charter of which the insured has notice; and the assent of the parties to the agreement may be shown by their acts and the surrounding circumstances, as well as by their words.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

See Insurance Co. v. Wall, 31 O. S. 628 (1877).

Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 24 O. S. 345 (1873).

Where nothing is said in the negotiations about special rates of insurance, or special conditions of the policy, it will be presumed that those which were usual and customary were intended.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

A parol contract of insurance, as distinguished from a parol agreement to issue a policy, must not be executory, but must take effect in praesenti.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

Full and clear proof is necessary to establish the relation of insurer and insured, before delivery of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

In an action to recover on a written policy, and an alleged verbal modification thereof, statements of the agent who solicited the policy, prior to and contemporaneous with its issue, are inadmissible to vary its terms. In the absence of fraud or mistake, such statements are merged into the written contract.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

Agreement to issue policy; specific performance.

See Suydam v. Insurance Co., 18 Ohio 459 (1849).

Neville v. Insurance Co., 19 Ohio 452 (1850).

Insurable interest.

See also Beneficiary below.

A person may cause his own life to be insured for the benefit of a stranger and the want of insurable interest in the stranger will not invalidate the policy. But a policy procured by a person for his own benefit on the life of a stranger is void for want of insurable interest.

Ryan v. Rothweiler, 50 O. S. 595, 601 (1893).

One who has obtained a valid insurance upon his life may dispose of it as he sees fit, in the absence of prohibitory legislation or contract stipulations. It is immaterial, in such case, that the assignee has no insurable interest.

Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912); affirming, 13 C. n. s. 229, 240; 21 C. D. 665, 676.

Eckle v. Renner, 41 O. S. 232 (1884).

Contra, Evans v. Moore, 7 C. C. n. s. 123; 18 C. D. 1 (1905).

But where a stipulation in the policy limits the liability of the company to the extent of the insurable interest of the assignee, and requires proof of such interest, an assignee without insurable interest can not recover from the company. Harmeyer v. Insurance Co., 3 Ohio App. 104; 19 C. C. n. s. 308 (1914); affirming, 15 N. P. n. s. 476.

Where a life insurance company makes no defense and pays the amount of its policy into court to abide by the judgment of the court as between conflicting claimants, parties claiming an interest in the fund can not object that the beneficiary named in the policy had no insurable interest.

Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912); affirming, 13 C. n. s. 229, 240; 21 C. D. 665, 676.

Where an assignee without insurable interest, by misstatements in letters to state insurance commissioners and in newspapers, compelled the company to pay money into court and interplead several defendants, the assignee's conduct was held to bar him from equitable relief in the interpleader proceedings. Harmeyer v. Insurance Co., 3 Ohio App. 104; 19 C. C. n. s. 308 (1914); affirming, 15 N. P. n. s. 476.

Where a borrower from an insurance company, on real estate security, also procures the issue, by the company, of an insurance policy to one in whose life he has no insurable interest, and its assignment to the company as collateral security for the loan, and signs premium notes jointly with the insured, the insurance contract is not invalid as a wagering contract.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478 (1900).

Brother or sister. A brother has no insurable interest in the life of a younger brother on whom he is not dependent.

Newmore v. Insurance Co., 8 C. C. n. s. 308; 18 C. D. 689 (1906).

Where one makes application for insurance on her life, naming her sister as beneficiary, and a policy is issued in accordance with the application, and premiums paid thereon, the company is estopped from denying that the beneficiary had an insurable interest.

Baker v. Insurance Co., 5 N. P. n. s. 383; 18 L. D. 426 (C. P. 1907).

Corporation in life of officer. Where a person owns a large portion of the stock of a corporation, and his skill and experience are largely relied on to make the corporate business a success, and when, in obtaining credit and in inducing persons to buy stock in the corporation, he represents that he has insured his life for the benefit of the corporation, such facts disclose an insurable interest in the corporation; and the insured and his legal representatives are estopped from claiming that the policies are not based upon an insurable interest, or that the amounts due thereon do not belong to the corporation.

Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912); affirming, 13 C. C. n. s. 229, 240; 21 C. D. 665, 676.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 807.

Where an officer of a corporation made application for insurance, specifying the corporation as beneficiary, and the premiums were paid by the corporation, it is entitled to the proceeds of the policy as against the executor of the insured, although the insured, before his death, had retired as such officer or director.

Insurance Co. v. Coshocton Glass Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 229; 21 C. D. 665 (1910); affirmed, Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912).

And where a policy in which his wife was named as beneficiary, was assigned to the corporation in which the insured was an officer, and all premiums were paid by the corporation, it is entitled to the proceeds of the policy as against the widow.

Coshocton Glass Co. v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 240; 21 C. D. 676; affirmed, Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912).

In Schott, etc., Co. v. Insurance Co., 11 C. C. n. s. 401; 20 C. D. 656 (affirming, 7 N. P. n. s. 548; 19 L. D. 249; and affirmed, no rep., 83 O. S. 507) it was said that a corporation has no insurable interest in the life of an officer or director who is not indebted to it, and that a note given for premiums on a policy on the life of a director or officer was without consideration. The note involved in that case, however, was given by the secretary and general manager without authority from the directors.

Whether a college, church or similar institution may insure the life of an individual depends upon whether, at the time the policy is issued, it has a pecuniary interest or a valid and well founded expectation of benefit from the continuance of the life of the insured.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 807.

POLICIES OF INSURANCE.

Application. See §§ 9387 to 9392 and note to § 9420.

Conditions precedent to taking effect.

Delivery. In the absence of any other evidence to show assent of the company, to a contract of insurance, delivery of the policy must be shown.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312, 320 (1906).

Requisites of a valid delivery.

See Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312, 320.

In the absence of a stipulation in the application or policy, making actual delivery of the policy a condition precedent to the consummation of the contract, the actual delivery or non-delivery of the policy is not of itself conclusive evidence of the completion of the contract; but the unconditional acceptance of the application by the insurer is a consummation of the contract.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

Insurance Co. v. Plato, 3 C. C. n. s. 207; 13 C. D. 35 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 701.

Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6 (1902).

Bennett v. Insurance Co., 27 W. L. B. 15.

Where there is no oral agreement for insurance prior to the policy, if a policy has been executed in form, but has not passed out of the possession of the insurer or his agent, and no premium has been paid, the contract is prima facie incomplete; and the burden is upon the party who asserts that there is a contract, to show that the policy became operative by the intention of both parties.

Where, there being no oral agreement for insurance to take effect prior to the issue of the policy, upon an application for insurance at less than the regular rate, an agent wrote up and countersigned a policy and, without parting with possession thereof, wrote to the applicant that he had "issued" a policy, but would hold it until he heard from the company, and the company thereafter rejected the risk and the agent forwarded the policy to the company, no contract of insurance was consummated, although the applicant received no notice of refusal of the risk.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

The mailing of a policy, by the company to its agent, for delivery to the insured, constitutes delivery to the insured. When the first premium is paid to the agent the contract is complete without actual manual delivery to the insured. Insurance Co. v. Shively, 1 Ohio App. 238; 17 C. C. n. s. 352; 24 C. D. 357 (1913); Insurance Co. v. Ford, 2 Ohio App. 410; 19 C. C. n. s. 689; 24 C. D. 479 (1914).

Payment of premium. See note to § 9420.

Construction.

Policies of insurance should be construed, like other contracts, so as to give effect to the intention and express language of the parties.

Insurance Co. v. Myers, 62 O. S. 529 (1900).

West v. Insurance Co., 27 O. S. 1 (1875).

A policy should be construed strongly against the insurer and liberally in favor of the insured.

Swander v. Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 233, 237; 15 C. D. 3 (1903).

Holterhoff v. Insurance Co., 3 Am. L. R. 272 (1874).

Snapp v. Insurance Co., 8 O. S. 458, 461 (1858).

See Insurance Co. v. Schild, 69 O. S. 136, 139 (1903).

Exceptions in a policy should be strictly construed, and where there are two interpretations which are equally fair, the one which gives the greater indemnity should prevail.

Blackwell v. Insurance Co., 48 O. S. 533, 540 (1891).

Provisions for disabilities and forfeitures should, when the intent is doubtful, be strictly construed against those for whose benefit they are introduced.

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

Swander v. Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 233, 235; 15 C. D. 3 (1903).

Provisions, terms and conditions.

Provisions required in life insurance policies; see § 9420.

Provisions prohibited, see § 9421.

Special provisions construed; see notes to §§ 9420 and 9421.

Where a life insurance policy was accepted by the insured, remained in his possession for nine years, and nine annual premiums were paid by him, he is conclusively presumed to have knowledge of all the stipulations and provisions of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

Beneficiary.

See also Insurable interest above.

Wife and children as beneficiaries, see §§ 9393 to 9399.

Where the policy contains no provision permitting the insured to revoke the designation of beneficiary, the beneficiary has a vested right therein, which can not be impaired by acts of the insured. The insured can not change the beneficiary or surrender the policy without consent of the beneficiary.

Insurance Co. v. Penn, 4 N. P. n. s. 97; 16 L. D. 375 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1905).

See Glass v. Insurance Co., 3 N. P. 216; 4 L. D. 234.

The beneficiary is a necessary party to a suit to recover premiums paid, based on the wrongful refusal of the company to receive further premiums or to continue the policy in force.

Insurance Co. v. Penn, 4 N. P. n. s. 97; 16 L. D. 375 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1905).

Where a policy provided that the insured might change the beneficiary "by written notice to the company at its home office accompanied by the policy, such change to take effect on the endorsement of the same on the policy by the company," it was held that consent of the company was requisite to effect the change; and where the insured forwarded to the company notice of change, but died before the company endorsed the change on the policy, the original beneficiary is entitled to the proceeds of the policy.

See Modern Woodman v. Daerr, 11 N. P. n. s. 360 (1911; fraternal insurance).

Where the policy reserves to the insured the right to change the beneficiary, the beneficiary named in the policy has no vested right therein. Kerr v. Bowers, 26 C. C. n. s. 289 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 84.

The beneficiary can not recover on the policy where the death of the insured is caused by the intentional and felonious act of the beneficiary.

Filmore v. Insurance Co., 82 O. S. 208 (1910).

See Mieritz v. Insurance Co., 8 N. P. 422; 11 L. D. 759.

The usual "facility payment" clause, providing that the company "may" pay the insurance to the widow, does not give the widow a vested interest. When no beneficiary is named, the insurance goes to the estate of the insured, subject to the insurer's right to pay under the clause. Rogers v. Metropolitan Co., 24 N. P. n. s. 49 (1921).

Under a policy of industrial insurance which provided that the company "may pay . . . to either the beneficiary named below, or to the executor or administrator, husband or wife . . . or to any other person appearing to said company to be equitably entitled to the same by reason of having incurred expense on behalf of the insured, or for his or her burial", payment to the named beneficiary who was designated as "guardian", the money being used to pay funeral expenses and an unpaid board bill, was held to be a bar to a subsequent action by the insured's administrator. Insurance Co. v. Burbank, 3 Ohio App. 302; 19 C. C. n. s. 550 (1914).

Change of beneficiary, see also note to § 9427.

Assignment. One who has obtained a valid insurance upon his life may dispose of it as he sees fit, in the absence of prohibitory legislation or contract stipulations. It is immaterial, in such case, that the assignee has no insurable interest.

Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912); affirming, 13 C. C. n. s. 229, 240; 21 C. D. 665, 676.

Eckle v. Renner, 41 O. S. 232 (1884).

But where a stipulation in the policy limits liability to the extent of the insurable interest of the assignee, an assignee without insurable interest can not recover. Harmeyer v. Insurance Co., 3 Ohio App. 104; 19 C. C. n. s. 308 (1914); affirming, 15 N. P. n. s. 476.

Where a policy is pledged as security for a loan, the pledgee may pay premiums to keep the policy in force, without an express contract with the pledgor, and is entitled to reimbursement out of the proceeds of the policy.

Reakirt v. Besuden, 3 N. P. n. s. 646; 16 L. D. 697 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 383.

But the pledgee is not obliged to pay the premiums, in the absence of an express agreement to do so. It is the duty of the debtor to pay the premiums. The fact that the pledgee paid one premium and charged it on his books to the debtor does not obligate him to continue to do so, or render him liable if the policy lapses for non-payment.

Van Duersen v. Scanlon, 7 W. L. B. 188 (Dist. Ct. 1882).

Delivery of the policy to the assignee is not essential to the validity of the assignment, in the absence of a stipulation to that effect. A prior assignee, without delivery, is entitled to preference over a subsequent assignee to whom the policy is delivered.

Merchants Banking Co. v. Assurance Soc., 10 C. C. n. s. 397 (1907).

See Hewitt v. Insurance Co., 18 W. L. B. 220.

The assignment of a policy by a minor is not necessarily void.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478 (1900).

Loans by company on policies, see §§ 9420 (7, 9) 9421 (1).

Assignment of policy by husband to wife, see § 9398.

Assignment by wife of a policy payable to her, see § 9399.

Where a policy was assigned in another state, where the insured, his wife and the assignee all resided, and where the insured died, and suit was brought on the policy in such state by the assignee, a suit brought in Ohio by the wife, who was beneficiary under the policy, and who had removed to Ohio, will be dismissed without prejudice for failure to make a bona fide effort to make the assignee a party.

Swett v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 100; 23 C. D. 369 (1908); affirming, 8 N. P. n. s. 569; aff'd, no rep., 83 O. S. 470.

Section 9411. (Standard forms.) The forms prescribed by the next following six sections are established as standard forms in which policies of life insurance may be issued and delivered in this state, and in which policies of life insurance of life insurance companies organized under the laws of this state may be issued. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 139, § 2.)

Forms other than the standard forms in §§ 9412-9417 may be used, but non-standard forms must contain the provisions required by § 9420 and exclude four provisions as required by § 9421. Landis v. Insurance Co., 104 O. S. 589 (1922).

Section 9412. (“Ordinary” or “limited payment.”)

OHIO STANDARD LIFE INSURANCE POLICY.

(Insert “Ordinary” or “Limited Payment.”)

.....LIFE.

Age.....

Amount $.....Premium $.....

.....

.....

Of (Name of State)

IN CONSIDERATION OF.....Dollars,
receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and of the payment of (insert amounts and times of payments of premiums) until (insert “the death of the insured” in ordinary life, and “.....full years’ premiums shall have been paid or until the prior death of the insured” in limited payment life),

PROMISES to pay upon receipt at the Home Office of the Company in of due proof of the death of
..... of County of, State of, herein called the Insured, to beneficiary....., with (insert “out” if so desired) right of revocation, Dollars, less any indebtedness hereon to the Company and any unpaid portion of the premium for the then current policy year.

CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY.—When the right of revocation has been reserved, or in case of the death of any beneficiary under either a revocable or irrevocable designation, the insured, subject to any existing assignment of the policy, may designate a new beneficiary with or without reserving right of revocation by filing written notice thereof at the home office of the company accompanied by the policy for suitable endorsement thereon. If any beneficiary shall die before the insured and the insured shall not have designated a new beneficiary the interest of such beneficiary shall be payable to the insured (insert “his” or “her”) executors, administrators or assigns.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS.—The company will accept payment of premiums at other times than as stated above, as follows:

.....

Except as herein provided the payment of a premium or installment thereof shall not maintain the policy in force beyond the date when the next premium or installment thereof is payable.

All premiums are payable in advance at said home office, or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the following officers of the company (insert titles of officers who may sign receipts), and countersigned by said agent.

A grace of one month subject to an interest charge at the rate of per centum per annum shall be granted for the payment of every premium after the first, during which month the insurance shall continue in force. If the insured shall die during the month of grace the overdue premium will be deducted from any amount payable hereon in any settlement hereunder.

CONDITIONS.—(The policy may here provide for restrictions of liability by reason of travel, occupation, change of residence and suicide. These restrictions except such as refer to military and naval service in time of war, must be applicable only to cases where the act of the insured provided against occurs within two years after the issuance of the policy.)

INCONTESTABILITY.—This policy and the application therefor, a copy of which is endorsed hereon, constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable from its date, except for non-payment of premiums and except as otherwise provided in this policy. All statements made by the insured in said application shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

If the age of the insured has been misstated, the amount payable hereunder shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

PARTICIPATION.—This policy shall participate in the surplus of the company and beginning not later than the end of the (insert first, second or third) policy year the company will annually determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing hereon.

DIVIDENDS.—Dividends at the option of the owner of this policy shall on the day of of each year (here may be inserted "after the first policy year" or "after second policy year") be either—

- (1) Paid in cash, or
- (2) Applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums, or
- (3) Applied to the purchase of paid up additions to the policy, or
- (4) Left to accumulate to the credit of the policy with interest at (here insert a rate not exceeding that used by the company for calculating its reserves) per centum per annum and payable at the maturity of the policy, but withdrawable on any anniversary of the policy.

Unless the owner of this policy shall elect otherwise within three months after the mailing by the company of a written notice requiring such election, the dividends shall be applied to the purchase of paid up additions.

LOANS.—After three full years' premiums have been paid, the company at any time, while this policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment of this policy and on the sole security thereof, at a rate of interest not greater than per centum per annum, which interest if not paid annually shall be added to the principal and bear the same rate of interest, a sum equal to, or, at the option of the owner of the policy, less than, the reserve at the end of the current policy year on this policy and on any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table, and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto.

The company, however, will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year. Such loan may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. Failure to repay any such advance or to pay interest shall not avoid this policy unless the total indebtedness hereon to the company shall equal or exceed such loan value at the time of such failure and until one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of the insured and of the assignee, if any. No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance.

ASSIGNMENT.—No assignment of this policy shall be binding upon the company until it be filed with the company at its said home office. The company assumes no responsibility as to the validity of any assignment.

OPTION ON SURRENDER OR LAPSE.—After this policy shall have been in force three full years the owner, within one month after any default, may elect (a) to accept the value of this policy in cash, or (b) to have the insurance continued in force from date of default, without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount, including any outstanding dividend additions, less any indebtedness to the company hereon, or (c) to purchase non-participating paid up insurance, payable at the same time and on the same conditions as this policy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default on this policy and on any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. The term for which the insurance will be continued or the amount of the paid up policy will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the (designate the mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum. If the owner shall not, within one month from default, surrender this policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or for paid up insurance as provided in options (a) and (c) the insurance will be continued as provided in option (b).

The figures in the following table are computed in accordance with the above provisions and upon the assumption that there is no indebtedness on the policy, and that there are no outstanding dividend additions.

(At the option of the company the following may be here inserted:

“The figures apply to a policy for $1,000. As this contract is for $. the loan, cash, or paid up insurance available in any year will be the amount stated in the table for that year.”)

REINSTATEMENT.—In case of continued temporary insurance under the above provisions, this policy, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company, may be reinstated within the first three years of the term for which the insurance is continued by payment of arrears of premiums with interest at (here insert not more than six) per centum per annum.

OPTIONS AT MATURITY.—The insured, by written notice to the company at its home office, and with the written consent of the assignee and irrevocable beneficiary, if any, may elect to have the net sum payable under this policy paid either in cash or as follows:

(1) By the payment of interest thereon at per centum per annum payable annually, to the payee under this policy at the end of each year during the life of the payee and by the payment upon the death of the payee of the said net sum and accrued interest to the executors, administrators, or assigns of the payee, unless otherwise directed in said notice.

(2) By the payment of equal annual installments for a specified number of years, the first installment being paya-

(3) By the payment of equal annual installments payable at the beginning of each year for a fixed period of twenty years and for so many years longer as the payee shall survive in accordance with the following table for each $1,000 of said net sum.

If the insured shall not have directed otherwise the beneficiary may, after the death of the insured, by like written notice, and with the written consent of the assignee, if any, select either of the above options.

Unless otherwise specified by the insured the payee may on any interest date receive the amount yet due under option (1), and may at any time receive the commuted value of payments yet to be made, computed upon the same basis as option (2) in the following table, provided that no such commutation will be made under (3), except after the death of the payee occurring within the aforesaid twenty years.

Age
 Amount $..... Premium $.....

 Of (Name of State)

IN CONSIDERATION OF Dollars, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and of the payment of (here insert amounts and times of payments of premiums) until full years' premiums shall have been paid or until the prior death of the Insured,

PROMISES to pay at the Home Office of the Company in to of County of State of, herein called the Insured, on the day of, if the Insured be then living, or upon receipt at said Home Office of due proof of the prior death of the Insured, to beneficiary with (insert "out" if so desired) right of revocation, Dollars, less any indebtedness hereon to the Company and any unpaid portion of the premium for the then current policy year.

CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY.—When the right of revocation has been reserved, or in case of the death of any beneficiary under either a revocable or irrevocable designation, the insured, subject to any existing assignment of the policy, may designate a new beneficiary with or without reserving right of revocation by filing written notice thereof at the home office of the company, accompanied by the policy for suitable endorsement thereon. If any beneficiary shall die before the insured and the insured shall not have designated a new beneficiary the interest of such beneficiary shall be payable to the insured, (insert "his" or "her") executors, administrators or assigns.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS.—The company will accept payment of premiums at other times than as stated above, as follows:

Except as herein provided the payment of a premium or installment thereof shall not maintain the policy in force beyond the date when the next premium or installment thereof is payable.

All premiums are payable in advance at said home office, or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the following officers of the company (insert titles of officers who may sign receipts), and countersigned by said agent.

A grace of one month subject to an interest charge at the rate of per centum per annum, shall be granted for the payment of every premium after the first, during which month the insurance shall continue in force. If the insured shall die during the month of grace the overdue premium will be deducted from any amount payable hereon in any settlement hereunder.

CONDITIONS.—(The policy may here provide for restrictions of liability by reason of travel, occupation, change of residence and suicide. These restrictions except such as refer to military and naval service in time of war, must be applicable only to cases where the act of the insured provided against occurs within two years after the issuance of the policy.)

INCONTESTABILITY.—This policy and the application therefor, a copy of which is endorsed hereon, constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable from its date, except for non-payment of premiums and except as otherwise provided in this policy. All statements made by the insured in said application shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

If the age of the insured has been misstated, the amount payable hereunder shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

PARTICIPATION.—This policy shall participate in the surplus of the company and beginning not later than the end of the (insert first, second or third) policy year the company will annually determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing hereon.

DIVIDENDS.—Dividends at the option of the owner of this policy shall on the day of of each year (here may be inserted "after the first policy year" or "after second policy year") be either—

- (1) Paid in cash, or
- (2) Applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums, or
- (3) Applied to the purchase of paid-up additions to the policy, or
- (4) Left to accumulate to the credit of the policy with interest at (here insert a rate not exceeding that used by the company in calculating its reserves) per centum per annum and payable at the maturity of the policy, but withdrawable on any anniversary of the policy.

Unless the owner of this policy shall elect otherwise within three months after the mailing by the company of a written notice requiring such election, the dividends shall be applied to the purchase of paid-up additions.

LOANS.—After three full years' premiums have been paid, the company at any time, while this policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a rate of interest not greater than per centum per annum, which interest if not paid annually shall be added to the principal and bear the same rate of interest, a sum equal to, or, at the option of the owner of the policy, less than, the reserve at the end of the current policy year on this policy and on any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves), per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto. The company, however, will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year. Such loan may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. Failure to repay any such advance or to pay interest shall not avoid this policy unless the total indebtedness hereon to the company shall equal or exceed such loan value at the time of such failure and until one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of the insured and of the assignee, if any.

No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance.

ASSIGNMENT.—No assignment of this policy shall be binding upon the company until it be filed with the company at its said home office. The company assumes no responsibility as to the validity of any assignment.

OPTIONS ON SURRENDER OR LAPSE.—After this policy shall have been in force three full years the owner, within one month after any default, may elect (a) to accept the value of this policy in cash, or (b) to have the insurance continued in force from date of default, without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount, including any outstanding dividend additions, less any indebtedness to the company hereon, or (c) to purchase non-participating paid-up insurance, payable at the same time and on the same conditions as this policy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default on this policy and on any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made.

The term for which the insurance will be continued or the amount of the paid-up policy will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the (designate the mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum. If the sum applicable to the purchase of temporary insurance shall be more than sufficient to continue the insurance to the end of the endowment term named in this policy, the excess shall be used to purchase in the same manner non-participating paid-up pure endowment, payable at the end of the endowment term and on the same conditions. If the owner shall not, within one month from default, surrender this policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or for paid-up insurance as provided in option (a) and (c) the insurance will be continued as provided in option (b).

The figures in the following table are computed in accordance with the above provisions and upon the assumption that there is no indebtedness on the policy, and that there are no outstanding dividend additions.

(At the option of the company the following may be here inserted:

"The figures apply to a policy for $1,000. As this contract is for $. the loan, cash, paid-up insurance or pure endowment available in any year will be the amount stated in the table for that year.")

REINSTATEMENT.—In case of continued temporary insurance under the above provisions, this policy, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company, may be reinstated within the first three years of the term for which the insurance is continued by payment of arrears of premiums with interest at (here insert not greater than six) per centum per annum.

OPTIONS AT MATURITY.—The insured, by written notice to the company at its home office, and with written consent of the assignee and irrevocable beneficiary, if any, may elect to have the net sum payable under this policy paid either in cash or as follows:

(1) By the payment of interest thereon at per centum per annum payable annually, to the payee under this policy at the end of each year during the life of the payee and by the payment upon the death of the payee of the said net sum and accrued interest to the executors, administrators or assigns of the payee, unless otherwise directed in said notice.

(2) By the payment of equal annual installments for a specified number of years, the first installment being payable immediately, in accordance with the following table for each $1,000 of said net sum.

(3) By the payment of equal installments payable at the beginning of each year for a fixed period of twenty years and for so many years longer as the payee shall survive in accordance with the following table for each $1,000 of said net sum.

Installments payable under options (2) or (3) which shall not have been paid prior to the death of the payee shall be paid, unless otherwise directed in said notice, to the executors, administrators or assigns of the payee.

If the insured shall not have directed otherwise the beneficiary may, after the death of the insured, by like written notice, and with the written consent of the assignee, if any, select either of the above options.

Unless otherwise specified by the insured the payee may on any interest date receive the amount yet due under option (1), and may at any time receive the commuted value of payments yet to be made, computed upon the same basis as option (2) in the following table, provided that no such commutation will be made under (3), except after the death of the payee occurring within the aforesaid twenty years.

IN CONSIDERATION OF Dollars, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and of the payment of (here insert amounts and times of payments of premiums) until (insert "the death of the insured" in ordinary life, and "..... full years' premiums shall have been paid or until the prior death of the insured" in limited payment life),

PROMISES to pay at its home office in Dollars in Twenty equal annual Installments of $..... to (herein called the Beneficiary), (insert "his" or "her") executor, administrator or assigns, with (insert "out" if so desired) right of revocation, if (insert "he" or "she") survives the Insured, otherwise to the executors, administrators or assigns of the Insured, the first Installment being payable immediately upon receipt of due proof of the death of the Insured, any indebtedness to the Company on this Policy together with the balance, if any, of the then current year's Premium being deducted from the amounts first payable under this contract.

Should the Beneficiary live to receive the Twenty Installments payable to (insert "him" or "her") as above provided, the Company will pay (insert "him" or "her") annually during the remainder of (insert "his" or "her") life the sum of $..... beginning one year after the date when the Twentieth Installment payable hereunder shall fall due.

CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY.—When the right of revocation has been reserved, or in case of the death of any beneficiary under either a revocable or irrevocable designation, the insured, subject to any existing assignment of the policy, may designate a new beneficiary with or without reserving right of revocation by filing written notice thereof at the home office of the company, accompanied by the policy for suitable endorsement thereon. If any beneficiary shall die before the insured and the insured shall not have designated a new beneficiary the interest of such beneficiary shall be payable to the insured, (insert "his" or "her") executors, administrators or assigns. If a new beneficiary shall be designated only twenty annual installments will be payable under this policy, and future (if necessary, insert "semi" or "quarter") annual premiums will be reduced to dollars each.

Upon return of this policy to the company accompanied by evidence satisfactory to the company of the death of the beneficiary the company will reduce the future (here insert "annual," "semi-annual" or "quarterly") premiums to $. each.

Except as herein provided the payment of a premium or installment thereof shall not maintain the policy in force beyond the date when the next premium or installment thereof is payable.

All premiums are payable in advance at said home office, or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the following officers of the company (insert titles of officers who may sign receipts), and countersigned by said agent.

A grace of one month subject to an interest charge at the rate of per centum per annum shall be granted for the payment of every premium after the first, during which month the insurance shall continue in force. If the insured shall die during the month of grace the overdue premium will be deducted from any amount payable hereon in any settlement hereunder.

CONDITIONS.—(The policy may here provide for restrictions of liability by reason of travel, occupation, change of residence and suicide. These restrictions except such as refer to military and naval service in time of war, must be applicable only to cases where the act of the insured provided against occurs within two years after the issuance of the policy.)

INCONTESTABILITY.—This policy and the application therefor, a copy of which is endorsed hereon, constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable from its date, except for non-payment of premiums and except as otherwise provided in this policy. All statements made by the insured in said application shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

If the age of the insured has been misstated, or if the age of the beneficiary has been misstated, the amount payable hereunder shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

PARTICIPATION.—This policy shall participate in the surplus of the company and beginning not later than the end of the (insert first, second or third) policy year the company will annually determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing hereon.

DIVIDENDS.—Dividends at the option of the owner of this policy will on the day of of each year (here may be inserted "after the first policy year" or "after second policy year") be either—

(1) Paid in cash, or

(2) Applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums, or

(3) Applied to the purchase of paid up additions to the policy, payable in twenty annual installments at the same times as the original amount insured under this policy is payable. The payment of such twenty installments shall discharge the company from all liability on account of such dividend additions; or

(4) Left to accumulate to the credit of the policy with interest at (here insert a rate not exceeding that used by the company in calculating its reserves) per centum per annum and payable at the maturity of the policy, but withdrawable on any anniversary of the policy.

Unless the owner of this policy shall elect otherwise within three months after the mailing by the company of a written notice requiring such election, the dividends shall be applied to the purchase of paid up additions.

LOANS.—After three full years' premiums have been paid, the company at any time, while this policy is in force, will advance, on the proper assignment of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a rate of interest not greater than per centum per annum, which interest if not paid annually shall be added to the principal and bear the same rate of interest, a sum equal to, or, at the option of the owner of the policy, less than, the reserve at the end of the current policy year required to provide for the twenty installments payable under this policy and for any dividend additions thereto, and no more, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto. The company, however, will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year. Such loan may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. Failure to repay any such advance or to pay interest shall not avoid this policy unless the total indebtedness hereon to the company shall equal or exceed such loan value at the time of such failure and until one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of the insured and of the assignee, if any. No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance.

ASSIGNMENT.—No assignment of this policy shall be binding upon the company until it be filed with the company at its said home office. The company assumes no responsibility as to the validity of any assignment.

OPTIONS ON SURRENDER OR LAPSE.—After this policy shall have been in force three full years the owner, within one month after any default may elect

(a) To accept the value of this policy in cash, or

(b) To have the insurance continued in force from date of default without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount, including any outstanding dividend additions, less any indebtedness to the company hereon, or

(c) To purchase non-participating paid-up insurance, payable, except as hereinafter provided, at the same times and on the same conditions as this policy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default required to provide for the twenty installments payable under this policy and for any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. The term for which the insurance will be continued or the amount of the paid-up policy will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the (designate the mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum. If the owner shall not within one month from default surrender this policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or paid-up insurance as provided in option (a) and (c) the insurance will be continued as provided in option (b). The paid-up or continued temporary insurance will be payable in twenty equal installments and the payment of twenty installments under either option shall discharge the company from all liability under this policy.

The figures in the following table are computed in accordance with the above provisions and upon the assumption that there is no indebtedness on the policy, and that there are no outstanding dividend additions.

(At the option of the company the following may be here inserted.

Unless the owner of this policy shall elect otherwise within three months after the mailing by the company of a written notice requiring such election, the dividend shall be applied to the purchase of paid up additions.

LOANS.—After three full years' premiums have been paid, the company at any time, while this policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a rate of interest not greater than per centum per annum, which interest if not paid annually shall be added to the principal and bear the same rate of interest, a sum equal to, or, at the option of the owner of the policy, less than, the reserve at the end of the current policy year required to provide for the twenty installments payable under this policy and for any dividend additions thereto, and no more, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto. The company, however, will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year. Such loan may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. Failure to repay any such advance or to pay interest shall not avoid this policy unless the total indebtedness hereon to the company shall equal or exceed such loan value at the time of such failure and until one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of the insured and of the assignee, if any. No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance.

ASSIGNMENT.—No assignment of this policy shall be binding upon the company until it be filed with the company at its said home office. The company assumes no responsibility as to the validity of any assignment.

OPTIONS ON SURRENDER OR LAPSE.—After this policy shall have been in force three full years the owner, within one month after any default, may elect

- (a) To accept the value of this policy in cash, or
- (b) To have the insurance continued in force from date of default, without future participation and without the right to loans, for its face amount, including any outstanding dividend additions, less any indebtedness to the company hereon, or
- (c) To purchase non-participating paid-up insurance, payable, except as hereinafter provided, at the same times and on the same conditions as this policy. The cash value will be the reserve at the date of default required to provide for the twenty installments payable under this policy and for any dividend additions thereto, computed according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy and of any dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on this policy. Payment of such cash value may be deferred by the company for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. The term for which the insurance will be continued or the amount of the paid-up policy will be such as the cash value will purchase as a net single premium at the attained age of the insured according to the (designate the mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum. If the sum applicable to the purchase of temporary insurance shall be more than sufficient to continue the insurance to the end of the endowment term named in this policy, the excess shall be used to purchase in the same manner non-participating, paid-up pure endowment, payable at the end of the endowment term and on the same conditions. If the owner shall not within one month from default surrender this policy to the company at its home office for a cash surrender value or for paid-up insurance as provided in options (a) and (c) the insurance will be continued as provided in option (b). The paid-up or continued temporary and pure endowment insurance will be payable in twenty equal annual installments and the payment of twenty installments under either option shall discharge the company from all liability under this policy.

The figures in the following table are computed in accordance with the above provisions and upon the assumption that there is no indebtedness on the policy, and that there are not outstanding dividend additions.

(At the option of the company the following may be here inserted:

"The figures apply to a policy for $1,000. As this contract is for $. the loan, cash, paid-up insurance or pure endowment available in any year will be the amount stated in the table for that year.'")

IN CONSIDERATION OF Dollars,
 receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, and of the payment of (here insert amounts and times of payments of premiums) until full years' premiums shall have been paid or until the prior death of the Insured,

PROMISES to pay upon receipt at the home office of the Company in of due proof of the death of of County of
 State of, herein called the Insured, within years from the date hereof, Dollars, less any indebtedness hereon to the Company and any unpaid portion of the premium for the then current policy year, at said home office, to beneficiary with (insert
 "out" if so desired) right of revocation.

CHANGE OF BENEFICIARY.—When the right of revocation has been reserved, or in case of the death of any beneficiary under either a revocable or irrevocable designation, the insured, subject to any existing assignment of the policy, may designate a new beneficiary with or without reserving right of revocation by filing written notice thereof at the home office of the company, accompanied by the policy for suitable endorsement thereon. If any beneficiary shall die before the insured and the insured shall not have designated a new beneficiary the interest of such beneficiary shall be payable to the insured, (insert "his" or "her") executors, administrators or assigns.

PAYMENT OF PREMIUMS.—The company will accept payment of premiums at other times than as stated above, as follows:

.....

 Except as herein provided the payment of a premium or installment thereof shall not maintain the policy in force beyond the date when the next premium or installment thereof is payable.

All premiums are payable in advance at said home office, or to an agent of the company upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the following officers of the company (insert titles of officers who may sign receipts), and countersigned by said agent.

A grace of one month subject to an interest charge at the rate of per centum per annum shall be granted for the payment of every premium after the first, during which month the insurance shall continue in force. If the insured shall die during the month of grace the overdue premium will be deducted from any amount payable hereon in any settlement hereunder.

CONDITIONS.—(The policy may here provide for restrictions of liability by reason of travel, occupation, change of residence and suicide. These restrictions except such as refer to military and naval service in time of war, must be applicable only to cases where the act of the insured provided against occurs within two years after the issuance of the policy.)

INCONTESTABILITY.—This policy and the application therefor, a copy of which is endorsed hereon, constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable from its date, except for non-payment of premiums and except as otherwise provided in this policy. All statements made by the insured in said application shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

If the age of the insured has been misstated, the amount payable hereunder shall be such as the premium paid would have purchased at the correct age.

PARTICIPATION.—This policy shall participate in the surplus of the company and beginning not later than the end of the (insert first, second or third) policy year the company will annually determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing hereon.

DIVIDENDS.—Dividends at the option of the owner of this policy shall on the day of of each year (here may be inserted "after the first policy year" or "after second policy year") be either—

- (1) Paid in cash, or
- (2) Applied toward the payment of any premium or premiums, or

(The policy, at the option of the company, may here provide for a further option as follows):

- (3) Left to accumulate to the credit of the policy with interest at (here insert a rate not exceeding that used by the company in calculating its reserves) per centum per annum and payable at the maturity of the policy, or at the expiration of the term, but withdrawable on any anniversary of the policy.

Unless the owner of this policy shall elect otherwise within three months after the mailing by the company of a written notice requiring such election, the dividends shall be applied to the payment of premiums.

ASSIGNMENT.—No assignment of this policy shall be binding upon the company until it be filed with the company at its said home office. The company assumes no responsibility as to the validity of any assignment.

(If the term of the policy is for more than twenty years, the company shall provide for continuance of insurance on surrender or lapse in the following form):

CONTINUANCE OF INSURANCE ON LAPSE.—In event of default in premium payments after this policy shall have been in force three full years, the reserve hereon according to the (designate mortality table adopted by the company for computing reserves) mortality table and interest at the rate of (designate rate of interest adopted by the company for computing reserves) per centum per annum, less (here may be inserted not more than two and one-half) per centum of the amount insured by this policy will be applied to the purchase of non-participating continued temporary insurance for the face amount of this policy at net single premium rates at the attained age of the insured according to the same table of mortality and rate of interest.

OPTIONS AT MATURITY.—The insured, by written notice to the company at its home office, and with written consent of the assignee and irrevocable beneficiary, if any, may elect to have the net sum payable under this policy paid either in cash or as follows:

(1) By the payment of interest thereon at per centum per annum payable annually, to the payee under this policy at the end of each year during the life of the payee and by the payment upon the death of the payee of the said net sum and accrued interest to the executors, administrators or assigns of the payee, unless otherwise directed in said notice.

(2) By the payment of equal annual installments for a specified number of years, the first installment being payable immediately, in accordance with the following table for each $1,000 of said net sum.

(3) By the payment of equal annual installments payable at the beginning of each year for a fixed period of twenty years and for so many years longer as the payee shall survive in accordance with the following table for each $1,000 of said net sum.

Installments payable under options (2) or (3) which shall not have been paid prior to the death of the payee shall be paid, unless otherwise directed in said notice, to the executors, administrators or assigns of the payee.

If the insured shall not have directed otherwise the beneficiary may, after the death of the insured, by like written notice, and with the written consent of the assignee, if any, select either of the above options.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, The Company has caused this Policy to be executed this day of (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 165, § 2.)

Section 9418. (Single premium and non-participating policies.) Single premium policies may be issued in any form prescribed in sections ninety-four hundred and twelve to ninety-four hundred and seventeen, both inclusive, omitting therefrom provisions or portions thereof applicable only to other than single premium policies. Non-participating policies may be issued in any form prescribed in such sections if they shall contain a provision that the policy shall be non-participating, and such policies shall omit therefrom clauses for participation in the surplus of the company. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 170, § 3.)

Section 9419. (Preliminary term insurance. Reserve provision.) Policies issued on the standard forms prescribed in such sections may provide for not more than one year preliminary term insurance by incorporation therein of the following clause immediately preceding the "Change of Beneficiary clause":

"The first year's insurance under this policy is Term insurance."

If the premium charged for Term insurance under a Limited-Payment Life or Endowment Preliminary Term policy providing for the payment of all premiums thereon in less than twenty years from the date of the policy exceeds that charged for like insurance under Whole Life Preliminary Term policies of the same company, the reserve thereon at the end of any year, including the first, shall not be less than the reserve on a Whole Life Preliminary Term policy issued in the same year and at the same age together with an amount which shall be equivalent to the accumulation of a net level premium sufficient to provide for a Pure Endowment at the end of the premium-payment period equal to the difference between the value at the end of such period of such a Whole Life Preliminary Term policy and the full reserve at such time of such a Limited-Payment Life or Endowment policy. (May 21, 1910, 101 v. 352; April 22, 1908, 99 v. 171, § 4.)

Section 9420. (Policies, other than standard forms.) No policy of life insurance in form other than as provided in sections ninety-four hundred and twelve to ninety-four hundred and seventeen, both inclusive, shall be issued or delivered in this state or be issued by a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state unless the same shall contain the following provisions:

(1) A provision that all premiums shall be payable in advance either at the home office of the company, or to an agent of the company, upon delivery of a receipt signed by one or more of the officers who shall be named in the policy.

(2) A provision for a grace of one month for the payment of every premium after the first, which may be subject to an interest charge, during which month the insurance shall continue in force, which provision may contain a stipulation that if the insured shall die during the month of grace the over-due premium will be deducted in any settlement under the policy.

(3) A provision that the policy and the application therefor, a copy of which must be endorsed thereon, shall constitute the entire contract between the parties and shall be incontestable after two years from its date, except for non-payment of premiums and except for violations of the conditions of the policy relating to naval and military service in time of war.

(4) A provision that all statements made by the insured in the application shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties.

(5) A provision that if the age of the insured has been understated the amount payable under the policy shall be such as the premium would have purchased at the correct age.

(6) A provision that the policy shall participate in the surplus of the company and that, beginning not later than the end of the third policy year, the company will annually determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing on the policy, and that the owner of the policy shall have the right each year to have the current dividend arising from such participation paid in cash or applied to the purchase of paid-up additions, and if the policy shall provide other dividend options, it shall further provide that if the owner of the policy shall not elect any such other options the dividend shall be applied to the purchase of paid-up additions.

In lieu of the foregoing provision the policy may contain a provision that the policy shall participate in the surplus of the company, and that, beginning not later than the end of the fifth policy year, the company will determine and account for the portion of the divisible surplus accruing on the policy, and that the owner of the policy shall have the right to have the current dividend arising from such participation paid in cash, and that at periods of not more than five years such accounting and payment, at the option of the policy holder, shall be had.

Renewable term policies of ten years or less may provide that the surplus accruing to such policies shall be determined and apportioned each year after the second policy year and accumulated during each renewal period and that at the end of any renewal period on renewal of the policy by the insured, the company shall apply the accumulated surplus as an annuity for the next succeeding renewal term in the reduction of premiums.

These provisions shall not be required in non-participating policies.

(7) A provision that after three full years' premiums have been paid, the company at any time, while the policy is in force, will advance, on proper assignment of the policy and on the sole security thereof, at a specified rate of interest, a sum equal to, or at the option of the owner of the policy, less than, the reserve at the end of the current policy year on the policy and on any dividend additions thereto, specifying the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserve, less a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any dividend additions thereto; and that the company will deduct from such loan value any existing indebtedness on the policy and any unpaid balance of the premium for the current policy year, and may collect interest in advance on the loan to the end of the current policy year; which provision may further provide that such loan may be deferred for not exceeding six months after the application therefor is made. It shall be further stipulated in the policy that failure to repay any such advance or to pay interest shall not avoid the policy unless the total indebtedness thereon to the company shall equal or exceed such loan value at the time of such failure nor until one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of insured and of the assignee, if any.

No condition other than as herein provided shall be exacted as a prerequisite to any such advance.

This provision shall not be required in term insurances.

(8) A provision which, in event of default in premium payments, after premiums shall have been paid for three years, shall secure to the owner of the policy a stipulated form of insurance, the net value of which shall be at least equal to the reserve at the date of default on the policy and on any dividend additions thereto, specifying the mortality table and rate of interest adopted for computing such reserves, less a sum not more than two and one-half per centum of the amount insured by the policy and of any existing dividend additions thereto, and less any existing indebtedness to the company on the policy. Such provision shall stipulate that the policy may be surrendered to the company at its home office within one month from date of default for a specified cash value at least equal to the sum which would otherwise be available for the purchase of insurance as aforesaid and may stipulate that the company may defer payment for not more than six (6) months after the application therefor is made.

This provision shall not be required in term insurances of twenty years or less.

(9) A table showing in figures the loan values, and the options available under the policies each year upon default in premium payments, during at least the first twenty years of the policy, beginning with the year in which such values and options become available.

(10) A provision that if, in event of default in premium payments, the value of the policy shall be applied to the purchase of other insurance, and if such insurance shall be in force and the original policy shall not have been surrendered to the company and canceled, the policy may be reinstated within three years from such default, upon evidence of insurability satisfactory to the company and payment of arrears of premiums with interest.

(11) A provision that when a policy shall become a claim by the death of the insured settlement shall be made upon receipt of due proof of death, or not later than two months after receipt of such proof.

(12) A table showing the amounts of installments in which the policy may provide its proceeds may be payable.

(13) A title on the face and on the back of the policy correctly describing the same.

Any of the foregoing provisions or portions thereof relating to premiums not applicable to single premium policies, shall to that extent not be incorporated therein. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 173, § 6.)

A clause stipulating for automatic election, after default in premium payment, on failure of the insured to elect, is valid if it conforms to §§ 9420 and 9421, although the clause differs from the optional rights clause in the statutory forms. Landis v. Metropolitan Co., 104 O. S. 589 (1922).

PREMIUMS.

Payment of first premium; when necessary to put policy in force. The following cases were decided before the enactment of this section, which requires premiums to be paid in advance.

Under a provision in a policy that it "shall not take effect until the first premium shall have been paid to and accepted by the company or an authorized agent" it was held that such payment, unless waived, was necessary to put the policy in force.

Insurance Co. v. Harvey, 72 O. S. 174 (1905).

Such a provision may be waived. Waiver may be proved by showing a known custom of the agent to deliver policies of the company before the premium is paid. Such proof is competent although the policy provides that only certain officers may extend the time of payments. Insurance Co. v. Kaufman, 24 C. C. n. s. 113 (1903).

An agent authorized to make contracts of fire insurance and issue policies is authorized to extend credit for premiums, unless there are restrictions on his authority of which the insured has notice.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

See Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6, 13 (1902).

Where a policy with a receipt for the first year's premium was entrusted to a special agent, to be delivered on payment of the premium, the special agent had no authority to extend credit, or to deliver the policy without payment, and the company is not estopped to set up non-payment and non-delivery of the policy, against an assignee of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Smith, 3 W. L. B. 607; 7 Am. L. R. 147 (1878).

Where a policy contained a provision making payment of the premium a condition precedent to the taking effect of the policy, and receipt of the premium is acknowledged in the policy, such acknowledgment of receipt is conclusive for the purpose of giving effect to the policy from the time of delivery.

See Lee v. Insurance Co., 1 Handy 217 (1854).

Where an agent, having received the policy from the company, calls on the insured and collects the first premium, but, finding the insured to be ill, delays delivery of the policy, the contract of insurance is complete. Insurance Co. v. Shively, 1 Ohio App. 238; 17 C. C. n. s. 352; 24 C. D. 357 (1913); Insurance Co. v. Ford, 2 Ohio App. 410; 19 C. C. n. s. 689; 24 C. D. 479 (1914).

The premium of any premium, after the first, is not a condition precedent to the vesting of all rights, though these rights are liable to forfeiture for non-payment of future premiums.

Insurance Co. v. French, 30 O. S. 240, 252 (1876); (distinguished in Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 70 O. S. 354).

Forfeiture of policy for non-payment. Where a policy was issued and accepted on the expressed condition that if the annual premiums were not paid within the time specified the policy "shall be null and void, and wholly forfeited," the failure to pay the premiums avoids the policy.

Insurance Co. v. McMillen, 24 O. S. 67 (1873).

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 70 O. S. 354 (1904).

For rights of insured to paid insurance, on default, see § 9420 (8) and (10). See also below Insurance paid by value of policy after default.

That failure to pay premiums on time was the fault of an employee of the insured is no excuse, see Graveson v. Life Ass'n., 8 C. C. 171; 6 C. D. 327 (1894); aff'd, no rep., 37 W. L. B. 129.

When a policy contains no provision for forfeiture, failure to pay premiums on or about the day they become due may work a suspension of rights thereunder, until such a time has elapsed as will indicate that the insured does not intend to pay. The company may then give notice of its intention to forfeit the policy.

Swander v. Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 233; 15 C. D. 3 (1903).

See § 9420 (2).

Insurance Co. v. Fellowes, 1 Dis. 217 (1856); affirmed, 2 Dis. 128.

Failure to pay a premium is excused only when the insurance company, by some wrongful act or omission, prevented the payment. In other cases diligence on the part of the insured would not excuse non-payment.

Insurance Co. v. Troy, 20 C. C. 644; 10 C. D. 761 (1900); aff'd, no rep., 66 O. S. 675.

Premiums must be tendered at reasonable hours, but if so tendered, the policy can not be forfeited because no person authorized to receive payment was in the office of the company.

Insurance Co. v. Troy, 20 C. C. 644; 10 C. D. 761 (1900); aff'd, no rep., 66 O. S. 675.

Where a company repudiates its contract, and clearly indicates that a tender, if made, would not be accepted, actual tender is unnecessary.

Insurance Co. v. Smith, 44 O. S. 156 (1886).

A uniform custom of a company, to give notice of the time and amount of premium due, may bar the right of the company to forfeit a policy, where non-payment is caused by a failure to give notice.

Insurance Co. v. Smith, 44 O. S. 156 (1886).

Insurance Co. v. Pottker, 33 O. S. 459 (1878).

But in general, where the policy contains no provision for notice, neither demand of payment nor notice of an intention to insist on forfeiture is necessary.

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 70 O. S. 354 (1904).

Whether a company has waived its right to suspend a policy by a custom of receiving premiums after they had become due, is a question for the jury.

Swander v. Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 233; 15 C. D. 3 (1903).

Mere delay in declaring a forfeiture is not a waiver.

Graveson v. Life Ass'n., 8 C. C. 171; 6 C. D. 327 (1894); aff'd, no rep., 37 W. L. B. 129.

The receipt and acceptance of a premium after it is due is a waiver of forfeiture.

Insurance Co. v. French, 30 O. S. 240, 253 (1876).

A promissory note given for premiums does not, in general, constitute payment, but merely evidence of the indebtedness.

Koch v. Hotel Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 163 (1910).

See Insurance Co. v. Bonner, 36 O. S. 51 (1880).

Failure to pay a premium note, or interest thereon, avoids the policy, when it so provides.

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 70 O. S. 354 (1904).

Robert v. Insurance Co., 2 Dis. 106 (1858).

Insurance Co. v. Robinson, 40 O. S. 270 (1883).

Insurance Co. v. Buxer, 62 O. S. 385 (1900).

See Kelsey v. Insurance Co., 10 O. L. R. 119 (U. S. C. C. A. 1912).

A policy provided that, on failure to pay premiums after the third, the policy would be continued in force for such time as one annual premium is contained in its reserve value; and the insured paid a part of the fifth premium in cash, and gave notes for the balance, the notes containing a forfeiture clause. The notes were not paid. The reserve value of the policy was sufficient to keep the policy in force beyond the time when the insured died. Held, the policy was not forfeited by the provisions in the notes.

Kelsey v. Insurance Co., 10 O. L. R. 119 (U. S. C. C. A. 1912); not following Insurance Co. v. Buxer, 62 O. S. 385.

Where a policy provided for a premium note, which was not to be deemed payment, but as an extension of time, and if the note, or a renewal, was not paid at maturity, the company should not be liable for a loss occurring while it remained due and unpaid, it was held that the policy was not forfeited by non-payment, but suspended only.

McEvoy v. Insurance Co., 3 C. C. 569; 2 C. D. 329 (1889).

Non-payment of notes held not to forfeit amount of policy, but to forfeit future dividends under terms of policy.

Insurance Co. v. Bonner, 36 O. S. 51 (1880).

Where both parties joined in a motion for an instructed verdict, the court was authorized to determine from the evidence whether the premium had been paid.

Halstead v. Ins. Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 113; 24 L. D. 296 (1912); affirmed by court of appeals without report; modified and affirmed, 90 O. S. 409.

Revivor after default. Where a policy provided that in case of forfeiture for non-payment of premiums "it may be revived if not more than fifty-two premiums are due, upon the payment of all arrears, and the presentation of evidence satisfactory to the company of the sound health of the insured," it was held that the company could refuse to accept four weeks' premiums on a policy forty-six days in arrears, an investigation having shown that the insured was far gone with consumption.

Insurance Co. v. Walton, 4 C. C. n. s. 133; 15 C. D. 587 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 650.

A health certificate furnished for reinstatement, after default, should be construed liberally in favor of the insured.

Life Ass'n. v. Draddy, 8 N. P. 140; 10 L. D. 591 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1900).

Actions to collect. A foreign insurance company which has not procured a license, as required by law, can not maintain an action in a state court to recover premiums.

Casualty Co. v. Banking Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 200 (1908).

Where an application was revoked by the applicant, before the policy was issued, the agent who obtained the application can not maintain an action in his own name against the applicant to recover the premium, or the amount of his commission. The right of action, if one exists, is in the company.

Chapin v. Betts, 14 C. C. 335; 7 C. D. 422 (1897).

Consideration for premiums. The obligation on the part of the company to pay the amount of the policy on the happening of the event contemplated, furnishes a sufficient consideration to support the promise to pay premiums, whether such promise is made by the insured alone, or by another jointly with him.

Insurance Co. v. Hilliard, 63 O. S. 478 (1900).

But it is essential that the insurer incur a liability by a contract which is not affected by any infirmity which it may elect to interpose as a defense to an action on the policy if the life insured should end. Where the insurer incurs no such binding obligation the premiums paid may be recovered.

Insurance Co. v. Felix, 73 O. S. 46 (1905).

Insurance premiums are not necessities under G. C. § 12946-1, and an assignment of future wages therefor is invalid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 848.

Recovery of premiums paid. Where a person has been induced to take a policy by the fraudulent representations of the agent of the company, the assured may have the policy declared void and recover back the premiums paid.

Insurance Co. v. Wright, 33 O. S. 533 (1878).

Martin v. Insurance Co. (Sup. Ct. Tenn.) 3 W. L. B. 646 (1877).

Whether representations as to future profits, based upon the past experience and present condition of the company, were intended as representations of fact or opinion, may be submitted to the jury. Life Soc. v. Statler, 17 C. C. n. s. 59; 24 C. D. 391 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 549.

Where an insurance company wrongfully declared the policy forfeited, and refused to accept the premium and give a renewal receipt, the insured may demand a rescission of the contract and a return of the premiums paid, with interest.

Insurance Co. v. Pottker, 33 O. S. 459 (1878).

See Insurance Co. v. Hare, 5 C. C. n. s. 348; 16 C. D. 197; reversed without report, 74 O. S. 466.

Where premiums have been paid on a void policy the policyholder, if not guilty of fraud or wrongdoing, may recover the same.

Insurance Co. v. Pyle, 44 O. S. 19 (1886).

Insurance Co. v. Felix, 73 O. S. 46 (1905).

Where premiums were paid by a wife, on a policy on the life of her husband, without his knowledge, and the policy contained a condition that it should be void unless consented to by the insured, the wife, if not guilty of fraud or wrongdoing, may recover back the premiums paid. To constitute a consideration for premiums, it is necessary that the insurer incur a liability that is not affected by any infirmity which it might elect to interpose as a defense in case of death.

Insurance Co. v. Felix, 73 O. S. 46 (1905).

Compare Brokamp v. Insurance Co., 16 C. C. 630; 9 C. D. 412 (1898).

Lowe v. Insurance Co., 41 O. S. 273 (1884).

But where a wife insures the life of her husband, without his consent, and in her dealings with the company conceals this fact, after she must have known that his consent was necessary, she can not recover the premiums paid.

Marling v. Insurance Co., 6 O. L. R. 99 (C. P. 1908).

Where officers of a corporation, without authority, took out insurance on the lives of certain directors, payable to the corporation, which had no insurable interest in the lives of such directors, the premiums paid thereon may be recovered back.

Schott & Sons Co. v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 548 (1908); affirmed, 11 C. C. n. s. 401; 83 O. S. 401.

See Keckley v. Coshocton Glass Co., 86 O. S. 213 (1912).

Where an insured defaulted, after paying two annual premiums, and an assignee of the policy more than six years thereafter sued to recover the premiums paid, alleging fraud in misapplying the funds of the company, knowledge of which had but recently come to him, it was held that the insured was charged with constructive knowledge of the fraud, if any existed, at the time he repudiated the contract by defaulting on his premiums, and that the claim was barred by the statute of limitations.

Baumgarten v. Insurance Co., 7 O. L. R. 294 (C. P. 1909).

Both the insured and the beneficiaries are necessary parties to an action to recover premiums paid on a policy which has been repudiated by the company.

Insurance Co. v. Penn., 4 N. P. n. s. 97; 16 L. D. 375 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1905).

Interpretation of policies. Policies which are prepared by the insurance company and which are reasonably open to different interpretations will be construed most favorably to the insured. Courts will have in mind the relations of the parties to each other. They will give the language of the contract the meaning on which the minds of the parties may be said to have met and which will effectuate their object in entering into it. Mumaw v. Insurance Co., 97 O. S. 1 (1917).

PROVISIONS AND CONDITIONS IN POLICIES.

Policy and application the entire contract. Where the written application is referred to in the policy and expressly made part of the contract, the application thereby becomes a part of the contract.

See § 9420 (3).

See also Insurance Co. v. Harmer, 2 O. S. 452 (1853).

Rudershauer v. Insurance Co., 18 C. C. 609; 10 C. D. 258 (1899).

Where a policy is issued and accepted upon the conditions and agreements contained therein, such conditions and agreement form the contract between the parties, and will not be varied or controlled by the subsequent course of dealing between them, in the absence of fraud or bad faith.

Insurance Co. v. Buxer, 62 O. S. 385 (1900).

Policy incontestable. A provision "that this policy shall be incontestable after two years except for fraud or misstatement of age," is similar to the provision in G. C. § 9392 and relates to what occurred at the time the policy was issued or the application made, and has no reference to default in premiums.

Insurance Co. v. Walton, 4 C. C. n. s. 133; 15 C. D. 587; aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 650.

Loans on policies. See also § 9357 (4).

Where a policy provided for loans on such policy, graded as to amount by the number of cash premiums paid, the insured was held not entitled to a loan after he became in default for payment of a premium, or a premium note, where, by the terms of the policy, the default worked a forfeiture, unless the default was waived by the company.

Insurance Co. v. Buxer, 62 O. S. 385 (1900).

Where a loan agreement provided that in the event of non-payment of the loan at maturity the company might cancel the policy and apply $8,469 the "customary cash surrender consideration" to the payment of the loan, it was held that if the cash surrender value represented the substantial value of the policy, the agreement was valid and cancellation of the policy terminated the rights of the insured. Haas v. Insurance Co., 17 N. P. n. s. 1 (1914); appeal dismissed by court of appeals but judgment of dismissal reversed, 95 O. S. 137; motion to certify record overruled, 15 O. L. R. 192.

Insurance paid by value of policy after default in payment of premiums. Provisions in policies requiring various conditions precedent, construed:

Written application for paid insurance and surrender of original policy within six months after default.

Jones v. Insurance Co., 22 W. L. B. 318 (C. P. 1889).

Payment of premium notes given for premiums subsequent to first three annual premiums.

Suicide. See also forms in §§ 9412 to 9417 sub-head "Conditions."

A condition declaring the policy void in case of death of the insured within two years from the date of the policy by his own hand or act, sane or insane, is valid. Where the insured commits suicide by shooting himself, while insane, there can be no recovery on the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Maguire, 19 C. C. 502; 10 C. D. 562 (1900).

See Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233 (1905).

Pagenhardt v. Insurance Co., 4 N. P. 169; 6 L. D. 190.

Mieritz v. Insurance Co., 8 N. P. 422.

A provision limiting recovery to the amount of premiums paid, in case of suicide while sane or insane, is not prohibited by § 9421 and is valid. Insurance Co. v. Horn, 100 O. S. 478 (1920).

Where a condition avoided the policy if the insured "shall, under any circumstances, die by his own hand," it was held that the words "under any circumstances" were too general and indefinite and that if the insured committed suicide while insane, a recovery could be had.

Schultz v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 217 (1883).

The burden is on the insurer to show that the death was within the proviso.

Schultz v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 217 (1883).

A policy containing a clause as to incontestability issued in lieu of a policy of the same number issued several years earlier, but without such provision, was held not to read into the original policy a waiver of liability for death by suicide.

Clemens v. Life Ass'n., 8 N. P. 587 (C. P. 1901).

Authority of agent. See also § 9407 and forms in §§ 9412 to 9417.

The standard forms (§§ 9412 to 9417) provide that agents are not authorized to modify the policy or extend the time for paying a premium. Such a provision in a policy accepted by the insured, is both notice to, and an agreement by, the insured that the agent has no authority to waive or modify anything contained in the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Myers, 62 O. S. 529 (1900).

Jander v. Insurance Co., 16 C. C. 536; 9 C. D. 462 (1898).

The insured can not recover on a verbal modification of such a policy, extending the policy one year and waiving the payment of an annual premium, in the absence of estoppel.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

But where a policyholder opened negotiations direct with the company and dealt with the "manager" a provision limiting the authority of agents was held not to apply. Life Soc. v. Statler, 17 C. C. n. s. 59; 24 C. D. 391 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 88 O. S. 549.

A physician, employed to examine an applicant for insurance, and make a report thereof to the company, without further duty or authority, after making an examination and report obtained further knowledge of the applicant's physical condition but did not communicate it to the company. Held, such knowledge was not binding on the company and did not operate as a waiver of a provision in the application that the policy would become effective upon approval at the home office of the company "while the person to be insured is in the same condition of insurability". Myers v. John Hancock, etc., Co., — O. S. — (1923); syl. 21 O. L. R. 140.

Military or naval service of insured. A condition avoiding the policy if the insured enters military or naval service is no defense to the company where the cause of death was disease not due to military service. Frush v. Ohio State Ins. Co., 22 N. P. n. s. 428 (1920).

Proof of death. The requirement that a proof of death be made in writing is reasonable, as is also a requirement as to the identification of the deceased.

Menear v. Insurance Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 411; 21 C. D. 483 (1909).

Notice of a defect in a proof of death is not necessary where repeated notices have been given by the company that no proof of death has been filed.

Menear v. Insurance Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 411; 21 C. D. 483 (1909).

An averment in a petition in a suit on a policy that its conditions as to proof of death had been performed on a certain date is inconsistent with a subsequent averment that such conditions had been waived.

Menear v. Insurance Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 411; 21 C. D. 483 (1909).

Where a policy requires proof of loss to be made "forthwith," proof may be made within a reasonable time.

Kirk v. Insurance Co., 6 W. L. B. 200 (Dist. Ct. 1881); aff'd, no rep., 11 W. L. B. 228.

The requirement that proofs of loss must be made within a specified time may be waived by the company after the expiration of the time limited.

Insurance Co. v. Kukral, 7 C. C. 356; 4 C. D. 633 (1893); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 609.

Where a policy required "immediate" notice of death to be given, and the beneficiaries had no knowledge of the existence of the policy until four months after the death of the insured, when notice was immediately given, it was held that the requirement as to immediate notice was satisfied.

Accident Co. v. Card, 13 C. C. 154; 7 C. D. 504 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 583.

Acceptance of a proof of loss, and treatment of such proof as final, with an offer to pay less than the amount claimed, constitutes a rejection of the claim, and suit brought thereafter is not premature.

Assurance Co. v. Dickson, 15 C. C. n. s. 228; 24 C. D. 313 (1912); aff'd, 91 O. S. 380.

Sound health. Where a policy provides that no obligation is assumed by the company, unless at the date of the policy the insured is alive and in sound health, there can be no recovery if the insured was not then in sound health.

Insurance Co. v. Howle, 62 O. S. 204 (1900).

Insurance Co. v. Howle, 68 O. S. 614 (1903).

Insurance Co. v. Draddy, 8 N. P. 140.

Sound health means that state of health which is free from any disease or ailment that seriously affects the general healthfulness of the system; not a mere indisposition.

Insurance Co. v. Howle, 62 O. S. 204 (1900).

Insurance Co. v. Howle, 68 O. S. 614 (1903).

Insurance Co. v. Draddy, 8 N. P. 140 (Super. Ct. Cin.).

A breach of the condition as to sound health is a matter of defense. The burden of proof of such breach rests upon the insurance company. Mumaw v. Insurance Co., 97 O. S. 1 (1917); Insurance Co. v. Zimmer, 97 O. S. 14 (1917); affirming, 19 N. P. n. s. 188.

Where the first premium was paid to the agent at the time the application was made, under an agreement that a policy would be issued if the medical examination should show the applicant to be in sound health, and such examination was made and a policy sent to the agent, but not delivered because of illness of the insured, it was held that the contract was complete, and the company liable on the policy although the insured was stricken on the day its medical examiner mailed his report to the company and the medical examiner attended the insured in his last illness. Insurance Co. v. Ford, 2 Ohio App. 410; 19 C. C. n. s. 689; 24 C. D. 479 (1914).

Where a policy provides that if, at the time of application or of the delivery of the policy, the insured was afflicted with any one of a number of diseases specified therein, and failed to inform the company thereof the policy should be void, there can be no recovery where the insured died from one of such diseases, although the insured was not aware that he was suffering from the same.

The insurer may, by suit, compel the surrender and cancellation of a policy obtained by false statements as to health. Insurance Co. v. Wertheimer, 272 Fed. 730 (D. C. Ohio 1920).

Intemperate habits. Where a policy provided that if the insured "shall become so far intemperate as to impair his health, or induce delirium tremens" the policy should be void, it was held that, in order to avoid the policy, it was not necessary to show that the impaired health or delirium tremens caused the death of the insured.

Section 9421. (Provisions prohibited.) No policy of life insurance in form other than as prescribed in sections ninety-four hundred and twelve to ninety-four hundred and seventeen, both inclusive, shall be issued or delivered in this state or be issued by a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, if it contain any of the following provisions:

(1) A provision for forfeiture of the policy for failure to repay any loan on the policy or to pay interest on such loan while the total indebtedness on the policy is less than the loan value thereof; or any provision for forfeiture for failure to repay any such loan or to pay interest thereon, unless such provision contain a stipulation that no such forfeiture shall occur until at least one month after notice shall have been mailed by the company to the last known address of the insured and of the assignee, if any.

(2) A provision limiting the time within which any action at law or in equity may be commenced to less than five years after the cause of action shall accrue.

(3) A provision by which the policy shall purport to be issued or to take effect before the original application for the insurance was made, if thereby the assured would rate at an age younger than his age at date when the application was made, according to his age at nearest birthday.

(4) A provision for any mode of settlement at maturity of less value than the amount insured on the face of the policy plus dividend additions, if any, less any indebtedness to the company on the policy and less any premium that may by the terms of the policy be deducted. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 6.)

This section does not prohibit a provision that, in the event of suicide of the insured within two years from the date on which the insurance begins, the limit of recovery shall be the amount of the premiums paid. Insurance Co. v. Horn, 100 O. S. 478 (1920).

Clause 4 of § 9421 does not apply to optional settlements upon a surrender of the policy after premium default, until the option has been exercised and the face value fixed anew. Landis v. Metropolitan Co., 104 O. S. 589 (1922).

Stipulation in policy limiting time for bringing suit. Before the enactment of this section, stipulations in policies limiting the time for bringing suits on the policy were upheld where the time was reasonable.

Acceptance of a proof of loss, and treatment of such proof as final, with an offer to pay less than the amount claimed, constitutes a rejection of the claim, and suit brought thereafter is not premature.

Section 9422. (Preliminary term policies, not standard, subject to certain provisions.) Preliminary term policies not issued on the standard forms shall also be subject to the provisions of section ninety-four hundred and nineteen. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 7.)

Section 9423. (Forms of policies must be submitted to superintendent of insurance.) No policy of life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this state, or be issued by a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, until the form of the same has been filed with the superintendent of insurance; and after the superintendent of insurance shall have notified any company of his disapproval of any form it shall be unlawful for such company to issue any policy in the form so disapproved. The superintendent's action shall be subject to review by any court of competent jurisdiction. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 8.)

Section 9424. (Policies may contain provisions prescribed by state where organized.) The policies of a life insurance company, not organized under the laws of this state, may contain any provision which the law of the state, territory, district or country under which the company is organized, prescribes shall be in such policies when issued in this state, and the policies of a life insurance company organized under the laws of this state may, when issued or delivered in any other state, territory, district or country, contain any provision required by the laws of the state, territory, district or country in which the same are issued, anything in this chapter to the contrary notwithstanding. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 9.)

Section 9425. (To what this chapter shall not apply.)
This chapter shall not apply to annuities, industrial policies or to corporations or associations operating on the assessment or fraternal plan. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 10.)

Section 9426. (What the word company includes.)
Wherever the word company is used in this chapter it shall be held to include corporations and associations. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 174, § 11.)

Section 9427. (Mutual protective associations.) A company or association may be organized to transact the business of life or accident or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, for the purpose of mutual protection and relief of its members, and for the payment of stipulated sums of money to the families, heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns of the deceased members of such company or association, as the member may direct, in the manner provided in the by-laws. The company also may receive money either by voluntary donation or contribution, or collect it by assessments on its members, and may accumulate, invest, distribute and appropriate such money in such manner as it deems proper. All accumulations and accretions thereon shall be held and used as the property of the members and in the interest of the members, and not be loaned to, used, appropriated, or invested for the benefit of any officer or manager of such company or association. No company or association shall issue a certificate for a greater amount than it is able to pay from the proceeds of one assessment. Such company or association shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 3630; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 251; May 14, 1886, 83 v. 161; Rev. Stat. 1880; February 3, 1875, 72 v. 23, § 3.)

Fraternal benefit societies, § 9462 et seq.

Construction of section before amendment of 1891 (88 v. 251).

See State v. Insurance Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1890) and § 9441.

An association organized under this section is not a society organized for benevolent purposes within the meaning of § 176. The fee for filing articles of incorporation is, under § 176 (4), twenty-five dollars.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 504.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 57, 88, 90.

Classification of life insurance companies. The Ohio statutes divide life insurance companies, other than fraternal, into two classes, (1) companies that have a capital stock, or at least capital, and (2) companies that have neither capital stock nor capital. The general powers of the first class are granted by § 9339 and those of the second class by § 9427 et seq.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1, 7 (1898).

Corporations organized under Ohio laws are of two classes: 1st, those organized for profit, which must have a capital stock owned by stockholders. 2nd. Those organized for purposes other than profit, consisting of members associated together for a lawful purpose. Corporations formed under § 9427 et seq. belong to the second class.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n., 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

Representations made by a stock company that it was doing a mutual insurance business, and the fact that policyholders, who elected to take participating contracts, had written in their contracts a stipulation that they should share in the profits "as apportioned by the company" do not transform such company into a mutual company or even make the participating contracts mutual insurance contracts, or estop the company from treating, as belonging to its stockholders, a surplus fund which clearly arose from profits of the non-participating business.

State v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); affirmed, 84 O. S. 459.

See Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911); s. c., 87 O. S. 475.

A mutual protective association was held to be a mutual insurance company under the federal corporation tax law of 1909. Commercial Travellers Assn. v. Rodway, 13 O. L. R. 405 (U. S. D. C. 1913).

Powers of each class. The powers of a company of the first class (§ 9339 et seq.), are unlimited as to the individuals it may insure, but are limited to insuring "on the mutual or stock plan." A company or association of the second class (§ 9427 et seq.), can only insure a member of the corporation, and its business must be transacted "on the assessment plan."

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1, 8 (1898).

The first class has no authority to transact business "on the assessment plan." The lack of such power results solely from the omission of the legislation to grant it.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

But a foreign corporation, authorized, by the laws of its home state, to transact business on the assessment plan, should not be refused admission to do such business in Ohio, under § 9435, because it has a capital stock.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

Mutual protective associations have no power to issue policies guaranteeing any fixed amount, except such fixed amount shall be conditioned upon the same being realized from the assessments made on members to meet it.

State v. Insurance Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1882).

§ 9432.

Under this section it is probable that a mutual protective association may accumulate a fund to be managed and invested, dividends paid to members thereon, and portions of the fund, exceeding a certain amount, distributed to the members.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 339 (1890).

See 3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 422, 693 (1884, 1885).

But associations are not authorized to write endowment or investment certificates.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 741 (1897).

By what laws mutual protective associations governed. An association organized for the purposes specified in this section, whether incorporated before or after the amendment of February 3, 1875 (72 v. 23, § 3), is not subject to the laws of this state relating to life insurance companies (§§ 9339, 9426).

State v. Mutual Protection Ass'n., 26 O. S. 19 (1875).

State v. Standard Life Ass'n., 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 343, 241 (1890, 1899).

Corporations organized under this section, though not subject to the provisions relating to life insurance companies on the mutual or stock plan, are subject to the general provisions of title IX, division I, chapter 1 (§ 8623 et seq.), which apply to corporations not for profit.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n., 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

A mutual protective association may receive contributions, but can not rely thereon for the payment of benefits. In its articles of incorporation the right to assess members should be provided for. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 924; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 71, 102, 122.

Articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation of an association organized under § 9427 should provide for the right to make assessments on members for the purpose of paying the benefits provided for. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 924; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 102, 113.

The secretary of state has refused to accept and file articles because of the following defects:

Articles providing for the payment of "such sum of money as is derived from assessing its members in a manner provided in the by-laws of said society" instead of the payment of stipulated sums. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1394; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 102, 114, 71.

Articles providing for definite assessments and indefinite benefits. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 79; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 77.

Members. The members are those mutually engaged in promoting the purposes of the organization, and who, by virtue of their relation to the corporation, are entitled to the mutual protection and relief provided, or whose family, heirs, etc., are, in case of death entitled to the specific relief provided for them.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n., 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

The members are the elective and controlling body, authorized to elect trustees and prescribe regulations.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n., 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

After the first election the trustees must be elected annually in accordance with § 8647.

Ratification, by a member of an association, of a transfer of its assets and obligations to another company; effect on membership.

See Insurance Co. v. Hare, 5 C. C. n. s. 348; 16 C. D. 197 (1904); reversed without report, 74 O. S. 466.

Expulsion or suspension. Power of association to expel, grounds, procedure, remedies of members, etc., see note to § 8653.

Beneficiaries. Where the class of beneficiaries is limited by statute, such class can not be enlarged by a provision in the constitution or by-laws. But the payment of benefits may be limited to a part only of the classes authorized by statute. Wegener v. Wegener, 101 O. S. 22 (1920).

Associations organized under this section are not authorized to provide for the payment of stipulated sums of money to persons other than the families, heirs, executors, administrators or assigns of deceased members.

The beneficiary may be designated in the will of a member. Dhonau v. Striebinger, 24 C. C. n. s. 598 (1904).

Before the amendment of this section in 1891 (88 v. 251), the beneficiaries were limited to the family and heirs of members.

A step-child, taken at a tender age into the home of its step-father and reared as his child, is a member of the family. Dhonau v. Striebinger, 24 C. C. n. s. 598 (1904).

The words "legal representatives," used to designate the beneficiary in a certificate issued prior to the amendment, mean the family and heirs of the member and not his executor or administrator.

See Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

Under a statute limiting beneficiaries to families or "dependents" there is no presumption that a brother is a dependent.

Benevolent Legion v. McGinness, 59 O. S. 531 (1898).

An association, incorporated at a time when the statute authorized payment of benefits to "families or heirs", limited, in its articles of incorporation, the beneficiaries to "families" of the members. Held, a valid limitation which rendered ineligible as a beneficiary a brother of a member not living with such member. Wegener v. Wegener, 101 O. S. 22 (1920).

Nor is one engaged to be married to the insured a dependent.

Rules of association. The laws and regulations of the association determine the rights of the members, if the rules comply with the statute; and a fund raised by the association in pursuance of such laws and regulations, to be paid to the family or heirs of a deceased member, in the manner therein specified, unless otherwise directed by such member during his lifetime, will, on failure to give such direction, be controlled by such laws and regulations.

The rules of the association control the manner of change of beneficiary.

Charch v. Charch, 57 O. S. 561 (1898).

"D," a member of an association, in consideration of a loan, assigned his certificate of membership to a person in no way related to him, with the agreement that the assignee should pay all future assessments, and upon "D's" death to receive the sum due on the certificate. The assignee, in good faith and in reliance of the assignment, paid such assessments until "D's" death. "D" left a widow. The rules of the association provided that the certificate should be payable to the widow, children, mother, sister, father or brother of the deceased member, and in the order named, unless otherwise directed by the member previous to his death. Held:

1. That the assignment was void.
2. That a member can not direct the payment of the beneficiary fund to any other persons than those named in the rules of the association, and that the words "unless otherwise directed" simply empower the member to designate who, of such persons named, shall receive the fund in disregard of the order in such rules.
3. That the fund being in court for distribution, it will be ordered paid, (a) the costs; (b) to the assignee, the assessments paid subsequent to the assignment, with interest thereon; (c) the balance to the widow.
4. That the fund became no part of the estate, and that as to such loan the assignee had no claim upon the fund.

Odd Fellows Benef. Ass'n v. Diebert et al., 2 C. C. 462; 1 C. D. 589 (1887).

Change of beneficiary. The beneficiary named in a certificate of benefit insurance has no vested rights therein. The insured may revoke the designation of beneficiary and substitute a new beneficiary, if such change is made according to the rules of the association.

Thesing v. Knights, 24 W. L. B. 401 (1890).

A policy issued in favor of the wife of the assured, which reserves to the latter the right to change the beneficiary confers upon the wife no right which can pass to her estate in case of her death prior to that of her husband.

Tafel v. Knights, 12 W. L. B. 35 (1884).

But the change of beneficiary can only be made in the manner provided by the rules of the association. Where a certificate is payable to the wife, and by the rules a change of beneficiary can only be made by its surrender and issue of a new certificate, such change can not be made by will, the wife being in life.

Charch v. Charch, 57 O. S. 561 (1898).

See Vance v. Park, 15 C. C. 713; 8 C. D. 425 (1898).

Murphy v. Association, 13 L. D. 183.

The rules in force at the time of the change of beneficiary control, and not the rules in force when the certificate was issued.

Thesing v. Supreme Lodge, 24 W. L. B. 401 (1890).

See Earley v. Earley, 3 C. C. n. s. 71; 13 C. D. 618 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 562.

The rule that the beneficiary must be changed in the manner prescribed by the rules, is subject to three exceptions.

1. Where the association has waived a strict compliance with its rules, and has issued a new certificate, the original beneficiary can not avoid the change because of failure to observe the rules.

2. If it be beyond the power of the insured to comply literally with the regulations, a court of equity will treat the change as having been legally made.

3. If the insured has pursued the course pointed out by the laws of the association, and has done all in his power to change the beneficiary, but, before the new certificate is actually issued, he dies, a court of equity will treat such certificate as having been issued.

By interpleading and paying into court the benefit money, the association may be deemed to have waived defects or irregularities in effecting a change of beneficiary. Abernathy v. Assn., 19 C. C. n. s. 184 (1909); Kerr v. Bowers, 26 C. C. n. s. 289 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 84.

Where the insured sent the policy to the company, requesting its endorsement approving a change of the beneficiary, but died before the endorsement was made, the change was held to have been effected. Harold v. Insurance Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 21 (1908); Kerr v. Bowers, 26 C. C. n. s. 289 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 84.

An injunction, in an action between the insured and the original beneficiary, restraining any change of beneficiary, renders ineffective an attempted change in violation of the injunction. Harold v. Insurance Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 21 (1908).

The reorganization of a mutual protective association into a fraternal benefit society does not affect policies then outstanding, or invalidate policies whose beneficiaries are not within the limited class permitted by the fraternal beneficiary society statute. But the policy holder and the association may agree to treat the policy as controlled by the fraternal benefit society laws. Lentz v. Fritter, 92 O. S. 186 (1915).

A change of beneficiary is not rendered invalid by irregularities, where the change is made substantially according to the laws of the association, and the officers of the association have knowledge of the irregularities. Failure to pay a fee of fifty cents, required on the second certificate, is not a defense, where it was in fact issued.

Earley v. Earley, 3 C. C. n. s. 71; 13 C. D. 618 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 562.

Marriage of the insured does not revoke the designation of his brothers as beneficiaries.

Johnson v. Benevolent Assn., 13 N. P. n. s. 568 (C. P. 1912); affirmed, no report, 92 O. S. 511; reversing, 2 Ohio App. 148; 20 C. C. n. s. 487; 24 C. D. 245.

But where the rules of the association provided that the benefit was payable to dependents of the insured, his marriage was held to revoke the designation of his father as beneficiary and to substitute his wife.

Lett v. Brotherhood, 44 W. L. B. 160 (C. P. 1898).

The will of an insured which bequeathes "all policies of insurance" does not include certificates in a mutual protective association, where he had other insurance policies, and it did not clearly appear that he intended to thereby change the beneficiary.

Association v. Harrison, 23 W. L. B. 360 (1890).

Where by the rules of an association the fund is to be paid "to the widow, children, mother, sister, father or brother" of a deceased member, in the order named, "if not otherwise directed by the member," the relatives will take the fund in the order named, unless the member otherwise directed during his lifetime; and the will of a member, who dies seized of both real and personal property, devising to his children "my estate and property, real, personal and mixed," is not such an execution of the power of direction as will control the fund.

Arthur v. Ass'n, 29 O. S. 557 (1876).

See Vance v. Park, 15 C. C. 713; 8 C. D. 425 (1898).

A former beneficiary, claiming to have paid assessments and to have a property interest in the certificate, can not maintain an action, during the life of the member, for the cancellation of a new certificate in which another beneficiary is designated. Strauch v. Strauch, 16 C. C. n. s. 556, 26 C. D. 140 (1907).

Assessments. A policy of a mutual assessment association agreeing, upon loss, to pay the member a fund collected by assessment on all the members, implies a promise to levy such assessment, and the insured need not seek specific performance, but may sue at law for the breach of such promise.

Hall v. Association, 25 W. L. B. 79 (C. P. 1891).

Members failing to pay assessments after the association has ceased to do business do not thereby forfeit their rights in its funds.

Judge v. Association, 10 C. C. n. s. 473; 20 C. D. 133 (1907).

Where notice of an assessment is mailed to the former address of a member, after he had notified the association of his change of address, and such notice of assessment is not received by the member, the association can not forfeit his certificate and membership.

Judge v. Association, 10 C. C. n. s. 473; 20 C. D. 133 (1907).

Where overdue premiums are several times accepted by the association, it is estopped from defending on the ground of forfeiture for non-payment within the time specified in the policy. Commercial Assn. v. Bagnell, 9 Ohio App. 458; 29 O. C. A. 321 (1918); motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 364.

Where the defendant in a suit on a contract of insurance pleaded non-compliance with a by-law requiring payment of assessments within a certain time, a reply is not a departure which pleads another by-law, providing for reinstatement.

Beckel v. Ins. Co., 14 N. P. n. s. 207 (1913).

The president of a mutual life insurance company has no authority to levy a call or assessment, where the laws of the company provided two different methods of restoring a deficiency in its mortuary fund. The power of levying the call or assessment is vested in the directors. Beckel v. Insurance Co., 15 N. P. n. s. 266 (1913).

Where a member failed to pay assessments and the directors, by resolution, ordered that his policy remain cancelled "unless he pass a successful medical examination" it was held that, upon passing a successful medical examination, he was restored to membership without further action of the board. Beckel v. Insurance Co., 15 N. P. n. s. 266 (1913); s. c., 14 N. P. n. s. 207.

Upon proof that a person was in good standing as a member at one time, a presumption arises that he continued in good standing until his death. The burden of proof of suspension for non-payment rests on the society. Heptasophs v. Fife, 16 C. C. n. s. 205 (1905); Hall v. Association, 6 C. C. 137, 141, (1891).

But such presumption being rebutted, the plaintiff must prove payment of all assessments up to the death of the member. Heptasophs v. Fife, 16 C. C. n. s. 205 (1905).

Members are represented by the association in a suit against it, by one beneficiary and all others similarly situated, in an action to enforce payment of benefits. All members are bound by the judgment in such suit. Munn v. Barfield, 26 C. C. n. s. 555; 28 C. D. 75 (1914).

Certificate or policy. A certificate of membership, in which the holder agrees to pay a membership fee, annual dues and pro rata assessments in consideration of the company's stipulation to pay to his family or heirs a sum of money, is a contract of life insurance.

State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

The rules and regulations of the association are a part of the insurance contract.

Judge v. Association, 10 C. C. n. s. 473; 20 C. D. 133 (1907).

Language in a policy designating the beneficiary must, subject to the statutory or charter limitations as to who may be beneficiaries, be regarded as the language of the insured alone; and should receive as nearly as possible the same construction as if used in a will.

Association v. Greene, 79 Fed. 461 (C. C. 1897).

After a lapse of seven years a presumption of death arises where the insured has not been heard from; and a beneficiary who has kept the certificate alive by the payment of assessments is entitled to recover.

Supreme Commandery v. Everding, 20 C. C. 689; 11 C. D. 419 (1893).

Section 9428. (By-laws.) Such associations may provide in their by-laws that there be not less than five nor more than fifteen trustees, whose term of office shall not be more than three years. If the term be made more than one year, the by-laws may provide for electing at the first election a part of them for one year, a part for two years and a part for three years, and thereafter elections shall be for a term of three years. Such associations by their regulations or by-laws may provide for:

1. The time, place and manner of calling and conducting their meetings.

2. The number of members constituting a quorum.

3. The time of the annual election for trustees and the mode and manner of giving notice thereof.

4. The duties and compensation of officers.

5. The manner of election, or appointment, and tenure of office of all officers. The tenure of the trustees shall not be for more than three years, one-third of whom may be elected annually. The provisions of sections eighty-seven hundred and three, and eighty-seven hundred and four, shall not apply to such associations.

6. But nothing herein shall affect or impair the powers or franchises of corporations, companies or associations heretofore organized under this and the original section, or under it as heretofore amended. Such companies or associations may avail themselves of the provisions of the first three sections of this chapter, by amendment of their articles of incorporation as provided in sections eighty-seven hundred and nineteen to eighty-seven hundred and twenty-three, both inclusive. (R. S. Sec. 3630; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 251; May 14, 1886, 83 v. 161; Rev. Stat. 1880; February 3, 1875, 72 v. 23, § 3.)

Trustees. Neither the incorporators nor the trustees first elected are authorized to adopt a by-law providing that they shall hold office during life, and in case of vacancy to fill same by appointment. State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

Trustees have no authority to act for or bind the association except in their aggregate capacity as a board; and where they assume, by virtue of their trusteeship, to act in the individual capacity as officers or agents of the corporation, they can not thereby create against it a legal liability to compensate them as trustees for such services. State v. Association, 42 O. S. 579 (1885).

Trustees having accepted designated sums, as compensation for their services for particular years, have no power in subsequent years to vote themselves further compensation for services of previous years.

Such trustees, unless especially invested with the additional authority of officers or agents, are limited to such compensation as will reasonably pay for their time and expenses in going to, attending and returning from their official meetings, and for services while in session. State v. Association, 42 O. S. 579 (1885).

Trustees are charged with the duty of faithfully executing the trust which the law and regulations impose on them. They are entitled to reasonable compensation; but any plan by which money is collected from members by assessment or otherwise, with a view to their individual profit, and beyond what is necessary to defray the reasonable expenses of the trust, is a breach of such trust. State v. Standard Life Ass'n, 38 O. S. 281 (1882).

Trustees are not personally liable for a death loss on a policy issued during their term of office. Kelley v. Bender, 22 C. C. 144; 12 C. D. 181 (1901). See § 8666. Mfgs. Fire Ass'n v. Drug Mills, 8 C. C. 112; 4 C. D. 352 (1893).

Where the secretary of a mutual insurance company obtains proxies from policyholders, he is not obliged to vote the same for the old directors, nor can the board control him in voting the proxies, unless the proxies were obtained under representations to that effect. Burch v. Coan, 17 L. D. 717 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1907).

Section 9429. (Amendment to constitution or by-laws.)

Associations so organized may change or amend their constitution or by-laws by the assent thereto in writing of a majority of the members, or by a majority of those present, in person or by proxy, at a meeting held for that purpose, thirty days' notice of such meeting having been given with the proposed changes in full by the acting president personally or by letter mailed to each member. But such change shall not take effect or be in force until it has been submitted to and approved by the superintendent of insurance; Provided, that any association so organized which while issuing policies or certificates advertises or gives out that it is maintaining a reserve greater than that required for yearly renewable term policies shall continue to maintain such reserve against said policies or certificates while they are in force, and no amendment to its constitution and by-laws decreasing said reserve on said policies or certificates shall be approved by the superintendent of insurance. (110 v. 256; R. S. Sec. 3630; March 3, 1891, 88 v. 251; May 14, 1886, 83 v. 161; Rev. Stats. 1880; February 3, 1875, 72 v. 23, § 3.)

An amendment to by-laws of a mutual benevolent society, reducing the amount of benefits, does not affect a right to benefits which had become vested before the adoption of the amendment. Pellazzino v. Society, 16 W. L. B. 27 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1886); Forresters v. Rennie, 2 C. C. n. s. 510; 15 C. D. 790 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 71 O. S. 525.

Reorganization as a fraternal benefit society, see Lentz v. Fritter, 92 O. S. 186 (1915).

Section 9429-1. (Authorizing certain insurance companies to amend articles of incorporation so as to change plan of insurance. Deposit with superintendent of insurance for protection of policy holders.) That, any company or association organized under authority of section 9427 General Code for the purpose of transacting the business of life or accident or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, as provided therein, may, with the consent in writing of a majority of its members, and upon the vote of the majority of its directors or trustees therefor, and also with the written approval of the superintendent of insurance, amend its articles of incorporation and its constitution and by-laws in such a manner as to permit it to transact the business of life insurance on the legal reserve or level premium plan as a mutual company without capital stock, and, upon procuring from the superintendent of insurance a certificate of authority to transact business on the legal reserve or level premium plan, shall incur the obligations and enjoy the benefits thereof as provided by the laws of this state, as though it had thus been originally incorporated, and thereafter shall cease to receive members and issue certificates on the assessment plan; such corporation, under its articles of incorporation, as amended, shall be a continuation of the original corporation, and the officers at the time of such amendment shall serve through the terms for which they have been elected, but their successors shall be elected and serve for such terms and perform such duties as shall be provided in the constitution and by-laws of such association after such amendment. The amendment of the articles of incorporation, as herein provided, together with the amendment of the constitution and by-laws of such association, shall not affect existing suits, rights or contracts. Any such company or association may amend its articles of incorporation and its constitution and by-laws, as herein provided, so as to enable it to transact the business of legal reserve or level premium life insurance on the mutual plan, without capital stock, and in such case the provisions of sections 9339 to 9409 General Code, insofar as the same relate to capital stock of legal reserve companies, shall not apply to such company or association, and thereupon such company or association shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance funds to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars held by it for the protection of its members and policy holders, of the character specified in section 9357 General Code; said deposit to be held by the superintendent of insurance in trust for the benefit and security of all of the members and policy holders of such company or association. All contracts and certificates issued prior to the amendment of the articles of incorporation and constitution and by-laws, as herein provided, shall be valued as one year term insurance at the ages attained, according to the standard of valuation specified for life insurance policies by the laws of this state. At the time of the amendment of its articles of incorporation, such company shall compute, in a manner satisfactory to the superintendent of insurance, the value of each member's interest in the funds of such company, and shall at the time of such amendment, notify each member of the amount standing to his credit, and shall give to each of its members the right to exchange his certificate for a policy upon the legal reserve basis; within six months after the receipt of said notice, each member shall declare, in writing, whether (1) he elects to take a legal reserve policy, which shall not exceed in amount the maximum amount payable to beneficiary on such member's certificates, unless such limitation is expressly waived by such company or association, the premiums on which shall be reduced each year by the annuity purchasable by his credit in the funds of the company or association; or whether (2) he elects to retain his original certificate; in the latter case, or if he fails to make an election within the time specified, the assessments shall be levied and collected as provided in the constitution and by-laws of such company or association in force at the time of the amendment of the articles of incorporation. (May 7, 1913, 103 v. 714, § 1; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 9429-2. (Separate annual statements to superintendent of insurance.) Such company or association so amending its articles of incorporation and its constitution and by-laws, shall be subject to sections 9428 and 9429 General Code as to its organization and government and shall make separate annual statements to the superintendent of insurance of the business transacted by it under the assessment plan, as required by section 9430 General Code, and of the business transacted by it under the level premium or legal reserve plan, as required by section 9363 General Code. (May 7, 1913, 103 v. 716, § 2; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 9429-3. (Sections not applicable.) Sections 8720 to 8723, inclusive, of the General Code shall not apply to companies or associations amending their articles of incorporation as herein provided. (May 7, 1913, 103 v. 716, § 3; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 9429-4. (Assessment plan companies not permitted to do business in this state; exceptions.) No company or association transacting the business of life insurance on the assessment plan, other than fraternal beneficiary associations, shall do business within this state, except such companies as are now authorized to do business within this state and which shall value their assessment policies or certificates of membership as yearly renewable term policies, according to the standard of valuation of life insurance policies prescribed by the laws of this state. (May 7, 1913, 103 v. 716, § 4; in effect August 8, 1913.)

Section 9430. (Annual statement.) Each corporation, company, or association organized under any law of this state, for the purpose of doing business under preceding sections of this chapter, or for the purpose of doing such business as is contemplated by them, on the first day of January, each year, or within sixty days thereafter, shall deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance, a statement under oath, of all its transactions for the year next preceding the first day of January, and the condition of its business at the close of such year, according to printed blanks, which shall be prepared and furnished by the superintendent, showing, in detail, the transactions of each company or association, exhibiting the following facts and items, in the following form:

1. Number of certificates or policies issued during the year.
2. The amount of the indemnity effected thereby.
3. Number of death losses during the year.
4. Number of death losses paid during the year.
5. Total amount received from death assessments during the year.
6. Total amount paid to certificate-holders or policy-holders for losses during the year.
7. Number of death claims not due, but for which assessments have been made.
8. Number of losses for which assessments have not yet been issued.
9. Number of death claims compromised or resisted during the year, and reasons for such compromise or resistance.
10. Does the association or company charge annual dues?
11. How much are the dues for one thousand dollars of indemnity?
12. Does the association or company use the death assessments to meet its expenses, in whole or in part?
13. Amount of death assessments used to meet expenses during the year.
14. Do the certificates or policies issued by the association or company guarantee a fixed amount to be paid, regardless of amount realized from assessments made to meet them?
15. If so, state how the amount is guaranteed?
16. What security for such guarantee?
17. Does the association or company issue endowment certificates or policies, or undertake and promise to pay to members during life any sum of money or thing of value?
18. If so, how are these payments or promises provided for?
19. If by reserve, state the amount of reserve.
20. From what source is the reserve fund obtained?
21. How invested?
22. What guarantee or security have the certificate-holders for this reserve?
23. How many classes or divisions of endowment certificates or policies have the association or company?

24. How many years required for maturity of first class or division? How many years required for maturity of second class or division? How many years required for maturity of third class or division? How many years required for maturity of fourth class or division?

25. Number of certificates or policies in force in first class or division. Number of certificates or policies in force in second class or division. Number of certificates or policies in force in third class or division. Number of certificates or policies in force in fourth class or division.

26. Date of organization of association of company.

27. Number of certificates or policies lapsed during the year.

28. Whole number of certificates or policies in force at the beginning and end of the year.

29. The aggregate amount of certificates in force at the beginning of the year.

30. The aggregate amount of certificates lapsed during the year.

31. The aggregate amount of certificates in force at the end of the year.

32. Maximum, minimum, and average age of members received during the year.

33. Has the association or company any agents who have not given bonds?

34. In what state is the association doing business? (R. S. Sec. 3630a; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178.)

This section does not apply to certain mutual benefit societies.

§ 9459.

State v. Railway, 68 O. S. 9, 40 (1903).

This section does not enlarge the class of companies provided for in § 9427.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7 (1882).

Section 9431. (Failure to file a statement.) Any such corporation, company, or association which fails or refuses to file a statement or report, or whose treasurer fails to file a bond as required by law, shall forfeit its right to do business, which forfeiture the superintendent of insurance shall enforce by proceedings in quo warranto, and the attorney-general of the state shall institute such proceedings, upon his request, in writing. (R. S. Sec. 3630c; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9432. (When must comply with requirements of mutual life companies.) No such corporation, company, or association issuing endowments, certificates or policies, or undertaking, or promising to pay to members during life any sum of money, or thing of value, or certificate, or policy guaranteeing any fixed amount to be paid at death, except such fixed amounts or endowments be conditioned upon their being realized from the assessments made on members to meet them, shall be permitted to do business in this state, until they comply with the laws regulating regular mutual life insurance companies. (R. S. Sec. 3630c; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

A provision in a policy that "the proceeds from the next mortuary call are hereby made liable for the payment of all benefits payable under the policy and the insurance thereunder is conditioned thereupon" is a substantial compliance with this section.

4 Opins. Atty. Gen. 408 (1891).

This section does not apply to policies issued by a foreign association outside of Ohio. This section is complied with if all policies issued in Ohio contain the provisions prescribed.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 446 (1892).

Section 9433. (Examination of companies.) When he has good reason to believe that the business of any such corporation, company or association is not being legally and honestly conducted, or that such corporation, company or association is exercising powers or franchises not conferred by law, the superintendent of insurance may cause an examination of its affairs to be made. If upon such examination, it appears that such corporation, company or association is exercising powers or franchises contrary to law, he shall institute in quo warranto against it, as hereinbefore provided. (R. S. Sec. 3630d; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 549; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9434. (Expenses of examinations.) The expenses of all examinations of companies, made under authority of this chapter, shall be paid by the state treasurer on the warrant of the state auditor upon the certificate of the superintendent of insurance; except that the expenses of any examination, made upon the demand of the company, must be paid by the company making such demand; and when, by the laws of any other state, district, territory or nation, examinations of companies or associations of this state are required or permitted to be made by the insurance department or other authority of such state, district, territory or nation at the expense of such companies, then the expenses of all examinations, made by the insurance department of this state of companies of such state, district, territory or nation, shall be charged to and collected from the companies so examined respectively. (R. S. Sec. 3630d; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 549; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9435. (How foreign corporations admitted.) Any corporation, company, or association organized under the laws of any other state of the United States to transact the business of life or accident or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, as a condition precedent to transacting business in this state, shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance the following:

1. A certified copy of its charter or articles of incorporation;

2. A certificate from the insurance commissioner, or superintendent of its own state, showing its authority to do such business;

3. A certificate from such commissioner or superintendent or other like authority of its own state, that corporations, companies or associations of this state engaged in life or accident insurance on the assessment plan as the case may be, upon complying with the laws of such state, legally are entitled to do business therein;

4. A statement under the oath of its president and secretary or like officers, in the form by the superintendent of insurance required, of its business for the preceding year;

5. A certificate under the oath of its president and secretary, or like officers, that such corporation, company or association is paying, and for the twelve months next preceding has paid the maximum amount named in its policies or certificates;

6. A copy of its policy or certificate, application and by-laws, which must show that the liabilities of the assured or members are not limited to fixed or artificial premiums;

7. Evidence satisfactory to such superintendent that such corporation, company or association has accumulated and maintained a fund securely invested in securities permitted by the law of its incorporation, not less in amount than the proceeds of one periodical payment by, or an assessment on all certificates or policyholders thereof, and that such fund is held solely for the benefit of certificate or policyholders and can only be used for the purposes provided in the laws of the state where incorporated; except that such fund in the case of accident companies or accident associations shall not be less than five thousand dollars, and need not be more than ten thousand dollars;

8. Evidence that such corporation, company or association, except it be an accident insurance corporation, company or association, does not issue certificates or policies upon the life of any person more than sixty-five years of age, or upon any life in which the beneficiary named has not a legal insurable interest. But license to do business in this state shall not be delivered to any such corporation, company or association until it has filed with the superintendent of insurance an appointment of an attorney within this state upon whom service of process may be had. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 181.)

Foreign stock or mutual insurance companies, see § 9365 et seq.

Foreign fire, etc., insurance companies, see §§ 9559, 9560.

Penalty for failure to comply with provisions, see § 13417.

Under § 9435 et seq. the insurance commissioner can not be compelled to issue a license to a foreign company, doing business on the assessment plan, where by the laws of its home state, Ohio companies of like character are not entitled as a matter of right to do business therein.

State v. Moore, 39 O. S. 486 (1883).

The law of comity is fully satisfied, when foreign companies are permitted to do business in this state upon the terms prescribed for domestic companies.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7, 11 (1882).

This section does not enlarge the class of companies provided for in § 9427, but merely prescribes the regulations under which foreign companies may do business in Ohio.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7 (1882).

While life insurance companies organized in this state to do business on the mutual plan have no authority to do business on the assessment plan, yet such a foreign corporation having such power may be allowed to do business in this state.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

What constitutes the business of life insurance "on the assessment plan," within the meaning of that term, as used in this section, should be determined by the laws of this state; and that phrase should be held to contemplate a scheme of insurance conducted for the sole benefit of the policyholders, the principal source of revenue to arise from post-mortem assessments intended to liquidate specific losses.

State v. Matthews, 58 O. S. 1 (1898).

In their dealings with residents of Ohio, foreign associations, doing business in this state, are governed by the laws of Ohio.

Earley v. Earley, 3 C. C. n. s. 71; 13 C. D. 618 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 562.

Before the amendment of Rev. Stats. §§ 3630 and 3630e in 1891 (88 v. 251, 252) it was held that a company of another state organized for "insuring lives on the plan of assessment upon surviving members," without limitation, does not come within the class of companies provided in this section. The section did not embrace companies insuring the lives of members for the benefit of other than their families and heirs.

Section 9436. (Certificate of authority.) Thereupon the superintendent shall issue to such corporation, company or association a certificate of authority to transact its business in this state, which certificate shall be renewed annually; but he shall refuse such certificate to any such corporation, company or association, when in his judgment a refusal will best promote the public interest, but all decisions by him made shall be subject to review by courts of competent jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 181.)

Section 9437. (Revocation of authority.) Such authority shall be revoked whenever the superintendent of insurance on investigation or examination finds that such corporation, company or association is not paying the maximum amount named in its policies or certificates in full, that such corporation, company or association is transacting business fraudulently or illegally, or that the statement of its condition and affairs required herein are false and fraudulent, or for failure to file the annual statement, or when, upon investigation it appears that the expense of management of such company or association, for the year preceding the year in which such investigation is made, was more than thirty per cent. of its income from premiums, assessments and membership fees. Upon such revocation, the superintendent shall cause notice thereof to be published for four weeks in some newspaper published in the county of Franklin, and no new insurance shall thereafter be written by such corporation, company or association or any of its agents in this state. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9438. (When agent shall not transact business.) No agent of such corporation, company or association shall transact business in this state without being first regularly appointed thereby and being licensed by a certificate of authority issued by the superintendent of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

The acts of an unlicensed agent, within the scope of his authority, are valid, not only in favor of third persons, but as between principal and agent. Insurance Co. v. Ellis, 32 O. S. 388 (1877).

Section 9439. (Annual statement.) Each such corporation, company or association annually thereafter, and on or before the first day of March, shall make and file in the office of the superintendent of insurance a statement in the form by such superintendent required of its business for the twelve months next preceding the thirty-first day of December. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9440. (Fees; exceptions.) The fees to be paid by each such corporation, company or association to the superintendent for the authority to it and its agents under the license granted by him to transact business in this state, shall be as follows:

Filing copy of charter or articles of incorporation, twenty five dollars;

Filing each annual statement, twenty dollars;

Issuing certificate of authority or license to company or association, one dollar;

Issuing license to each agent, one dollar;

Affixing seal and certifying any paper, one dollar.

But any company or association may pay to the superintendent the sum of twenty-five dollars for licenses to its agents for the year, and by so doing shall be entitled without further charge to licenses for as many agents as it may choose to appoint; except that when any other state or country imposes any obligations in excess of those imposed by this chapter upon any such corporation of this state, a like obligation shall be imposed on similar corporations, and their agents, of such state or country doing business herein. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Section 9441. (May do life and accident business on assessment plan.) Such corporation, company or association which is transacting business in this state shall be subject only to the sections of this chapter which provide for the organization of mutual protective associations, and shall be authorized to transact in this state the business of life or accident or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, for the purpose of mutual protection and relief of its members, and for the payment of stipulated sums of money to the families, heirs, executors, administrators or assigns of the deceased members of such corporation, company or association as the members may direct, notwithstanding such corporation, company or association may have been organized on the assessment plan and authorized by the laws governing it to issue policies insuring lives on the plan of as-assessment upon surviving members without limitation. (R. S. Sec. 3630e; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 144; March 31, 1891, 88 v. 252; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179, 180; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 180.)

Before the amendment of this section and § 9427 in 1891 (88 v. 251, 252) it was held that a foreign company organized for "insuring lives on the plan of assessment upon surviving members" without limitation, did not come within the class provided for in § 9427. That section did not embrace companies insuring the lives of members for the benefit of others than their families, heirs, etc.

State v. Moore, 38 O. S. 7 (1882).

State v. Insurance Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1890).

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 332 (1890).

But under this section as amended a foreign association may enlarge the classes of beneficiaries outside of Ohio, so long as it complies with § 9427 et seq. in the business transacted by it within the state.

4 Opins. Atty. Gen. 446 (1892).

Where the only business which a foreign company seeks to do in Ohio is authorized, it should not be refused admission because it is authorized to do other and additional classes of business in other states.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 787 (1902).

A foreign company which carries a line of assessment or stipulated premium policies can not be admitted to Ohio to do business on the mutual or stock plan as a full legal reserve company and to write only full legal reserve business.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 679 (1902).

Section 9442. (Where an action may be brought.) An action may be brought against such a corporation, company or association, organized under the laws of this state, or against any such foreign corporation, company or association doing business in this state, in any county where such cause of action arises, and summons may be issued and service had as provided by law for the issuance and service of such writs in the court of common pleas, and justices' courts. (R. S. Sec. 3630f; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 138; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 187, 181.)

Section 9443. (Restrictions on the issue of policies.) No such corporation, company or association shall issue a certificate or policy to any person, until he first has been subjected to a thorough medical examination by a regularly educated physician and found to be a good risk, nor to any person above the age of sixty-five years, or under the age of fifteen years. But this section in respect to the age and medical examination of persons to whom certificates or policies issue, shall not apply to such corporations, companies or associations doing purely accident business. (R. S. Sec. 3630g; April 17, 1885, 82 v. 138; 80 v. 179.)

Penalty for violation of this section, see G. C. §§ 13134, 13135, 13417.

Section 9444. (Expenses.) The expenses of such corporation, company or association must be met by fixed annual payments, or by assessments made and designated to be for such expenses; but such assessments in no case shall be made or become a part of, assessments to pay a loss by death. No part of the mortuary fund in any case shall be used to pay expenses. (R. S. Sec. 3630h; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 179.)

Section 9445. (Against personal injury or loss of life or sickness.) Companies consisting of five or more citizens of this state may be organized under this chapter and sections ninety-four hundred and forty-five to ninety-four hundred and fifty-one, both inclusive, for the special purpose of insuring against accidental personal injury and loss of life, sustained while traveling by railroad, steamboat or other mode of conveyance, and against accidental loss of life and personal injury, sustained by accident of any description whatever, and against expenses and loss of time occasioned by injury or sickness, and on such terms and conditions, and for such periods of time, and confined to such countries and localities, and to such persons as may at any time be provided in the by-laws of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Penalty for violation of act, see § 13418.

Construction of provisions in accident insurance policies. See note to § 9542.

It is doubtful whether the approval of the attorney general is required to articles of a company organized under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 65; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 36.

At least five incorporators must be citizens of Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 621.

Section 9446. (Expenses; separation of funds.) The expenses of such corporations, companies or associations shall be met by fixed annual payments, payable quarterly or otherwise or by assessments on the members, payable as provided in the by-laws. On either plan there may be included in such payments or assessments, a certain per cent thereof, to be fixed by the by-laws, which when collected, must be credited on the books of the company to the expense fund, and the residue thereof be so credited to the fund to pay losses and create a reserve or guarantee fund for the payment of losses and liabilities. Such funds must be kept separate and never shall be interchanged or used for purposes other than those for which they were respectively collected; except that funds collected for, but not required for expenses, may be transferred to the fund for payment of losses or the reserve or guarantee fund. The assessed shall be notified at the time of the collection of each payment the per cent thereof that is collected to pay expenses, and the per cent thereof that is collected to pay losses and create a guarantee fund; but nothing herein shall prevent the company from distributing to certificate holders the surplus in the accident fund and the surplus arising from the reserve on lapsed and cancelled certificates as provided by the by-laws of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3036i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Section 9447. (Bond.) Companies so organized, before engaging in business, must execute a bond in the sum of one hundred thousand dollars to the state of Ohio, with security to the acceptance and approval of the superintendent of insurance, for the use and benefit of all persons holding policies or certificates in such company, conditioned that it shall credit upon its books, all moneys received by it under this and the preceding section, keep the funds separate and not use or interchange them for purposes other than those for which they were respectively collected, and that they will apply and pay out such funds to and for the purposes provided for in the preceding section. When so executed and approved the bond shall be deposited with and held by the superintendent of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

The superintendent of insurance may require the renewal of bonds given under this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 182.

Section 9448. (Bond only of purely accident companies.)

A corporation, company or association, organized for the purpose of doing a purely accident insurance business, and which creates a reserve or guarantee fund from the premiums collected by assessments or otherwise, as provided in its by-laws, shall not be required to deposit a bond of one hundred thousand dollars; but the treasurer thereof, before commencing business, shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance a bond with approved securities, to his acceptance in the sum of ten thousand dollars, for the use and purposes provided in the preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Section 9449. (Investment of reserve fund.) Every such corporation, company, or association shall invest, as provided by law for domestic life insurance companies, so much of the reserve or guarantee fund, in excess of ten thousand dollars, as will equal at least two and one-half per cent of all premiums or assessments collected from policies or certificates in force, on the last days of June and December of each year, until such reserve or guarantee fund is equal to two dollars for every five thousand dollars of insurance in force. Securities for such reserve, as herein provided, shall be deposited with the superintendent of insurance on the last days of June and December of each year, or within thirty days thereafter, to be held by him for the benefit and protection of policy or certificate holders. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Section 9450. (Release of security.) If such corporation, company or association at any time causes all of its unexpired policies or certificates to be paid, cancelled or reinsured, and all its liabilities under such policies or certificates thereby to be extinguished, or to be assumed by some other responsible company authorized to do business in this state, on application of such company, verified by the oath of its president or secretary, and on being satisfied by an examination of its books and officers, under oath, that all of its policies or certificates are so paid, cancelled, extinguished or reinsured, the superintendent of insurance shall deliver up to it such security. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Section 9451. (Annual statement.) Annually, before March first, every such corporation, company or association shall file with the superintendent of insurance a statement under the oath of its officers showing its transactions for the year ending on the thirty-first day of December preceding, and its condition on that day, in the form prescribed by the superintendent. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 435; May 19, 1894, 91 v. 332; March 19, 1887, 84 v. 130.)

Section 9452. (Foreign companies insuring against accidental injury or death.) Companies and associations organized under the laws of the United States and of other states, territories and nations, and doing the business of insuring against accidental personal injury and loss of life, sustained while traveling by railroad, steamboat or other mode of conveyance, and making all and every insurance connected with accidental loss of life and personal injury, sustained by accident of any description whatever, and against expenses and loss of time occasioned by injury or sickness, and on such terms and conditions and for such periods of time, and confined to such countries and localities, and to such persons as from time to time may be provided in the by-laws of the company, and when payment and the expenses of such corporations, companies or associations, are met by fixed annual payments, payable quarterly or otherwise, or by assessments on the members, payable as may be provided in the by-laws, or as hereinafter provided, shall be admitted to do and transact such business in this state. (R. S. Sec. 3630j; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 147; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 520.)

An Ohio corporation may become a member of a foreign mutual insurance association, for its own protection, and on the insolvency of such association, it is liable for an assessment duly made on the members.

Stone v. Traction Co., 4 N. P. n. s. 104; 16 L. D. 645 (1906).

A foreign association doing a life, health and accident business may under this section be admitted to do a health and accident business only, in Ohio. The fact that it is authorized to do a life insurance business in other states is not a ground for refusing it admission to do health and accident business only.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 787 (1902).

Section 9453. (Conditions precedent to transact business.) As a condition precedent to transacting business in this state, such corporation, company or association shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance the following:

1. A certified copy of its charter or articles of incorporation;

2. A certificate from the insurance commissioner or superintendent of its own state, showing its authority to do such business;

3. A certificate from such commissioner or superintendent or other like authority of its own state that corporations, companies or associations of this state engaged in the same or similar business, or engaged in the business of paying benefits in the case of sickness and disability to be derived from assessments collected from the members, upon complying with the laws of such state, legally are entitled to do business therein;

4. A statement under the oath of its president and secretary or like officers, in the form by the superintendent of insurance required, of its business for the preceding year;

5. A certificate under the oath of its president and secretary or like officers, that such corporation, company or association is paying and for the twelve months next preceding has paid the maximum amount named in its policies or certificates;

6. A copy of its policy or certificate, application and by-laws, which must show that the liabilities of the assured or members are not limited to fixed or artificial premiums;

7. Evidence satisfactory to such superintendent that the corporation, company or association has accumulated and maintained a fund, securely invested in securities permitted by the laws of its incorporation, not less in amount than the proceeds of one periodical payment by, or an assessment on all certificate or policy holders thereof, and that such fund is held solely for the benefit of certificate or policy holders and can only be used for the purposes provided in the laws of the state where incorporated; which fund shall not be less than five thousand dollars and need not be more than ten thousand dollars.

8. The appointment in writing of an attorney in this state upon whom service of process may be had. (R. S. Sec. 3630j; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 147; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 520.)

Section 9454. (Certificate of authority and its revocation.) Thereupon the superintendent of insurance shall issue to such corporation, company or association a certificate of authority to transact its business in this state, which certificate shall be renewed annually. But the superintendent shall refuse or revoke such certificate to any such corporation, company or association, when in his judgment such refusal or revocation will best promote the public interest, also, when upon investigation it appears that the expense of management of such company or association, for the year preceding the year in which the investigation is made, was more than thirty per cent of its income from premiums, assessments and membership fees. But all decisions by him made shall be subject to review by courts of competent jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 3630j; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 147; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 520.)

Section 9455. (Annual statement.) Every such corporation, company or association, annually before March first, shall file with the superintendent of insurance a statement under the oath of its officers showing its transactions for the year ending on the preceding thirty-first day of December, and its condition on that day, in the form prescribed by the superintendent. (R. S. Sec. 3630j; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 147; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 520.)

Section 9456. (Where actions brought.) The provisions of section ninety-four hundred and forty-two as to where actions may be brought, shall apply to such corporation, company or association. (R. S. Sec. 3630j; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 147; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 520.)

Section 9457. (No agent to collect dues without giving bond.) No agent or officer of such a corporation, company or association shall be permitted to collect or receive dues, assessments, or donations for or on account of it until he executes jointly, with two responsible sureties, a bond to the corporation, company or association, to the approval of the trustees thereof, in such sum as they prescribe, conditioned for the payment of all such dues, assessments, and donations over to the proper officer of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3631; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 181; February 3, 1875, 72 v. 23, § 4.)

The conditions of the bond must conform to this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, p. 117.

Section 9458. (Bond of treasurer.) All receipts of such company or association shall be paid into the hands of the treasurer thereof, who before assuming the duties of his office, shall give a bond of not less than ten thousand nor more than fifty thousand dollars, as the superintendent of insurance determines, with not less than three sureties to be approved by him, and conditioned for the faithful accounting for, and proper payment and disbursement to the legitimate purposes of the company or association of all the money thereof, which comes into his hands. Such bond shall be examined, as to its sufficiency, annually, be renewed whenever the superintendent of insurance requires and with his approval indorsed thereon, be filed with the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 3631; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, 181; February 3, 1875, 72 v. 23, § 4.)

The bond required to be filed by the treasurer under this section is additional to the bond required from the company under § 9447.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 182.

The conditions of the bond must conform to this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, p. 117.

Section 9459. (Mutual benefit societies excepted.) The provisions of sections ninety-four hundred and thirty to ninety-four hundred and fifty-eight, both inclusive, shall not apply to any association of religious or secret societies, or to any class of mechanics, express, telegraph or railroad employes, or ex-union soldiers, formed for the mutual benefit of the members thereof and their families or blood relatives exclusively or for purely charitable purposes. (R. S. Sec. 3631a; May 4, 1908, 99 v. 268; March 31, 1904, 97 v. 61; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 354; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 170; March 14, 1889, 86 v. 89; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, § 8.)

This section is constitutional.

State v. Burial Ass'n, 8 C. C. n. s. 233; 18 C. D. 397.

An association of a class of mechanics must be organized in conformity to § 9427 although, by § 9459, it is exempt from certain regulatory statutes. Such an association may possess no powers inconsistent with § 9427 and its articles of incorporation must disclose that the proposed business is consistent with that section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 102.

Railway relief association.

Sections 9430 to 9458 do not apply to railway relief associations.

State v. Railway, 68 O. S. 9, 40 (1903).

See Gearen v. Railway, 19 W. L. B. 293 (1888).

A railway relief association, composed of employes and the railway company, to maintain a relief fund created by voluntary contributions, is not engaged in the business of insurance.

State v. Railway Co., 68 O. S. 9 (1903).

Rights under certificates.

See note to § 9013.

Statutory prohibitions as to, see §§ 9010 to 9014.

Burial association. Provision for, added to this section 97 v. 61, repealed 99 v. 268.

Designation of undertaker, prohibited § 666.

Where a burial association is not subsidiary to or controlled by an undertaking company, the fact that some of its officers, directors and members are also officers and directors of an undertaking company, does not constitute an offense, or warrant the revocation of its charter.

State v. Burial Ass'n, 8 C. C. n. s. 233; 18 C. D. 397 (1906).

Section 9460. (When association may become subject to insurance laws.) Any such association or class which desires to become subject to the provisions of sections ninety-four hundred and thirty to ninety-four hundred and thirty-four, both inclusive, may file with the superintendent of insurance notice thereof in writing, signed by its president, and attested by its secretary. Thereupon, such association or class shall become subject to such provisions. The superintendent of insurance immediately must provide such an association or class with proper blanks for furnishing the statement of its condition, and it shall make such report within sixty days thereafter, and thenceforward, annually, as in case of other insurance companies, which report shall be included by the superintendent of insurance in his annual report, the same as the reports of other companies, and subject to the fees prescribed by law in like cases payable by life insurance companies. (R. S. Sec. 3631a; May 4, 1908, 99 v. 268; March 31, 1904, 97 v. 61; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 354; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 170; March 14, 1889, 86 v. 89; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, § 8.)

Section 9461. (Bond of treasurers.) The treasurer of any association or class which avails itself of the benefits of such provisions shall be required to give bond in the manner provided for treasurers of mutual benefit companies, such bond to be conditioned, approved and renewed as by such treasurers. (R. S. Sec. 3631a; May 4, 1908, 99 v. 268; March 31, 1904, 97 v. 61; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 354; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 170; March 14, 1889, 86 v. 89; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 178, § 8.)

Section 9462. (Fraternal benefit society defined.) Any corporation, society, order or voluntary association, without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government, and which shall make provision for the payment of benefits in accordance with section 5 [G. C. Sec. 9466] hereof, is hereby declared to be a fraternal benefit society. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 1; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 421, § 1; R. S. Sec. 3631-11; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

The act of May 31, 1911 (102 v. 533-548, § 32) repealed "all acts and parts of acts inconsistent with this act." As it is doubtful whether certain of the original General Code sections of this chapter were repealed, all are given in the notes.

See Rep. Att'y. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 113.

A benefit society is not an insurance company.

Benevolent Legion v. McGinness, 59 O. S. 531, 537 (1898).

A fraternal benefit society can not be organized as a mutual protective association by filing articles with the secretary of state. The articles should be filed with the superintendent of insurance. § 9473; Rep. Att'y. Gen. 1913, p. 100.

Section 9462. (Fraternal beneficiary associations defined.) Any corporation, society, order or voluntary association without capital stock, organized and carried on solely for the mutual benefit of its members and their beneficiaries, and not for profit, and having a lodge system with ritualistic form of work and representative form of government and which makes provision for the payment of death benefits, is a fraternal beneficiary association. (April 26, 1904, 97 v. 421, § 1.)

Section 9462-1. (Schedule of benefits for protection and maintenance of members.) Any fraternal benefit society authorized to do business in this state and operating on the lodge plan, may provide in its constitution and by-laws, in addition to other benefits provided for therein, for the payment of death or annuity benefits upon the lives of children between the ages of two and eighteen years at next birthday, for whose support and maintenance a member of such society is responsible. Any such society may at its option, organize and operate branches for such children, and membership in local lodges and initiation therein shall not be required of such children, nor shall they have any voice in the management of the society. The total benefits payable as above provided shall in no case exceed the following amounts at ages at next birthday at time of death, respectively, as follows: two, thirty-four dollars; three, forty dollars; four, forty-eight dollars; five, fifty-eight dollars; six, one hundred and forty dollars; seven, one hundred and sixty-eight dollars; eight, two hundred dollars; nine, two hundred and forty dollars; ten, three hundred dollars; eleven, three hundred and eighty dollars; twelve, four hundred and sixty dollars; thirteen to fifteen, five hundred and twenty dollars; and sixteen to eighteen years, where not otherwise authorized by law, six hundred dollars. (107 v. 529, § 1.)

Section 9462-2. (When benefit certificate shall be issued; basis of benefit contributions.) No benefit certificate as to any child shall take effect until after medical examination or inspection by a licensed medical practitioner, in accordance with the laws of the society, nor shall any such benefit certificate be issued unless the society shall simultaneously put in force at least five hundred certificates, on each of which at least one assessment has been paid, nor where the numbers of lives represented by such certificate falls below five hundred. The death benefit contributions to be made upon such certificate shall be based upon the "Standard Industrial Mortality Table" or the "English Life Table Number Six" and a rate of interest not greater than four per cent. per annum, or upon a higher standard; provided that contributions may be waived or returns may be made from any surplus held in excess of reserve and other liabilities, as provided in the by-laws, and, provided further that extra contributions shall be made if the reserves hereafter provided for become impaired. (107 v. 530, § 2.)

Section 9462-3. (Reserve required; separate and distinct funds; new certificates.) Any society entering into such insurance agreements shall maintain on all such contracts the reserve required by the standard of mortality and interest adopted by the society for computing contributions as provided in section 2, and the funds representing the benefit contributions and all accretions thereon shall be kept as separate and distinct funds, independent of the other funds of the society, and shall not be liable for nor used for the payment of the debts and obligations of the society other than the benefits herein authorized; provided, that a society may provide that when a child reaches the minimum age for initiation into membership in such society, any benefit certificate issued hereunder may be surrendered for cancellation and exchanged for any other form of certificate issued by the society, provided that such surrender will not reduce the number of lives insured in the branch below five hundred, and upon the issuance of such new certificate any reserve upon the original certificate herein provided for shall be transferred to the credit of the new certificate. Neither the person who originally made application for benefits on account of such child, nor the beneficiary named in such original certificate, nor the person who paid the contributions, shall have any vested right in such new certificate, the free nomination of a beneficiary under the new certificate being left to the child so admitted to benefit membership. (107 v. 530, § 3.)

Section 9462-4. (Separate financial statement required in annual report.) An entirely separate financial statement of the business transactions and of assets and liabilities arising therefrom shall be made in its annual report to the insurance commissioner by any society availing itself of the provisions hereof. The separation of assets, funds and liabilities required hereby shall not be terminated, rescinded or modified, nor shall the funds be diverted for any use other than as specified in section 3, as long as any certificates issued hereunder remain in force, and this requirement shall be recognized and enforced in any liquidation, reinsurance, merger or other change in the condition of the status of the society. (107 v. 531, § 4.)

Section 9462-5. (Mingling of funds.) Any society shall have the right to provide in its laws and the certificate issued hereunder for specified payments on account of the expense or general fund, which payments shall or shall not be mingled with the general fund of the society as its constitution and by-laws may provide. (107 v. 531, § 5.)

Section 9462-6. (Certificate may be continued for benefit of estate of the child.) In the event of the termination of membership in the society by the person responsible for the support of any child, on whose account a certificate may have been issued, as provided herein, the certificate may be continued for the benefit of the estate of the child, provided the contributions are continued, or for the benefit of any other person responsible for the support and maintenance of such child, who shall assume the payment of the required contributions. (107 v. 531, § 6.)

Section 9463. (Lodge system.) Any society having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known, into which members shall be elected, initiated and admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which subordinate lodges or branches shall be required by the laws of such society to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating on the lodge system. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 2; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 2; R. S. Sec. 3631-12; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

The beneficiary named in a certificate issued by a grand lodge, under the authority of the supreme lodge, was held entitled to a judgment against both the supreme lodge and the receiver of the grand lodge, payable out of the beneficiary fund.

Grear v. Supreme Lodge, 8 O. L. R. 324; 21 L. D. 66 (C. P. 1910).

Where a subordinate lodge surrendered its charter and records to the grand lodge, and divided its funds among its remaining members, to their satisfaction, but in violation of the rules of both the subordinate and grand lodge, the grand lodge having no proprietary interest in the fund, was held not entitled to recover the same.

Grand Grove, etc., v. Mullen, 1 C. C. n. s. 63; 14 C. D. 239 (1903).

Property held by subordinate lodges may, under some circumstances, be deemed to be owned by the parent body and may be reached by creditors. Parks v. Order, 26 C. C. n. s. 89 (1916). See Schroeder v. Iron Hall, 7 N. P. 243; 1 L. D. 408 (1895).

Powers of subordinate lodges, see § 10061-1.

Section 9463. (Lodge system defined.) Any association having a supreme governing or legislative body and subordinate lodges or branches by whatever name known into which members are elected and initiated or admitted in accordance with its constitution, laws, rules, regulations, and prescribed ritualistic ceremonies, which lodges or branches are required to hold regular or stated meetings at least once in each month, shall be deemed to be operating under the lodge system. (97 v. 422, § 2.)

Section 9464. (Representative form of government.) Any such society shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it shall provide in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives elected either by the members or by delegates elected directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws; provided, that the elective members shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than two-thirds of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws; and provided further, that the meetings of the supreme or governing body, and the election of officers, representatives or delegates shall be held as often as once in four years. The members, officers, representatives or delegates of a fraternal benefit society shall not vote by proxy. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 3; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 3; R. S. Sec. 3631-13; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360.)

The management of a society will not be interfered with by courts, on complaint of a member, in the absence of fraud or collusion, or action in excess of corporate power.

Coss v. Mansfield Lodge, 4 C. C. n. s. 11; 14 C. D. 36 (1902).

Steuve v. Grand Lodge, 5 C. C. 471; 3 C. D. 231 (1891).

The National Union was held to have a representative form of government.

Ingram v. National Union, 4 O. L. R. 316; 17 L. D. 227 (1906).

The Endowment Rank of the Knights of Pythias was held not to have a representative form of government.

Hildreth v. Knights of Pythias, 8 N. P. 540; 11 L. D. 622 (1901).

See § 9491.

A provision in the constitution or laws of a society requiring officers of subordinate lodges to furnish bonds having as surety a surety company selected by certain officers of the supreme body is valid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 837.

Section 9464. (Representative form of government defined.) Any association shall be deemed to have a representative form of government when it provides in its constitution and laws for a supreme legislative or governing body, composed of representatives elected either by the members or by delegates elected directly or indirectly by the members, together with such other members as may be prescribed by its constitution and laws. But the elective representatives shall constitute a majority in number and have not less than a majority of the votes, nor less than the votes required to amend its constitution and laws. The meetings of the supreme or governing body and the election of officers must be held as often as once in four years. (97 v. 422, § 3.)

Section 9465. (Exempt from insurance laws.) Except as herein provided, such societies shall be governed by this act, and shall be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws of this state, not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose, and no law hereafter enacted shall apply to them, unless they be expressly designated therein. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 4; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 4; R. S. Sec. 3631-14; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

A fraternal benefit society is not an insurance company.

Benevolent Legion v. McGinness, 59 O. S. 531, 537 (1898).

Certificates of fraternal benefit societies are not governed by the rules of law applicable to policies of life insurance companies.

Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

G. C. § 9391 (providing that a false answer in an application for insurance shall not bar a recovery on the policy unless such answer is wilfully false, fraudulently made, etc.,) does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

Gilligan v. Royal Arcanum, 5 C. C. n. s. 471; 16 C. D. 42 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 672.

Grand Lodge v. Bunkers, 3 C. C. n. s. 256; 13 C. D. 487 (1902).

Woodmen v. Gallagher, 1 Ohio App. 368; 19 C. C. n. s. 355, 365 (1913); Ladies of Honor v. Kopittke, 21 C. C. n. s. 374 (1906).

But where, under the issues joined, the burden of proof was on the fraternal benefit society, it can not, after trial and verdict, claim the exemptions provided by this section.

Brotherhood v. Dailey, 11 C. C. n. s. 464; 21 C. D. 391 (1908); reversing, 7 N. P. n. s. 238; 19 L. D. 60.

Section 9465. (Exemptions.) Except as herein provided, such association shall be governed by this chapter and be exempt from all provisions of the insurance laws not only in governmental relations with the state, but for every other purpose. No law hereafter passed shall apply to them, unless they are expressly designated therein. (97 v. 422, § 4.)

Section 9466. (Society shall pay benefits. When extended and paid up protection may be granted.) Subsection 1. Every society transacting business under this act shall provide for the payment of death benefits, and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age; provided, the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age shall commence, shall not be under seventy years, and may provide for monuments or tombstones to the memory of its deceased members, and for the payment of funeral benefits. Such society shall have the power to give a member, when permanently disabled or on attaining the age of seventy, all, or such portion of the face value of his certificate as the laws of the society may provide; provided, that nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as to prevent the issuing of benefit certificates for a term of years less than the whole of life which are payable upon the death or disability of the member occurring within the term for which the benefit certificate may be issued. Such society shall, upon written application of the member, have the power to accept a part of the periodical contributions in cash, and charge the remainder, not exceeding one-half of the periodical contribution, against the certificate with interest payable or compounded annually at a rate not lower than four per cent. per annum; provided, that this privilege shall not be granted except to societies which have readjusted or may hereafter readjust their rates of contributions, and to contracts affected by such readjustment.

Subsection 2. Any society which shall show by the annual valuation hereinafter provided for that it is accumulating and maintaining the reserve necessary to enable it to do so, under a table of mortality not lower than the American Experience Table and four per cent. interest may grant to its members, extended and paid up protection, or such withdrawal equities as its constitution and laws may provide; provided, that such grants shall in no case exceed in value the portion of the reserve to the credit of such members to whom they are made. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 5; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 5; R. S. Sec. 3631-15; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

Under original G. C. §§ 9466, 9469 and 9470 it was held that a foreign association did not violate the laws of Ohio by issuing certificates containing provisions for cash surrender values, loan values, paid-up insurance and dividends arising from death losses and expenses.

State v. Lemert, 11 N. P. n. s. 535; 21 L. D. 118 (C. P. 1910).

Total disability. Under a clause providing for certain benefits if the insured is "totally unable to labor" or "to earn a livelihood in any employment", evidence that an insured had lost his right hand and was unemployed, during the period for which benefits were claimed, was held sufficient for submission to the jury of the question whether he was able to earn a livelihood in any employment. Hughes v. Railway, 15 N. P. n. s. 604; 27 L. D. 215 (1914).

Section 9466. (Benefits.) Every association transacting business under this chapter shall provide for the payment of death benefits and may provide for the payment of benefits in case of temporary or permanent physical disability, either as the result of disease, accident or old age. But the period of life at which the payment of benefits for disability on account of old age may begin, shall not be under seventy years. (97 v. 422, § 5.)

Section 9467. (To whom benefits shall be paid.) The payment of death benefits shall be confined to wife, husband, relative by blood to the fourth degree, father-in-law, mother-in-law, son-in-law, daughter-in-law, stepfather, stepmother, stepchildren, children by legal adoption, or to a person or persons dependent upon the member; provided, that if after the issuance of the original certificate the member shall become dependent upon an incorporated charitable institution, he shall have the privilege with the consent of the society, to make such institution his beneficiary. Within the above restrictions each member shall have the right to designate his beneficiary, and, from time to time, have the same changed in accordance with the laws, rules or regulations of the society, and no beneficiary shall have or obtain any vested interest in such benefit until the same has become due and payable upon the death of such member; provided, that any society may, by its laws, limit the scope of bene-beneficiaries within the above classes. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 6; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 6; R. S. Sec. 3631-16; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

A benefit certificate must be made payable to one of the classes specified in this section. Any other designation of beneficiary is invalid.

Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

Starr v. Maccabees, 6 C. C. n. s. 473; 17 C. D. 475 (1905).

Wegener v. Wegener, 101 O. S. 22 (1920).

A society may, in its by-laws, limit the payment of benefits to a part, only, of the classes specified in the statute.

Halle v. District Grand Lodge, 1 C. C. n. s. 83; 14 C. D. 717 (1903);
aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 607.

Wegener v. Wegener, 101 O. S. 22 (1920).

Where the class of beneficiaries is limited by statute, such class can not be enlarged by a provision in the constitution or by-laws. But the payment of benefits may be limited to a part only of the classes authorized by statute. Wegener v. Wegener, 101 O. S. 22 (1920).

The status of the beneficiary as it exists at the time of payment controls.

Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

Where by-laws require the member to designate a beneficiary, and, upon his failure so to do, provide that the benefits shall be paid to certain heirs in the order named, the society has the right to designate what shall be done with the benefits upon failure of the member to designate a beneficiary, and upon failure of such heirs as are specified in the by-laws.

Halle v. District Grand Lodge, 1 C. C. n. s. 83; 14 C. D. 717 (1903);
aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 607.

See Caughlin v. Assn., 89 O. S. 452.

Although the society in such case may elect to treat the benefits as having lapsed, contrary to the spirit of the statute, heirs at law who are not specified in the by-laws are not entitled to recover the benefits.

Halle v. District Grand Lodge, 1 C. C. n. s. 83; 14 C. D. 717 (1903);
aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 607.

Where a certificate is rendered invalid by the false designation of the beneficiary as a dependent, there can be no recovery on the certificate by the mother of the member. Woodmen v. Gallagher, 1 Ohio App. 368; 19 C. C. n. s. 355 (1913).

Where a certificate was made payable to Alice B. Taylor, his wife, if living, if not, to his executors or administrators in trust for his heirs at law, and the wife obtained a divorce from the insured, the words "Alice B. Taylor" were rejected and the certificate construed to mean that if there were no wife living, the benefits were to be paid to the administrator in trust for his heirs.

Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

In such case the certificate neither lapsed nor reverted to the society, but was payable to the administrator.

Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

After the death of the insured, the beneficiary may assign her claim as security for her debt.

Brewing Co. v. Cassman, 21 C. C. 465; 12 C. D. 141 (1900).

The beneficiary may be designated in the will of the member, within the limited class permitted by statute, if not prohibited by the rules of the society. Dhonau v. Striebinger, 24 C. C. n. s. 598 (1904).

The reorganization of a mutual protective association (formed under § 9427 et seq.) into a fraternal benefit society does not affect policies then outstanding, but the policyholder and society may agree to change the beneficiary to one within the class specified by § 9467. The form of such change is not important. Lentz v. Fritter, 92 O. S. 186 (1915).

Wife. Where a wife obtained a divorce subsequent to the issuance of a benefit certificate, in which she is named as beneficiary, she is precluded from recovering benefits as wife or beneficiary. Johnson v. Benevolent Assn., 13 N. P. n. s. 568 (1912); aff'd, no rep. 92 O. S. 511; reversing, 2 Ohio App. 148; 20 C. C. n. s. 487; 24 C. D. 245; Mahar v. Mahar, 19 C. C. n. s. 586 (1912); Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17; 19 C. D. 171 (1906).

While a wife has no vested interest which will prevent the substitution of another beneficiary for her, yet where premiums were paid by such wife out of her personal earnings, she is entitled to reimbursement out of the proceeds of the policy.

National Union v. Shaw, 9 N. P. n. s. 474; 20 L. D. 225 (C. P. 1910).

Father or mother. The mother of the insured may be made beneficiary although she is not dependent on the insured and is not a member of his family.

See Earley v. Earley, 3 C. C. n. s. 71; 13 C. D. 618 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 562.

Dependent. A woman who for twelve years occupied the relation of wife to the insured, she and the society being in ignorance of the fact that the relation was illegal in that he had a wife living, is a "dependent" under this section and is entitled to the proceeds of the benefit certificate, in which she is named as beneficiary, as against the lawful wife and heirs of the insured, although the certificate was issued after she discovered the unlawful relation.

Starr v. Maccabees, 6 C. C. n. s. 473; 17 C. D. 475 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 501.

A foreign society, authorized by its charter to pay benefits to the family or dependents of a member, in not authorized to issue a certificate payable to a brother who is not a dependent.

Benevolent Legion v. McGinness, 59 O. S. 531 (1898).

Where the laws of the society provide that a false statement in the application shall render the certificate void, a false designation of the named beneficiary as a dependent renders the certificate void, and there can be no recovery by the mother of the member. Woodmen v. Gallagher, 1 Ohio App. 368; 19 C. C. n. s. 355 (1913).

Change of beneficiary. A member may substitute a new beneficiary, in accordance with the rules of the society, without the consent of the original beneficiary. Brotherhood v. Taylor, 9 C. C. n. s. 17, 20; 19 C. D. 171 (1906); Dauber v. Dauber, 24 C. C. n. s. 129 (1902); Railway Conductors v. Bland, 24 C. C. n. s. 169; 27 C. D. 220 (1915); Arnold v. Newcomb, 104 O. S. 578 (1922).

But where the original beneficiary has paid the premiums, she is entitled to reimbursement out of the proceeds of the policy.

Railway Conductors v. Bland, 24 C. C. n. s. 169; 27 C. D. 220 (1915).

National Union v. Shaw, 9 N. P. n. s. 474; 20 L. D. 225 (1910).

Where the new beneficiary is not within the class specified in the statute or laws of the society, the change is invalid and the original beneficiary is entitled to the benefit.

Benevolent Legion v. McGinness, 59 O. S. 531 (1898).

Where a member surrendered a certificate in which his wife was named as beneficiary, and procured a new certificate in which his mother was so designated, a change of beneficiary was held to have been accomplished. By issuing the new certificate the society was held to have waived a provision of its constitution to the effect that the object of its endowment fund was for the support of widows and orphans of members. Dauber v. Dauber, 24 C. C. n. s. 129 (1902).

A change of beneficiary is not rendered invalid by reason of irregularities, such as a failure to pay a fee of fifty cents, where the new certificate was issued, and the officers had knowledge of the irregularities, and such irregularities can not be taken advantage of by the original beneficiary.

Earley v. Earley, 3 C. C. n. s. 71; 13 C. D. 618 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 562.

Where the member executed the transfer on the back of the certificate, in accordance with the rules, and delivered it to the new beneficiary, who did not forward it to the society until after the death of the member, the change was held valid as against the former beneficiary. Arnold v. Newcomb, 104 O. S. 578 (1922).

Exceptions to rule that change of beneficiary must be made in accordance with rules of the order.

See Modern Woodmen v. Daerr, 11 N. P. n. s. 360 (1911).

Where the insured forwarded the certificate with a request for a change of beneficiary, with the required fee, to the society, but the new certificate was not issued until after the death of the insured, it was held that the change of beneficiary was accomplished.

Modern Woodmen v. Daerr, 11 N. P. n. s. 360 (C. P. 1911).

See also, as to change of beneficiary, note to § 9427.

Change of beneficiary under certificate issued by a foreign society in its home state. See Modern Woodmen v. Myers, 99 O. S. 87 (1918).

Section 9467. (Beneficiaries.) The payment of death benefits shall be confined to the family, heirs, relatives by blood, marriage or legal adoption, affianced husband or affianced wife, or to a person or persons dependent on the member. (97 v. 422, § 6.)

The grand-niece of the husband of a member was held to be a "relative by marriage". Hessenmueller v. Sirilo, 23 C. C. n. s. 313 (1912).

Section 9468. (Age limit for admission to membership in fraternal benefit societies.) Any society may admit to beneficial membership any person not less than sixteen and not more than sixty years of age, who has been examined by a legally qualified physician, and whose examination has been supervised and approved in accordance with the laws of the society; provided, that any beneficiary member of such society who shall apply for a certificate providing for disability benefits, need not be required to pass an additional medical examination therefor; and any society limiting its membership to any one hazardous occupation may issue certificates providing for accident disability benefits to beneficiary members not more than seventy years of age. Nothing herein contained shall prevent any society from accepting general or social members. (February 26, 1913, 103 v. 28, in effect May 28, 1913; May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 7; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 7; R. S. Sec. 3631-17; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

Where the constitution of the society provides that no person shall be admitted to beneficial membership who is engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors, the officers of the society have no power to waive such provision.

Grand Lodge v. Bunkers, 3 C. C. n. s. 256; 13 C. D. 487 (1902).

Expulsion or suspension of members; power of society to expel or suspend, grounds, remedies of members, etc., see also note to § 8653.

The valid expulsion of a member terminates all rights under his benefit certificate. And a member, although wrongfully expelled, will be held to have acquiesced in the action taken, where he did not appeal therefrom, apply for reinstatement, and did not thereafter pay or tender dues or otherwise act as a member. After his death there can be no recovery on his certificate.

Where the laws of a society provided for expulsion only for non-payment of dues, or misrepresentation as to age, it was held that the society had inherent power to expel for offenses against the duty of a member as a corporator. Where one of the essential qualifications of membership was that members should comply with their duties as Catholics, a member may be expelled for idleness and drunkenness, and sentence to imprisonment for abuse of family.

State v. Aurora Relief Society, 2 W. L. B. 125 (Dist. Ct. 1877).

A member may be expelled for wrongfully reporting himself sick, when in fact he was drunk, when such cause of expulsion is specified in the laws of the society.

State v. Verein, 3 W. L. B. 295 (Dist. Ct. 1878).

Where the constitution of a society provides that none but practical Roman Catholic women may become members, a member who marries a divorced man, in violation of the rules of the church, may be expelled. Koukolicek v. Association, 20 C. C. n. s. 291 (1912).

Where a member failed to pay assessments, and the board of directors by resolution ordered that his policy remain canceled "unless he pass a successful medical examination"; held, that upon passing a successful medical examination, he was restored to membership without further action of the board. Beckel v. Insurance Co., 15 N. P. n. s. 266 (C. P. 1913); s. c., 14 N. P. n. s. 207.

Remedies of members. A member must exhaust the remedies provided by the constitution and laws of the society before he is entitled to maintain an action.

Steuve v. Grand Lodge, 5 C. C. 471; 3 C. D. 231 (1891).

Power of society to regulate admission of members.

See § 9473.

Section 9468. (What person admitted.) No association shall admit to beneficial membership any person less than sixteen or more than sixty years of age, nor any person who has not been examined by a competent physician and whose examination has not been supervised and approved as provided by the laws of the association. (97 v. 422, § 7.)

Section 9469. (Certificate shall constitute agreement.) Every certificate issued by any such society shall specify the amount of benefit provided thereby, and shall provide that the certificate, the charter or articles of incorporation, of, if a voluntary association, the articles of association, the constitution and laws of the society and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant, and all amendments to each thereof, shall constitute the agreement between the society and the member, and copies of the same certified by the secretary of the society, or corresponding officer, shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions thereof, and any changes, additions or amendments to such charter or articles of incorporation, or articles of association, if a voluntary association, constitution or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificate shall bind the members and his beneficiaries, and shall govern and control the agreement in all respects the same as though such changes, additions or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 8; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 8; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

Contract of membership. Before the enactment of this section, it was held that the certificate, constitution, rules, regulations and by-laws of a beneficial association constitute the contract between the member and the association.

Chevaliers v. Shearer, 6 C. C. n. s. 587; 17 C. D. 509 (1905).

The charter, constitution and laws of a society need not be set out in a petition in an action on a certificate. Americus v. McDowell, 16 C. C. n. s. 573 (1907).

Application. Where the application for insurance is made a part of the contract by its own terms and by the constitution of the order, it is reversible error to charge the jury that the contract of insurance is embodied in the constitution and the certificate.

Brotherhood v. Daly, 11 C. C. n. s. 464; 21 C. D. 391 (1908).

Where an application, signed by the insured, contained an agreement to conform to all laws, rules and usages of the society then in force or thereafter adopted, and that such compliance was the express condition upon which the insured was entitled to benefits, and the application was made a part of the contract, the society may thereafter amend its laws and restrict its liability without impairing vested rights under the contract.

Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233 (1905).

G. C. § 9391 providing that a false answer in an application shall not bar recovery on the policy unless the answer is wilfully false, fraudulently made, etc., does not apply to fraternal benefit societies.

§ 9465.

And a provision in an application for a benefit certificate that the answers shall be deemed warranties, is valid.

Hess v. Maccabees, 4 O. L. R. 30.

Where the laws of the society provide that a false statement in the application shall render the certificate void, a false designation of the named beneficiary as a dependent renders the certificate void, and there can be no recovery by the mother of the membr. Woodmen v. Gallagher, 1 Ohio App. 368; 19 C. C. n. s. 355; 25 C. D. 271 (1913).

The answers must be taken as a whole in determining their truth or falsity. Woodmen v. Clelland, 10 Ohio App. 210; 28 O. C. A. 506 (1917).

Whether the answers were false is a question for the jury. Woodmen v. Clelland, 10 Ohio App. 210; 28 O. C. A. 506 (1917).

Answers in an application relating to health, various diseases, other insurance, etc., construed.

Hess v. Maccabees, 4 O. L. R. 30.

See also note to § 9391.

The burden of proof of the falsity of answers rests on the society.

Hess v. Maccabees, 4 O. L. R. 30.

Certificate. The certificate need not contain all the provisions of the constitution and by-laws. Where the certificate provides that it is issued subject to the constitution, laws, rules and regulations of the society, the member is conclusively presumed to have knowledge of the provisions of the constitution and laws and is bound thereby.

State v. Lemert, 11 N. P. n. s. 535; 21 L. D. 118 (1910).

Constitution and laws. Where the application or certificate provides that it is made or issued subject to the constitution and laws of the society, or that the constitution and laws are made part thereof, the member making the application, or receiving the certificate, is conclusively presumed to have knowledge of the constitution and laws and is bound thereby.

Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233 (1905).

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

Amendment of laws. Before the enactment of § 9469 it was held that where the right to amend its laws was reserved by a society in its contracts, subsequent amendments violated no vested rights under such contracts.

(Amendment providing for non-liability in case of suicide.)

Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233 (1905).

(Amendment changing the mode of levying assessments.)

Steuve v. Grand Lodge, 5 C. C. 471; 3 C. D. 231 (1891).

But the rights of a member to sick benefits are to be determined by the laws in force when his sickness begins, and a by-law, adopted subsequent to the beginning of his sickness, reducing the amount of sick benefits, is without effect to such member.

Special provisions in constitution and laws.

Suicide. A by-law providing that a benefit certificate shall be void and all benefits forfeited, in case the insured shall die by suicide, felonious or otherwise, sane or insane, is valid.

Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233 (1905); affirming, 1 C. C. n. s. 185; 14 C. D. 489.

Occupation of members. Where the constitution provides that no person shall be admitted to beneficial membership who is engaged in the sale at retail of intoxicating liquors, the officers of the society have no authority to waive such provision.

Grand Lodge v. Bunkers, 3 C. C. n. s. 256; 13 C. D. 487 (1902).

See § 9473 as to power of society to regulate admission of members.

Defining extent of injury. Where a certificate provided for a benefit to be paid if the member should "by accident, lose one hand;" and the constitution provided for a benefit for loss of a hand "by amputation at or above the wrist," the member was held not entitled to recover where his hand had not been amputated, although his arm and hand were permanently disabled.

Chevaliers v. Shearer, 6 C. C. n. s. 587; 17 C. D. 509 (1905).

Where the constitution of a society provided for a benefit to be paid to any member "who shall suffer the amputation or severance of an entire hand at or above the wrist joint . . . but not otherwise", a member is not entitled to the benefit where a part of his hand only was amputated, although the part remaining is permanently disabled for use. Trainmen v. Walsh, 89 O. S. 15 (1913).

Submission of disputed benefit claims to tribunals of society.

See below Remedies on Certificate.

Forfeiture or suspension of benefits for default in periodical payments. (See also § 9472.) Where the laws of a society provide for suspension and loss of benefits, in case a member shall be delinquent in periodical payments, there can be no recovery on the certificate of a member who has been suspended from membership and not reinstated. Such a provision is binding on both member and beneficiary.

Tisch v. Home Circle, 72 O. S. 233, 261 (1905).

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

A provision in the constitution of a society to the effect that delinquency in the payment of assessments shall immediately forfeit all benefits is valid. Geis v. Commercial Travellers, 9 Ohio App. 391; 29 O. C. A. 475 (1918); Catholic Union v. Hriez, 10 Ohio App. 57 (1917).

The society is not estopped from defending, on such ground, by the fact that a local secretary without authority had previously accepted other delinquent payments and reported the reinstatement of the member, without a signed statement as to health, as required, the general officers of the society having no knowledge of the irregular acts of the secretary.

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

Fahey v. Forresters, 3 O. L. R. 642; 51 Bull. 102.

Where the laws of the society require notice of payments to be given, the rights of the member are not forfeited unless notice is given in accordance with the laws, notwithstanding that another law provides for suspension ipso facto from all benefits on non-payment.

Crocket v. Red Cross, 4 C. C. n. s. 519; 14 C. D. 421 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 71 O. S. 532.

See also Judge v. Association, 10 C. C. n. s. 473; 20 C. D. 133 (1907).

The burden of proof is on the society to show that notice has been given in accordance with its laws.

Crocket v. Red Cross, 4 C. C. 519; 14 C. D. 421 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 71 O. S. 532.

A call instructing local secretaries to collect an assessment and to mail or deliver to members a notice thereof, without specially naming any member, is not a waiver of a provision of the constitution for the ipso facto suspension of delinquent members. Such call can only be construed to be a call to collect from members or such delinquents as are entitled to reinstatement.

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

A local secretary has no authority to suspend a provision of the constitution and laws to the effect that non-payment of assessments, when due, shall ipso facto suspend the delinquent from membership, when such authority is expressly denied in such laws.

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

Payment of overdue assessments by a son of a suspended member after the death of such member, or while he is dying, will not reinstate such member, where the laws of the association require such payment to be made by the member in person, or to be accompanied by a written statement as to his health.

Pete v. Woodmen, 5 C. C. n. s. 446; 16 C. D. 653 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 445.

A by-law which provides that a member in arrears shall not be entitled to sick benefits, merely by reason of payment of arrears after his sickness began is probably reasonable and valid. But a by-law which provides that acceptance of assessments by the society, during the illness of a member, shall not entitle the member to benefits, is unreasonable and invalid.

Phoenix Council v. Bennett, 9 C. C. n. s. 195; 16 C. D. 110 (1904); affirming, 1 N. P. n. s. 445; 14 L. D. 493.

Upon proof that a person was in good standing as a member at one time, a presumption arises that he continued in good standing until his death. The burden of proof of suspension for non-payment on the society. Heptasophs v. Fife, 16 C. C. n. s. 205 (1905); Hall v. Association, 6 C. C. 137, 141 (1891).

But such presumption being rebutted, the plaintiff must prove payment of all assessments up to the death of the member. Heptasophs v. Fife, 16 C. C. n. s. 205 (1905).

Where a member failed to pay assessments, and the board of directors by resolution ordered that his policy remain canceled "unless he pass a successful medical examination", held that upon passing a successful medical examination, he was restored to membership without further action of the board. Beckel v. Insurance Co., 15 N. P. n. s. 266 (C. P. 1913); s. c., 14 N. P. n. s. 207.

A provision forfeiting benefits for non-payment of assessments may be waived by the acceptance of overdue payments by authorized officers. Commercial Travellers v. Bagnell, 9 Ohio App. 458; 29 O. C. A. 321; motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 364 (1918).

Members who cease to pay assessments after the society discontinued business do not forfeit their rights in its funds.

In re Mutual Aid Ass'n, 3 N. P. 145; 4 L. D. 272 (C. P. 1895).

While a member may be ipso facto suspended, for delinquency in payment of assessments, under the laws of a society, a member can not be expelled from the society without a trial.

See Schwartz v. Catholic Union, 9 C. C. n. s. 337; 19 C. D. 471 (1907); 21 C. C. n. s. 165.

A remittance blank and report sent by a subordinate lodge to the supreme lodge, reporting suspension for non-payment, and a card, which is a part of the bookkeeping system of the society, are admissible in evidence to prove suspension. Heptasophs v. Fife, 16 C. C. n. s. 205 (1905).

Medical examination. See § 9468.

Remedies on benefit certificate. Where the laws of the order provide that disputed claims must be submitted to tribunals within the society, and both nisi prius and appellate tribunals are provided, the member or beneficiary must exhaust the remedies so provided, before resorting to the courts. The determination of the matter by such tribunals in substantial accordance with the laws of the society will be final and conclusive of the right to receive benefits.

See G. C. § 9484, original numbering (101 v. 119).

Where a society refuses or neglects, on demand, to have the right determined in accordance with the laws of the order, or refuses to pay benefits after the same have been awarded by its tribunals, then the member or beneficiary may sue in the civil courts to recover such benefits.

Myers v. Jenkins, 63 O. S. 101 (1900).

Railroad Co. v. Stankard, 56 O. S. 224 (1897).

Where the tribunal of a subordinate lodge determines that a member is not entitled to benefits, and the member appeals to the next higher tribunal of the order, and the lodge furnishes him a proper transcript of the proceedings, and he fails to secure a hearing of his appeal by reason of his own negligence, or that of the higher tribunal or some officer thereof, the failure to secure a hearing of his appeal will not entitle the member to sue the subordinate lodge for such benefits.

Where no method of obtaining a review and no appellate tribunal has been provided, suit may be brought upon rejection of the claim by the nisi prius tribunal. Nepomicine Soc. v. Zoulek, 20 C. C. n. s. 146 (1912).

Where the certificate is attached as an exhibit and made part of the petition, failure to set forth the charter, constitution, laws, etc., of the society does not render the petition demurrable. Americus v. McDowell, 16 C. C. n. s. 573 (1907).

That an assessment, if levied, would not produce the maximum amount of the benefit specified in the certificate is a matter of proof for the society and not for the member or beneficiary.

Section 9469. (Certificate.) Every certificate issued by any association shall specify the maximum amount of benefit provided thereby, and the conditions governing the payment thereof, and provide that the certificate, the charter or articles of association, the constitution and laws of the association, and the application for membership and medical examination, signed by the applicant shall constitute the contract between the association and the member; and that copies of these certified by the secretary of the association or corresponding officer shall be received in evidence of the terms and conditions of the contract. Changes, additions or amendments to the charter or articles of association, constitution or laws duly made or enacted subsequent to the issuance of the benefit certificate shall bind the member and his beneficiaries and govern and control the contract in all respects the same as though such changes, additions or amendments had been made prior to and were in force at the time of the application for membership. (97 v. 422, § 8.)

Section 9469-1. (Exception as to commercial travelers.) The provisions of section ninety-four hundred and sixty-nine of the General Code, requiring the certificate to specify the maximum amount of benefit provided thereby and the conditions governing the payment thereof, shall not apply to the certificates of a fraternal beneficiary association organized under the laws of Ohio, whose membership consists of commercial travelers and which does not obligate itself to pay stipulated amounts of benefits in case of natural death. (May 18, 1910, 101 v. 289.)

Section 9470. (Investment, disbursement and application of funds. Liabilities.) Subsection 1. Any society may create, maintain, invest, disburse and apply an emergency, surplus or other similar fund in accordance with its laws. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds shall be held, invested and disbursed for the use and benefit of the society, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire individual rights therein or become entitled to any apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof, except as provided in subsection 2 of section 5 [G. C. Sec. 9466] of this act. The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the society shall be defrayed, shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the society and accretions of such funds; provided, that no society, domestic or foreign, shall hereafter be incorporated or admitted to transact business in this state, which does not provide for stated periodical contributions sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligations contracted, when valued upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress, August 23, 1899, or any higher standard, with interest assumption not more than four per cent. per annum, nor write or accept members for temporary or permanent disability benefits except upon tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum.

Subsection 2. Deferred payments or installments of claims shall be considered as fixed liabilities on the happening of the contingency upon which such payments or installments are thereafter to be paid. Such liabilities shall be the present value of such future payments or installments upon the rate of interest and mortality assumed by the society for valuation, and every society shall maintain a fund sufficient to meet such liability regardless of proposed future collections to meet any such liabilities. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 9; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 422, § 9; original G. C. Secs. 9470, 9471; R. S. Sec. 3631-19; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 1.)

A foreign society may provide for and issue certificates, containing provisions for cash surrender value, loan values, paid-up insurance and dividends, when authorized by its charter and the laws of its home state so to do.

State v. Lemert, 11 N. P. n. s. 535; 21 L. D. 118 (C. P. 1910).

Under original G. C. § 9476 it was held that the legislature was without power to delegate to a voluntary association, such as the "national fraternal congress," the right to fix rates of assessment which shall be binding on all fraternal societies seeking incorporation in Ohio.

State v. Lemert, 10 N. P. n. s. 133; 21 L. D. 113 (C. P. 1910).

The superintendent of insurance was held to be without discretion to refuse a certificate to a benefit society merely because it had not filed a statement of rates, under original G. C. § 9476.

State v. Lemert, 10 N. P. n. s. 133; 21 L. D. 113 (C. P. 1910).

Misapplication of funds. Remedy. An injunction against a proposed expenditure will not be issued, at the suit of a member, unless the petition alleges affirmatively that the plaintiff has exhausted all the remedies provided by the constitution and by-laws of the society.

Coss v. Mansfield Lodge, 4 C. C. n. s. 11; 14 C. D. 36 (1902).

Distribution of funds on dissolution or insolvency, see note to § 9463.

Section 9470. (Funds.) Any association may create, maintain, disburse and apply a reserve, emergency or surplus fund in accordance with its constitution and laws not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter. Unless otherwise provided in the contract, such funds must be held, invested and disbursed for the use and benefit of the association, and no member or beneficiary shall have or acquire any individual rights therein, or be entitled to an apportionment or the surrender of any part thereof. (97 v. 423, § 9.)

Section 9471. (How funds invested.) Every society shall invest its funds only in securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of the assets of life insurance companies; provided, that any foreign society permitted or seeking to do business in this state, which invests its funds in accordance with the laws of the state in which it is incorporated, shall be held to meet the requirements of this act for the investment of funds. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 10; original G. C. Sec. 9472; R. S. Sec. 3631-20; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 423, § 10; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360.)

A society is not authorized to advance money to a person to be used in the erection of a building, a part of which is to be occupied by the society, where no mortgage is taken, and control over the rents is vested in the borrower.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 147.

Section 9471. (How funds derived.) The funds from which benefits shall be paid and the funds from which the expenses of the association defrayed, shall be derived from periodical or other payments by the members of the association and accretions of such funds. Every contract hereafter made between such association and its members shall provide that if such regular payments are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its constitution and laws, extra assessments may be levied upon the members to meet such deficiency. (97 v. 423, § 9.)

Section 9472. (Laws of society providing for payment must state purpose.) Every provision of the laws of the society for payment by members of such society, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state the purpose of the same and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses, and no part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes or the net accretions of either or any of such funds shall be used for expenses. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 11; original G. C. Secs. 9473, 9471; R. S. Sec. 3631-21; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 423, § 11; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360.)

Where the certificate provides that the constitution and laws are made a part thereof, the certificate need not set forth the provisions of the constitution and by-laws relating to payments.

State v. Lemert, 11 N. P. n. s. 535; 31 L. D. 118 (1910).

A by-law providing that a member in arrears shall not be entitled to benefits merely by reason of the fact that after becoming sick he pays up all dues owing when his sickness began is probably reasonable and valid. But a by-law which provides that acceptance of arrears by the society, during illness of the member, with knowledge of his illness, shall not entitle a member to benefits, is unreasonable and invalid.

Forfeiture of contract for default in payments, see note to § 9469.

Section 9472. (Investment of funds.) In investing its funds, a domestic association transacting business under this chapter shall be governed by paragraphs one, two and three of section ninety-three hundred and fifty-seven, and by sections ninety-three hundred and fifty-nine and ninety-three hundred and sixty. (97 v. 423, § 10.)

Section 9473. (Articles of incorporation. Record. Preliminary certificate. Society may solicit members, when. Restrictions on liabilities. Examination by superintendent of insurance. Certificate. Expiration of preliminary certificate. Powers of society.) Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal benefit society, as defined by this act, may make and sign (giving their addresses) and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of incorporation, in which shall be stated:

1st. The proposed corporate name of the society, which shall not so closely resemble the name of any society or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or lead to confusion;

2d. The purpose for which it is formed—which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted by this act, provided that any lawful social, intellectual, educational, charitable, benevolent, moral or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the society—and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised;

3d. The names, residences and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the society for the first year or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body, which election shall be held not later than one year from the date of the issuance of the permanent certificate.

Such articles of incorporation and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, and copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor and circulars to be issued by such society, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the superintendent of insurance, conditioned upon the return of the advanced payments, as provided in this section, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with the superintendent of insurance, who may require such further information as he deems necessary, and if the purposes of the society conform to the requirements of this act, and all provisions of law have been complied with, the superintendent of insurance shall so certify and retain and record the articles of incorporation, and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing such society to solicit members as hereinafter provided.

Upon receipt of such certificate from the superintendent of insurance, said society may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one regular monthly payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and shall issue to each such applicant a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such society shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow, to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each, and all such applicants for death benefits shall have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians, and certificates of such examinations have been duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such society; nor until there shall be established ten subordinate lodges or branches into which such five hundred applicants have been initiated; nor until there has been submitted to the superintendent of insurance, under oath of the president and secretary, or corresponding officers of such society, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of stated periodical contributions, which shall be sufficient to provide for meeting the mortuary obligation, contracted, when valued for death benefits upon the basis of the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality, as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress August 23, 1899, or any higher standard at the option of the society, and for disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience and for combined death and permanent total disability benefits by tables based upon reliable experience, with an interest assumption not higher than four per cent. per annum; nor until it shall be shown to the superintendent of insurance by the sworn statement of the treasurer, or corresponding officer of such society, that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate shall amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars; all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants, and no part of which may be used for expenses.

Such advanced payments shall, during the period of organization, be held in trust, and, if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to such applicants.

The superintendent of insurance may make such examination and require such further information as he deems advisable, and, upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the society has complied with all the provisions of law, he shall issue to such society a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such society at the date of such certificate. The superintendent of insurance shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of such record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate.

No preliminary certificate granted under the provisions of this section shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the superintendent of insurance, upon cause shown; unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization has been completed as herein provided; and the articles of incorporation and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of such preliminary certificate, or at the expiration of such extended period, unless such society shall have completed its organization and commenced business as herein provided. When any domestic society shall have discontinued business for the period of one year, or has less than 400 members, its charter shall become null and void.

Every such society shall have the power to make a constitution and by-laws for the government of the society, the admission of its members, the management of its affairs and the fixing and readjusting of the rates of contribution of its members from time to time; and it shall have the power to change, alter, add to or amend such constitution and by-laws and shall have such other powers as are necessary and incidental to carrying into effect the objects and purposes of the society. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 12; original G. C. Secs. 9471, 9474, 9475, 9476, 9477, 9478, 9479 and 9480; R. S. Sec. 3631-22; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 423, § 12; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 7.)

The first trustees have power to adopt by-laws relating to the conduct of the business of the society.

G. C. § 9491.

The trustees or directors are not liable for debts of the society under G. C. § 8666 although such debts are incurred by the trustees for its expenses. Paper Co. v. Chevaliers, 18 C. C. n. s. 257 (1909).

A foreign society, authorized to pay death benefits only in the event of death from accident, and therefore unable to annually report a valuation of death certificates as required by the Ohio law, is not entitled to a license to do business in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 57.

Section 9473. (Distribution of funds.) Every provision for payment by members of such an association, in whatever form made, shall distinctly state its purpose, and the proportion thereof which may be used for expenses. No part of the money collected for mortuary or disability purposes and no part of the reserve, emergency or surplus funds or the net accretions of either of any of such funds shall be used for expenses. (97 v. 423, § 11.)

Section 9474. (What societies may incorporate but not compelled to do so.) Any society now engaged in transacting business in this state may exercise, after the passage of this act, all of the rights conferred thereby, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of incorporation not inconsistent with this act, if incorporated; or, if it be a voluntary association, it may incorporate hereunder. But no society already organized shall be required to incorporate hereunder, and any such society may amend its articles of incorporation from time to time in the manner provided therein or in its constitution and laws, and all such amendments shall be filed with the superintendent of insurance and shall become operative upon such filing, unless a later time be provided in such amendments or in its articles of incorporation, constitution or laws. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 13; original G. C. Secs. 9481, 9482, 9473; R. S. Sec. 3631-23; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 426, § 13; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 7.)

Where a mutual protective association, organized under § 9427, is reorganized as a fraternal benefit society, the change does not affect policies then outstanding. Lentz v. Fritter, 92 O. S. 186 (1915).

A fraternal benefit society, incorporated prior to the enactment of the present act, is authorized by this section to amend its articles of incorporation in the manner provided in its constitution in so far as its internal operations are concerned. The certificate of amendment should be filed with the superintendent of insurance. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 96.

Section 9474. (Organization; articles of incorporation.) Seven or more persons, citizens of the United States, and a majority of whom are citizens of this state, who desire to form a fraternal beneficiary association, as defined by this chapter, may make and sign, giving their addresses, and acknowledge before some officer competent to take acknowledgment of deeds, articles of association in which shall be stated:

1. The proposed corporate name of the association, which shall not so closely resemble the name of any association or insurance company already transacting business in this state as to mislead the public or lead to confusion.

2. The purpose for which it is formed,—which shall not include more liberal powers than are granted by this chapter, though any lawful social, intellectual, educational, moral or religious advantages may be set forth among the purposes of the association,—and the mode in which its corporate powers are to be exercised.

3. The names, residences and official titles of all the officers, trustees, directors, or other persons who are to have and exercise the general control and management of the affairs and funds of the association for the first year or until the ensuing election at which all such officers shall be elected by the supreme legislative or governing body. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9475. (Merger by contract in writing. Approval of merger.) No domestic society shall merge with or accept the transfer of the membership or funds of any other society unless such merger or transfer is evidenced by a contract in writing, setting out in full the terms and conditions of such merger or transfer, and filed with the superintendent of insurance of this state, together with a sworn statement of the financial condition of each of said societies, by its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, and a certificate of such officers, duly verified under oath of such officers of each of the contracting societies, that such merger or transfer has been approved by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the supreme legislative or governing body of each of said societies.

Upon the submission of such contract, financial statements and certificates, the superintendent of insurance shall examine the same, and, if he shall find such financial statements to be correct and the such contract to be in conformity with the provisions of this section, and that such merger or transfer is just and equitable to the members of each of said societies, he shall approve such merger or transfer, issue his certificate to that effect and thereupon the such contract of merger or transfer shall be of full force and effect.

In case such contract is not approved, the fact of its submission and its contents shall not be disclosed by the superintendent of insurance. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 14; original G. C. Secs. 9483, 9473; R. S. Sec. 3631-23a; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 426, § 14.)

Section 9475. (Articles, etc., to be filed with the superintendent of insurance.) Such articles of association and duly certified copies of the constitution and laws, rules and regulations, copies of all proposed forms of benefit certificates, applications therefor, and literature to be issued by such association, and a bond in the sum of five thousand dollars, with sureties approved by the superintendent of insurance, conditioned upon the return of the advance payments, as herein provided, to applicants, if the organization is not completed within one year, shall be filed with such superintendent, who may require further information as he deems necessary. If the purposes of the association conform to the requirements of this chapter and all the provisions of the law have been complied with, the superintendent shall so certify and retain and record the articles of association in a book kept for that purpose and furnish the incorporators a preliminary certificate authorizing the association to solicit members as hereinafter provided. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9476. (License and renewal. Fee.) Societies which are now authorized to transact business in this state may continue such business until the first day of April next succeeding the passage of this act, and the authority of such societies may thereafter be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, the license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. For each such license of renewal the society shall pay the superintendent of insurance twenty-five dollars. A duly certified copy or duplicate of such license shall be prima facie evidence that the licensee is a fraternal benefit society within the meaning of this act. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 15; original G. C. Sec. 9485; R. S. Sec. 3631-23c; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 426, § 16; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 6.)

Section 9476. (Commencing business.) Upon receipt of such certificate from the superintendent of insurance the association may solicit members for the purpose of completing its organization and shall collect from each applicant the amount of not less than one death benefit assessment or payment, in accordance with its table of rates as provided by its constitution and laws, and issue to each such applicant a receipt for the amount so collected. But no such association shall incur any liability other than for such advanced payments, nor issue any benefit certificate nor pay or allow, or offer or promise to pay or allow to any person any death or disability benefit until actual bona fide applications for death benefit certificates have been secured upon at least five hundred lives for at least one thousand dollars each and all such applicants for death benefits have been regularly examined by legally qualified practicing physicians and certificates of such examinations duly filed and approved by the chief medical examiner of such association; nor until ten subordinate lodges or branches into which the five hundred applicants have been initiated are established; nor until there has been submitted to the superintendent of insurance, under oath of the president and secretary or corresponding officers of such association, a list of such applicants, giving their names, addresses, date examined, date approved, date initiated, name and number of the subordinate branch of which each applicant is a member, amount of benefits to be granted, rate of regular payments or assessments, which shall not be lower for death benefits than those required by the national fraternal congress table of mortality, with interest at four per cent per annum; nor until it is shown to the superintendent by the sworn statement of the treasurer or corresponding officer of such association that at least five hundred applicants have each paid in cash at least one regular monthly payment or assessment as herein provided per one thousand dollars of indemnity to be effected, which payments in the aggregate amount to at least twenty-five hundred dollars, all of which shall be credited to the mortuary or disability fund on account of such applicants and no part of which may be used for expenses. (97 v. 423, § 12).

Section 9477. (License to foreign society and how obtained. Renewal. Qualifications. Fee. Refusal—revocation.) No foreign society now transacting business, organized prior to the passage of this act, which is not now authorized to transact business in this state, shall transact any business herein without a license from the superintendent of insurance. Any such society shall be entitled to a license to transact business within this state upon filing with the superintendent a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution and laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer; a power of attorney to the superintendent as hereinafter provided; a statement of its business under oath of its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, in the form required by the superintendent, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state or other state satisfactory to the superintendent of insurance of this state; a certificate from the proper official in its home state, province or country, that the society is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by periodical, or other payments by persons holding similar contracts; and upon furnishing the superintendent such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working, and upon showing that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province or country where it is organized, he shall issue a license to such society to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding April, and such license shall, upon compliance with the provisions of this act, be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April; provided, however, that license shall continue in full force and effect until the new license be issued or specifically refused. Any foreign society desiring admission to this state shall have the qualifications required of domestic societies organized under this act and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country, or province where it is organized. For each such license or renewal the society shall pay the superintendent twenty-five dollars. When the superintendent refuses to license any society, or revokes its authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file the same in his office, and shall furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the society, upon request, and the action of the superintendent shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within the state; provided, however, that nothing contained in this or the preceding section shall be taken or construed as preventing any such society from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this state during the time such society was legally authorized to transact business herein. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 533, § 16; original G. C. Secs. 9486, 9487, 9488; R. S. Sec. 3631-23d; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 427, § 17; May 12, 1902, 95 v. 606; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 3.)

Where the superintendent refuses to renew a license, for causes existing prior to the expiration of the license, the superintendent must give notice to the foreign society as required by § 9490.

State v. Lemert. 11 N. P. n. s. 535; 18 L. D. 118 (C. P. 1910).

A foreign society, authorized to pay death benefits only in the event of death from accident, and therefore unable to annually report a valuation of death certificates as required by the Ohio law, is not entitled to a license to do business in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 57.

Action against foreign society on contract issued in its home state. See Modern Woodmen v. Myers, 99 O. S. 87 (1918).

Under the former statute (Rev. Stats. § 3631-11), it was held mandatory upon the superintendent of insurance to issue a license, when the application for admission showed compliance with the statute, and that the superintendent was not authorized to make inquiry except as to whether the laws of the home state of the society provided for formal authorization of any association to do business.

Failure of a foreign society to comply with this section does not invalidate a certificate issued by it.

Brewing Co. v. Cassman, 21 C. C. 465; 12 C. D. 141 (1900).

Section 9477. (How advanced payments held.) Such advanced payments, during the period of organization shall be held in trust for and, if the organization is not completed within one year as hereinafter provided, returned to the applicants. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9478. (Supt. attorney for societies, on whom legal process shall be served. Copies, sufficient evidence. Time of pleading.) Every society, whether domestic or foreign, now transacting business in this state shall, within thirty days after the passage of this act, and every such society, hereafter applying for admission, shall, before being licensed, appoint in writing the superintendent of insurance and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it shall be served, and in such writing shall agree that any lawful process against it which is served upon such attorney shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the society and that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state.

Copies of such appointment, certified by such superintendent of insurance, shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof and shall be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original thereof might be admitted. Service shall only be made upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate upon the superintendent of insurance or in his absence upon the person in charge of his office and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such society; provided, however, that no such service shall be valid or binding against any such society when it is required thereunder to file its answer, pleading or defense in less than thirty days from the date of mailing the copy of such service to such society. When legal process against any such society is served upon such superintendent of insurance he shall forthwith forward by registered mail one of the duplicate copies prepaid and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. Legal process shall not be served upon any such society except in the manner provided herein. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 541, § 17; original G. C. Secs. 9489, 9490, 9491; R. S. Sec. 3631-23e; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 428, § 18; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 5.)

Section 9478. (Certificate of compliance.) The superintendent of insurance may make such examination and require further information as he deems advisable, and upon presentation of satisfactory evidence that the association has complied with all the provisions of the law he shall issue to it a certificate to that effect. Such certificate shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of the association at the date thereof. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9479. (Place of meetings.) Any domestic society may provide that the meetings of its legislative or governing body may be held in any state, district, province or territory wherein such society has subordinate branches, and all business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if such meetings were held in this state; but its principal office shall be located in this state. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 541, § 18; original G. C. Sec. 9492; R. S. Sec. 3631-23f; April 26, 1894, 97 v. 428, § 19; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 9.)

Section 9479. (Certified copies of certificate.) The superintendent of insurance shall cause a record of such certificate to be made and a certified copy of the record may be given in evidence with like effect as the original certificate. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9480. (Non-individual liability.) Officers and members of the supreme, grand or any subordinate body of any such incorporated society shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit provided for in the laws and agreements of such society; but the same shall be payable only out of the funds of such society and in the manner provided by its laws. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 541, § 19; original G. C. Sec. 9493; R. S. Sec. 3631-23g; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 428, § 20.)

The trustees or directors are not liable for debts of the society under G. C. § 8666 although such debts are incurred by the trustees for its expenses. Paper Co. v. Chevaliers, 18 C. C. n. s. 257, 195 (1909).

The members of a society are not liable to another member of such society for benefits unless there is some law of the society expressly making them so liable.

Myers v. Jenkins, 63 O. S. 101 (1900); reversing 16 C. C. 545.

Section 9480. (Validity of preliminary certificate.) No preliminary certificate so granted shall be valid after one year from its date, or after such further period, not exceeding one year, as may be authorized by the superintendent of insurance, upon cause shown, unless the five hundred applicants herein required have been secured and the organization completed as above provided. The articles of association and all proceedings thereunder shall become null and void in one year from the date of such preliminary certificate or at the expiration of the extended period, unless the association has completed its organization and commenced business as hereinbefore provided. When any domestic association has discontinued business for one year, its charter shall become null and void. (97 v. 423, § 12.)

Section 9481. (Laws of society to be binding on members and beneficiaries.) The constitution and laws of the society may provide that no subordinate body, nor any of its subordinate officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of the laws and constitution of the society, and the same shall be binding on the society and each and every member thereof and on all beneficiaries of members. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 542, § 20; original G. C. Sec. 9494; R. S. Sec. 3631-23h; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 429, § 21.)

Provisions denying the power of subordinate officers to waive the provisions of the laws of the order were upheld, prior to the enactment of this section.

Section 9481. (Powers retained.) Any association now engaged in transacting business in this state, may exercise all of the rights conferred herein, and all of the rights, powers and privileges now exercised or possessed by it under its charter or articles of association not inconsistent with this chapter, or it may be reincorporated hereunder. (97 v. 426, § 13.)

Section 9482. (Benefits not liable to process of law.) No money or other benefit, charity or relief or aid to be paid, provided or rendered by any such society shall be liable to attachment, garnishment or other process, or be seized, taken, appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law to pay any debt or liability of a member or beneficiary, or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment. (May 31, 1911, 101 v. 542, § 21; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 8; R. S. Sec. 3631-18, 97 v. 433.)

The beneficiary may, after the death of the insured, assign her claim under the benefit certificate to secure her debt.

Brewing Co. v. Cassman, 21 C. C. 465; 12 C. D. 141 (1900).

Section 9482. (Amendments.) No association already organized shall be required to reincorporate hereunder, nor to adopt the rates prescribed herein for new associations, in order to avail itself of the privileges of this chapter. Such an association may amend its articles of association from time to time in the manner provided herein, or in its constitution or laws. All such amendments shall be filed with the superintendent of insurance and become operative upon the filing, unless a later time be provided in the amendments, or in its articles of association, constitution or laws. (97 v. 426, § 13.)

Section 9483. (Changes of constitution must be filed with superintendent.) Every society transacting business under this act shall file with the superintendent of insurance a duly certified copy of all amendments of or additions to its constitution and laws within ninety days after the enactment of the same. Printed copies of the constitution and laws as amended, changed or added to, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the society, shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 542, § 22; original G. C. Sec. 9496; R. S. Sec. 3631-23j; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 429, § 23.)

Section 9483. (Transfer of membership.) No domestic association shall transfer its membership or funds to any association not authorized by the superintendent of insurance to transact business in this state; nor transfer its membership or funds to any licensed association, unless the contract of transfer has been approved by a two-thirds vote of the members of the supreme body of the association whose membership is proposed to be transferred; and by a two-thirds vote of the trustees or board having charge of the association proposing to take such membership. (97 v. 426, § 14.)

Section 9484. (Verified statement of standing. Additional report of valuation. Verified valuation. Separate funds. Printed report to each beneficiary [member]. Increased assessments.) Every society transacting business in this state shall annually, on or before the first day of March, file with the superintendent of insurance, in such form as he may require, a statement under oath of its president and secretary or corresponding officers, of its conditions and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and of its transactions for the year ending on that date and also shall furnish such other information as the superintendent may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The superintendent may at other times require any further statement he may deem necessary to be made relating to such society.

In addition to the annual report herein required, each society shall annually report to the superintendent a valuation of its certificates in force on December 31, last preceding; excluding those issued within the year for which the report is filed, in cases where the contributions for the first year, in whole or in part, are used for current mortality and expenses; provided the first report of valuation shall be made as of December 31, 1912. Such report of valuation shall show, as contingent liabilities, the present mid-year value of the promised benefits provided in the constitution and laws of such society under certificates then subject to valuation; and, as contingent assets, the present mid-year value of the future net contributions provided in the constitution and laws as the same are in practice actually collected. At the option of any society, in lieu of the above, the valuation may show the net value of the certificates subject to valuation hereinbefore provided, and such net value, when computed in case of monthly contributions, may be the mean of the terminal values for the end of the preceding and of the current insurance years.

Such valuation shall be certified by a competent accountant or actuary, or, at the request and expense of the society, verified by the actuary of the department of insurance of the home state of the society, and shall be filed with the superintendent within ninety days after the submission of the last preceding annual report. The legal minimum standard of valuation for all certificates, except for disability benefits, shall be the National Fraternal Congress Table of Mortality as adopted by the National Fraternal Congress April 23, 1899, or, at the option of the society, any higher table; or, at its option it may use a table based upon the society's own experience of at least twenty years and covering not less than one hundred thousand lives with interest assumption not more than 4 per centum per annum. Each such valuation report shall set forth clearly and fully the mortality and interest basis and the method of valuation. Any society providing for disability benefits shall keep the net contributions for such benefits in a fund separate and apart from all other benefit and expense funds and the valuation of all other business of the society; provided, that where a combined contribution table is used by a society for both death and permanent total disability benefits, the valuation shall be according to tables of reliable experience and in such case a separation of funds shall not be required.

The valuation herein provided for shall not be considered or regarded as a test of the financial solvency of the society, but each society shall be held to be legally solvent so long as the funds in its possession are equal to or in excess of its matured liabilities.

Beginning with the year 1914, a report of such valuation and an explanation of the facts concerning the condition of the society thereby disclosed shall be printed and mailed to each beneficiary member of the society not later than June 1 of each year; or, in lieu thereof, such report of valuation and showing of the society's condition as thereby disclosed, may be published in the society's official paper and the issue containing the same mailed to each beneficiary member of the society. The laws of such society shall provide that if the stated periodical contributions of the members are insufficient to pay all matured death and disability claims in full, and to provide for the creation and maintenance of the funds required by its laws, additional, increased or extra rates of contribution shall be collected from the members to meet such deficiency; and such laws may provide that, upon the written application or consent of the member, his certificate may be charged with its proportion of any deficiency disclosed by valuation, with interest not exceeding five per centum per annum. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 542, § 23; original G. C. Sec. 9497; R. S. Sec. 3631-23k; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 429, § 24; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 4.)

Section 9484. (Time for commencing action against fraternal associations. Duty of association, as to furnishing information.) No member of any association organized or operating under the provisions of this act, or his beneficiary, or his legal representatives, or any other person in any way interested in any of his benefits, or any person deriving legal rights from him, shall commence any action or other legal proceedings in any of the courts of this state, on account of his contract insurance, against the supreme or governing body of such association, until after he shall have exhausted all the reasonable remedies provided in the constitution and laws of such association by appeals and otherwise that can be determined within one year after the filing of proof of death or disability.

Such association after notice of the death of the insured must give to such beneficiary or his legal representatives or any other person in any way interested in any of the benefits or any person deriving legal rights in the same, such information and help as should enable him to know how to exhaust all of the remedies provided in the constitution and laws of such association by appeals and otherwise. (April 23, 1910, 101 v. 119; 97 v. 426, § 15.)

Section 9485. (Maintenance of financial condition at each triennial valuation; proceedings to dissolve on failure.) If the valuation of the certificates, as hereinbefore provided, on December 31, 1920, shall show that the present value of future net contributions, together with the admitted assets, is less than the present value of the promised benefit and accrued liabilities, such society shall thereafter maintain said financial condition at each succeeding triennial valuation in respect of the degree of deficiency as shown in the valuation as of December 31, 1920. If at any succeeding triennial valuation such society does not show at least the same condition, the superintendent shall direct that it thereafter comply with the requirements herein specified. If the next succeeding triennial valuation after the receipt of such notice shall show that the society has failed to maintain the conditions required herein, the superintendent may, in the absence of good cause shown for such failure, institute proceedings for the dissolution of such society, in accordance with the provision of section 9486 of this act, or in the case of a foreign society, its license may be cancelled in the manner provided in this act.

Any such society, shown by any triennial valuation, subsequent to December 31st, 1920, not to have maintained the condition herein required, shall within two years thereafter, make such improvement as to show a percentage of deficiency not greater than as of December 31st, 1920, or thereafter, as to all new members admitted, be subject, so far as stated rates of contribution are concerned, to the provisions of section 9473 of this act, applicable in the organization of new societies; provided that the net mortuary or beneficiary contributions and funds of such new members shall be kept separate and apart from the other funds of the society. If such required improvement is not shown by the succeeding triennial valuation, then the said new members may be placed in a separate class and their certificates valued as an independent society in respect to contributions and funds. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 688; 102 v. 544, § 23a.)

Section 9485-1. (Charge for cost of insurance. Provision for transfer. Valuation of certificates on tabular basis. How deficiencies met. When assets carried separately for a class. Table of rates and credits filed with annual report. Surplus may be maintained over credits and reserve.) In lieu of the requirements of sections 9484 and 9485, any society accepting in its laws the provisions of this section may value its certificates on a basis, herein designated "accumulation basis," by crediting each member with the net amount contributed for each year and with interest at approximately the net rate earned and by charging him with his share of the losses for each year, herein designated "cost of insurance" and carrying the balance, if any, to his credit. The charge for the cost of insurance may be according to the actual experience of the society applied to a table of mortality recognized by the law of this state, and shall take into consideration the amount at risk during each year, which shall be the amount payable at death less the credit to the member. Except as specifically provided in its articles or laws or contracts, no charge shall be carried forward from the first valuation hereunder against any member for any past share of losses exceeding the contributions and credit. If, after the first valuation, any member's share of losses for any year exceeds his credit, including the contribution for the year, the contribution shall be increased to cover his share of the losses, and, if the credit at the time any benefit becomes payable during the lifetime of the member, including any available funds does not equal such benefit, the contributions to be made by him or on his behalf shall be increased by the difference. Any such excess share of losses chargeable to any member may be paid out of a fund or contributions especially created or required for such purpose.

Any member may transfer to any plan adopted by the society with net rates on which tabular reserves are maintained, and on such transfer shall be entitled to make such application of his credit as provided in the laws of the society.

Certificates issued, rerated or readjusted on a basis providing for adequate reserves to mature such certificates upon assumptions for mortality and interest recognized by law of this state shall be valued on such basis, herein designated the "tabular basis," provided that if on the first valuation under this section a deficiency in reserve shall be shown for any such certificate, the same shall be valued on the accumulation basis.

Whenever in any society having members upon the tabular basis and upon the accumulation basis, the total of all costs of insurance provided for any year shall be insufficient to meet the actual death and disability losses for the year, the deficiency shall be met for the year from the available funds after setting aside all credits in the reserve; or from increased contributions or by an increase in the number of assessments applied to the society as a whole or to classes of members as may be specified in its laws. Savings from a lower amount of death losses may be returned in like manner as may be specified in its laws.

If the laws of the society so provide, the assets representing the reserves of any separate class of members may be carried separately for such class as if in an independent society, and the required reserve accumulation of such class so set apart shall not thereafter be mingled with the assets of other classes of the society.

A table showing the rates being paid by and the credits to individual members at each age and year of entry, and showing opposite each credit the tabular rates and the tabular reserve required, or at the option of the society the required reserve on a level rate equivalent to that being paid, according to assumption of mortality and interest recognized by the laws of this state and adopted by the society, and, in either case, including any benefit payable at a specified age or on account of old age disability shall be filed by the society with each annual report and also be furnished to each member before July first of each year.

In lieu of the aforesaid statement there may be furnished to each member within the same time a statement giving the data aforesaid for such member. No table or statement need be made or furnished when the reserves are maintained on the tabular basis.

For this purpose, individual bookkeeping accounts for each member shall not be required and all calculations may be made by actuarial methods.

Nothing herein contained shall prevent the maintenance of such surplus over and above the credits on the accumulation basis and the reserves on the tabular basis as the society may provide by or pursuant to its laws; nor be construed as giving to the individual member any right or claim to any such reserve or credit other than in manner as expressed in the contract and its laws; nor as making any such reserve or credits a liability in determining the legal solvency of the society. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 688.)

Section 9486. (Visitation and examination. Action in quo warranto, on failure to comply with act. Notice.) The superintendent of insurance, or any person he may appoint, shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic society. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examination, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society and may summon and qualify as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents and employes, or other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and condition of the society.

The expense of such examination shall be paid by the state upon statement furnished by the superintendent of insurance, and the examination shall be made at least once in three years.

Whenever after examination the superintendent of insurance is satisfied that any domestic society has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently; or whenever any domestic society, after the existence of one year or more, shall have a membership of less than 400 (or shall determine to discontinue business), the superintendent of insurance may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney-general, who shall, if he deem the circumstances warrant, commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and such court shall thereupon notify the officers of such society of a hearing, and if it shall then appear that such society should be closed, such society shall be enjoined from carrying on any further business and some person shall be appointed receiver of such society, and shall proceed at once to take possession of the books, papers, moneys and other assets of the society and shall forthwith, under the direction of the court, proceed to close the affairs of the society and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto.

No such proceedings shall be commenced by the attorney-general against any such society until after notice has been duly served on the chief executive officers of the society and a reasonable opportunity given to it, on a date to be named in such notice, to show cause why such proceedings should not be commenced. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 545, § 24; original G. C. Secs. 9498, 9499, 9500; R. S. Sec. 3631-231; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 429, § 25.)

The superintendent of insurance and attorney-general have discretion as to instituting proceedings in quo warranto in case examination by the superintendent discloses insolvency.

Section 9486. (Admission of foreign associations.) No foreign association shall do any business in this state without a license from the superintendent of insurance. Such an association shall be entitled to a license to transact business within the state, upon filing with the superintendent a duly certified copy of its charter or articles of association; a copy of its constitution or laws, certified by its secretary or corresponding officer, a power of attorney to the superintendent as hereinafter provided; a statement, under oath, of its president and secretary or corresponding officer, in the form required by the superintendent, duly verified by an examination made by the supervising insurance official of its home state of its business for the preceding year; a certificate from the proper official, in its home state, province or country, that the association is legally organized; a copy of its contract, which must show that benefits are provided for by assessments upon, or other payments by, persons holding similar contracts, and upon furnishing the superintendent such other information as he may deem necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. Upon showing also that its assets are invested in accordance with the laws of the state, territory, district, province or country where it is organized, he shall issue a license to such association to do business in this state until the first day of the succeeding April. Upon compliance with the provisions of this chapter, such license must be renewed annually, but in all cases to terminate on the first day of the succeeding April. (97 v. 427, § 17.)

Section 9487. (Application for receiver, etc.) No application for injunction against or proceedings for the dissolution of or the appointment of a receiver for any such domestic society or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in this state unless the same is made by the attorney-general. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 545, § 25; original G. C. Sec. 9501; R. S. Sec. 3631-23m; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 430, § 26; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 11.)

Section 9487. (Foreign association not doing business herein, not required to change rates.) Nothing contained in this chapter shall require any such foreign association, not now authorized to transact business in this state to conform its rates of assessment to those prescribed by the national fraternal congress mortality table as a condition precedent to the securing of such license or any renewal thereof. Any foreign association hereafter organized, desiring admission to this state, in addition to the requirements of this and the preceding section, must show that it collects from all of its members for death benefits, assessments not lower than those required by the national fraternal congress mortality table, with interest at four per cent, have the further qualifications required of domestic associations organized under this chapter, and have its assets invested as required by the laws of the state, territory, district, country or province where it is organized. (97 v. 427, § 17.)

Section 9488. (Examination of foreign societies. Effect of refusal.) The superintendent of insurance, or any person whom he may appoint, may examine any foreign society transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. Such superintendent may employ assistants, and he, or any person he may appoint, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the society, and may summon and [qualify], as witness under oath and examine its officers, agents and employes and other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the society. He may, in his discretion, accept in lieu of such examination the examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province or country where such society is organized. The actual expenses of examiners making any such examination shall be paid by the society upon statement furnished by the superintendent of insurance.

If any such society or its officers refuse to submit to such examination, or to comply with the provisions of the section relative thereto, the authority of such society to write new business in this state shall be suspended or license refused until satisfactory evidence is furnished the superintendent relating to the condition and affairs of the society, and during such suspension the society shall not write new business in this state. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 546, § 26; original G. C. Secs. 9502, 9503; R. S. Sec. 3631-23n; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 430, § 27.)

Section 9488. (Fees; refusal or revocation of license.) For each such license or renewal, the association shall pay the superintendent twenty-five dollars. When the superintendent refuses to license any association or revokes its authority to do business in this state, he shall reduce his ruling, order or decision to writing and file it in his office, and upon request furnish a copy thereof, together with a statement of his reasons, to the officers of the association. The action of the superintendent shall be reviewable by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction within this state. Nothing herein shall prevent any such association from continuing in good faith all contracts made in this state during the time its was legally authorized to transact business therein. (97 v. 427, § 17.)

Section 9489. (No publicity pending investigation.)

Pending, during or after an examination or investigation of any such society, either domestic or foreign, the superintendent of insurance shall make public no financial statement, report or finding, nor shall he permit to become public any financial statement, report or finding affecting the status, standing or rights of any society, until a copy thereof shall have been served upon such society, at its home office, nor until such society shall have been afforded a reasonable opportunity to answer any such financial statement, report or finding, and to make such showing in connection therewith as it may desire. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 546, § 27.)

Section 9489. (Power of attorney.)

Every foreign association transacting business in this state, and every such association applying for admission, before being licensed, must appoint in writing the superintendent of insurance and his successors in office to be its true and lawful attorney upon whom all legal process in any action or proceeding against it may be served, and in such writing agree that any lawful process against it, which is so served shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served upon the association; also that the authority shall continue in force so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state. (97 v. 428, § 18.)

Section 9490. (Causes for revocation. Notice. Review.)

When the superintendent of insurance on investigation is satisfied that any foreign society transacting business under this act has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of this act, or is conducting business fraudulently, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, he shall notify the society of his findings, and state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction, and after reasonable notice require such society, on a date named, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If on the date named in such notice such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of such superintendent, or the society does not present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state should not at that time be revoked, he may revoke the authority of the society to continue business in this state. All decisions and findings of the superintendent made under the provisions of this section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction, as provided in section 16 [G. C. Sec. 9477] of this act. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 546, § 28; original G. C. Secs. 9504, 9505; R. S. Sec. 3631-230; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 431, § 28; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 360, § 11.)

The notice of revocation or discontinuance of the license, required by this section, is mandatory and jurisdictional.

Section 9490. (How service of process made.) Copies of such appointment, certified by the superintendent of insurance, shall be deemed sufficient evidence thereof and be admitted in evidence with the same force and effect as the original. Service may be made only upon such attorney, must be made in duplicate, and shall be deemed sufficient service upon such association; except that no such service shall be valid or binding against an association if it is required thereunder to file its answer, pleading or defense in less than thirty days after the date of service. (97 v. 428, § 18.)

Section 9491. (Lodges, societies, orders and associations excepted. Superintendent of insurance may require information. No compensation for securing new members. What societies may be licensed hereunder.) Nothing contained in this act shall be construed to affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Pythias (exclusive of the insurance department of the Supreme Lodge Knights of Pythias), and the Junior Order of United American Mechanics (exclusive of the beneficiary degree or insurance branch of the National Council Junior Order United American Mechanics), or the National Council Daughters of America Benefit Department, or societies which limit their membership to any one hazardous occupation, nor to similar societies which do not issue insurance certificates, nor to an association of local lodges of a society now doing business in this state which provides death benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars to any person, or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year, to any one person, or both, nor to any contracts of reinsurance business on such plan in this state, nor to domestic societies which limit their membership to the employees of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation, nor to domestic lodges, orders or associations of a purely religious, charitable and benevolent description, which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars, or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any one person in any one year; provided, always, that any such domestic order or society which has more than five hundred members, and provides for death or disability benefits, and any such domestic lodge, order or society which issues to any person a certificate providing for the payment of benefits, shall not be exempt by the provisions of this section, but shall comply with all the requirements of this act; nor to any endowment fund created by a conference or other general ecclesiastical body of a religious denomination held in the United States and incorporated under sections ten thousand eleven and ten thousand twelve of the General Code of Ohio for the payment of pensions or benefits to superannuated ministers and missionaries of such religious denomination, their widows and children, where not to exceed forty per cent. of the cost and expense of such fund is assessed against the members thereof, and the balance is contributed by such conference or religious denomination or from other sources, and where the benefits to be paid to any one person in any one year shall not exceed the sum of six hundred dollars; and provided further, that nothing in sub-section 2, of section 5, and paragraph 3rd, of section 12, and section 23 and section 23a of this chapter, shall affect or apply to any corporation, society, order or voluntary association, which was prior to the first day of January, 1911, organized and doing business in this state on the lodge system, as provided in section 2 of this chapter, which issues death certificates in a sum not exceeding $500.00 to any one member, and whose membership is confined and limited exclusively to persons of one particular religious faith.

The superintendent of insurance may require from any society such information as will enable him to determine whether such society is exempt from the provisions of this act.

No society, which is exempt by the provisions of this section from the requirement of this act, shall give or allow, or promise to give or allow, to any person any compensation for procuring new members.

Any fraternal benefit society, heretofore organized and incorporated and operating within the definition set forth in sections 1, 2 and 3 of this act, providing for benefits in case of death or disability resulting solely from accidents, but which does not obligate itself to pay death or sick benefits, may be licensed under the provisions of this act, and shall have all the privileges and shall be subject to all the provisions and regulations of this act, except that the provisions of this act requiring medical examinations, valuations of benefit certificates, and that the certificates shall specify the amount of benefits, shall not apply to such society. (108 (Pt. 2) v. 1118; 102 v. 546, § 29; original G. C. Sec. 9506; R. S. Sec. 3631-23p; 97 v. 431, § 29; 94 v. 356; 92 v. 360, § 13.)

An association which desires exemption under this section should, in its articles of incorporation, set out its plan of business. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 100.

A fraternal order authorized to render aid to its members, but lacking the power to issue certificates, is within the exception provided in this section, and may incorporate by filing articles with the secretary of state instead of the superintendent of insurance.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 112, 125.

Section 9491. (Duty of superintendent when service made on him.) When legal process against any such association is served upon the superintendent of insurance, forthwith he shall forward by registered mail one of the duplicate copies, prepaid and directed to its secretary or corresponding officer. The plaintiff in process so served must pay to the superintendent of insurance for the use of the state at the time of service a fee of two dollars, which shall be recovered by him as part of the taxable costs, if he prevails in the suit. (April 26, 1904, 97 v. 428, § 18.)

Section 9492. (Place of meeting; office.) Any domestic association may provide for holding the meetings of its legislative or governing body in any state, district, province or territory wherein such association has subordinate branches. All business transacted at such meetings shall be as valid in all respects as if they were held in this state. But its principal office must be located in this state. (97 v. 428, § 19.)

Section 9493. (No personal liability.) Officers and members of the supreme, grand or any subordinate body of any such incorporated association shall not be individually liable for the payment of any disability or death benefit, provided for in the laws and contracts of the association. They shall be payable only out of the funds of the association and in the manner provided by its laws. (97 v. 428, § 20.)

Section 9494. (Waiver of the provisions of the laws.) The constitution and laws of the association may provide that no subordinate body, nor any of its officers or members shall have the power or authority to waive any of the provisions of its laws and constitution, and this shall be binding on the association and every member thereof. (97 v. 429, § 21.)

Section 9495. (Separate jurisdiction provisions.) All grand lodges by whatever name known, whether incorporated or not, holding charters from the supreme governing body, which are conducting business in this state as fraternal beneficiary associations upon what is known as the separate jurisdiction plan, shall be treated as a federation of grand lodges and not as single state organizations; and all reports required by the provisions of this chapter shall be made and furnished by the officers of such supreme governing bodies and must contain the transactions, liabilities and assets of the entire order. (97 v. 429, § 22.)

Section 9496. (Constitution and laws; amendments.) Every association transacting business under this chapter, must file with the superintendent of insurance a duly certified copy of all amendments of, or additions to, its constitution and laws within ninety days after their enactment. Printed copies of the constitution and laws and of additions or amendments thereto, certified by the secretary or corresponding officer of the association shall be prima facie evidence of the legal adoption thereof. (97 v. 429, § 23.)

Section 9497. (Annual reports.) Every association transacting business in this state, annually on or before the first day of March, must file with the superintendent of insurance in such form as he requires, a statement under oath of its president and secretary, or corresponding officers, of its condition and standing on the thirty-first day of December next preceding and of its transactions for the year ending on that date, and also, furnish such other information as the superintendent deems necessary to a proper exhibit of its business and plan of working. The superintendent at other times may require any further statement he deems necessary to be made relating to such associations. (97 v. 429, § 24.)

Section 9498. (Examination of domestic associations.) The superintendent of insurance, or any person he appoints, shall have the power of visitation and examination into the affairs of any domestic association. He may employ assistants for the purposes of such examination and he, or any person he appoints shall have free access to all books, papers and documents relating to the business of the association, and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents, employes and other persons in relation to its affairs, transactions and condition. The expenses of such examination shall be paid by the state treasurer on the warrant of the state auditor on the certificate of the superintendent of insurance from the proper appropriations. (97 v. 429, § 25.)

Section 9499. (Quo warranto.) When after such examination, the superintendent is satisfied that a domestic association has failed to comply with any provision of this chapter, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith; or is transacting business fraudulently; or when such an association, after the existence of one year or more has a membership of less than three hundred, or votes to discontinue business, he may present the facts relating thereto to the attorney-general, who, if he thinks the circumstances warrant it shall commence an action in quo warranto in a court of competent jurisdiction, and the court thereupon shall notify the officers of such association of a hearing. Unless it then appears that some special and good reason exists why the association should not be closed, it shall be enjoined from doing any further business, and some person be appointed a receiver thereof, who shall at once take possession the books, papers, moneys, and other assets of the association and under the direction of the court forthwith proceed to close up its affairs, and to distribute its funds to those entitled thereto. (97 v. 429, § 25.)

Section 9500. (Hearing must be had before instituting suit). No such proceeding shall be commenced by the attorney-general against such an association until after notice has been duly served on its chief executive officers, and a reasonable opportunity given to it on a date to be named in the notice to show cause why such proceedings should not be commenced. (97 v. 429, § 25.)

Section 9501. (Attorney-general to institute suit.) No application for injunction or other proceedings for the dissolution of, or the appointment of a receiver for, such a domestic association or branch thereof shall be entertained by any court in this state unless it is made by the attorney-general. (97 v. 430, § 26.)

Section 9502. (Examination of foreign associations.) The superintendent of insurance, or any person whom he appoints, may examine any foreign association transacting or applying for admission to transact business in this state. He may employ assistants for the purpose of such examination and he, or any person appointed by him, shall have free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the association and may summon and qualify as witnesses under oath and examine its officers, agents, employes and other persons in relation to its affairs and condition. In his discretion, in lieu of such examination, he may accept the examination of the insurance department of the state, territory, district, province or country where the association is organized. Examinations under the provisions of this section shall be made without expense to the association examined. (97 v. 430, § 27.)

Section 9503. (When examination refused.) If such an association or its officers refuse to submit to such examination or to comply with the provisions of the preceding section relating thereto, its authority to transact business in this state shall be revoked until satisfactory evidence is furnished such superintendent relating to the condition and affairs of the association. During such revocation it shall not transact any business in this state. (97 v. 430, § 27.)

Section 9504. (Revocation of license.) When the superintendent on investigation is satisfied that a foreign association transacting business under this chapter has exceeded its powers, or failed to comply with any provision thereof, or is conducting business fraudulently, or not carrying out its contract in good faith, he shall notify the president and secretary, or other officers corresponding thereto, of his findings, state in writing the grounds of his dissatisfaction, and after reasonable notice require the association on a date named therein, to show cause why its license should not be revoked. If on that date such objections have not been removed to the satisfaction of the superintendent, or the association fails to present good and sufficient reasons why its authority to transact business in this state should not then be revoked he may revoke its authority to continue business in this state. (97 v. 431, § 28.)

Section 9505. (Decisions of superintendent may be reviewed.) All decisions and findings of the superintendent made under the provisions of the preceding section may be reviewed by proper proceedings in any court of competent jurisdiction as hereinbefore provided in this chapter, in similar cases. (97 v. 431, § 28.)

Section 9506. (Exemption of certain associations.) Nothing contained in this chapter shall affect or apply to grand or subordinate lodges of Masons, Odd Fellows or Knights of Pythias (exclusive of the insurance branch of the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias), or to similar orders which do not issue insurance certificates, nor to local lodges of an association doing business in this state, that provide death benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars to any one person, or disability benefits not exceeding three hundred dollars in any one year to any one person, or both; nor to any contracts of reinsurance of or between such local lodges of such association doing business on such plan in this state, nor to domestic associations which limit their membership to the employees of a particular city or town, designated firm, business house or corporation; nor to domestic lodges, orders, associations of a purely religious, charitable and benevolent description, which do not operate with a view to profit and which do not provide for a death benefit of more than one hundred dollars or for disability benefits of more than one hundred and fifty dollars to any one person in any one year. But any such domestic order or association, which has more than five hundred members, and provides for death or disability benefits and any such domestic lodge, order or association which issues to any person a certificate providing for the payment of benefits, shall not be exempt by the provisions of this section, and must comply with all the requirements of this chapter. (97 v. 431, § 29.)

Section 9507. (Superintendent may require certain information.)

The superintendent of insurance may require from any association such information as will enable him to determine whether or not it is exempt from the provisions of this chapter. No association which is so exempt shall give or allow or promise to give or allow to any person any compensation for procuring new members. (97 v. 431, § 29.)

Section 9508. (Construction.) The word "association" as used in this chapter shall be taken as meaning a fraternal beneficiary corporation, society, order or voluntary association as defined in the first sections of this chapter. The words "domestic association" shall be taken as meaning an association organized or incorporated under the laws of this state. The words "foreign associations," shall be taken as meaning an association organized or incorporated under the laws of another territory, district, state, province or country. All provisions of each section of this chapter, except as otherwise provided shall be taken as applying to both domestic and foreign associations. (97 v. 432, § 31.)

Section 9509. (Vacancy in office of superintendent.) In event of a vacancy in the office of the superintendent of insurance or in the absence or disability of that officer the deputy superintendent shall perform all the duties required of the superintendent by this chapter. (97 v. 432, § 31.)

INSURANCE AUTHORIZED.

Section 9510. (Powers of companies.) A company may be organized or admitted under this chapter to—

1. Insure houses, buildings and all other kinds of property in and out of the state against loss or damage by fire, lightning and tornadoes, and make all kinds of insurance on goods, merchandise and other property in the course of transportation, on land, water, or on a vessel, boat or wher-ever it may be.

2. Make insurance on the health of individuals and against personal injury, disablement or death, resulting from traveling or general accidents by land and water; make insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to property, from cause other than fire or lightning; guarantee the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, who are required to, or, in their trust capacity do receive, hold, control, disburse public or private moneys or property; guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, and execute and guarantee bonds and undertakings required or permitted in all actions or proceedings, or by law allowed; make insurance to indemnify employers against loss or damage for personal injury or death resulting from accidents to employes or persons other than employes and to indemnify persons and corporations other than employers against loss or damage for personal injury or death resulting from accidents to other persons or corporations. But a company of another state, territory, district or country admitted to transact the business of indemnifying employers and others, in addition to any other deposit required by other laws of this state, shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance for the benefit and security of all its policy holders, fifty thousand dollars in bonds of the United States or of the state of Ohio, or of a county, township, city or other municipality in this state, which shall not be received by the superintendent at a rate above their par value. The securities so deposited may be exchanged from time to time for other securities. So long as such company continues solvent and complies with the laws of this state it shall be permitted by the superintendent to collect the interest on such deposits.

3. Make insurance on the lives of horses, cattle or other live stock against loss by death caused by accident, disease, fire or lightning, and against loss by theft and damage by accident. But such companies shall have a capital of one hundred thousand dollars, with at least twenty-five per cent of the capital stock paid up.

4. Receive on deposit and insure the safekeeping of books, papers, moneys, stocks, bonds and all kinds of personal property; lend money on bottomry or respondentia, and cause itself to be insured against any loss or risk it has incurred in the course of its business, and upon the interest which it has in any property by means of any loan which it has made on mortgage, bottomry, or respondentia, and generally to do all other things proper to promote these objects. (R. S. Sec. 3641; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 407; April 1, 1902, 95 v. 81; April 21, 1898, 93 v. 170; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 138; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 30, 1885, 82 v. 185; R. S. 1880; April 14, 1874, 71 v. 65, § 8; S. & S. 299.)

Contracts or policies of fire insurance, and liability thereunder.

See §§ 9587, 9583 and notes.

Accident insurance companies, see § 9542 et seq.

Mutual companies, see § 9607-2 et seq.

Deposit in home state, in lieu of deposit under this section, § 9510-7 et seq.

Insurance companies can not incorporate under the general corporation law (§§ 8623 to 8743). The organization of insurance companies other than life, is provided for in this chapter.

State v. Pioneer Live Stock Co., 38 O. S. 347 (1882):

The enlargement of the scope of original section 3641 of the Revised Statutes, so as to include classes of insurance other than fire insurance, and authorizing fire insurance companies to insure against tornadoes and the like does not constitute a special grant of corporate power, and is not a violation of Art. XIII, § 1 of the constitution.

Casualty Co. v. Hahn, 33 W. L. B. 286 (1895).

An insurance company does not forfeit its charter, by nonuser, by refusing to insure against extra hazardous risks.

Corwin v. Insurance Co., 14 Ohio 6 (1846).

Effect of § 9607-2 on §§ 9510, 9511 and 9556. The attorney general has ruled that §§ 9510, 9511 and 9556 have been supplanted by § 9607-2, basing his opinion upon the following language in § 9607-2: "A mutual or a stock insurance company may transact only the first kind of insurance, or may transact such as it may elect of the other kinds of insurance, following:"

The conclusion reached by the attorney general was that fire insurance companies, whether stock or mutual, have only the powers conferred by § 9607-2; that the powers conferred by § 9607-2 are available to either stock or mutual companies but powers mentioned in §§ 9510 and 9556, but not mentioned in § 9607-2 may not be exercised by either stock or mutual companies; that in some respects the powers conferred by § 9607-2 are broader than those enumerated in § 9510; and that a company originally organized under § 9510 may obtain the additional powers by amending its articles of incorporation. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 925; 17 O. L. R. 308; compare Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 1348.

In State, ex rel., v. Gearheart, 103 O. S. 263 (1921), a foreign stock company claimed certain powers by virtue of § 9607-2. But the court said (p. 265): "This section is a part of the chapter dealing with 'mutual fire insurance companies'. It is difficult to comprehend how it can be stretched to include the relator."

Casualty insurance. The general terms of paragraph two of § 9510, authorizing insurance against loss from "accidents to property other than fire or lightning," cover plate glass and steam boiler insurance and also burglary insurance.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 526, 653 (1893).

Credit insurance.

See also §§ 9621 to 9633.

The language of paragraph two of § 9510 authorizing a company to "guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies" covers credit insurance.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 535 (1893).

Employers' liability insurance. Employers' liability insurance has been superseded by the Workmen's Compensation Law as to employers who employ three or more workmen. G. C. § 1465-69; Thornton v. Duffy, 99 O. S. 120 (1918); aff'd, 254 U. S. 361.

Prior to the amendment of § 1465-69 (107 v. 159) employers liability insurance contracts were much restricted. See State v. Liab. Corp., 95 O. S. 289 (1917); State v. Fidelity Co., 96 O. S. 250 (1917); State v. Ocean Co., 95 O. S. 590 (1917).

Decisions under policies of employers' liability insurance. See State v. Insurance Co., 69 O. S. 317; Verducci v. Casualty Co., 96 O. S. 260 (1917); Insurance Co. v. Bright, 1 C. C. n. s. 295; 14 C. D. 441 (1903); aff'd, no rep. 70 O. S. 497.

Liability to indemnify employers for damages paid to minors illegally employed. Collings-Taylor Co. v. Fidelity Co., 96 O. S. 123 (1917); Lockwood v. Ins. Co., 8 Ohio App. 444 (1917).

Insurance company not obligated to make compromise settlement. Wire Spring Co. v. Gen. Accident Co., 6 Ohio App. 344; 27 O. C. A. 536 (1917); motion to certify record overruled, 15 O. L. R. 247.

Recovery, by insurer from insured, of amount payable by insured before recourse to insurer, where insurer settled claim. Coal Co. v. Assurance Co., 27 O. C. A. 43 (1916).

The fact that the insurance company defended an action against the insured, brought by an employe, was held not an estoppel or a waiver of a condition of the policy that it did not cover liability for injuries caused by failure of the insured to comply with certain requirements of law. Ohio Moulding Co. v. Standard Life Ins. Co., 24 C. C. n. s. 603 (1903).

A default judgment rendered against the insured, after notice to the insurance company which made no defense, is binding on the insurance company, in the absence of fraud or collusion. McGhee v. Insurance Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

Deposit. The requirement of this section, that foreign liability companies deposit securities, is constitutional. Casualty Co. v. Hahn, 33 W. L. B. 286 (1895).

An alien company, which did not deposit $50,000 and which had no license to transact liability insurance in Ohio, made a contract in another state reinsuring the liability risks of other foreign companies which arose from Ohio policies of the latter. Held, to be a violation of the insurance laws for which the superintendent of insurance was authorized to cancel its license to transact other insurance business in Ohio. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 459 (1920).

The deposit may be made out of the capital of a company, although its capital is the minimum amount permitted by § 9524.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 552.

This section requires a deposit from companies which write no employers' liability policies, but confine their business to indemnity against loss to persons other than employers. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 857.

The amount of deposit of a foreign company, desiring to do only an employer's liability business in Ohio, is $50,000, and not $150,000. Section 9565 does not apply to such companies.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 30 (1900).

Farm loan bonds may be deposited. § 9518-2.

Upon insolvency of a company, its deposit should be administered by the superintendent of insurance under direction of the Ohio court, for the benefit of Ohio policyholders. The deposit should not be turned over to the legal representatives of the company in the state of its domicile. Turner v. Insurance Co., 8 Ohio App. 285; 28 O. C. A. 113 (1917); Hogan v. Surety Co., 8 Ohio App. 172; 28 O. C. A. 139 (1916); s. c., 18 N. P. n. s. 380.

A non-resident creditor, whose claim arises out of a contract of insurance arising outside of Ohio, is not entitled to participate in the fund arising from the deposit, although the creditor transacted business in Ohio and incurred liabilities covered by his policy. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

Attorneys employed by the insurance company are not, as against policyholders, entitled to participate in the fund. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

Taxes due under § 5433 are subordinate to the claims of policyholders, but may be set off against any amount due the insurance company. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

Policyholders who paid attorneys' fees in defending suits after default of the insurance company may include such fees in their claims. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

A construction contract and bond, for work to be performed outside of Ohio, and executed by the sureties outside of Ohio, is not an Ohio contract although the contractor was a resident of Ohio and signed the contract and bond in Ohio. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

Fidelity or guaranty insurance.

See note to § 9570.

A company attempting to incorporate under par. 2 of § 9510 can not combine fidelity insurance with insurance against damage by fire as such nor against loss or damage by theft. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 828.

Plate glass insurance. Insurance companies operating under par. 2 of this section may insure against loss or damage to plate glass resulting from inundation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 91.

Marine insurance.

A company organized under a special charter prior to the constitution of 1851 for the purpose of insuring farm buildings against fire, can not by adopting § 9510, acquire the right to write marine insurance. But it may acquire such right by amending its articles under § 8719.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 798.

A vessel is a chattel and a mortgage thereof a "chattel mortgage" under a policy which provides that it shall be void "if the subject of insurance be personal property and be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage."

Transportation Co. v. Insurance Co., 170 Fed. 279 (C. C. A. Ohio 1909).

A mortgage invalidates such a policy although the debt secured thereby is not in default.

Transportation Co. v. Insurance Co., 170 Fed. 279 (1909).

Where, by what is denominated a "contract proposition" an application is made for insurance "covering all shipments of the following description of articles, viz: sundry coal cargoes belonging to the applicant and as agents, at risk" a policy issued on such application stating that it is made as per said contract covers only those cargoes shipped by the insured as agent, in which it has some pecuniary interest at risk.

Insurance Co. v. Coal Co., 68 O. S. 469 (1903).

An open marine policy authorizing the insured to issue certificates covering specified property, to be countersigned by the insurer's agent, was held to make the insured agent of the insurer.

Where, after the issuance of such a certificate not containing the name of the vessel because unknown at the time, the insured failed to inform the insurer of the name of the vessel after learning the same, until after the vessel was overdue, when it was too late for the insurer to obtain re-insurance, as was customary as to risks above certain amounts, after payment of the loss the insurer was held entitled to recover damages from the insured. Aetna Ins. Co. v. Willis Overland Co., 288 Fed. 912 (D. C. Ohio 1922).

The captain and crew are bound to use diligent efforts to preserve and recover property. This duty exists independently of policy stipulations.

Insurance Co. v. May, 20 Ohio 211 (1851).

Risks held covered. Goods carried on deck by established usage, under policy made with reference to particular trade or line of steamers.

Insurance Co. v. Shillito, 15 O. S. 559 (1864).

Loss due to negligence of insured, or his officers or seamen.

Insurance Co. v. Parisot, 35 O. S. 35 (1875).

Insurance Co. v. May, 20 Ohio 211 (1851).

Perrin v. Insurance Co., 11 Ohio 147 (1842).

See Insurance Co. v. Sherlock, 25 O. S. 33 (1874).

Injury to a flatboat by ordinary waves raised by steamboats.

Insurance Co. v. Reed, 20 Ohio 199 (1851).

Explosion of boiler.

Perrin v. Insurance Co., 11 Ohio 147 (1842).

Loss by fire caused by collision, under policy covering fire loss only, where collision is not excepted by terms of policy.

Insurance Co. v. Sherlock, 25 O. S. 33 (1874).

Where the printed terms of an open marine policy covered only perils of seas, rivers, fire and overpowering thieves, and the insurance company endorsed "$2000 on cargo canal boat Ben Franklin, at and from this port per Miami and Wabash canals to Covington, Ind., and landed" the policy was held to cover the ordinary risks of canal navigation.

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 6 O. S. 553 (1856).

Risks held partially covered. Total loss after policy expired, caused by injury while policy in force; actual injury covered, but not total loss. Howell v. Insurance Co., 7 Ohio (pt. 1) 284 (1835).

Risks held not covered. Sinking as the result of an attempt to repair. Insurance Co. v. Purcell, 19 C. C. 135; 10 C. D. 538 (1899); aff'd, no rep., 66 O. S. 678.

Loss certain to happen, such as wear and tear.

Insurance Co. v. Reed, 20 Ohio 199 (1851).

Loss where vessel overloaded or unseaworthy.

Insurance Co. v. May, 20 Ohio 211 (1851).

Insurance Co. v. Tobin, 32 O. S. 77 (1877).

Actions. Insurance brokers, holding an open policy for themselves and whom it may concern, may maintain an action in their names for the use of the owners, not named in the policy, where the insurance was for their benefit.

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 6 O. S. 553 (1856).

Evidence and presumptions. Seaworthiness at time of insurance is presumed to continue; but when a dangerous leak occurs, without apparent cause, a rebuttable presumption of unseaworthiness arises. The owner may recover on showing a probable cause of loss.

Insurance Co. v. Tobin, 32 O. S. 77 (1877).

Expert testimony as to causes of loss.

Insurance Co. v. May, 20 Ohio 211 (1851).

Transportation risks.

See also Marine insurance.

A foreign company, authorized by its charter to insure risks of inland transportation, and already licensed in Ohio to write fire and marine insurance, may, under § 9510, be authorized to insure risks of inland transportation.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 714 (1896).

Insurance against damage in transportation of goods from a place without the state to a place within the state need not be written or placed by a resident agent. § 5438 does not apply to such a case.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 432 (1901).

Section 9510-1. (Employee subrogated to rights of employer, when.) An employee, who has heretofore recovered or shall hereafter recover against his employer for injuries sustained while in the employ of his employer, and because of negligence of the employer, or negligence for which he or it is liable, shall be subrogated to all the rights of the employer under any contract or policy of insurance against loss or damage resulting to said employer from injury or death of an employee while in the service of such employer whether said person, co-partnership or corporation contracting or issuing such policy of insurance has been made a party to the action for damages sustained or not. (May 12, 1910, 101 v. 192.)

The requirements of § 9510-1 can not be defeated by provisions inserted in policies. A provision to the effect that no action can be brought on the policy except by the employer and not until a judgment by employe against employer has been fully paid is in conflict with this section and void. Verducci v. Casualty Co., 96 O. S. 260 (1917).

An employee, after obtaining judgment against an insured employer, is not barred from the benefit of this section (1), by a compromise made by the insured employer with the insurance company after the cause of action arose, or (2) by a provision in the policy applying to the insured and limiting his right of action to 90 days after judgment. McGhee v. Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 457 (1921).

This section is unconstitutional so far as it relates to judgments recovered against an employer prior to its enactment.

Garrett v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 221; 22 L. D. 259 (C. P. 1911).

Before the enactment of this section it was held that, where by the terms of the policy the employer had no right of action against the insurance company until he had paid the amount of the judgment in money, the employe could not recover a judgment against the insurance company; the contract being one of indemnity only, to which the employe was not a party.

Garrett v. Insurance Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 197 (1910); affirming 9 N. P. n. s. 412; 20 L. D. 181 (C. P. 1909).

Section 9510-2. (Rights and remedies pass to personal representative in case of death of employee.) In case of the death of any employee by reason of the wrongful or negligent acts of his employer, or negligence or wrongful acts for which he is liable, then the personal representative or representatives of the deceased employee shall have all the rights and remedies that the employee would have had hereunder had death not resulted. (May 12, 1910, 101 v. 192.)

Section 9510-3. (Liability of insurance company for bodily injury or death. Cancellation or annulment void.) In respect to every contract of insurance made between an insurance company and any person, firm or corporation by which such person, firm or corporation is insured against loss or damage on account of the bodily injury or death by accident of any person for which loss or damage such person, firm or corporation is responsible, whenever a loss or damage occurs on account of a casualty covered by such contract of insurance, the liability of the insurance company shall become absolute, and the payment of said loss shall not depend upon the satisfaction by the assured of a final judgment against him for loss, or damage or death occasioned by such casualty. No such contract of insurance shall be cancelled or annulled by any agreement between the insurance company and the assured, after the said assured has become responsible for such loss or damage or death, and any such cancellation or annulment shall be void. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385.)

The claim of the injured person against the insured must be reduced to judgment against the insured before an action may be brought against the insurance company. Steinbach v. Maryland Casualty Co., 15 Ohio App. 392 (1921).

Section 9510-4. (When judgment creditor entitled to have insurance money applied to judgment.) Upon the recovery of a final judgment against any firm, person or corporation by any person, including administrators and executors, for loss or damage on account of bodily injury or death, if the defendant in such action was insured against loss or damage at the time when the right of action arose, the judgment creditor shall be entitled to have the insurance money provided for in the contract of insurance between the insurance company and the defendant applied to the satisfaction of the judgment, and if the judgment is not satisfied within thirty days after the date when it is rendered, the judgment creditor may proceed in a legal action against the defendant and the insurance company to reach and apply the insurance money to the satisfaction of the judgment. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 386.)

Section 9510-5. (Death of employee.) In case of the death of any employee by reason of the wrongful or negligent acts of his employer, or negligence or wrongful acts for which he is liable, then the personal representative or representatives of the deceased employee shall have all the rights and remedies that the employee would have had hereunder, had death not resulted. (May 12, 1910, 101 v. 192.)

Section 9510-6. (Interrogatories.) The plaintiff in any such action against any employer for damages for death or injury sustained by reason of the alleged wrongful act or negligence of such employer may attach to his petition interrogatories addressed to said defendant employer requiring him or it to fully disclose under oath, whether or not he or it carries any contract or policy of employees' liability insurance and if so, to disclose the name and location of the person, firm or corporation furnishing and providing the same together with the dates of the commencement and expiration of any such contract or policy and the amount thereof together with the terms and conditions of the same. (May 12, 1910, 101 v. 192.)

Section 9510-7. (Deposit required with superintendent of insurance.) An insurance company which is required by the provisions of paragraph two of section 9510, General Code, to deposit fifty thousand dollars of bonds with the superintendent of insurance may, in lieu of such deposit, make a deposit of one hundred thousand dollars, in securities in which the company may be permitted to invest its assets by the laws of the state in which it is incorporated, with the superintendent of insurance or other officer of another state designated or permitted by the laws of such state to receive such deposit, for the benefit and security of all its policyholders. When the superintendent of insurance of this state is satisfied by the certificate of such superintendent of insurance or other officer of such other state that such deposit has been made as provided herein, he shall accept such certificate in lieu of the deposit required of such company by paragraph two of section 9510, General Code, and such company shall not then be required to maintain the deposit in this state provided for in said paragraph two of section 9510. (110 v. 3, § 1.)

Section 9510-8. (Other states.) When any such company organized under the laws of this state is required by the retaliatory or other laws or regulations of any other state or district, to make a deposit with the superintendent of insurance of this state, for the benefit of its policyholders, as a condition to the right of such company to transact business in such other state or district, the superintendent of insurance is authorized and directed to receive such deposit in the amount that may be so required and in any securities in which the company may be permitted to invest its assets under the laws of this state. And said superintendent shall deliver to any company so making such deposit a certificate of such deposit, setting forth the securities so deposited and the trust upon which he holds the same. (110 v. 3, § 2.)

Section 9510-9. (Value of securities.) Any deposit under any provision of this act shall be made and maintained in securities worth the amount of the required deposit; and such securities may be exchanged from time to time for other securities of the prescribed character worth the amount of the required deposit. So long as the company continues solvent it shall receive the interest on the deposited securities. (110 v. 3, § 3.)

Section 9510-10. (Securities may be withdrawn.) Any deposit so made may be withdrawn by the company when the superintendent, upon examination of the books of the company and affidavits of its principal officers and other evidence, is satisfied and shall certify that all the obligations and liabilities which the deposit was made to secure have been paid or extinguished. (110 v. 3, § 4.)

Section 9511. (Limitation.) No company shall be organized to issue policies of insurance for more than one of the above four mentioned purposes, and no company organized for either one of such purposes shall issue policies of insurance of any other. But companies organized under subdivision two of the preceding section, which do the business of guaranteeing the fidelity of persons, holding places of public or private trust, who are required to or in their trust capacity do receive, hold, control, disburse public or private property, and guaranteeing the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, and executing and guaranteeing bonds and undertakings required or permitted in actions, proceedings or by law allowed, may indemnify bank depositors against loss by reason of bank suspension and failure. (R. S. Sec. 3641; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 407; April 1, 1902, 95 v. 81; April 21, 1898, 93 v. 170; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 138; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 30, 1885, 82 v. 185; R. S. 1880; April 14, 1874, 71 v. 65, § 8; S. & S. 299.)

Effect of § 9607-2 on this section, see note to § 9607-2.

DOMESTIC.

Section 9512. (Articles to be approved by attorney-general.) The articles of incorporation of a company formed for the purpose of insurance, other than life insurance, must be forwarded to the secretary of state, who shall submit them to the attorney-general for examination. If found by him to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, and not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, and of the United States, he shall certify and deliver them back to the secretary. He may reject any name or title of a company applied for when he deems it similar to one already appropriated, or likely to mislead the public. (R. S. Sec. 3632; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 1; S. & S. 205.)

Where the capital stock of a joint stock insurance company is less than the minimum authorized by § 9524, the articles can not be approved by the attorney-general.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, pp. 66, 37, 68.

A fire insurance company may amend its articles under § 8719.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 98.

Section 9513. (Articles to be recorded by secretary of state.) Upon the approval of the articles by the attorney-general and secretary of state, the latter shall cause them to be recorded, and copied in the manner provided for life insurance companies, and a copy thereof to be deposited with the superintendent of insurance. He shall withhold from the company the certificate of authority if its name is so similar to that of any other company as to mislead the public. (R. S. Sec. 3633; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 2; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 557, §§ 1, 2.)

A mutual company must embody the word "mutual" in its name.

§ 9574.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 444 (1892).

Section 9514. (Subscription to stock.) The persons named in the articles of incorporation, or a majority of them, shall be commissioners to open books for the subscription of stock in the company, at such times and places as they deem proper, and shall keep them open until the full amount specified in the articles is subscribed. (R. S. Sec. 3635; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 4; S. & S. 206.)

Subscription contract, provisions required in § 6373-12.

Organization expense limited, § 6373-12.

Deposit of funds by promoters, § 6373-12.

Subscription to stock, in general, see § 8630.

Enforcement of subscriptions, see § 8674.

A subscription to stock must be in writing. Fanning v. Insurance Co., 37 O. S. 339 (1881).

The incorporators are not required to file a certificate of subscription with the secretary of state. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 229.

The superintendent of insurance as commissioner under the Blue Sky Law may issue a certificate to incorporators who have made a contract with brokers or others to sell the stock on commission. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 147.

A verbal promise to take shares, while stock is being subscribed, which is necessary to authorize an organization, does not constitute the promisor a stockholder or a member of such corporation, and a promise to pay for such shares is without sufficient consideration. A recovery on such promise can not be had, in the absence of facts showing that the promisor is estopped from setting up such want of consideration. Fanning v. Insurance Co., 37 O. S. 339 (1881).

Section 9515. (Election of directors.) Within one month after the subscription books are filled, and the articles of incorporation filed with the secretary of state, a majority of subscribers to the stock shall hold a meeting for the election of not less than five nor more than twenty-one directors, who must be stockholders or members. At any time thereafter the number may be increased or diminished between the same limits, at the will of stockholders representing a majority of the stock or a majority of the members. Each member of a mutual company shall be entitled to one vote, and each stockholder in other companies, to one vote for each share of stock he holds. If they so provide in their by-laws, mutual companies may elect directors for the term of three years, the term of office of one-third of the number elected to expire each year, and those who receive the highest number of votes at the first election to serve for the longest term. (R. S. Sec. 3636; April 28, 1873, 70 v. 180, § 5; April 10, 1863, 60 v. 75, § 1; S. & S. 217; S. & S. 206.)

Section 9516. (Directors to elect officers.) From their own number the directors shall choose by ballot, a president, and also fill vacancies that arise in the board, or in the presidency thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3642; March 5, 1883, 80 v. 41; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 10; S. & S. 208.)

Section 9517. (By-laws and regulations.) When convened at the office of the company the board of directors, or a majority of them, may appoint a secretary and other officers or agents necessary for transacting its business, and pay such salaries and take such securities as they judge reasonable. They may ordain and establish by-laws and regulations, not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state and of the United States, as to them appear necessary for regulating and conducting the business of the company. New by-laws or regulations shall not take effect until approved by the superintendent of insurance and a copy is filed in his office. The directors shall keep full and correct records of their transactions, which, at all times, shall be open to the inspection of the members or stockholders. (R. S. Sec. 3642; March 5, 1883, 80 v. 41; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 10; S. & S. 208.)

Section 9518. (Investment of capital.) No company organized under this chapter or incorporated under any law of this state, for the purpose provided in section ninety-five hundred and twelve, shall invest its capital or any part thereof, otherwise than in:

1. United States bonds;
2. Bonds of the State of Ohio or of any other state in the United States;
3. Bonds of a county, township, municipal corporation, school district or other political subdivision in this or any other state in the United States, issued in conformity with law and upon which default in the payment of interest has not been made;

4. Bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real estate within this or any other state of the United States, worth double the amount loaned thereon. If the amount loaned exceeds one-half the value of the land mortgaged, exclusive of structures thereon, such structures must be insured in an authorized fire insurance company other than the company making the loan, in an amount not less than the difference between half the value of such land exclusive of structures, and the amount loaned, and the policy assigned to the mortgagee;

5. The stock of a national bank located in this state, organized under the provisions of an act of congress entitled "an act to provide a national currency, secured by the pledge of United States stocks, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved February 25, 1863, and acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto;

6. First mortgage bonds of railroads within this state, upon which default in the payment of the interest coupons has not been made within three years prior to the purchase thereof. (106 v. 115; R. S. Sec. 3637; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 59; April 22, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 6; S. & S. 206.)

Investment in car trust certificates or obligations is not authorized by this section.

2 Opins. Attys. Gen. 1128, 1131. (1882).

See notes to § 9343.

Section 9518-1. (Farm loan bonds legal investment.)

That in addition to the investments now provided by law, farm loan bonds issued under the provisions of the act of the congress of the United States, entitled "The Federal Farm Loan Act" approved July 17th, 1916, shall be a lawful investment for the capital and accumulations of insurance companies, organized under the laws of this state, both life and other than life, subject to the same regulations as are now provided for other investments by such companies. (107 v. 604.)

Section 9518-2. (Deposit of farm loan bonds.) Whenever a deposit of securities is required by law from a domestic insurance company, either life or other than life, or from a foreign insurance company, either life or other than life, as a condition upon which such company may be authorized to transact business in this state, farm loan bonds issued under the provisions of the act of the congress of the United States, entitled "The Federal Farm Loan Act," approved July 17, 1916, may be deposited for that purpose, in addition to other securities now specified by law. (107 v. 604, § 2.)

Section 9519. (Investment of accumulated funds or surplus.) Funds accumulated in the course of business, or surplus money over and above the capital stock of a company, may be loaned on or invested in the above named securities, or:

1. Bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real estate within this or any other state of the United States worth fifty per cent. more than the sum loaned thereon, exclusive of buildings, unless such buildings are insured in some company authorized to do business in this state, and the policy is transferred to a company making the investment;

2. Bonds of any state, county, township, municipal corporation, school district or other political subdivision in the United States, issued in conformity with law and upon which default in the payment of interest has not been made;

3. Stocks, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness of any solvent, dividend-paying institution incorporated under the laws of this or any other state, or of the United States, except its own stock;

4. Negotiable promissory notes maturing in not more than six months from the date thereof, secured by collateral security through the transfer of any of the classes of securities described in this or the preceding section, with absolute power of sale within twenty days after default in payment at maturity. (106 v. 115; R. S. Sec. 3638; April 22, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 6.)

See note to § 9357.

Investment in bonds of a railroad company which has not completed its road is not authorized.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1905-1906, p. 81.

Investment in car trust certificates or obligations is not authorized by this section.

2 Opins. Attys. Gen. 1128, 1131 (1882).

Section 9520. (Limitations on certain investments.) No company shall own more than one-fourth of the capital stock of a national bank, nor invest in or loan on the stocks and bonds, both included, of any railroad company, to an extent exceeding one-fifth of its own capital, nor in the aggregate shall the investment in and loan on all railroad property exceed one-fourth of its capital and surplus. Not more than one-half of its capital shall be loaned on mortgages of real estate, as above provided for the investment thereof, and not more than one-tenth of the capital actually existing of a company shall be invested in a single mortgage. The current market value of stocks, bonds, or other evidences of indebtedness above mentioned, in which the accumulations or surplus money over and above the capital stock of an insurance company may be loaned or invested, must be at all times during the continuance of the loans at least twenty per cent more than the sum loaned thereon. (107 v. 156; R. S. Sec. 3639; April 22, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 6.)

Section 9521. (Liability of directors.) If an investment or loan be made in a manner not authorized by this chapter, the directors who make or authorize it shall be personally liable to the stockholders for loss occasioned thereby. (R. S. Sec. 3639; April 22, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 6.)

Section 9522. (Examination.) When a company notifies the superintendent of insurance that the proceedings required by section ninety-five hundred and twenty have been had, he shall make an examination of its condition, and if he finds that the capital required of the company has been paid in and is possessed by it in money, or in stocks, bonds, and mortgages as required by this chapter, he shall so certify. Or he may cause such examination to be made by a disinterested person specially appointed by him for the purpose, who shall certify his finding to the superintendent under oath. The signers of the articles of incorporation, or the officers of the company, shall also certify, under oath, that the capital exhibited is bona fide, its property. Such certificates shall be filed in the office of the superintendent. Thereupon the company shall file with the superintendent a certified copy of its articles of incorporation and approval of the attorney-general, and a copy of its by-laws and constitution. If the superintendent finds that the company is duly organized and has complied with the law entitling it to transact business and issue policies, unless he also finds the name assumed by it so nearly similar to that of another company doing business in this state as to lead to confusion or uncertainty on the part of the public, he shall furnish the company with his license reciting that it has complied with the law and is entitled to transact the business authorized, describing it, which license shall be the authority to commence business and issue policies. (R. S. Sec. 3640; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 156; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 7; S. & S. 207.)

Section 9523. (Renewal of license.) So long as such company complies with the law, the superintendent, annually upon its application, shall renew such license. Certified copies of which may be used in evidence for or against the company in all actions. (R. S. Sec. 3640; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 156; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 7; S. & S. 207.)

Section 9524. (Capital of joint stock companies.) Except as hereinafter provided, no joint stock insurance company shall be organized under this chapter, or permitted to do business in this state with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, which must be paid up before the company can transact business. But on the payment of twenty-five per cent of its capital stock, a live stock company may do business. (R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

An association organized under § 9593 is not authorized to transact business on the "joint stock" plan.

State v. Association, 50 O. S. 145, 150 (1893).

The capital stock must be full paid before the company is authorized to commence business.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 221 (1889).

Section 9525. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

Section 9526. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

Section 9527. (Annual cash premiums collectable in advance.) Mutual fire insurance companies organized under this chapter may thereafter charge and collect in advance upon their policies a full annual premium in cash, but such policies shall not compel subscribers, insured or assured, to renew a policy nor pay a second or further annual or term premium. (R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

Section 9528. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

Section 9529. (Mutual associations excepted.) Nothing in sections ninety-five hundred and twenty-four, ninety-five hundred and twenty-five, ninety-five hundred and twenty-six, ninety-five hundred and twenty-seven and ninety-five hundred and twenty-eight shall apply to associations for the mutual protection of their members, against loss by fire, organized as provided by law. (R. S. Sec. 3634; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 155; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 301; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 18, 1890, 87 v. 224; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273; R. S. 1880; May 14, 1878, 75 v. 561, § 3; S. & S. 205.)

The plan of mutual insurance companies provided for by §§ 9524 to 9527 differs radically from the system of mutual insurance contemplated by § 9593 et seq.

State v. Association, 50 O. S. 145, 150 (1893).

Section 9530. (Transfers of stock.) Transfers of stock may be made on the books of the company by any shareholder, or his legal representative, subject to such reasonable restrictions as the directors make in the by-laws, and also, to any provisions of the laws of this state relating thereto. (R. S. Sec. 3646; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 12; S. & S. 208.)

Section 9531. (How stock increased.) When in the opinion of its directors, a company organized under this chapter requires an increased amount of capital, if authorized by the holders of two-thirds of the stock, they shall file with the secretary of state a certificate setting forth the amount of desired increase. Thereafter, the company shall be entitled to have the increased amount of capital fixed by such certificate. The examination of securities composing the capital stock thus increased shall be made as provided by law for capital stock originally paid in. (R. S. Sec. 3647; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 13; S. & S. 209.)

A fire insurance company can not reduce its capital stock under G. C. § 8700.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, pp. 110, 80, 126.

Nor can any changes be made in its capital stock except as authorized by this section. The number of its shares can not be increased by amendment, under § 8719.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 126.

A surety or bonding company is not authorized to reduce its capital stock. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 28.

Section 9532. (Dividends payable from surplus profits only.) No fire insurance company organized under a law of this state shall make a dividend except from the surplus profits arising from its business, and in estimating such profits there shall be reserved therefrom:

First. An unearned premium fund computed in accordance with the requirements of section ninety-five hundred and ninety.

Second. All sums due the company on bonds and mortgages, bonds, stocks, and book accounts, of which no part of the principal nor the interest thereon has been paid during the preceding year, and on which an action has not been commenced, or which, after judgment obtained thereon, has remained more than two years unsatisfied, and on which interest has not been paid.

Third. All interest due or accrued, and remaining unpaid, for which the company does not hold securities as hereinbefore provided. (R. S. Sec. 3648; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 443; April 10, 1900, 94 v. 121; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 274; R. S. 1880; 70 v. 147, § 14; S. & S. 209.)

A surplus dividend fund, no part of which is payable to policyholders as a cash payment, but which is applied as a credit to reduce the premium upon reinsurance or renewals, and which is otherwise unclaimable, is not a debt which may be deducted from credits in the tax return of the company.

French v. Insurance Co., 12 L. D. 183 (1901).

Nor is the sum set aside as unearned premiums, as provided in this section, a debt.

Insurance Co. v. Cappelar, 38 O. S. 560, 568 (1883).

See Hynicka v. Insurance Co., 4 N. P. n. s. 297; 17 L. D. 80 (1906).

Section 9533. (Dividends contrary to law.) A dividend made contrary to the provisions of the preceding section shall subject the company which makes it to a forfeiture of its charter, and each stockholder who receives it to a liability to the creditors of the company to the extent of the dividend received, besides the other penalties and punishments prescribed by law. (R. S. Sec. 3648; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 443; April 10, 1900, 94 v. 121; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 274; R. S. 1880; 70 v. 147, § 14; S. & S. 209.)

Section 9534. (Scrip dividends; interpretation of words.) The two preceding sections shall not prevent the declaration of scrip dividends by participating or mutual companies, yet no such dividend shall be declared to an amount in excess of, or be paid except from profits, after reserving all sums above provided, including the whole amount of premiums on unexpired risks. The word "year," wherever used in this and the two preceding sections shall mean the calendar year, and the "profits" of a mutual insurance company are that portion of its cash funds not required for payment of losses and expenses nor set apart for any purpose required by law. (R. S. Sec. 3648; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 443; April 10, 1900, 94 v. 121; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 274; R. S. 1880; 70 v. 147, § 14; S. & S. 209.)

Section 9535. (Accumulation of permanent fund.) In its by-laws any such company may provide for the accumulation of a permanent fund, by reserving a portion of the net profits, to be invested and be a reserve for the security of the insured. Such permanent fund in such sum as may be determined by the board of directors shall be separate and apart from such surplus as may be accumulated in the discretion of the company or its board of directors. The permanent fund so accumulated shall be used for the payment of losses and expenses, whenever the cash funds of the company in excess of an amount equal to its liabilities are exhausted. (107 v. 649; R. S. Sec. 3648; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 443; April 10, 1900, 94 v. 121; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 274; R. S. 1880; 70 v. 147, § 14; S. & S. 209.)

Section 9536. (What real estate company may hold.) No company organized under this chapter shall purchase, hold, or convey real estate, except for the purposes and in the manner herein set forth:

1. Such as is requisite for its convenient accommodation in the transaction of its business.

2. Such as is mortgaged to it in good faith, by way of security for loans previously contracted, or for money due.

3. Such as is conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in its legitimate business, or for money due.

4. Such as is purchased at sales upon judgment, decree, or mortgages obtained or made for such debts. (R. S. Sec. 3649; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 15; S. & S. 209.)

The restrictions of this section do not apply to foreign companies.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 617 (1894).

Section 9537. (Disposal of real estate.) Real estate so acquired, but which is not necessary for the accommodation of the company in the transaction of its business, shall be disposed of within two years after title thereto is acquired, unless the company procures a certificate from the superintendent of insurance that its interests will suffer materially by a forced sale thereof. The sale then may be postponed for such period as the superintendent directs in such certificate. (R. S. Sec. 3649; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 15; S. & S. 209.)

Section 9538. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3650; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888; 85 v. 273, 275; April 15, 1882, 79 v. 133; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 16.)

Section 9539. (For what purposes debt may be created.)

No such company shall borrow money or create a debt unless for the purpose of necessary office buildings, to continue beyond the period when such an assessment may be collected and applied to the payment thereof, and no member shall be assessed for liabilities incurred prior to his membership. (R. S. Sec. 3650; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888; 85 v. 273, 275; April 15, 1882, 79 v. 133; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 16.)

Section 9540. (Enforcement of assessments.)

If a member neglects for thirty days after the publication of such notice, and after demand for payment, to pay the sum assessed upon him as his proportion of such loss, the directors may sue for and recover the whole amount of contingent liability, with costs of suit. Execution shall only issue for assessments and costs as they accrue, and every such execution must be accompanied by a list of losses for which the assessment is made. If the whole amount of liability is insufficient to pay the loss occasioned by any fire or fires, the sufferers insured toward making good their respective losses, shall receive a proportional share of the whole amount of such liability, according to the sums by them respectively insured. No member ever shall be required to pay for a loss occasioned by fire, or inland navigation, more than the whole amount of such liability. (R. S. Sec. 3651; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888; 85 v. 273, 275; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 16.)

Extent of liability and defenses, see note to § 9607-16.

Section 9541. (How assessments and notice proved.)

In actions for the recovery of assessments duly levied by the directors of a mutual fire insurance company of this state, or for money due on the liability of the members of such a company, the official statement of its president or secretary, under seal, and sworn to, shall be received in court as evidence of the facts essential for making it, and that the assessment, for which an action is commenced was duly levied, and notice thereof given. (R. S. Sec. 3652; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888; 85 v. 273, 276; R. S. 1880; 39 v. 35, § 1; S. & C. 352.)

It has been held that parol evidence of the making of an assessment, which is denied in the answer, is inadmissible, unless the proper foundation is laid for introducing secondary evidence, and that the records of the company, or a duly examined and proven copy thereof, showing the action of the proper authorities in making the assessment should be produced, or its absence accounted for.

Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 6 C. C. 1; 3 C. D. 321 (1891).

Section 9542. (Accident companies authorized.) Companies may be organized for the special purpose of insuring persons against accidental personal injury or loss of life, while traveling by railroad, steamboat, or other mode of conveyance, and making all and every insurance connected with accidental loss of life, or personal injury caused by accident, of any description; against expenses and loss of time occasioned by sickness or other disability, on such terms and conditions for such periods of time, and confined to such countries, localities, and persons, as may be provided for in the by-laws of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3670; May 1, 1885, 82 v. 210; R. S. 1880; February 7, 1865, 62 v. 12, § 1; S. & S. 230.)

Mutual protective accident associations, see § 9445 et seq.

Companies organized under this section must have the amount of capital required by § 9524.

2 Opins. Attys. Gen. 1018 (1881).

Nature of accident insurance. A policy issued by an accident insurance company, as applicable to injuries resulting in death, is but a contract of life insurance limited to specified risks.

Insurance Co. v. Sayler, 2 N. P. n. s. 305, 309; 15 L. D. 137 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1904); affirming, 1 N. P. n. s. 217.

Life and accident insurance is a contract whereby one party, for a stipulated consideration, agrees to indemnify another against injuries by accident, or death from any cause not excepted in the contract.

State v. Railway, 68 O. S. 9, 30 (1903).

POLICIES.

Premiums. A condition in a policy that "the actual payment of the respective premiums on the date when due or within seven days thereafter, whether the insured is entitled to indemnity at the time or not is a condition precedent to the renewal of this policy for another term" is not a condition precedent to recovery of indemnity for injuries received after payment of one premium and before the next premium fell due.

Smith v. Assurance Co., 12 N. P. n. s. 97; 22 L. D. 763 (C. P. 1911).

Where a railway employe assigned his wages for several months, for premiums falling due in monthly installments, the policy providing that it should be "binding only for such insurance period as is covered by an installment of premium actually paid" and that the policy should be void if the insured "shall fail to leave in the hands of the paymaster any installment of premium as it shall fall due" and after the premium had been paid for one month the employe left the employ of the railway, drawing all of his wages, and was injured the day following the expiration of the period actually paid for in money, it was held that the policy was forfeited.

Herbert v. Insurance Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 7; 13 C. D. 225 (1901); aff'd, no rev., 68 O. S. 687.

Accident insurance premiums are not necessities under G. C. § 12946-1 and an assignment of future wages for premiums is invalid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 848.

Risk. Provisions of policy.

Death or injury "through external, violent and accidental means."

Held to be within provision:—

Death by accidental drowning.

Association v. Hubbell, 56 O. S. 516 (1897).

Injury caused by a fall due to a temporary and unexpected physical disorder.

Casualty Co. v. Bird, 18 C. C. 488; 10 C. D. 211 (1899).

Where an insured was seen on a steamer in midocean in the evening, but was not found the next day, although diligent search was made, and has never been seen since, the presumption is that the man died by drowning, either from accident or the violence of another, the presumption being against suicide.

Insurance Co. v. Rosch, 3 C. C. n. s. 156; 13 C. D. 491 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 561.

Dilation of the heart following a cold water bath is not an accident, where there is no evidence that anything occurred which the insured had not planned, except the dilation and its consequences. Casualty Co. v. Johnson, 91 O. S. 155 (1914); reversing, 1 Ohio App. 22, 15 C. C. n. s. 513; 24 C. D. 76.

Freezing to death through exposure is an accident. Casualty Co. v. Wheeler, 13 Ohio App. 140; 30 O. C. A. 257 (1919); motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 304.

"Voluntary exposure to unnecessary danger." This term does not embrace every exposure of the assured that might have been avoided by the exercise of due care on his part. It relates to dangers of a substantial character of which he at the time had knowledge, and to which he purposely exposed himself, intending at the time to assume all the risks.

Association v. Hubbell, 56 O. S. 516 (1897).

Attempting to cross slough in public road is not, when.

See Association v. Hubbell, 56 O. S. 516 (1897).

The above term does not include voluntary exposure to a necessary danger or involuntary exposure to an unnecessary danger.

Insurance Co. v. Gulick, 1 C. C. n. s. 477; 15 C. D. 395 (1903).

A provision in a policy limiting the liability of the insurer for injury resulting "from exposure to obvious risk of injury or obvious danger" is valid. Where the issue is whether the injury occurred while the insured was exposing himself to obvious danger, and there is no substantial conflict in the testimony, but the testimony discloses a variety of circumstances from which different minds might reasonably arrive at different conclusions, the issue should be submitted to the jury. Hickman v. Insurance Co., 92 O. S. 87 (1915).

Entering or leaving moving conveyances. A policy contained this exception:—"This insurance does not cover entering or trying to enter or leave a moving conveyance using steam as a motive power." A freight train, moving slowly, overtook the insured while walking along a railroad track, the ground being slippery and icy, and it occurred to him to step on the caboose and ride. As he was about to step on, but before he touched the car he slipped and fell and was injured by the rear wheels. Held, that his acts, after determining to get on the car, were within the exception.

Huston v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 246 (1902).

Death or injury due to disease. Death caused by blood poisoning due to a cut or scratch on finger, accidentally sustained, renders insurance company liable. The death is due to accident, not disease.

Rheinheimer v. Insurance Co., 77 O. S. 360 (1907); distinguishing, Insurance Co. v. Dorney, 68 O. S. 151.

Where the death of the insured was due to rupture of the stomach, the coat of the stomach having been weakened at the point of rupture by a gastric ulcer which had partially healed, and the insured had over-exerted himself by lifting a heavy stone, the insurance company was held not liable.

Insurance Co. v. Dorney, 68 O. S. 151 (1903).

A stipulation for non-liability for death or injury due to disease is available as a defense notwithstanding §§ 9391 and 9392.

Insurance Co. v. Dorney, 68 O. S. 151 (1903).

Hazardous occupation. A provision reducing the amount of the policy where the insured is injured while engaged in an occupation classed by the company as more hazardous than the occupation stated in the application, does not apply to an isolated act performed in an emergency. Fidelity Co. v. Patty, 2 Ohio App. 312; 19 C. C. n. s. 392 (1913); motion to certify record overruled, 16 O. L. R. 466.

Double indemnity. A provision for double indemnity in case of injury while riding in a passenger elevator does not apply where the insured is injured while on a hand hoist or lift for use of employes, so constructed that only the person operating it can ride thereon. Ray v. Insurance Co., 19 N. P. n. s. 140 (1916).

Misrepresentation by insured. In an action to recover an amount payable on the death of the insured, a clause avoiding the policy for misrepresentation of weekly earnings is no defense. Such clause applies only to the weekly indemnity of the insured in case of injury, and not to loss in case of death.

Insurance Co. v. Leibus, 8 C. C. n. s. 201; 18 C. D. 700 (1906).

Hernia. Where a policy excepted death caused by hernia from the risk, the company was held liable where an injury from an accident resulted in hernia and caused the death of the insured.

Miner v. Insurance Co., 2 N. P. 103; 3 L. D. 289 (C. P. 1895).

Notice. A provision in a policy that written notice to the company within 30 days from the date of injury is of the essence of the contract will ordinarily be upheld. But where, during such 30-day period, the insured was justified in believing that the injury was trivial, but thereafter it developed that the injury was serious and the insured gave written notice immediately upon learning of its serious character, the question whether the notice was given in time is one of fact for the jury. Employers Co. v. Roehm, 99 O. S. 343 (1919); American Casualty Co. v. Roehm, 99 O. S. 350 (1919); affirming, 10 Ohio App. 418; 29 O. C. A. 486; not following Insurance Co. v. Myers, 62 O. S. 529.

Under a policy requiring notice within ten days of the accident, and, in case of death, a notice within ten days thereof, it was held that the giving notice of accident by the insured was not a condition precedent to a recovery by the beneficiary after death. Gibbs v. Commercial Travellers, 14 Ohio App. 439; 32 O. C. A. 197 (1920); motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 15.

Where the beneficiaries had no knowledge of the existence of the policy, until four months after the death of the insured, and notice was given immediately upon its discovery, the condition of the policy for immediate notice was held to be complied with.

Accident Co. v. Card, 13 C. C. 154; 7 C. D. 504 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 583.

Failure to give notice within ten days after the accident, as required by the policy, is excused where the insured was in a state of delirium during all of such time.

Indemnity Co. v. Fletcher, 5 C. C. 633; 3 C. D. 308 (1891).

Immediate notice is in time, if given with due diligence in view of the circumstances.

Indemnity Co. v. Fletcher, 5 C. C. 633; 3 C. D. 308 (1891).

That the local agent of the insurance company, who had written the insurance, heard of the accidental death of the insured, is not notice to the company.

Accident Co. v. Card, 13 C. C. 154; 7 C. D. 504 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 583.

Failure of the insured to inform any one of the existence of the policy, so that immediate notice could be given, is not such negligence as will relieve the company from liability.

Accident Co. v. Card, 13 C. C. 154; 7 C. D. 504 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 583.

The proofs of death need not give every detail of the accident. Affidavits showing in general the manner of death is sufficient.

Accident Co. v. Card, 13 C. C. 154; 7 C. D. 504 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 583.

Total disability. Under a clause providing for certain benefits if the insured is "totally unable to labor" or "to earn a livelihood in any employment", evidence that an insured had lost his right hand and was unemployed during the period for which benefits are claimed is sufficient for submission to the jury of the question whether he is able to earn a livelihood in any employment. Hughes v. Railway, 15 N. P. n. s. 604 (1914).

Forfeiture of policy in case of autopsy without notice. A condition of forfeiture in the event of an autopsy without notice to the company is unreasonable and invalid. Gibbs v. Commercial Travelers, 14 Ohio App. 439; 32 O. C. A. 197 (1920); motion to certify record overruled, 19 O. L. R. 15.

ACTIONS.

Provision in policy limiting time within which suit may be brought. Failure to bring suit, within the time limited in the policy, is not excused by ignorance on the part of the beneficiary that the death was caused by accident.

Coldham v. Insurance Co., 2 N. P. 358; 2 L. D. 314 (1894); affirmed. 8 C. C. 620; 4 C. D. 548; 57 O. S. 657.

Pleading. The plaintiff must set forth in the petition the facts which resulted in the death of the insured.

Koch v. Insurance Co., 7 O. L. R. 643 (1910).

But a judgment will not be reversed for failure to allege that death was caused solely by the accident, where the answer affirmatively alleged another cause.

Insurance Co. v. Leibus, 8 C. C. n. s. 201; 18 C. D. 700 (1906).

Evidence and burden of proof. The burden is on the insurance company to prove, by affirmative evidence, breach of conditions avoiding the policy.

Casualty Co. v. Bird, 18 C. C. 488; 10 C. D. 211 (1899).

Insurance Co. v. Gulick, 1 C. C. n. s. 477; 15 C. D. 395 (1903).

Contra, Armstrong v. Insurance Co., 4 Ohio App. 46; 22 C. C. n. s. 129 (1914); holding that where the only issue is whether the insured died as the result of "external, violent and accidental means" "the burden is on the plaintiff to show affirmatively that it was from one of the causes specified.

An autopsy paper signed by physicians making a post mortem examination may be used to refresh the memory of witnesses, but is not admissible in evidence where the signers had not been placed under oath and the cross examination privilege accorded. Armstrong v. Insurance Co., 4 Ohio App. 46; 22 C. C. n. s. 129 (1914).

Evidence of sudden faintness, immediately preceding a fall and injury, do not conclusively prove that the fall was caused by vertigo.

Casualty Co. v. Bird, 18 C. C. 488; 10 C. D. 211 (1899).

Section 9543. (Deposit of accident companies.) When a company so organized desires to do business in another state, by the laws of which, to qualify it therefor, it is required to make a deposit of securities assigned in trust for the benefit of its policy-holders with an officer of this state, the state treasurer shall receive such deposit, and issue therefor to the company his receipt, giving a pertinent description of the securities and a certificate of the market value thereof. He also shall issue a like certificate to the superintendent of insurance, who shall place it on file in his office. Such company may exchange these securities for other like securities, in whole or part, as far as its business requires, and wholly withdraw them if it discontinues business in such other state. Such changes or withdrawals of securities at once shall be duly certified by the treasurer to the superintendent of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3670; May 1, 1885, 82 v. 210; R. S. 1880; February 7, 1865, 62 v. 12, § 1; S. & S. 230.)

Where a company discontinues business in other states it may withdraw the deposit. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 441.

Section 9544. (Consolidation.) When a joint stock fire and marine insurance company of this state, determines by a vote of the holders of two-thirds of its stock to consolidate and make joint stock with another like company or companies engaged in or incorporated for like business, and each agrees by such vote to the consolidation, the companies by a vote of the holders of a majority of the stock so consolidated, may determine under which corporate organization or articles of association of the consolidating companies, and under what name, their future business shall be conducted. (R. S. Sec. 3671; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 1.)

This section does not authorize consolidation of an Ohio company with a foreign company. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 69.

Section 9545. (Rights and duties of consolidated companies.) Upon filing with the superintendent of insurance a certificate of such consolidation, the companies thenceforth shall be consolidated under the corporate organization or articles of association and corporate name chosen. Thereupon also all franchises, rights, equities, property, and estate, of whatever name or nature, belonging to or vested in either of the consolidating companies, immediately, upon and by the act of such consolidation shall become the property and estate of and be vested in the consolidated company, and the corporate existence of the consolidating companies thenceforth cease, and be merged in the consolidation. Such consolidated company shall have the exclusive right and power to demand, sue for, collect, convey, and dispose of the rights, equities, property, and estate aforesaid, or any part thereof, under its own name, and all debts, liabilities, and obligations of the consolidating companies shall be assumed and paid by it. (R. S. Sec. 3671; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 1.)

Section 9546. (Distribution of stock of consolidated company.) Upon such a consolidation the just and true value of each outstanding share of the capital stock of each of the consolidating companies shall be ascertained by their respective directors through a suitable valuation of all the assets and liabilities thereof at the time of the consolidation, and new shares of the consolidated company be apportioned to each stockholder, equal to the sum ascertained to be the just and true value of his shares in each or either of the consolidating companies. The shares thus apportioned shall be substituted for his original shares, and all certificates of shares in the consolidating companies must be surrendered when the new certificates of the shares so apportioned are issued. But a stockholder in either of the companies so consolidating who refuses to agree thereto, shall be entitled to receive for the stock by him owned its just market value at the time thereof, to be paid to him previous to such consolidation. (R. S. Sec. 3672; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 2.)

Section 9547. (Election of directors.) Immediately upon the consolidation of such companies, their directors shall elect from their members the directors for the consolidated company, who shall serve until their successors are elected and qualified. (R. S. Sec. 3673; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 3.)

Section 9548. (Capital stock limited.) The capital stock of such consolidated company may be equal to, but by virtue of such consolidation, shall not exceed the aggregate authorized capital of the consolidating companies. (R. S. Sec. 3674; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 4.)

Section 9549. (Filing of certificate of consolidation.) Within thirty days after such consolidation a certificate, setting forth the fact thereof, and the name and organization adopted thereby, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 3675; January 31, 1873, 70 v. 19, § 5.)

Section 9550. Repealed. (104 v. 202.)

Section 9551. Repealed. (104 v. 202.)

Section 9552. Repealed. (104 v. 202.)

Section 9553. Repealed. (104 v. 202.)

Section 9554. (Bonds may be approved by probate judge.) An insurance company which, by the terms of its charter, is required to have its official bonds approved by a judge of the common pleas court at its option may have them approved by the probate judge of the county in which the office of the company is located. (R. S. Sec. 3685; February 2, 1857, 54 v. 17, § 1; S. & C. 363.)

Section 9555. (May reinsure risks.) A fire, marine, fidelity, accident, plate-glass, boiler or other insurance company organized or existing under or by virtue of the laws of this state, by and with the approval of the superintendent of insurance, may reinsure all risks undertaken by it in any company authorized by law to transact a similar class of insurance business in this state. Nothing herein shall prevent such a company from reinsuring any risks or fractional parts thereof not situated in this state in any company or companies duly licensed by such superintendent or like authority, of the state in which such risks may be located, to transact the business of insurance in that state. (April 26, 1904, 97 v. 446, § 1; R. S. § 3691-13; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 179.)

Reinsurance in unlicensed foreign companies prohibited: § 5439.

A contract of reinsurance of liability risks made in another state by a foreign company which has not made the deposit required by § 9510 is a violation of the Ohio laws for which its license to do other business in Ohio may be revoked. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 459 (1920).

Property located outside of Ohio can not be reinsured in unlicensed foreign companies.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 934 (1903).

Reinsurance defined.

Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 38 O. S. 11, 15 (1882).

Where an insurance company, after having taken a risk and reinsured in another company to indemnify itself against loss on its policy, discharges its liability by payment of a less sum than that for which the original insurance was effected, the sum so paid by it is the amount of damage sustained, and the measure of indemnity to be recovered from the reinsuring company; provided such sum is within the amount of the reinsurance policy, and does not exceed the amount of actual loss, and such policy contains no condition for prorating loss or limiting liability.

Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 38 O. S. 11 (1882).

A reinsurance policy, containing a condition that "the insurance may also be, at any time, terminated at the option of the company, by giving notice to that effect, and refunding a ratable proportion of the premium" is not separable. It applies to the entire reinsurance and does not permit the cancelling of one policy only.

Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 13 L. D. 226 (1902).

Section 9556. (Business extended to damage by water, lightning, etc.) All companies organized or admitted for the purpose of insuring against loss or damage by fire, may insure against loss or damage by water, caused by the breakage or leakage of sprinklers, pumps, tanks, water pipes and fixtures connected therewith, and by lightning, explosions from gas, dynamite, gunpowder, and other like explosions, and tornadoes: and may also insure against loss by the theft of automobiles and accessories, and against damage thereto from this cause. (June 9, 1911, 102 v. 359, § 1; R. S. Sec. 3641a; April 9, 1891, 88 v. 304; March 27, 1884, 81 v. 93; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 170.)

Effect of § 9607-2 on this section, see note to § 9607-2.

RECIPROCAL OR INTER-INSURANCE CONTRACTS.

Section 9556-1. (Exchange of reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts.) Individuals, partnerships and corporations of this state, herein designated subscribers, are authorized to exchange reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts with each other, and with individuals, partnerships and corporations of other states, districts, provinces and countries, providing indemnity among themselves from any loss which may be insured against by any fire insurance company or association under other provisions of the law. Such contracts and the exchange thereof and such subscribers, their attorneys and representatives shall be regulated by this act and by no other insurance law unless such law is referred to in this act, and no law hereafter enacted shall apply to them, unless they be expressly designated therein. (107 v. 747, § 1.)

This section relates to fire insurance only. State v. Gearheart, 103 O. S. 263 (1921).

Section 9556-2. (How contracts executed.) Such contracts may be executed by an attorney or other representative, herein designated "attorney," duly authorized by and acting for such subscribers under powers of attorney, and such attorney may be a corporation. The principal office of such attorney shall be maintained at such place as may be designated by the subscribers in the powers of attorney. (107 v. 747, § 2.)

Section 9556-3. (Schedule of fees. Declaration under oath filed with superintendent.) Every such attorney shall pay to the superintendent of insurance for the use of the state the following fees:

For filing declaration, twenty-five dollars;

For filing each financial statement required by this act, twenty dollars;

For filing each certificate of license, and certified copy thereof, two dollars;

For each copy of a paper filed in his office, twenty cents per folio;

For affixing the seal of office and certifying any paper, one dollar.

The attorney shall file with the superintendent of insurance a declaration, verified by his oath, or when the attorney is a corporation, by the oath of its duly authorized officers, setting forth:

(a) The name of the attorney and the name or designation under which such contracts are issued, which name or designation shall not be so similar to any name or designation adopted by an attorney, or by any insurance organization in the United States, prior to the adoption of such name of designation by the attorney, as to confuse or deceive, unless such other attorney or organization shall consent thereto in writing.

(b) The location of the principal office.

(c) The kind or kinds of insurance to be effected.

(d) A copy of each form of policy, contract or agreement under or by which such insurance is to be effected.

(e) A copy of the form of power of attorney, under which such insurance is to be effected.

(f) That applications have been made for indemnity upon at least seventy-five separate risks, aggregating not less than one and one-half million dollars, represented by executed contracts or bona fide applications to become concurrently effective.

(g) That there is in the possession of such attorney assets of not less than fifty thousand dollars, available for the payment of losses.

(h) A financial statement in form prescribed for the annual statement.

(i) The instrument authorizing service of process as provided for in this act. (107 v. 747, § 3.)

Section 9556-4. (Action on contract; procedure.) Action on any contract of indemnity made by such attorney and actions to recover taxes, and all other actions, may be brought against the attorney in the county where the cause of action arises, or where the claimant resides. In any such action against such attorney summons and process shall be served on the superintendent of insurance and must be made in duplicate, and when so made shall have the same force and effect as if it had been served on such attorney and his subscribers personally; and judgment shall be rendered accordingly. By receipt of his license, every such attorney shall be held to have appointed the superintendent of insurance the agent and attorney for himself and for his subscribers to accept service of such summons and process, and such authority shall continue so long as any liability remains outstanding in this state against the attorney or his subscribers on any such contracts of indemnity issued by any such attorney or his subscribers. Upon filing his declaration the attorney shall deliver to the superintendent of insurance an instrument executed by him for and on behalf of all his subscribers, stipulating the authority aforesaid relating to actions and process. When any such summons or other process is served on the superintendent of insurance, he shall forthwith forward by registered mail prepaid one of the duplicate copies, directed to the attorney at his principal office as designated in his declaration or amendment thereof. The party commencing such action shall, at the time of such service pay to the superintendent of insurance for the use of the state a fee of two dollars, which shall be refunded to such party as part of the taxable costs, if he prevail in the action. (107 v. 748, § 4.)

Section 9556-5. (Amount of reserve fund to be maintained.) Every such attorney shall create and maintain a reserve fund equal to fifty per cent. of the amount of advance premiums or deposits received and receivable on unexpired contracts of indemnity running one year or less from date of issue and a pro rata amount of premiums or deposits received or receivable on unexpired contracts of indemnity running more than one year from date of issue. If, upon examination or otherwise, it appears to the superintendent of insurance that the assets, invested as permitted by the laws regulating the investments of insurance companies, and moneys accumulated by any such attorney, after deducting therefrom a reserve fund computed as herein provided, are less than the liabilities incurred and unpaid, such reserve fund shall be restored within thirty days from the service of a requisition for that purpose by the superintendent of insurance upon the attorney. If any such attorney or other person shall make any advancements to restore any such impairment, the claim for the same against his subscribers shall be deferred to claims for losses. If such reserve fund is not restored as so required, the superintendent of insurance may revoke the license of the attorney. (107 v. 749, § 5.)

Section 9556-6. (Annual financial statement filed with superintendent.) Every such attorney shall file with the superintendent of insurance on or before March 1 of each year, a financial statement for the year ending December 31 of the year preceding, on form furnished by the superintendent of insurance, which shall conform as nearly as may be to the form of statement, from time to time, adopted by the National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, and containing such exhibits of the condition and transactions of the attorney as the superintendent of insurance, in such form and otherwise, may reasonably prescribe. Such statement shall be verified by the oath of the attorney, or of the principal officer thereof if the attorney is a corporation. Such attorney shall not be required to furnish lists of names and addresses of subscribers, except in case of an unpaid final judgment. (107 v. 749, § 6.)

Section 9556-7. (Contents of statement; computation of tax; payment.) In such annual statement the attorney shall set forth the gross amount of premiums or deposits received by him during the preceding calendar year on contracts of indemnity covering risks within the state. He shall also set forth therein, in separate items premiums paid for cancellations, premiums or deposits returned and credited ratably to subscribers, and consideration received for reinsurance during such year. The superintendent of insurance shall compute a tax of $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., and in case of fire insurance an additional one-half of one per cent. fire marshal tax on the balance of such gross amount of premiums or deposits, after deducting premiums and deposits so returned and credited and considerations received for reinsurances, and prior to November first mail to such attorney, at his principal office, designated in his declaration or amendment thereof, a statement of the amount of the tax so charged, which amount the attorney shall pay to the treasurer of state for the use of the state on or before December first of such year, or within thirty days after receipt of such notice. No further taxes shall be imposed upon such attorney or his subscribers or their representatives for the privilege of transacting business in the state. If an attorney shall cease doing business in the state, he shall thereupon make report to the superintendent of insurance of the premiums or deposits subject to taxation, not theretofore reported, and forthwith pay to the superintendent of insurance a tax thereon computed according to law. If such attorney fail to make any report for taxation, or fail to pay any tax as herein required, his subscribers shall be liable to the state for such unpaid taxes, and a penalty of not more than twenty-five per cent. per annum after demand therefor. Service of process in any action to recover such tax or penalty shall be made according to the requirements of the law relating to actions against the attorney and his subscribers. (107 v. 749, § 7.)

Section 9556-8. (Examination by superintendent of books and affairs; expense.) The superintendent of insurance may make examinations of the books and affairs of any such attorney, including the records of names of subscribers, and the attorney and his deputies shall facilitate such examinations and furnish all information which the superintendent may reasonably demand. The expense of such examinations shall be paid by the treasurer of state, on the warrant of the auditor of state, upon the certificate of the superintendent of insurance. But if an examination is made upon the demand of the attorney, the expense thereof shall be paid by such attorney, upon certificate and itemized bills furnished by the superintendent. Provided that when the superintendent shall apply in writing to the governor, and the governor shall direct, in writing any such examination, and shall fix the compensation of examiners, other than the regular salaried assistants, then such attorney shall pay to the superintendent the actual expense of such examination upon the certificate and itemized bills furnished by the superintendent. Provided that when the principal office of the attorney is located in another state the superintendent may accept, in lieu of the foregoing, a certified copy of the report of examination by the insurance department of that or another state. (107 v. 750, § 8.)

Section 9556-9. (Power and right to exchange contracts.)

Any corporation now or hereafter organized shall, in addition to the rights, powers and franchises specified in its articles of incorporation, have full power and authority as a subscriber to exchange insurance contracts of the kind and character herein mentioned. The right to exchange such contracts is hereby declared to be incidental to the purposes for which such corporations are organized, and as fully granted as the right and powers expressly conferred upon the corporation. (107 v. 751, § 9.)

Section 9556-10. (License to attorneys; revocation.)

Upon compliance with the requirements of this act the superintendent of insurance shall issue a license to the attorney, authorizing him to make such contracts of indemnity, which license shall specify the kind or kinds of insurance and shall contain the name of the attorney, the location of his principal office, and the name or designation under which such contracts of indemnity are issued. So long as such attorney complies with the requirements of this act, the superintendent annually, upon application of the attorney, shall renew the license. The superintendent may revoke or suspend the license of any attorney: When he shall not be in possession of fifty thousand dollars of assets, invested as permitted by the laws regulating the investments of insurance companies and moneys accumulated by such attorney, or any attorney in case of breach of any of the conditions imposed by this act, upon reasonable notice in writing to the attorney, so that he may appear and show cause why such license should not be revoked or suspended. (107 v. 751, § 10.)

Section 9556-11. (List of names and addresses of persons authorized to solicit must be filed with superintendent; revocation of authority.)

Every attorney shall certify in duplicate to the superintendent of insurance the names and addresses of the persons authorized by him to solicit powers of attorney or applications for such contracts of indemnity in this state. The authority of such persons shall continue until the first day of the next April, unless cancelled by the attorney and certificate of such cancellation is filed with the superintendent, or unless the license of the attorney or authority of such person shall be revoked or suspended by the superintendent; and expiring certificates of such persons' authority may be renewed in like manner to continue until the first day of the next April. The superintendent shall record the names and addresses of such persons in such manner that names of such duly authorized persons may conveniently be inspected and shall thereupon certify and deliver to the attorney a list of the names of all persons so recorded. If the superintendent shall find that any such person has wilfully violated or refused or failed to comply with any provision of this act or has been convicted of the violation of any law of the United States, or of this or any state, he may refuse or revoke the authority of such person and cancel his name on the superintendent's records, and shall thereupon notify such person and the attorney of such revocation. Thereafter such person shall not act as representative of any attorney until new certificate of his authority by the attorney thereafter appointing him, shall be duly filed with and approved by the superintendent. No person shall act for any such attorney in placing insurance or making such contracts of indemnity, unless the attorney shall have such license, nor unless the unexpired, unrevoked and unsuspended certificate of such persons' authority is filed with the superintendent. Any person shall be individually liable on any contract of indemnity made, issued or accepted through him as representing any attorney not licensed by the superintendent to make such contracts of indemnity. (107 v. 751, § 11.)

Section 9556-12. (Contracts may be solicited without license for purposes of organization.) For the purposes of organization and upon issuance of permit by the superintendent of insurance, powers of attorney and applications for such contracts may be solicited without license, but no such attorney or other person shall make any such contracts of indemnity until he shall comply with the provisions of this act. No such attorney shall make any contracts of re-insurance or risks located in this state with any company, association or person not authorized by law to transact business in this state, and no such attorney shall re-insure all risks undertaken by him without the consent of the superintendent of insurance. (107 v. 752, § 12.)

Section 9556-13. (Penalty for violations of law.) Any attorney, or other person who shall violate any provision of this act, or fail to comply with any duty imposed upon him by any provision of this act, for which violation or failure no penalty is elsewhere provided by law, shall be fined not exceeding five hundred dollars. (107 v. 752, § 13.)

Section 9557. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3654; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 444; May 9, 1894, 91 v. 211; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 159; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 308; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 276; R. S. 1880, 70 v. 147, § 18; S. & S. 211.)

Section 9558. Repealed. (104 v. 202; R. S. Sec. 3654; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 444; May 9, 1894, 91 v. 211; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 159; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 308; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 276; R. S. 1880, 70 v. 147, § 18; S. & S. 211.)

FOREIGN.

Section 9559. (Foreign companies must obtain license.)

Except surety companies which are admitted to guarantee the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust who may be required to or do in their trust capacity receive, hold, control and disburse public or private moneys or property, and guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies and execute and guarantee bonds required or permitted in all actions or proceedings, or by law allowed, a company, association, or partnership, incorporated, organized or associated under the laws of another state of the United States or of a foreign government, for any of the purposes mentioned in this chapter, which does a banking or other kind of business in connection with insurance, shall not, directly or indirectly, transact any business of insurance in this state, nor shall any such company, association or partnership do any such business in this state until it procures from the superintendent a certificate of authority so to do; nor shall any person or corporation act as agent in this state for such a company, association or partnership, directly or indirectly, in procuring applications for insurance, taking risks or in any way transacting the business of insurance, until it procures from the superintendent a license so to do, stating that the company, association or partnership has complied with all the requirements of this chapter applicable to it, and depositing a certified copy of such license in the office of the recorder of the county in which the office or place of business of such agent or agents is established. (R. S. Sec. 3656; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 166; May 9, 1894, 91 v.

129; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 340; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 1.)

Discretionary power of superintendent of insurance. The issue of a license is a ministerial and not a judicial act.

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

Where a foreign insurance company, tendering compliance with Ohio laws, applies for a license, the superintendent of insurance has no mere arbitrary discretion to refuse it admission.

State v. Moore, 42 O. S. 103 (1884).

But the superintendent may inquire into the financial soundness of the company, and if, upon such inquiry made in good faith, he is not satisfied of its financial soundness, he has discretionary power to refuse it admission, and his exercise of such discretion will not be controlled by mandamus.

State v. Moore, 42 O. S. 103 (1884).

The superintendent has discretionary power to refuse a license to an agent who has previously solicited insurance, without a license, and offered rebates of premium.

Vorys v. State, 67 O. S. 15 (1902).

Effect of certificate of authority. The certificate, so long as it remains in force, confers the right and privilege of carrying on business in the state. Such privilege is a franchise, which emanates from the state.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

Failure to obtain certificate. Ouster by quo warranto. A foreign company exercising, in this state, franchises and privileges without authority of law may be ousted therefrom by quo warranto.

State v. Insurance Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1890).

State v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

A foreign company or association which transacts insurance business in the state without a certificate of authority is unlawfully exercising a franchise under G. C. § 12303 and may be ousted from the transaction of such business.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

Where the acts of a foreign unincorporated insurance association are such as appertain to corporations, or are done after the manner of corporations, it is acting as a corporation without being legally incorporated within G. C. § 12303.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

A license or certificate of authority from the superintendent of in-insurance is not a bar to a proceeding in quo warranto where the insurance company is charged with exercising franchises without authority of law.

Banking business. The loaning of its money by an insurance company upon property in this state is not banking business, although the company restricts its loans to its policyholders.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 41 O. S. 1 (1884).

Hall v. Kummero, 7 N. P. 394; 5 L. D. 176 (Dist. Ct. 1883).

In State v. Insurance Co., 14 Ohio 6 (1846) it was held that a clause in the special charter of an insurance company, prohibiting the exercise of banking powers, prohibited only the issue of currency, and did not prohibit the receiving of money on deposit.

For taxation of insurance company, transacting banking business under a special charter, see

Ohio, etc., Co. v. Debolt, 16 How. (57 U. S.) 416; 3 O. F. D. 170.

The special charter of an insurance company, authorizing it to loan its funds, but prohibiting it from engaging in the business of exchange or of money broker, was held not to prohibit the purchase of a bill of exchange.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 12 O. S. 601 (1861).

Section 9560. (Capital necessary of foreign company.)

No company, association or partnership organized under the laws of another state, shall take risks or transact business of insurance in this state, directly or indirectly, unless possessed of the amount of actual capital required by similar companies formed under the provisions of this chapter, nor unless the capital stock of the company is paid up and invested as required by the laws of the state where it was organized, and if a live stock insurance company, until it has deposited in such state or in this state, for the benefit of its policy-holders, securities approved by the insurance department of such state in an amount equal to one-fourth of its entire capital stock. If the company is a mutual fire insurance company it must have actual cash assets of the amount and description required of such companies of this state, after organization, invested as required by the law of the state where the company was organized. Such companies also must have either premium notes or contingent liability of the amount required of similar fire insurance companies of this state, which contingent liability may be either in writing or be expressed in the policies issued by the company. (R. S. Sec. 3656; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 166; May 9, 1894, 91 v. 139; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 340; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 1.)

A mutual fire insurance company organized under the laws of another state, but similar to domestic companies, which has at least $50,000 in premium notes, on which at least $10,000 in cash has been paid before commencing business, was held entitled, so far as capital is concerned, to be admitted to do business in this state.

State v. Moore, 42 O. S. 103 (1884).

Where a foreign insurance company, by a special act of the general assembly of its home state, was authorized to increase its capital stock to a certain amount, but did not increase its actual capital stock or file a certificate of increase, its capital stock, in the opinion of the attorney general, must be deemed to be the increased amount authorized by the special act.

Section 9561. (Companies shall file waiver.) Any such company desiring to transact business by an agent in this state, shall file with the superintendent of insurance a written instrument, duly signed and sealed, authorizing any of its agents in Ohio to acknowledge service of process therein for and in behalf of the company, consenting that service of process, mesne or final, upon any agent, shall be as valid as if served upon the company according to the laws of this or any other state or country, and waiving all claim or right of error by reason of such acknowledgment of service; also, consenting that suit may be brought against it in the county where the property insured was situated, or was insured, or the application for insurance taken, and that service of process made therein by the sheriff of such county, by sending a copy thereof by mail, addressed to the company at the place of its principal office located in the state where it was organized, or, if it is a foreign company, to it at the place of its principal office in the United States, at least thirty days prior to taking judgment in such suit, shall be as valid as if personally made upon the company according to the laws of this state, or any other state or government; also, if suit be brought against it after it ceases to do business in this state, and there is no agent of the company in the county in which it is brought upon whom service of process can be made that service upon it may be had by the sheriff sending a copy thereof, so mailed, and within such time. But the sheriff's return must show the time and manner of such service. (R. S. Sec. 3657; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 159; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20.)

Service by mail under this section is valid.

Section 9562. (Statement required of foreign company.)

Every such company, association, or partnership, shall also file with the superintendent of insurance a certified copy of its charter, or deed of settlement, together with a statement, under the oath of its president, vice-president, or other chief officer, and the secretary of the company, stating the name of the company, the place where it is located, and the amount of its capital, with a detailed statement of the facts and items required by sections ninety-five hundred and seventy-four and ninety-five hundred and ninety of companies organized under the laws of this state. They also shall file with the superintendent a copy of their last annual report, if one was made, under any law of the state by which it was incorporated. (R. S. Sec. 3658; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20; R. S. 1880.)

Section 9563. (Revocation of license of foreign company.)

If such company, association or partnership doing business in this state, makes an application for a change of venue, or to remove a suit begun in a court therein, in which it has been sued by a citizen of this state, to the United States district or circuit court, or to any federal court, or enters into any compact or combination with other insurance companies, or requires its agents to enter into any compact or combination with other insurance agents or companies, for the purpose of controlling the rates charged for fire insurance on property in this state, or of controlling the rates per cent amount of commission or compensation to be allowed agents for procuring contracts for such insurance on such property, the superintendent of insurance forthwith shall revoke and recall the license to it to do business in this state, and no renewal thereof shall be granted for three years after its revocation. Such company, association or partnership also shall be prohibited from transacting any business in this state until again duly licensed and authorized. (R. S. Sec. 3659; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 165; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 485; May 4, 1885, 82 v. 231; R. S. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20.)

For non-payment of excise tax, § 5434.

For placing risks with unauthorized company or agent, § 5441.

Injunction, not mandamus, is the proper remedy to prevent wrongful revocation of a license.

State v. Hahn, 50 O. S. 714, 718 (1893); overruling, State v. Reinmund, 45 O. S. 214.

This section is probably unconstitutional in part. A state may not revoke the license of a foreign corporation because such corporation has removed a suit to federal court. Terral v. Burke Construction Co., — U. S. —; 66 L. Ed. 223 (1922); overruling Doyle v. Insurance Co., 94 U. S. 535.

The license of a foreign company may be revoked by the superintendent for violations of the Ohio laws, other than those expressly enumerated by statute as causes for revocation. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 459 (1920).

It is said that the superintendent of insurance has power to revoke a license which was issued, by mistake, to a foreign company not legally entitled to do business in Ohio.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 169 (1883).

Combination of insurance agents as a violation of the anti-trust act.

See note to § 6391.

Section 9564. (Foreign companies may have common agent.) Nothing in the preceding section shall prevent one or more of such companies from employing a common agent or agents to supervise defective structures, or advise respecting them, and to suggest improvements for lessening their fire hazards, or advise as to the relative values of risks. (R. S. Sec. 3659; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 165; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 485; May 4, 1885, 82 v. 231; R. S. 1880; May 15, 1878, 75 v. 572, § 20.)

Several companies are not authorized by this section to have a common agent to "advise" concerning rates charged for insurance. The advice should be limited to the desirability of the risk from a physical or moral standpoint.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 841 (1898).

A "common agent" can not publish "advisory rates."

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 841, 844 (1898).

Section 9565. (What companies shall make deposit.) A company incorporated by or organized under the laws of a foreign government, shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance, for the benefit and security of its policy-holders residing in the United States, a sum not less than one hundred thousand dollars in stocks or bonds of the United States, the state of Ohio or a municipality or county thereof, which shall not be received by the superintendent at a rate above their par value. Stocks and securities so deposited may be exchanged from time to time for other like securities. So long as the company so depositing continues solvent and complies with the laws of this state, the superintendent shall permit it to collect the interest or dividends on such deposits. (R. S. Sec. 3660; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 154; February 27, 1894, 91 v. 40; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 21; S. & S. 212.)

Taxation of securities deposited, see § 5437.

Collection of claims from securities, see § 641.

Withdrawal of deposit, when business discontinued, see § 656.

Farm loan bonds may be deposited. § 9518-2.

The deposit required of a foreign company doing an employers' liability business, only, in Ohio, is $50,000 under § 9510. This section does not apply to such a company.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 30 (1900).

This section was not repealed by the amendment of § 656 (101 v. 147) providing for the withdrawal of deposits by companies retiring from business in Ohio.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 817.

Section 9566. (What deemed capital of foreign company.) For the purposes of this chapter the capital of a foreign company doing fire insurance business in this state shall be deemed to be the aggregate value of its deposits with the insurance or other departments thereof, and of the other states of the United States, for the benefit of policy-holders in the United States, and its assets and investments in the United States certified according to the provisions of this chapter. Such assets and investments must be held within the United States and invested in and held by trustees, who are citizens of the United States, appointed by the board of directors of the company and approved by the insurance commissioner of the state where invested, for the benefit of the policy-holders, and creditors in the United States. The trustees so chosen may take, hold and convey real and personal property for the purpose of the trust, subject to the same restrictions as companies of this state. All property and investments, cash and bank deposits and premiums in course of collection and agents' balances actually owned and held in the United States may be admitted as assets of such company of a foreign country doing insurance business other than life, if investments and assets of similar character are allowed and admitted as such, by the laws of the state in which the company has its head office, to companies organized in such state doing similar business therein. (R. S. Sec. 3660; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 154; February 27, 1894, 91 v. 40; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 147, § 21; S. & S. 212.)

Section 9567. (Annual statements.) Every company other than a life company, organized by act of congress, or under the laws of another state or government, annually, at the time, and in the form and manner required of similar companies organized under the laws of this state, shall file a statement of its condition and affairs in the office of the superintendent of insurance. A company organized under or incorporated by a foreign government shall also furnish a supplementary statement for the year ending on the preceding thirty-first day of December, verified by the oath of the manager of such company residing in the United States, which shall comprise a report of its business and affairs in the United States, as required from companies organized in this state, together with any other information that may be required by such superintendent. If such annual statement be satisfactory evidence to him of the solvency and ability of the company to meet all its engagements at maturity, and that the deposit is maintained as hereinbefore provided, the superintendent shall issue renewal certificates of authority to the agents of the company, certified copies of which shall be filed in the recorder's office of each county wherein an agency is located, during the month of January in each year, or within sixty days thereafter. Such certificates shall be the authority of such agents to issue new policies in this state for the ensuing year. (R. S. Sec. 3661; April 27, 1872. 69 v. 140, § 22; S. & S. 213.)

DOMESTIC AND FOREIGN.

Section 9568. (Deposit required of guaranty company.)

No company organized under the laws of this state to transact the business of guaranteeing the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, who are required to or in their trust capacity do receive, hold, control, disburse public or private property, and guaranteeing the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, or of executing or guaranteeing bonds or undertakings required or permitted in actions, proceedings or by law allowed, shall commence business until it has deposited with the superintendent of insurance two hundred thousand dollars in securities permitted by sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen, which shall be held for the benefit and security of all the policy-holders of the company, and not be received by him at a rate above their par value. (R. S. Sec. 3641; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 407; April 1, 1902, 95 v. 81; April 21, 1898, 93 v. 170; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 138; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 30, 1885, 82 v. 185; R. S. 1880; April 14, 1874, 71 v. 65, § 8; S. & S. 229.)

The execution of the bond of a public officer by a surety company, as surety, in consideration of a premium paid, is not a mere contract of suretyship, but is a contract of insurance.

Bryant v. Bonding Co., 77 O. S. 90, 99 (1907).

National banks may insure their deposits with surety companies as sureties. 13 O. L. R. 37 (Opinion of U. S. Attorney General).

Federal farm loan bonds may be deposited. § 9518-2.

Section 9569. (Foreign guaranty company.) Any such company organized under the laws of another state, territory, district or country shall not be licensed to transact such business in this state unless at least two hundred thousand dollars of its assets are invested in securities permitted by sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen, or in securities permitted by the laws of the state, district or territory in which it is organized, and they are deposited with the superintendent of insurance in this state, or the superintendent of insurance or other officer of another state, district or territory designated by the laws thereof to receive them, and if such securities are deposited with him, and the superintendent of insurance of this state is furnished with a certificate of such officer under his hand and official seal that he, as such officer, holds in trust on deposit for the benefit of all the policy-holders of such company the securities above mentioned, giving the items thereof, and stating that he is satisfied such securities are worth at least two hundred thousand dollars. Securities so deposited with such superintendent may be exchanged from time to time for other like securities, and so long as the corporation depositing them continues solvent and complies with the laws of this state, he shall permit it to collect the interest or dividends on such deposit. (R. S. Sec. 3641; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 407; April 1, 1902, 95 v. 81; April 21, 1898, 93 v. 170; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 138; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 30, 1885, 82 v. 185; R. S. 1880; April 14, 1874, 71 v. 65, § 8; S. & S. 229.)

Under an earlier form of this section, foreign companies, which had deposited the requisite securities in another state, were required to deposit $30,000 of additional securities in Ohio. On an amendment, dispensing with the additional deposit in this state, deposits made prior to the amendment could not, in the opinion of the attorney general, be withdrawn so long as any obligations secured thereby remained.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 673 (1902).

Federal farm loan bonds may be deposited. § 9518-2.

Section 9570. (Estoppel of company executing bond.)

A company which executes a bond as surety under the foregoing provisions in any proceeding to enforce the liability which it has assumed to incur shall be estopped to deny its corporate power to execute such instrument or assume such liability. (R. S. Sec. 3641; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 406; April 1, 1902, 95 v. 81; April 21, 1898, 93 v. 170; April 13, 1894, 91 v. 138; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; March 16, 1891, 88 v. 102; April 30, 1885, 82 v. 185; R. S. 1880; April 14, 1874, 71 v. 65, § 8; S. & S. 229.)

The execution of the bond of a public officer by a surety company, as surety, in consideration of a premium paid, is not a mere contract of suretyship, but is a contract of insurance. The language of such a contract should be construed, if ambiguity exists, most strongly against the surety.

Bryant v. Bonding Co., 77 O. S. 90, 99 (1907).

See Rankin v. U. S. F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Indemnity Co. v. Granite Co., 100 O. S. 373 (1919).

A paid surety will not be released from his obligation of suretyship by changes in the contract guaranteed, unless such changes operate injuriously to affect materially his rights and liabilities. Indemnity Co. v. Commissioners, 107 O. S. 51 (1923).

The bond of a public officer, with a surety company as surety, should not be cancelled at the expiration of his term of office. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1376.

"Fraud or dishonesty" of a bank cashier "amounting to embezzlement or larceny" which a surety company promises "to make good and reimburse" comprehends such dishonest and fraudulent conduct resulting in loss as is equivalent to embezzlement or larceny, and is not confined to the technical offenses mentioned, or such misappropriation as would subject the cashier to a conviction for embezzlement or larceny.

See Rankin v. U. S. F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Term of bond. Liability for premiums. A bond procured by a state officer guaranteeing the faithful performance of duty by such officer, which is in terms indefinite as to duration, will, in the absence of any stipulation to the contrary, be regarded as remaining in force during his term of office and he will be liable for the premiums. But where the application, a part of the contract, imports that the bond is to run indefinitely, one year at a time, providing the annual premium is paid, the contract continues only during mutual assent of the parties. On refusal of the officer to assent to a renewal and pay the premium, the obligation of the company to the state for the future conduct of the officer does not attach, and the company can not recover premiums from the officer.

Bryant v. Bonding Co., 77 O. S. 90 (1907).

A bond being executed for one year to indemnify a bank against the dishonesty of its cashier occurring during the term of the bond, or any renewal thereof, and discovered within six months of such term, or renewal, and there being a subsequent instrument to continue the former in force for another year according to its terms and conditions the instruments will be construed as though the bond had been originally executed for two years, there being no terms employed in either instrument to indicate the intention that an act of dishonesty occurring in the first year must be discovered within six months from the expiration of that year.

Rankin v. U. S. F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Cutts v. Spear, 8 N. P. n. s. 445; 19 L. D. 608 (C. P. 1909).

False answers in application. Written statements by a corporation, accompanying an application for a fidelity bond, relating to the past conduct of employes concerned, in part as an inducement for the issue of the bond, and intended to be part of the contract, are in the nature of warranties, and their falsity in any material particular will defeat recovery thereon.

Trustees v. Deposit Co., 76 O. S. 253 (1907).

But where a surety bond recited that it "is issued on the express understanding that the employee has not within the knowledge of the employer at any former period been a defaulter", which provision followed other provisions invalidating the bond for untrue statements in the application, it was held that former defalcations of the employee unknown to the employer constituted no defense to a suit on the bond, unless it appeared that the statements in the application were intentionally false, or were recklessly made without any reasonable grounds on the part of the employer to believe the statements to be true, and without any reasonable effort on his part to discover the truth. Legler v. Guaranty Co., 88 O. S. 336 (1913); reversing, 10 N. P. n. s. 601; 23 L. D. 98.

Liability for dishonesty in matters not connected with employee's duties. Where the application represented that the duties of an employee of a loan company were to receive and deposit money and endorse checks for deposit only, with no authority to sign checks, pay out or withdraw money, and the bond indemnified the employer against loss in connection with the duties as specified, the surety company is not liable for dishonesty of such employee in inducing the company to make a loan to a fictitious person, and forging the name of the fictitious borrower to the check of the loan company.

Trustees v. Deposit Co., 76 O. S. 253 (1907).

When the cashier of a bank, by a certificate which he knows to be false, extends to one as a depositor of the bank a credit to which he is not entitled, and this is done pursuant to an arrangement that the cashier shall derive financial benefit from the transaction, and loss to the bank results, there arises a liability upon a bond to indemnify the bank for all losses arising "from the fraud or dishonesty of the cashier amounting to embezzlement or larceny."

Rankin v. U. S. F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Notice to surety company. A provision in a bond of that character requiring the obligee upon the discovery of an act which may create a liability under the instrument to give notice thereof to the obligor at "the earliest practical moment" contemplates such and only such delay as in view of all circumstances may be reasonably necessary for the directors to acquire precise information respecting the default of the cashier and to enable them to determine whether it is of the grave character contemplated by the terms of the bond; and whether the giving of a notice 45 days after the first information of the bank's condition is a compliance with the provision should be determined by the jury under proper instructions.

Rankin v. United States F. & G. Co., 86 O. S. 267 (1912).

Recovery of funds misappropriated. A bonding company, having paid the liabilities of a defaulting trustee to his successor, and taken an assignment of the rights of the trust estate, is the real party in interest to recover funds of the trust estate misapplied by the defaulting trustee.

Healy v. Second N. B., 22 L. D. 502 (1911).

Co-suretyship. Where several surety companies are bound by separate instruments on account of the same principal, and each company, by its bond, limits its liability, in the event of default on the part of the principal, to such proportion of the total loss sustained by the obligee as the penalty named in its bond bears to the total amount of the bonds furnished by the principal to the obligee, the suretyship of each company is a separate and distinct transaction and the relation of co-suretyship among them does not arise, nor does the right of contribution exist.

Where, in such case, collateral or securities are placed by the principal in the hands of one of the companies to indemnify it against any loss it might incur by reason of its obligation on its bond, none of the other companies, in the event of the default of the principal is entitled to any part of such collateral or securities to indemnify it against a loss incurred on account of its bond.

Assets Realization Co. v. Bonding Co., 88 O. S. 216 (1913).

Bonds securing performance of contracts. A surety company, surety on a bond to secure performance of a contract to furnish labor and materials on a structure, at his own risk, cost and expense, is liable to a materialman, who furnishes materials therefor, on default of the principal. Indemnity Co. v. Granite Co., 100 O. S. 373 (1919); State v. Watts, 100 O. S. 380 (1919).

Section 9571. (Sufficiency of bonds executed by guaranty company.) When a bond, recognizance or undertaking is required or permitted by law, with one or more sureties, its execution or the guaranteeing thereof, as the case may be, as sole surety, by a company authorized to guarantee the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, to guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, and to execute and guarantee bonds and undertakings in actions or proceedings or by law allowed is sufficient, and when so executed and guaranteed, shall be a full compliance with every requirement of law, ordinance, rule or regulation that such bond, or recognizance must be executed and guaranteed by one surety or two or more sureties, or that such sureties, shall be residents or householders or freeholders. (R. S. Sec. 3641c; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 182; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 320; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; February 3, 1891, 88 v. 14.)

A bond executed by a surety company as sole surety is a sufficient compliance with statutes requiring "sureties" or "two or more sureties" on an official bond. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 283.

The amendment of Rev. Stats. § 3641c (97 v. 182) requiring bonds of executors, administrators, trustees, etc., to be executed by surety companies, and prohibiting the acceptance of personal sureties, was held unconstitutional.

State v. Robins, 71 O. S. 273 (1904).

Section 9572. (Allowance of premium.) A judge, court or officer, whose duty it is to pass upon the account of an assignee, trustee, receiver, guardian, executor, administrator or other fiduciary, required by law to give bond as such, whenever any fiduciary has given bond with a surety company as surety thereon, in the settlement of his account as such fiduciary, shall allow a reasonable sum paid such a company authorized under the laws of this state so to do, for becoming his surety, not above half of one per cent per annum on the amount of the bond; unless it is in double the amount of the liability of the fiduciary, when the sum so allowed must not exceed a fourth of one per cent per annum. Such company must have complied and continued to comply with the laws of this state relative to it, and with requirements as to justification, prescribed by the head of the department, court, judge, or officer required to approve or accept the bond. The bond or recognizance also must be approved by the head of the department, court, judge or officer required to approve or accept it. (R. S. Sec. 3641c; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 182; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 320; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; February 3, 1891, 88 v. 14.)

This section does not apply to the premium on the bond of an officer or employe of a municipal corporation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 407.

Section 9573. (Bonds of public officers.) The two preceding sections authorize such company to become surety upon the bond required by law of any state officer, except the superintendent of insurance, and of any county, township or municipal officer. Such company may be accepted by the officer or officers required to approve such bond, in lieu of the sureties now required by law. (R. S. Sec. 3641c; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 182; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 320; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 157; February 3, 1891, 88 v. 14.)

The council of a municipality is not authorized to provide for payment, by the municipality, of premiums on the official bonds of its officers.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 376.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1905-1906, p. 66.

Citing, State v. Robins, 71 O. S. 273, 295.

Section 9574. Repealed. (104 v. 202; April 14, 1910, 101 v. 99; R. S. Sec. 3653; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 17.)

Section 9575. (Lien of mutual companies for premium notes.) All buildings insured by a mutual company must be pledged to such company, together with the right and title of the assured in the lands upon which they are situated, to the amount of the premium note or contingent liability, and the company shall have a lien thereon to the amount of such note or liability, but the lien shall not take effect until the company files with the recorder of the county in which the property insured is located, a certificate, stating the date, number, and amount of premium notes, or contingent liability, and such a description of the property insured as will enable a person readily to identify it. (R. S. Sec. 3663; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888, 85 v. 273, 278; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 24.)

A lien of premium notes, provided for in the special charter of a company organized prior to constitution of 1851, was held unenforceable, as against a mortgagee, by a third person to whom the assessment had been assigned.

Shaw v. Shaw, 4 West L. M. 159 (C. P. 1862).

Section 9576. (Duty of recorder.) The recorder must record and index the certificate in his book of liens, for which he shall receive fifty cents. Liens heretofore acquired by such a company shall continue in force under this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 3663; passed April 14, 1888; took effect July 1, 1888, 85 v. 273, 278; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 24.)

Section 9577. (Cancellation of policies.) A fire insurance company doing business under the laws of this state which issue policies of insurance covering property located herein, and on such policies receives from the persons insured either cash payments of premium, or notes subject to assessment for payment of losses, or notes for the installments of premium, shall be required to insert in every policy so issued an obligation to cancel it, upon the written request of the person insured on conditions as provided in the next following five sections. (R. S. Sec. 3664; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 1.)

This section does not apply to property located outside of Ohio, although the policy thereon was issued in Ohio. Automobile Ins. Co. v. Guaranty Corp., 240 Fed. 222 (D. C. N. Y. 1917).

Sections 9577 to 9582 apply only to cases in which the policy is cancelled at the request of the insured and not to cases where the cancellation is by the insurance company.

Insurance Co. v. Brecheisen, 50 O. S. 542 (1893).

The parties are free to fix the terms and conditions under which a policy may be cancelled by the company; but when the insurance is terminated upon the request of the insured, the parties must comply with § 9577 et seq.

Insurance Co. v. Brecheisen, 50 O. S. 542 (1893).

An agent of the insured, authorized to procure a policy of insurance, has no implied authority, after he has procured and delivered it to the insured, to receive notice of cancellation and discharge the policy.

Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6 (1902).

The obligation to redeem a policy, under this section, is not a debt which may be deducted from credits in the tax return of the company, until the insured exercises his option to cancel the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Cappellar, 38 O. S. 560, 570 (1883).

French v. Insurance Co., 12 L. D. 183 (1901).

Where an insured wrote to the insurer: "Consider your policy No. 39 as canceled from the 18th inst. and make a new policy from that date for one year, with privilege added, at same rate" and the insurer replied, "I can not agree to proposed change and therefore cancel, pro rata, charging returned premium." A loss occurring subsequently, prior to the expiration of the policy, it was held that the letter of the insured was not a cancellation but, until accepted, a mere proposition, which was indivisible, and if not accepted as a whole the entire contract remained unaltered.

Wilkins v. Insurance Co., 1 C. S. C. R. 349 (1871).

Cancellation by insurance company. Where a policy provided that it might be canceled by the company "on giving notice to that effect," it was held that notice of cancellation from the company terminated the insurance, and that return of the unearned premium was not a condition precedent to such cancellation.

Insurance Co. v. Brecheisen, 50 O. S. 542 (1893).

Where a policy provided for a cancellation by the company upon a five days' notice, a finding by the jury that notice was not given will not be set aside where the testimony as to notice was directly contradictory.

Insurance Co. v. Plato, 3 C. C. n. s. 207; 13 C. D. 35 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 701.

An agent representing several companies issued a policy in one company. His authority being revoked by that company he induced the insured to surrender the policy, and accept a policy in another of his companies, by representing that the first company had more insurance in the block than it desired. The insured had no knowledge of the revocation of his authority.

Held, that such delivery of the policy for cancellation bound the first company.

Insurance Co. v. Stambaugh, 76 O. S. 138 (1907).

Where an agent is advised of acts of the insured, claimed to be in violation of the policy, and the policy is returned to the agent, who notifies the company of the act complained of, it is the duty of the company to act within a reasonable time and to return the policy or the unearned premium. Where the company fails to instruct the agent within a reasonable time and the policy is returned to the insured, the company can not avoid liability on a subsequent loss by reason of the acts of which it had knowledge before the return of the policy.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

Cancellation for non-payment of premiums.

See notes to §§ 9587 and 9420.

Section 9578. (Rates of cancellation for cash policies.)

When a policy issued on the cash plan is cancelled, in accordance with the provisions of the preceding section, the companies so issuing may retain customary short rates, as established and charged by companies doing a cash business, for the time the policy has been in force, and return to the insured the unearned premium on the policy for unexpired time. (R. S. Sec. 3665; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 2.)

Section 9579. (Rates of cancellation of mutual companies.) When policies issued on the mutual plan are so canceled, the companies so issuing must surrender to the insured the note or notes received from him for premium or payment of losses. Such policies first shall be sent to the secretary or agent of the company, and within sixty days after receipt thereof for cancellation the premium note shall be returned. But the assured first shall pay his proportion of all losses which actually occurred up to the date when the policy was received. The company shall not be liable for any loss under any such policy after it is returned for cancellation. (R. S. Sec. 3666; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 3.)

Payment of a loss by a mutual insurance company to the insured together with cancellation of the policy and surrender of his premium note do not relieve the insured from liability for assessments to pay debts incurred during the term of the insurance.

Swing v. Rose, 75 O. S. 355, 368 (1906).

Section 9580. (Rates when premiums paid in installments.) When policies issued on the installment plan are so canceled, the companies so issuing may collect of the insured customary short rates for the time the policy has been in force, to be computed on the full term of insurance mentioned in the policies as charged by such companies. On receipt of such short rates they must return all installment notes then unpaid, and refund to the insured any premium collected in excess of the short rates. (R. S. Sec. 3667; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 4.)

Section 9581. (Premium notes not negotiable.) When companies doing business under the laws of this state receive notes in consideration of premiums on their policies, they must place on the face of each note the following words: "It is hereby understood and agreed that this note is not transferable." (R. S. Sec. 3668; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 5.)

Section 9582. (Superintendent to enforce provisions.) When it comes to the knowledge of the superintendent of insurance, or an officer having charge of the insurance department, that any provision of the five preceding sections has been violated, he at once shall proceed to make a thorough investigation in regard to it, and on sufficient proof of such violation, revoke the certificate of authority of the company guilty thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3669; April 4, 1878, 75 v. 88, § 6.)

Section 9583. (Extent of liability under policy.) A person, company, or association insuring any building or structure against loss or damage by fire or lightning, by a renewal of a policy, shall cause such building or structure to be examined by his or its agent, and a full description thereof to be made, and its insurable value fixed, by him. In the absence of any change increasing the risk without the consent of the insurers, and also of intentional fraud on the part of the insured, in case of total loss, the whole amount mentioned in the policy or renewal upon which the insurer receives a premium, and in case of a partial loss, the full amount thereof, shall be paid. (R. S. Sec. 3643; March 5, 1879, 76 v. 26, § 1.)

This section applies to all policies issued after it went into effect (July 1, 1879) insuring any building or structure against loss by fire.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

The sole purpose of this section is to fix a value on the insured building or structure which should be unquestionable in case of total loss, and without regard to any other controversies which might arise.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543, 553 (1907).

Section 9583 does not apply to a policy covering personal property. Insurance Co. v. Dennison, 93 O. S. 404 (1917).

Building or structure. A boiler and engine may constitute a structure. Insurance Co. v. Luce, 11 C. C. 476; 5 C. D. 210 (1896).

Although foundation walls are not a part of the building or structure (§ 9585) the fact that the description of the building in the policy includes the foundation, does not prevent the application of this section, where the building is totally destroyed, except the foundation.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

Under a policy covering an ice manufacturing plant, the cooling tower and machinery therein were held to be a part of the structure where the machinery and buildings were used as an entirety. Hartford Ins. Co. v. Storage Co., 9 Ohio App. 403; 28 O. C. A. 273 (1918).

Examination by agent. The examination required to be made relates to the physical condition of the property such as an inspection would disclose.

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

It is not required that the examination shall extend to the uses, purposes and surroundings of the building or structure, nor to its ownership, incumbrances, possession or exposures.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543, 553 (1907).

The neglect or omission of the agent to make the examination of the property, and fix its insurable value, can not defeat or affect the operation of the statute.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Kreisser v. Gas Light Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 597; 14 C. D. 313 (1901).

Where there has been no intentional fraud, a condition of the property at the time of insurance, which the agent by making the required examination could have reasonably discovered, can not defeat recovery on the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Kukral, 7 C. C. 356; 4 C. D. 633 (1893).

Change increasing the risk. The words "any change increasing the risk" refer to some physical change in the insured property. They were not intended to include or apply to anything distinct from, or accidentally related to, the corpus of the building or structure.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907).

See Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

The "change" does not relate to a change relating to incumbrances.

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

See Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 5 C. C. 444; 3 C. D. 218; aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 567.

Nor to a change of occupancy or a vacancy.

Werner v. Insurance Co., 76 O. S. 543 (1907).

Nor to a change relating to other insurance.

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

In such cases it is not necessary for the insurance company to allege and prove that the risk was increased by the incumbrance, additional insurance, etc.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907).

Additional insurance increases the risk, as a matter of law.

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

Fraud. A fraudulent and excessive schedule in a proof of loss constitutes a defense under a clause in the policy which provides that fraud before or after a loss shall avoid the policy, although the actual loss equalled the amount of the insurance.

Insurance Co. v. Beverly, 14 C. C. 468; 8 C. D. 37 (1897).

Where a mortgagee was not a party to the procuring of the policy, and had no knowledge of fraud, fraudulent representations and concealments on the part of the mortgagor in procuring the insurance are no defense against the mortgagee.

Insurance Co. v. Boland, 8 C. C. n. s. 325 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 645; 73 O. S. 393.

Statements in the application concerning a condition or value, which should have been discovered on the examination, are not fraudulent.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Total loss.

What constitutes. Where a building is so far destroyed by fire as to lose its identity and specific character as a building, and the parts that remain can not be used to advantage in its reconstruction, there is a total loss.

Insurance Co. v. Drackett, 63 O. S. 41 (1900).

A loss may be total although part of the structure may not be consumed by fire, where the cost of removal and replacement of the unconsumed portion would exceed the value of the materials thus saved.

Insurance Co. v. Fish Co., 14 C. C. 160; 7 C. D. 468 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 643.

Whether the loss was total or partial is a question for the jury.

Insurance Co. v. Fish Co., 14 C. C. 160; 7 C. D. 468 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 643.

Amount recoverable. In the absence of any increase in the risk or intentional fraud, the measure of liability in case of total loss is the full amount named in the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Hull, 51 O. S. 270, 278 (1894).

Hilliard v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. 561; 5 L. D. 576 (1895).

Where there is no intentional fraud, it is not competent for the company to prove that the value of the property is less than the amount of the policy, and statements of the assured in the application, in reference to the value of the property and its conditions, are immaterial.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Kukral, 7 C. C. 356; 4 C. D. 633 (1893).

See Insurance Co. v. McClucklin, 40 O. S. 42 (1883).

The fact that there is more than one policy on the property (see § 9584) does not prevent the application of this section in the settlement of the loss. Where the loss is total each company must pay the full amount specified in its policy.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

Insurance Co. v. Fish Co., 14 C. C. 160; 7 C. D. 468 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 643.

Where a life tenant has received from the insurance company the full amount of the policy, which is in excess of the value of the life estate, the life tenant is not liable to the remaindermen for the amount of the excess.

Hubbard v. Executor, 6 N. P. 249; 8 L. D. 111.

Provisions of policy inconsistent with statute. This section enters into and becomes part of every fire insurance contract and supersedes and annuls all terms in any such contract which differ from its provisions.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911).

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

The provisions of this section are founded on public policy and can not be waived by agreement.

Insurance Co. v. Drackett, 63 O. S. 41 (1900).

Conditions of a policy providing for a different rule or measure of liability are in conflict with this section and of no binding force.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

The following provisions have been held inconsistent with this section:

That the amount of loss shall be estimated according to the actual value of the property at the time of the fire, and not more than it would cost the insurer or insured to restore the same.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Giving the insurer the option to rebuild in case of total loss.

See Good v. Insurance Co., 43 O. S. 394 (1885).

Limiting the liability of the insurer to its proportion of the loss, in the event of other insurance. Insurance Co. v. Dennison, 93 O. S. 404 (1917); Insurance Co. v. Mfg. Co., 9 Ohio App. 403, 28 O. C. A. 273.

Requiring the amount of loss to be determined by appraisers or arbitrators.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Luce, 11 C. C. 476; 5 C. D. 210 (1896).

By consenting to arbitrate the amount of loss, the insured does not waive the right to maintain an action and recover as for a total loss.

Insurance Co. v. Drackett, 63 O. S. 41 (1900).

Insurance Co. v. Luce, 11 C. C. 476; 5 C. D. 210 (1896).

Requiring a mortgagee, for whose benefit as additional security the policy was issued, to exhaust the mortgaged property before he was entitled to "demand or recover" under the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Mirick, 38 W. L. B. 172 (1897).

Where the building is a total loss, except the foundation, the fact that the foundation walls are included as a part of the description of the building does not entitle the company to an appraisalment.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

The following provisions in policies have been held valid and not inconsistent with this section:

Prohibiting additional insurance without consent of the insurer.

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

Providing that the policy should be void if the building became vacant.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907); approving, Insurance Co. v. Wells, 42 O. S. 519; overruling, Moody v. Insurance Co., 52 O. S. 12.

Providing that an incumbrance procured or suffered on the property, without consent of the insurer, should invalidate the policy.

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895); affirming, 7 C. C. 511; 4 C. D. 704.

But a cognovit judgment was held not to be an incumbrance which invalidated the policy unless it was alleged and proved that the risk was increased thereby.

Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 5 C. C. 444; 3 C. D. 218 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 567.

Estoppel. A claim for a less amount than that to which the assured is entitled will not estop assured from claiming full amount; nor will any estimate of value made by assured in his proof of loss affect his right to the full amount.

Schild v. Insurance Co., 6 N. P. 134; 8 L. D. 45 (1899).

Section 9584. (When two or more policies on same property.) When there are two or more policies upon the same property, each policy shall contribute to the payment of the whole or the partial loss in proportion to the amount of insurance mentioned in each policy. In no case shall the insurer be required to pay more than the amount mentioned in its policy. (R. S. Sec. 3643; March 5, 1879, 76 v. 26, § 1.)

Where a building or structure is totally destroyed by fire, the fact that there is more than one policy on the property does not prevent the application of § 9583 in the settlement of the loss.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

Insurance Co. v. Fish Co., 14 C. C. 160; 7 C. D. 468 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 643.

Where the loss is partial the amount should be ascertained and paid in the proportions specified. Where the loss is total, the proportion of each company is the amount specified in its policy.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

Where an appraisal of the amount of a partial loss was had, and there is concurrent insurance, the amount recoverable by the insured is limited to a proportionate amount of the loss determined by the award, unless it is void or set aside.

Insurance Co. v. Ries, 80 O. S. 272 (1909).

Where the insured compromised claims under some of the policies, the other companies were held to be liable for such share of the entire loss as the sum insured bears to the whole amount.

* Good v. Insurance Co., 43 O. S. 394 (1885).

In the case of a partial loss, a provision in a policy, limiting the liability of the company in the event of other insurance to its proportion of the loss, is in violation of §§ 9583 and 9584. The insurer is liable for the full amount of the partial loss. Insurance Co. v. Dennison, 93 O. S. 404 (1917).

Where each of several policies covering personal property provided that liability thereunder should not be for a greater proportion of the loss than its amount should bear to the whole insurance, it was held that the insured was entitled to a judgment against each company for the whole amount of the loss, but that payment of one judgment for the whole loss was a satisfaction of all judgments.

Insurance Co. v. Sample, 2 N. P. n. s. 629; 15 L. D. 421 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 76 O. S. 577.

Sections 9583 and 9584 do not apply to policies on personal property. A provision in one of several policies covering the same property, limiting the liability of the insurer to its proportion of the loss is valid. Insurance Co. v. Dennison, 93 O. S. 404 (1917).

Section 9585. (Cellar and foundation not to be considered.) The cellar and foundation walls shall not be included or considered a part of the building or structure in settling losses, anything in the application or policy to the contrary notwithstanding. (R. S. Sec. 3691; Rev. Stats. of 1880.)

This section does not prohibit an insurance company from insuring the cellar and foundation walls if the parties agree; but, when insured in the same policy with the building or structure, the cellar and foundation walls must be insured for a specific sum and described separately from the building or structure.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

The fact that foundation walls are included in the description of the building does not prevent the application of § 9583 where the building is totally destroyed, except the foundation. In such case the insured need not submit to an appraisalment.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 85 O. S. 161 (1911); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469.

Section 9586. (Solicitor agent of company.) A person who solicits insurance and procures the application therefor, shall be held to be the agent of the party, company or association, thereafter issuing a policy upon such application or a renewal thereof, anything in the application or policy to the contrary notwithstanding. (R. S. Sec. 3644; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 160; March 5, 1879, 76 v. 26, § 2.)

Agents of life insurance company, see § 9407.

A corporation may act as agent for an insurance company, when authorized by its charter.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 176.

A bank or trust company has no power to act as agent for an insurance company.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 195.

Duties required by law to be discharged by the company can not, by contract, be imposed upon a general agent.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 173.

This section makes the person soliciting the insurance the agent of the company issuing the policy, and puts it out of the power of the company to change that relation, or avoid the consequences growing out of it, by stipulating in the policy that he shall be considered the agent of the insured.

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409, 415 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Chamberlain, 132 U. S. 304 (1889).

This section was held not to make the solicitor an agent of the company for all purposes, as, for instance, for the purpose of receiving notice of loss. Insurance Co. v. Silberman, 24 C. C. n. s. 511 (1904).

A sub-agent duly appointed is the agent of the company, and his acts in this capacity are binding upon the company.

Krumm v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 225 (1883).

Where an insurance broker, authorized to place all insurance for a person, applied to another agent for insurance in a company represented by the latter, it was held that, under this section, both agents were to be considered the agents of the insurance company.

Insurance Co. v. Provision Co., 13 C. C. 661; 7 C. D. 563 (1895).

See Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6 (1902).

This section was not intended to give a mere solicitor of insurance all the powers of a general agent, or change the rules of the common law as to the authority of an agent to bind his principal.

McBee v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 75 (C. P. 1910).

The issuance of a policy, by an insurance company on the recommendation of the agent, is prima facie evidence that the agent was authorized to make the contract.

Hilliard v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. 561; 5 L. D. 576.

Application filled up by agent. A soliciting agent, procuring for a company risks and applications on which policies are issued, is, in filling up such application, the agent of the company, and not the assured; and if the agent makes a mistake in wrongly stating facts which were correctly given him by the insured, the company is bound by and responsible for such mistake.

Insurance Co. v. Williams, 39 O. S. 584 (1883).

Phoenix Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 6 C. C. 2; 3 C. D. 321 (1892); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 567.

Herbert v. Insurance Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 7; 13 C. D. 235 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 687.

Insurance Co. v. Pyle, 44 O. S. 19, 28 (1886).

Whether the facts were correctly stated by the insured is a question for the jury.

Phillips v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. 679; 6 C. D. 266 (1894).

Where a policy, written by an agent of the company, by mutual mistake insufficiently described the place where the property was located, the policy may be reformed by the court, if the mistake is shown by clear and convincing proof. Fire Ins. Co. v. Machine Co., 96 O. S. 442 (1917); affirming, 6 Ohio App. 313; 28 O. C. A. 462. See Box Board Co. v. Insurance Co., 4 Ohio App. 26; 25 C. C. n. s. 339 (1914).

Where an agent, in filling up an application for burglary insurance, construes a question, to suit the circumstances of the particular case, he acts for the company, and the company can not escape liability on the ground of incorrect statements in the application, based on a contrary construction.

Kandar v. Indemnity Co., 10 C. C. n. s. 449; 20 C. D. 260 (1907).

Where an agent fills up in his own language an application from statements of the insured, fully and truthfully made, receives the premium and issues a policy executed by the insurer on such application, the insurer can not defeat a recovery on the policy by denying the truth of the application, nor the authority of the agent in the transaction, although he has transcended his authority, unless the insured is chargeable with knowledge of his having exceeded his authority.

Insurance Co. v. McGookey, 33 O. S. 555 (1878).

May act for insured, when. A general agent representing several insurance companies may become the agent of a person desiring insurance, to select a company and procure a policy from it.

Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6, 14 (1902).

Insurance Co. v. Shoemaker, 22 W. L. B. 315.

But such agent has no implied authority to receive notice of cancellation of the policy, after it has been procured and delivered to such person.

Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6, 14 (1902).

The direction by the manager of an insured, to an insurance agent to keep insurance alive and to effect other insurance in the place of insurance cancelled, does not constitute the insurance agent the common agent of the insurer and insured as to policies issued four years after the manager had severed his connection with the insured. Box Board Co. v. Insurance Co., 4 Ohio App. 26; 25 C. C. n. s. 339 (1914).

POWERS OF AGENT.

To appoint sub-agent. An agent, with full power in a large territory to receive proposals for fire insurance, fix rates of premium, countersign, issue, renew and consent to the transfer of policies, which have been signed by the president and secretary, may appoint a sub-agent to solicit applications subject to his approval.

Krumm v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 225 (1883).

See § 654.

To extend credit for premiums. Authority to make contracts of insurance, and issue policies, carries with it authority to extend credit for premiums, in the absence of restrictions on the authority of which the insured has notice.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

But where the policy provides that the agent has no such power, an extension of time of payment granted by the agent is of no effect.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

Where an agent, with no express authority to extend credit, delivered the policy to the insured and agreed to extend credit, and the amount of the premium was charged against the agent by the insurance company, and was paid after a loss, it was held that a clause making payment of the premium necessary to the taking effect of the insurance was waived.

Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 24 O. S. 345 (1873).

To make preliminary contract of insurance. A general agent may bind the company by a preliminary contract for insurance. Where the agent represents several companies he must designate, in some way, the company for which he contracts, but notice to the company is not necessary.

Insurance Co. v. Bennett, 1 N. P. 71; 1 L. D. 60 (1894); aff'd, no rep., 56 O. S. 749.

See Krum v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 225 (1883).

Palm v. Insurance Co., 20 Ohio 529 (1851).

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

To waive conditions of policies. A stipulation in a policy that "no agent has authority to waive or alter anything in this policy contained," is, after acceptance of the policy by the insured, both notice to and an agreement by, the insured that an agent has no such authority.

Insurance Co. v. Myers, 62 O. S. 529 (1900).

But knowledge by the agent, of facts as to the insurability of property, at the time the policy is issued, is the knowledge of the company, and operates as a waiver, although the policy contains a non-waiver clause. Foster v. Insurance Co., 101 O. S. 180 (1920).

Knowledge by the agent of facts occurring subsequent to the issuance of the policy may not be a waiver. Insurance Co. v. Titus, 82 O. S. 161 (1910).

A "non-waiver" clause in the policy does not prevent a waiver by acts and conduct of authorized agents. Insurance Co. v. Cochran, 104 O. S. 427 (1922).

Conditions in a policy can only be waived by an agent in the manner stipulated in the policy. Where the policy requires that a waiver, or consent, be endorsed on the policy, a verbal waiver or consent is inoperative.

Insurance Co. v. Titus, 82 O. S. 161, 171 (1910).

Walsh v. Insurance Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 1; 17 C. D. 313 (1905).

Billings v. Insurance Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 567; 17 C. D. 552 (1905).

But see Insurance Co. v. Malony, 33 W. L. B. 147, in which a judgment based on a waiver by post card, received by the insured from an agent, was affirmed by an evenly divided court. (Supreme Court without report, 1897.)

See also McKelvey v. Insurance Co., 1 Ohio App. 184; 20 C. C. n. s. 88; 24 C. D. 443 (1913), in which the endorsement on the policy was incomplete but the agent had knowledge of the facts before issuing the policy.

The power of an agent to waive conditions in a policy of fire insurance is not different from the same power in life insurance.

Insurance Co. v. Baldwin, 62 O. S. 368 (1900); (approving, as to such power, Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256).

Where a policy of life insurance provided that it contained the entire contract; that its terms could not be modified except in writing and signed by certain executive officers, and that no agent had authority to extend the time of payment of any premium or note, the insured can not recover on a verbal modification of such policy made by an agent, extending the policy one year and waiving the payment of premium, in the absence of knowledge and acts by the company constituting an estoppel.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

An agent authorized to waive in writing certain printed provisions may write into the policy provisions in conflict with such printed provisions, and the written provision is a waiver of such conflicting printed provisions.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

Authority to make, execute and deliver a policy is not authority to make a subsequent verbal contract waiving any provision of a policy, and the company is not bound thereby unless it ratifies the verbal waiver.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

Where it does not appear that a solicitor of fire insurance was authorized to waive a provision in the policy against other insurance, or that the agents who wrote the policy consented to such waiver, or had knowledge of other insurance, a policy will not be reformed to provide for such waiver.

McBee v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 75 (1910).

A waiver of notice and proof of loss was upheld although the policy provided that no agent was authorized to waive any of the terms and condition of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Danison, 38 W. L. B. 163 (Supreme Ct., without report, 1897).

After a fire the insured paid to the agent an assessment which was then so long overdue that the insurance was suspended under the terms of the policy. The agent remitted the premium to the company which returned it with instructions to refund to the insured, which the agent failed to do until six or eight months after the fire. Held to be a waiver of the suspension of the policy. Insurance Co. v. Billman, 18 C. C. n. s. 261 (1909); aff'd, no rep. 82 O. S. 451.

Apparent authority. Persons dealing with a duly authorized agent may rely upon a continuance of such authority, until they are notified of its revocation.

Insurance Co. v. Stambaugh, 76 O. S. 138 (1907).

An agent representing several companies issued a policy in one company. His agency being revoked by that company, he induced the insured to surrender the policy and accept a policy in another of his companies, by representing that the first company had more insurance in the block than it desired, the insured not knowing of the revocation of his authority. The second company was held liable under the substituted policy; the insured having a right to rely on the continuance of the authority to represent the first company, the delivery of the policy for cancellation bound the first company, and the delivery of a duly executed policy bound the second company.

Insurance Co. v. Stambaugh, 76 O. S. 138 (1907).

An agent, entrusted with the policy and authorized to deliver it, was held to bind the company by accepting notice of additional insurance and endorsing the same upon the policy.

Where such agent erased a material stipulation from the policy, and delivered it to the insured, who had no knowledge of the circumstances of the erasure, or of the want of authority to make it, the company is bound to the same extent as if the erasure were authorized.

Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 24 O. S. 345 (1873).

Section 9587. (How contracts evidenced.) Policies or contracts of insurance made or entered into by the company may be made either with or without its seal. They shall be subscribed by the president or such other officer as the directors designate for that purpose, and be attested by the secretary. When so subscribed and attested, they shall be obligatory on the company. (R. S. Sec. 3645; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 11; S. & S. 208.)

CONTRACTS OF FIRE INSURANCE.

The contract of insurance, other than that of life or accident, is one of indemnity.

See State v. Insurance Co., 1 C. C. n. s. 4, 9; 14 C. D. 387 (1903).

Insurance Co. v. Butler, 38 O. S. 128 (1882).

An insurance policy is a contract between the insured and the insurer, whereby for an agreed premium the insurer undertakes to compensate the insured for loss on a specified subject by specified perils. Insurance Co. v. Cochran, 104 O. S. 427 (1922).

Distinction between open and valued policies.

See Insurance Co. v. Butler, 38 O. S. 128, 134 (1882).

Valued policies, see § 9583 and note.

Parol contracts of insurance. A valid contract of insurance may be made by parol, when not forbidden by statute, or by a provision of the company's charter of which the insured has notice; and the assent of the parties to the agreement may be shown by their acts and the surrounding circumstances, as well as by their words.

Where nothing is said in the negotiations about special rates of insurance, or special conditions of the policy, it will be presumed that those which were usual and customary were intended.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

A policy may be modified or altered by parol.

Halliday v. Insurance Co., 1 W. L. B. 286 (1876).

This section refers to the final policy to be issued and not to contracts for policies or intermediary contracts for insurance.

Bartels v. Insurance Co., 2 O. L. R. 408; 15 L. D. 452 (C. P. 1905).

A provision in the charter of an insurance company requiring that "all policies or contracts of insurance shall be subscribed by the president or some other officer designated by the board of directors for that purpose" was held not to disable the company from binding itself by contracts for policies and intermediary insurance executed in other modes and by other agents, but to merely prescribe the manner in which the final contract or policy should be executed.

Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 24 O. S. 345, 364 (1873).

Insurance Co. v. Colt, 89 U. S. 560 (1874).

A parol contract of insurance, as distinguished from a parol agreement to issue a policy, must not be executory, but must take effect in praesenti.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

Full and clear proof is necessary to establish the relation of insurer and insured, in parol, before delivery of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

In an action to recover on a written policy, and an alleged verbal modification thereof, statements of the agent who solicited the policy, prior to and contemporaneous with its issue, are inadmissible to vary its terms. In the absence of fraud or mistake, such statements are merged into the written contract.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

Agreement to issue policy; specific performance.

See Suydam v. Insurance Co., 18 Ohio 459 (1849).

Neville v. Insurance Co., 19 Ohio 452 (1850).

Where the property was transferred and the policy assigned, a verbal agreement, by an agent authorized to make contracts and issue policies, that the assigned policy should have the effect of a new policy, was held binding.

Insurance Co. v. Wall, 31 O. S. 628 (1877).

When contract takes effect.

Before delivery of policy. In the absence of a stipulation in the application or policy, making actual delivery of the policy a condition precedent to the consummation of the contract, the actual delivery or non-delivery of the policy is not of itself conclusive evidence of the completion of the contract; but the unconditional acceptance of the application by the insurer is a consummation of the contract.

Johnson v. Insurance Co., 66 O. S. 6 (1902).

Bennett v. Insurance Co., 27 W. L. B. 15 (1891).

Where there is no oral agreement for insurance prior to the policy, if a policy has been executed in form, but has not passed out of the possession of the insurer or his agent, and no premium has been paid, the contract is prima facie incomplete; and the burden is upon the party who asserts that there is a contract, to show that the policy became operative by the intention of both parties.

Where, there being no oral agreement for insurance to take effect prior to the issue of the policy, upon an application for insurance at less than the regular rate, an agent wrote up and countersigned a policy and, without parting with possession thereof, wrote to the applicant that he had "issued" a policy, but would hold it until he heard from the company, and the company thereafter rejected the risk and the agent forwarded the policy to the company, no contract of insurance was consummated, although the applicant received no notice of refusal of the risk.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312 (1906).

The general agent of a fire insurance company may bind it by a preliminary contract for insurance. Where the agent represents several companies he must designate, in some way, the company for which he contracts, in order to bind it, but notice to the company is not necessary.

Insurance Co. v. Bennett, 1 N. P. 71; 1 L. D. 60 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1894); aff'd, no rep., 56 O. S. 749; s. c., in special term, 27 W. L. B. 15.

The company can not ratify the agent's contract in part and reject it in part, without consent of the insured, and the insured may recover on the agent's contract, if he had no knowledge of the attempted modification thereof by the company. Insurance Co. v. Houek, 32 O. C. A. 429 (1922); motion to certify record overruled.

Where an agent, representing several companies, on being requested by telephone to write a policy for a given amount on certain property replied that he would do so, and thereafter wrote a policy in one of his companies, and the building was destroyed by fire before delivery of the policy or payment of the premium, the company was held liable where there was no claim made that the policy was not delivered because of failure to pay premium.

Insurance Co. v. Plato, 3 C. C. n. s. 207; 13 C. D. 35 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 701.

See also Insurance Co. v. Shoemaker, 22 W. L. B. 315.

When a contract of insurance has been completed by the party applying for insurance doing all that is required on his part, although the agent acting for the company has no power to issue the policy, the risk commences from the time of making such contract, if there be no stipulation to the contrary. Where such application, together with the premium note, is mailed to the office of the company, from which the policy is to issue, the company is liable, although the loss occurs before the arrival of the letter containing the application.

Palm v. Insurance Co., 20 Ohio 529 (1851).

Krumm v. Insurance Co., 40 O. S. 225 (1883).

If such contract be fair and strictly within the rules of the company, such liability will exist, although there be printed on the blank application the qualification that the policy will issue "if approved" by the company. Such qualification only saves the company the right to object to an unfair contract.

Palm v. Insurance Co., 20 Ohio 529 (1851).

Delivery. In the absence of any other evidence to show assent of the company to a contract of insurance, delivery of the policy must be shown.

Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312, 320 (1906).

Requisites of a valid delivery.

See Insurance Co. v. Whitman, 75 O. S. 312, 320.

Delivery of a duly executed policy, by an authorized agent, binds the company although the policy was accepted by the insured as a substitute for a policy in another company, which had revoked the authority of the same agent to act for it, the insured having no knowledge that the substitution was wrongful.

Insurance Co. v. Stambaugh, 76 O. S. 138 (1907).

An insurance agent negotiated for the plaintiff, through underwriters, a policy in one company. A few months later the underwriters notified the agent that the company would cancel the policy. The agent assented for the plaintiff but said that he would take the usual five days to obtain other insurance. Thereupon the underwriters offered to rewrite the policy in another company. The plaintiff, through the agent, assented, and a new policy was delivered the same day at two o'clock. A fire occurred at six o'clock. Held, that the court properly submitted to the jury the question as to the time the contract took effect, and the finding of the jury that it went into effect at the time of delivery is not contrary to law.

Ensel v. Lumber Ins. Co., 88 O. S. — (1913).

Before payment of premium. A policy takes effect before payment of premium in the absence of a stipulation on the subject.

See Plato v. Insurance Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 207; 13 C. D. 35 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 701.

An agent authorized to make contracts of fire insurance and issue policies may waive payment in cash of the premiums and give time for payment, unless there are restrictions in the policy of which the insured has notice; and such waiver may be express or implied.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

Where, under an arrangement with the insured by which his insurance was to be maintained up to a specified amount by renewals or new policies, it was the custom of the agent to charge the premiums as policies were issued, or renewed, and have periodical settlements with the insured, when the premiums would be paid, a credit for a premium so charged to the next settlement period may be implied.

Machine Co. v. Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 549 (1893).

Cancellation of policies.

See § 9577 and note.

Renewal. Where an agreement was made between an insurance company and a policyholder to renew the policy, nothing being said as to a change in its provisions, and a renewal policy, containing a new clause which materially affected the right of the policyholder to recover, was delivered but not read by the insured, the insured upon discovering the change may have the policy reformed by striking out the added clause. Under the circumstances the insured was held not guilty of laches. Roberts v. Insurance Co., 2 Ohio App. 463; 21 C. C. n. s. 433 (1914); s. c., 27 O. C. A. 10; 28 C. D. 253; motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 420.

A stockholder has no insurable interest in property belonging to the corporation.

Phillips v. Insurance Co., 20 Ohio 174 (1851).

A total alienation of the property by the insured extinguishes his insurable interest, although the policy contains no condition against alienation.

But an invalid judicial sale, which is subsequently set aside, does not extinguish the insurable interest of the mortgagor in possession.

Insurance Co. v. Sampson, 38 O. S. 672 (1883).

PROVISIONS, TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF POLICY.

Where a life insurance policy was accepted by the insured, remained in his possession for nine years, and nine annual premiums were paid by him, he is conclusively presumed to have knowledge of all the stipulations and provisions of the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Hook, 62 O. S. 256 (1900).

Construction. Policies of insurance should be construed, like other contracts, so as to give effect to the intention and express language of the parties.

Insurance Co. v. Myers, 62 O. S. 529 (1900).

West v. Insurance Co., 27 O. S. 1 (1875).

A policy should be construed strongly against the insurer and liberally in favor of the insured.

See Insurance Co. v. Schild, 69 O. S. 136, 139 (1903).

Exceptions in a policy should be strictly construed, and where there are two interpretations which are equally fair, the one which gives the greater indemnity should prevail.

Blackwell v. Insurance Co., 48 O. S. 533, 540 (1891).

Provisions for disabilities and forfeitures should, when the intent is doubtful, be strictly construed against those for whose benefit they are introduced.

But where the language has a plain meaning, and is not inconsistent with other clauses or provisions of the policy, effect must be given to it.

Transportation Co. v. Insurance Co., 170 Fed. 279 (C. C. A. 1909).

In case of conflict between the printed provisions of a policy and those inserted in writing at the time the contract is executed, the latter will prevail.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

But the special provision will override the general provision only where the two can not stand together. If reasonable effect can be given to both, each will be retained.

Insurance Co. v. Roost, 55 O. S. 581 (1897).

A condition, in a printed form of policy, of doubtful meaning susceptible of two or more constructions, will be construed most favorably to the insured.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

Stipulations rendering a policy void for forbidden hazards are construed to avoid liability during the existence of the forbidden hazard, but no longer.

Insurance Co. v. Burget, 65 O. S. 119, 123 (1901).

A stipulation rendering a policy "void," for certain causes, may become the subject of construction because of the variety of senses in which the word is used.

Insurance Co. v. Burget, 65 O. S. 119 (1901).

A policy containing a stipulation that "this entire policy shall be void" on certain named conditions, is not a severable risk, although the amount of insurance is distributed among different classes or articles of property.

Insurance Co. v. Schild, 69 O. S. 136 (1903).

Waiver. Conditions in a policy may be waived by the insurance company or its authorized agents.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

A "non-waiver" clause in the policy does not prevent a waiver by acts and conduct of authorized agents. Insurance Co. v. Cochran, 104 O. S. 427 (1922).

Knowledge by the agent, of facts as to the insurability of property, at the time the policy is issued, is the knowledge of the company, and operates as a waiver, although the policy contains a non-waiver clause. Foster v. Insurance Co., 101 O. S. 180 (1920).

Knowledge by the agent of facts occurring subsequent to the issuance of the policy may not be a waiver. Insurance Co. v. Titus, 82 O. S. 161 (1910).

See also note to § 9586. Authority to waive conditions of policy.

As to the application. Where the written application is referred to in the policy and expressly made a part of the contract, it becomes a part thereof as fully as if embodied in the policy.

Byers v. Insurance Co., 35 O. S. 606 (1880).

Where a policy provided that "any false representations made by the assured of the condition or occupancy of the property, or any material fact—material to the risk" would avoid the risk, it was held that representations concerning a matter material to the risk contained in the application, if untrue in fact, would avoid the policy, whether made intentionally or otherwise.

Byers v. Insurance Co., 35 O. S. 606 (1880).

See Pyle v. Insurance Co., 44 O. S. 19.

This rule has been modified by statute in some respects. See § 9583.

An omission to answer questions in the application does not constitute fraud, and where a policy is issued on the application, the omission is waived.

Insurance Co. v. Hock, 8 C. C. 341; 4 C. D. 553.

See also note to § 9586, Application filled up by agent.

A statement in the application that the property was unincumbered, when in fact a mortgage had been executed and delivered, avoids the policy.

Hutchins v. Insurance Co., 11 O. S. 477.

Concealment of any material fact. Where the interest of the insured in a building was acquired from a railroad company by written contract, in which he agreed to demolish the building and release the railroad from all damage by fire caused by it, and the underwriters thoroughly inspected the risk on the premises before they wrote the policy, but did not inquire for the contract nor ask any questions, and the insured made no statement about it, it was held that it was for the court to say whether his failure to mention the release was a material concealment.

Ensel v. Insurance Co., 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

The underwriters were held to be advised of the nature and extent of the interest of the insured as an element of the risk where the subject of insurance was described in the policy as follows: "On his interest in the lumber in Wabash Elevator No. 4 while on the premises, situated, . . . It is understood that the building is in progress of demolition and said insurance is to cover above described lumber while on the premises."

Ensel v. Insurance Co., 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

An incorrect statement in a proof of loss, terming the loss a "fire" loss, does not avoid a policy under a clause avoiding the policy for concealment or misrepresentation of material facts, where the policy covered a loss by lightning, and the loss was a collapse of the building caused, according to the insured's contention, by lightning. Hartford Ins. Co. v. Storage Co., 9 Ohio App. 403; 28 O. C. A. 273 (1918).

Premiums. See also above, When contract takes effect, and note to § 9420.

Where a policy is made and accepted on the express condition that "the entire policy shall be void . . . if the premium, or any note given therefor, shall have been due and unpaid for thirty days at the time any loss or damage shall happen to the property insured" the policy immediately becomes void, if the premium or note be not paid within thirty days after payment is due. No demand of payment or notice of intention to insist on the forfeiture is necessary on the part of the insurer.

Insurance Co. v. Wilson, 70 O. S. 354 (1904).

As to title. Where a policy covering a farm dwelling and farm implements is issued to a wife and husband, the dwelling being occupied as a homestead, and the implements used on the farm, a warranty and representation in the application that the property is owned by them jointly will not be held to be untrue merely because the title to the dwelling is wholly in the wife and the title to the implements is in the husband.

Webster v. Insurance Co., 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

——. Condition avoiding policy if the "interest of the insured be other than an unconditional and sole ownership, or if the subject of insurance be a building on ground not owned by the insured in fee simple." Such a condition does not bar recovery on the policy where the agent who issued the policy had knowledge that the insured's title was a leasehold only, and the insured had no knowledge of the condition until after a loss had occurred. Foster v. Insurance Co., 101 O. S. 180 (1920).

Under a clause, attached to the policy by an authorized agent, providing that it should cover property held in trust, or on commission, or sold but not removed, etc., the condition as to sole ownership was held to be waived.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

Such a condition does not bar recovery by a vendee who has been in possession under a land contract for more than twenty years although he has not paid all of the purchase price and has not received a deed.

Little v. Insurance Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 377; 20 L. D. 315 (C. P. 1910).

Breach of such a condition is no defense to the insured, in an action for assessments brought by the receiver of a mutual insurance company.

Webber v. Swing, 36 W. L. B. 179 (Supreme Court, without report, 1896).

Where the policy covered both the building and merchandise therein, in specified amounts, it was held that the contract was severable and that a breach of condition as to the land did not defeat recovery for the loss of the merchandise.

Coleman v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 310 (1892).

The risk is not severable where the stipulation is that "this entire policy shall be void" if the interest of the insured is not that of absolute ownership.

State v. Insurance Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 111; 14 L. D. 523 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 341.

Insurance Co. v. Schild, 69 O. S. 136 (1903).

Where the property insured was lumber in a building in process of demolition and not part of the real estate, the fact that the building was on ground not owned by the insured was held not to constitute a defense.

Ensel v. Lumber Insurance Co., 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

A purchaser of machines, under a contract, the title being retained by the seller until the expiration of the patents, and stipulated sums paid to the patentee meanwhile, is not the unconditional and sole owner.

State v. Insurance Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 111; 14 L. D. 523 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 341.

A vendor is not an unconditional and sole owner, where he has executed a land contract and the vendee has taken possession, and is not in default. Likewise a corporation is not such an owner, where its sole stockholder has executed a land contract in his own name. Insurance Co. v. Brown, 16 C. C. n. s. 518; 25 C. D. 69 (1905).

The interest of a purchaser under a conditional sale contract, before full payment, is not unconditional and sole ownership. Muskovitz v. Insurance Co., 3 Ohio App. 422; 21 C. C. n. s. 250; 26 C. D. 324 (1914).

— Against change "in the title, interest or possession by sale, transfer or conveyance" of the property. Violation of such a stipulation avoids the policy although the policy requires the insurer to consent to alienation, if requested within a certain time after the sale.

Insurance Co. v. Lindsey, 26 O. S. 348 (1875).

A conveyance by a husband to his wife of an undivided half interest in the property, without consent of the insurance company, violates the condition against alienation, where the insured was married subsequent to the issuance of the policy. Ohio Co. v. Wanda, 19 N. P. n. s. 133 (1915).

But see, Insurance Co. v. Sampson, 38 O. S. 672 (1883).

Sale by land contract, the vendee paying a part of the purchase price and taking possession.

Lees v. Insurance Co., 45 W. L. B. 335 (1901).

Insurance Co. v. Brown, 16 C. C. n. s. 518; 25 C. D. 69 (1905).

Conveyance of an undivided one-half interest by husband to wife, where the marriage occurred subsequent to the issuance of the policy. Ohio Co. v. Wanda, 19 N. P. n. s. 133 (1915).

— Held not to constitute a violation. (The wording of the condition is not, in all the cases cited below, the same as given above. In some cases, the condition, is merely against a sale or transfer.)

A mortgage.

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

Byers v. Insurance Co., 35 O. S. 606 (1880).

Prows v. Insurance Co., 2 C. S. C. R. 14 (1870).

The retirement of a partner and sale of his interest to the remaining partners.

West v. Insurance Co., 27 O. S. 1 (1875).

See Walker v. Insurance Co., 2 Handy 256 (1856).

A sale and transfer of merchandise followed by a resale and re-transfer to the insured.

Insurance Co. v. Lewis, 1 C. C. 79; 1 C. D. 47 (1885); aff'd, no rep., 19 W. L. B. 173.

Transfer to a trustee for the sole use and benefit of the insured.

Wood v. Insurance Co., 17 N. P. n. s. 273 (1913).

Transfer by one tenant in common to his co-tenants.

Insurance Co. v. Sockman, 15 C. C. 105; 8 C. D. 404 (1896); aff'd, no rep., 58 O. S. 717.

Delivery of possession to mortgagee.

Insurance Co. v. Hayes, 17 O. S. 432 (1867).

The appointment of a receiver to collect rents pendente lite in an action to forfeit the leasehold interest of the insured, where the receiver is not, and the insured is, in actual physical possession of the property. Foster v. Insurance Co., 101 O. S. 180 (1920).

The sale of an undivided interest, by the sole owner of a stock of merchandise, to a person who entered into partnership with him, was held not to violate a condition against a sale or transfer.

Blackwell v. Insurance Co., 48 O. S. 533 (1891).

Where an authorized agent of the insurance company endorsed on the policy a consent to the transfer of the property, the consent was held binding although only a part of the purchase price was paid and a mortgage was given to secure the balance. The mortgage did not avoid the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Brown, 4 C. C. n. s. 78; 14 C. D. 52 (1903).

Insurance Co. v. Ashton, 31 O. S. 477 (1877).

Where a deed was deposited in escrow for delivery to the purchaser when the purchase money was paid, and a fire occurred while the deed was held in escrow, and the insurance money paid to the vendor, as between vendor and purchaser it was held that the policy did not become void because of change of ownership and that the purchaser was entitled to the proceeds of insurance. Peek v. Hale, 11 Ohio App. 418, 30 O. C. A. 473 (1919).

Against assignment of the policy. The retirement of a partner and sale of his interest to the remaining partners does not avoid the policy.

West v. Insurance Co., 27 O. S. 1 (1875).

A "mortgage clause" attached to a policy at the time it is executed, which makes the loss, if any, payable to the mortgagee as his interest may appear is not an assignment of the policy to the mortgagee.

Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909).

Where the insurer consented in writing to an assignment of a policy, the terms of which limited the parties to the policy as issued and such additional modifying terms as are endorsed thereon in writing, a rider restricting liability of the insurer, which had been delivered by the insurer to the assignor of the policy but never attached to the policy, is not binding on the assignee. Auglaise Box Board Co. v. Insurance Co., 4 Ohio App. 26; 25 C. C. n. s. 339 (1914).

Against incumbrances. A stipulation avoiding the policy if any part of the property shall be incumbered by mortgage without the consent of the company is not within the provisions of § 9583. Such an incumbrance invalidates the policy.

Webster v. Insurance Co. 53 O. S. 558 (1895).

A vessel is a chattel and a mortgage thereof a "chattel mortgage" under a stipulation avoiding the policy "if the subject of insurance be personal property and be or become incumbered by a chattel mortgage."

Transportation Co. v. Insurance Co., 170 Fed. 279 (C. C. A. 1909).

A policy is avoided by a condition against incumbrances although the insured made no representations regarding incumbrances, and the amount of incumbrances is small in comparison to the value of the property.

Hickey v. Insurance Co., 20 C. C. 385; 11 C. D. 135 (1900).

That the agent of the insurance company had notice or knowledge of a mortgage incumbrance and received premiums is not a waiver of a condition against incumbrances, where the policy required all wavers to be indorsed on the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Titus, 82 O. S. 161 (1910).

Insurance Co. v. Kreidel, 11 C. C. n. s. 193; 20 C. D. 677 (1908).

Hammel v. Insurance Co., 4 C. C. n. s. 380; 14 C. D. 101 (1902).

Where the agent of the company, learning of the execution of a chattel mortgage, informed the insured of its effect on the insurance, and the policy was returned to the agent who notified the company, it was held to be the duty of the company to act within a reasonable time, and either return the unearned premium or the policy, and that where the agent returned the policy to be insured, retaining the premium, the condition of the policy was waived.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309 (1911).

The following have been held to be violations of a condition against incumbrances:

A mortgage given by a corporation to secure its bonds, which were not sold, but were pledged to secure its obligations.

Transportation Co. v. Insurance Co., 170 Fed. 27 (1909).

An unrecorded mortgage.

Hutchins v. Insurance Co., 11 O. S. 477 (1860).

A chattel mortgage. Muskovitz v. Insurance Co., 3 Ohio App. 422; 21 C. C. n. s. 250 (1914).

The following have been held not to be such violations of a condition against incumbrances as to invalidate the insurance.

Substitution of one mortgage for another without increasing the amount.

Insurance Co. v. Dannison, 38 W. L. B. 163 (1897).

A cognovit judgment, where it was not alleged or proved that the risk was increased thereby.

Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 5 C. C. 444; 3 C. D. 218 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 567.

But see Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907).

Dower of a widow under a policy payable to the "heirs" of her husband.

Insurance Co. v. Britton, 31 O. S. 488 (1877).

A railroad mortgage covering a building in process of demolition, the lumber in which was sold by the railroad company to the insured, the mortgage containing a provision permitting the railroad company to dispose of equipment and material, replacing the same with new.

Ensel v. Lumber Insurance Co., 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

Where consent of the company to a transfer of the property was indorsed on the policy, and the sale was made in part for cash, and a mortgage given to secure the balance, the consent to the transfer was held to include consent to the terms of sale, and the mortgage did not avoid the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Brown, 4 C. C. n. s. 78; 14 C. D. 52 (1903); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 655.

Insurance Co. v. Ashton, 31 O. S. 477 (1877).

— Mortgage clause. A "mortgage clause" attached to the policy at the time of its execution by an authorized agent of the company, making the loss, if any, payable to the mortgagee as his interest may appear is a waiver of a condition against incumbrance in the printed portion of the policy.

Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309, 332 (1911).

Such a clause is not an assignment of the policy to the mortgagee.

Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909).

The mortgagee is bound by the award of appraisers, required by the policy in case of disagreement between the insured and the insurer as to the amount of the loss, although the mortgagee was not a party to, and had no notice of, the appraisalment and award; in the absence of fraud or collusion.

Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909); reversing 11 C. C. n. s. 28; 20 C. D. 390.

A mortgagor is not the agent of the mortgagee in procuring insurance on the mortgaged property for the benefit of the mortgagee as his interest may appear and in accordance with an agreement so to do. And where the mortgagee was not a party to the procuring of the policy, and had no knowledge of fraud, fraudulent representations and concealments on the part of the mortgagor in procuring the insurance constitute no defense against the mortgage.

Insurance Co. v. Boland, 8 C. C. n. s. 325 (1904); aff'd, no rep., 72 O. S. 645; 73 O. S. 393.

Construction of ambiguous clause relating to binding effect on mortgage, of conditions in policy.

See Bank v. Insurance Co., 83 O. S. 309, 336 (1911).

A policy for the benefit of a mortgagee as additional security provided that the insured could not "demand or recover" any part of the insurance until the mortgaged property was exhausted. Upon a total loss the mortgagee was held entitled, under § 9583, to maintain an action on the policy before it was determined by a foreclosure and sale how much of the insurance money was required to pay the mortgage debt.

Insurance Co. v. Mirick, 38 W. L. B. 172 (1897).

A stipulation in the policy, that its conditions and provisions should apply to the interest of the mortgagee, renders inapplicable as to the mortgagee conditions avoiding the policy for (a) non-operation of a manufacturing plant, (b) foreclosure proceedings and (c) as to vacancy of the premises. (A different rule prevails in federal courts.) Trust Co. v. Insurance Co., 1 Ohio App. 447; 17 C. C. n. s. 411; 24 C. D. 218 (1913).

It has been held that a mortgagee under the so-called "union mortgage clause" of the standard fire policy of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut may recover on the policy although neither he nor the mortgagor present proof of loss as required of the "insured" by a condition in the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Krumm, 12 C. C. n. s. 364 (1909).

Compare Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909).

Other insurance. Additional insurance increases the risk, as a matter of law, and a condition avoiding the policy, if other insurance is placed on the property, is not prohibited by § 9583.

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

Other insurance placed on property, without the consent of the insurance company, in violation of a condition avoiding the policy therefor, defeats recovery on the policy, unless the condition is waived by the company or an authorized agent.

McBee v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 75 (C. P. 1910).

Insurance Co. v. France, 51 O. S. 604 (decided without opinion, 1894).

Sun Fire Office v. Clark, 53 O. S. 414 (1895).

A condition against other insurance in a policy issued to a railroad on a warehouse was held to be violated by subsequent insurance covering the warehouse and other property of the railroad.

Insurance Co. v. Railroad Co., 28 O. S. 69 (1875).

A condition against other insurance in a policy issued to a lessor, is not violated by other insurance procured by his lessee, in the name of the lessor, with loss payable to lessee, without the knowledge of the lessor.

Insurance Co. v. Carson, 23 W. L. B. 224.

See Bates v. Insurance Co., 2 C. S. C. R. 195 (1872).

The procuring of new policies which never took effect, because of conditions therein, was held not to be a violation of a condition against other insurance.

Insurance Co. v. Holt, 35 O. S. 189 (1878).

Where a contract for intermediary insurance and for a policy on the same risk was made subject to the conditions in the printed policy, which required all additional insurance to be endorsed on the policy, it was held that no endorsement was required to be made on the contract for intermediary insurance.

Insurance Co. v. Holt, 35 O. S. 189 (1878).

A slip attached to the policy providing that "other concurrent insurance permitted to the amount of $....." was held to be a waiver of the condition against other insurance except by agreement added to the policy, where the agent had knowledge of the other insurance, before the policy was issued. McKelvey v. Insurance Co., 1 Ohio App. 184; 20 C. C. n. s. 88; 24 C. D. 443 (1913).

A provision in a policy limiting the liability of the insurer to its proportion of the loss, in the event of other insurance, is valid as to personal property but is in violation of §§ 9583 and 9584 as to buildings. Insurance Co. v. Dennison, 93 O. S. 404 (1916).

Where a question in an application regarding other insurance was not answered, a condition requiring notice of prior insurance was held to be waived.

Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 24 O. S. 345 (1873).

Where the application was filled in by the agent, who was told by the applicant that he had other insurance, but the agent wrongly entered in the application that there was no other insurance, the condition against other insurance is no defense to the company.

Herbert v. Insurance Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 7; 13 C. D. 235 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 687.

Evidence that an agent of the insured called, by telephone, the office of the insurance company and notified the person answering the call that additional insurance had been taken out, and that the reply was "all right," has been held competent.

Insurance Co. v. Hock, 8 C. C. 341; 4 C. D. 553 (1894); affirmed without passing on the effect of the evidence as to notice by telephone, 56 O. S. 735.

Reformation of a policy to provide for a waiver of the condition against other insurance was refused where it was not shown that the agent who solicited the insurance was authorized to waive the condition, or that the agent who wrote the policy consented to the waiver or had knowledge of other insurance.

McBee v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 75 (C. P. 1910).

As to vacancy. A condition avoiding the policy if the building shall become vacant, unoccupied or uninhabited, without the knowledge or consent of the insurer, is valid, and there can be no recovery under the policy for a loss by fire while the building is vacant.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907); approving Insurance Co. v. Wells, 42 O. S. 519 (1885); overruling Moody v. Insurance Co., 52 O. S. 12 (1894); (and reversing 6 N. P. n. s. 514; 16 L. D. 524; 1 Hosea 405).

Such a condition is not inconsistent with § 9583 and it is not necessary for the insurance company to allege and prove that the risk was increased by the vacancy.

Insurance Co. v. Werner, 76 O. S. 543 (1907).

Under such a condition a policy is avoided where a tenant moves out and leaves the house vacant, without the knowledge of the owner.

Insurance Co. v. Wells, 42 O. S. 519.

A condition against non-operation of a manufacturing plant for more than 30 consecutive days is not nullified by a rider reading: "privilege of temporarily ceasing operations, not exceeding thirty days at any one time, without notice to the company." Watson v. Insurance Co., 23 C. C. n. s. 363; 26 C. D. 351 (1913).

Where a tenant moved out, and the son of the owner slept in the house during the day and worked nights, having only a cot, a chair and an alarm clock in the house; and the family of the owner resided next door and obtained water from a cistern in the kitchen of this house, and the owner went through the house every day, and a fire occurred late at night, it was held that in legal effect the house was unoccupied.

Insurance Co. v. Baldwin, 62 O. S. 368 (1900).

Where the agent of the company has knowledge of the vacancy, the condition is waived.

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 12 C. C. n. s. 228; 21 C. D. 469 (1909); aff'd, 85 O. S. 161.

Where the condition of manufacturing property was the same at the time the policy was written and delivered as it was at the time of the fire, a condition against vacancy and non-operation will not defeat recovery.

Gump v. Insurance Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 428; 24 C. D. 36 (1912); aff'd, no rep., 86 O. S. 325.

But where the policy provided that no agent should have power to waive any condition of the policy, except in writing endorsed on the policy, it was held that knowledge by the agent that the establishment was idle, at the time the policy was written and thereafter remained idle, did not entitle the insured to recover. Watson v. Insurance Co., 23 C. C. n. s. 363; 26 C. D. 351 (1913); not following Gump v. Insurance Co., supra.

A condition against vacancy does not avoid a policy as against a mortgagee, under certain forms of mortgage clauses. Trust Co. v. Insurance Co., 1 Ohio App. 447; 17 C. C. n. s. 411; 24 C. D. 218 (1913).

As to change in location of property. Under a stipulation that "this policy shall become void, unless consent in writing is endorsed by the company hereon, if any change takes place in the location of the property," the insured may recover for the loss of chattels destroyed at a location to which they were removed with the insurer's consent, notwithstanding their previous removal to another location without such consent.

Insurance Co. v. Burget, 65 O. S. 119 (1901); affirming 17 C. C. 619.

Such a stipulation should be construed with reference to its purpose and, thus construed, it does not exempt the insurer from liability because of a change in the location of insured chattels without its consent if the hazards of such location are not operative at the time of loss.

Insurance Co. v. Burget, 65 O. S. 119 (1901).

Where goods insured "while located and contained as described herein and not otherwise" are removed to another location, without consent of the company endorsed on the policy, as required by the policy, there can be no recovery for a loss after the removal, notwithstanding the insured notified the agent of the company of the proposed removal, and the agent promised to see that proper entries were made to preserve the insurance.

Walsh v. Insurance Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 1; 17 C. D. 313 (1905).

(The wording of the stipulation in this case differed from that involved in Insurance Co. v. Burget, 65 O. S. 119 supra).

See also Insurance Co. v. Vorhis, 1 C. C. 326; 1 C. D. 180 (1885).

Under a policy on household goods and chattels "all contained in the above described dwelling," the company is not liable for loss by fire of a toy patrol wagon while standing in the yard of the premises and near to, but not within, the dwelling, and which had never been kept within the dwelling.

Bruck v. Insurance Co., 5 O. L. R. 46; 17 L. D. 751 (C. P. 1907).

Use of premises. Where the policy stipulates that it shall be void if certain kinds of business, enumerated in the policy, and called "hazardous" or "specially hazardous" are carried on in the premises, a violation of such stipulation avoids the policy whether the risk is increased or not.

Matthews v. Insurance Co., 2 C. S. C. R. 109 (1872).

Harris v. Insurance Co., 4 O. S. 285 (1854).

But a temporary use of premises for such prohibited use, for the purpose of repair, was said not to avoid the policy.

Harris v. Insurance Co., 4 O. S. 285 (1854).

See Insurance Co. v. Frick, 2 Am. L. R. 336.

A stipulation avoiding the policy if "gasoline, or any of the products of petroleum or coal oil are deposited, stored or kept, or used for light in the premises," was held not violated where gasoline was kept in a tank underground, thirty-five feet from the buildings insured, and vaporized by means of machinery, and the vapor conveyed into the building in pipes, and used to light the buildings.

Insurance Co. v. Sinclair, 1 C. C. 498; 1 C. D. 276 (1886); aff'd, no rep., 25 W. L. B. 153.

See Insurance Co. v. Insurance Co., 5 O. S. 450 (1856).

Insurance Co. v. Brown, 16 C. C. n. s. 518, 522 (1905).

Nor is such a stipulation violated by keeping gasoline in a pint bottle near the gasoline engine, for use in starting the engine, where the main supply of gasoline is kept in a separate building, and where the insurer's agent knew that the premises were used for manufacturing, with power generated by such engine.

Gump v. Insurance Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 428; 24 C. D. 36 (1912); aff'd, no rep., 86 O. S. 325.

And where the insurer's agent knew that the premises were lighted by gas generated on the premises, recovery is not defeated by a provision that "this entire policy (unless otherwise provided by agreement endorsed thereon or added thereto) shall be void . . . if illuminating gas or vapor be generated in the described building. Insurance Co. v. Roberts, 27 O. C. A. 10; 28 C. D. 253 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 13 O. L. R. 420; s. c., 2 Ohio App. 463; 21 C. C. n. s. 433.

Under a stipulation avoiding the policy if certain articles were kept on the premises, the insured can not recover by showing a custom to keep small quantities as a part of stock of merchandise.

Beer v. Insurance Co., 39 O. S. 109 (1883).

See Insurance Co. v. Corey, 8 West L. J. 470 (1851).

Under a floating policy covering all merchandise "situated anywhere in the United States except while on premises occupied by the insured for manufacturing purposes" the exception applies only to places where actual work of manufacturing is carried on, and does not include raw materials stored in a separate building adjacent to a manufacturing plant. Insurance Co. v. Sherwin-Williams Co., 23 C. C. n. s. 390 (1913).

Excepting certain risks. A provision in a policy that the insurance company "shall not be liable for loss caused directly or indirectly by riot" exempts it from all loss due to riot, whether from fire or otherwise, and where the building was destroyed by a fire which had spread from another building set on fire by rioters, the company was held not liable.

Insurance Co. v. Whitelaw, 1 C. C. n. s. 412; 15 C. D. 197 (1903);
aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 365.

The printed part of a policy provided that "this insurance does not apply to or cover any loss by explosion, unless fire ensues, and then the loss or damage by fire only." A special clause, attached to the policy provided "that this policy insures against any loss or damage caused by lightning . . . subject in all other respects to the terms and conditions of the policy." A quantity of powder stored in a powder house in the neighborhood was struck by lightning, and the force of the explosion of the powder totally destroyed the property insured. Held, that the loss being occasioned by the explosion which was excepted from the risk, the company was not liable.

Insurance Co. v. Roost, 55 O. S. 581 (1897).

See also Insurance Co. v. Parker, 23 O. S. 85 (1872).

Insurance Co. v. Foote, 22 O. S. 340 (1872).

Iron safe clause. A stipulation requiring the insured to keep a set of books containing a complete record of business transacted, does not make it necessary for the insured to keep a scientific set of books. Books from which it is possible to fairly ascertain the amount of goods on hand at the time of the fire, are sufficient.

Insurance Co. v. Clark, 2 C. C. n. s. 585; 14 C. D. 33 (1902).

Insurance Co. v. Kistner, 5 C. C. n. s. 165; 16 C. D. 569 (1904);
reversed on other grounds, 75 O. S. 374.

The fact that the cash book of a country store had not been placed in the safe at ten o'clock at night, and was destroyed by a fire occurring at that hour, does not constitute a defense under the iron safe clause, where a lunch counter connected with the store was in operation at that hour.

Insurance Co. v. Kistner, 5 C. C. n. s. 165; 16 C. D. 569 (1904);
reversed on other grounds, 75 O. S. 374.

Where the insured kept his books in his store only in the day time when in use, and at his house when not in use, the iron safe clause was held not to be violated.

Billings v. Insurance Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 21; 14 L. D. 387 (1904); aff'd, 6 C. C. n. s. 567; 17 C. D. 552.

And where the insured was accustomed to remove his books from the premises at night, but on the night of the fire, through forgetfulness of an employee, the books were left in the building and burned, the iron safe clause does not defeat recovery, where the insured produced the original pencil copy of his inventory, and written evidence substantially showing his purchases and sales between the time when the inventory was taken and the fire. Old Colony Co. v. Schultz, 7 Ohio App. 469; 27 O. C. A. 501 (1917).

Notice and proof of loss. Where a policy stipulates that proofs of loss must be forwarded within a reasonable time, but provides no penalty except that payment on the policy will be delayed until the proofs are furnished, the right to recover on the policy does not depend upon the time when the proofs are furnished.

Insurance Co. v. Gray, 2 C. C. n. s. 265; 14 C. D. 268 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 542.

Trust Co. v. Insurance Co., 1 Ohio App. 447; 17 C. C. n. s. 411; 24 C. D. 218 (1913); aff'd, no rep. 92 O. S. 516.

Wood v. Insurance Co., 17 N. P. n. s. 273 (1913).

Under a condition avoiding the policy if proof of loss is not presented to the company within sixty days after the occurrence of a fire, failure to present the proofs within the time limit defeats recovery on the policy.

Billings v. Insurance Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 567; 17 C. D. 552 (1905); affirming 2 N. P. n. s. 21; 14 L. D. 387.

Insurance Co. v. Lindsey, 26 O. S. 348 (1875).

Insurance Co. v. McGookey, 33 O. S. 555 (1878).

But notice may be waived by the insurance company, and such waiver need not be in writing but may arise from acts and conduct of the company after expiration of the time specified. Whether acts amount to a waiver is a question for the jury. Insurance Co. v. Euce, 2 Ohio App. 299; 21 C. C. n. s. 465; 25 C. D. 169 (1913).

Notice should be given in the manner specified in the policy. Notice to the soliciting agent may be insufficient. Insurance Co. v. Silberman, 24 C. C. n. s. 511 (1904).

But an agent who is authorized to issue and countersign policies and collect premiums is a general agent and notice to him is sufficient. Wood v. Insurance Co., 17 N. P. n. s. 273 (1913).

Where a policy requires proof of loss to be made "forthwith" proof may be made within a reasonable time.

Kirk v. Insurance Co., 6 W. L. B. 200 (Dist. Ct. 1881); aff'd, no rep., 11 W. L. B. 228.

See Indemnity Co. v. Fletcher, 5 C. C. 633; 3 C. D. 308 (1891).

"Immediate" notice means notice within a reasonable time.

Crane v. Insurance Co., 3 N. P. 318; 4 N. P. 309 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1896); aff'd, no rep., 59 O. S. 617.

Although an answer in a proof of loss may be wrong, and fail to give the information intended, yet where not misleading, nor harmful to the company, and the information sought is given elsewhere in the proof, the proof is sufficient.

Insurance Co. v. Strong, 1 C. C. n. s. 502; 15 C. D. 101 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 708.

A requirement that the magistrate or notary public living nearest the place of fire certify that he has examined the circumstances and believes that the insured has honestly sustained loss to the amount stated, is complied with where the magistrate adopts and endorses the statements of the insured in his proofs, when such endorsement is based upon knowledge and investigation.

Insurance Co. v. Strong, 1 C. C. n. s. 502; 15 C. D. 101 (1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 708.

A verbal waiver of a condition, requiring proofs of loss, is invalid where the policy requires all waivers to be endorsed on the policy.

Billings v. Insurance Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 567; 17 C. D. 552 (1905); affirming 2 N. P. n. s. 21; 21 L. D. 387.

See Stacy v. Insurance Soc., 1 C. C. n. s. 441; 15 C. D. 67 (1903); reversed, no rep., 72 O. S. 593.

A waiver of the time for presenting proofs of loss may be made after expiration of the time limited in the policy therefor.

Insurance Co. v. Kukral, 7 C. C. 356; 4 C. D. 633 (1893); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 609.

Objections to preliminary proofs are waived, if not made when the proofs are presented, and the insured is informed by the underwriters that the claim is rejected on other grounds.

Insurance Co. v. Boyle, 21 O. S. 119 (1871).

Proof of loss verified by an attorney at law for a non-resident client, the client having no knowledge of the facts, was held sufficient.

Gump v. Insurance Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 428, 24 C. D. 36 (1912); aff'd, no rep., 86 O. S. 325.

It has been held that a mortgagee, under the so-called "union mortgage clause" of the standard fire policy of New York, New Jersey and Connecticut may recover on the policy although neither he nor the mortgagor present proof of loss as required of "the insured" by a condition in the policy.

Insurance Co. v. Krumm, 12 C. C. n. s. 364 (1909).

Compare Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909).

Where a stipulation in a policy gave the insurer the right to examine the insured under oath, and notice was served on the insured of the time and place of the examination and the name of the person before whom the same was to be held, and the insured attended but refused to submit to examination, the insured can not recover on the policy.

Mahoney v. Insurance Co., 3 N. P. n. s. 246; 16 L. D. 131 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1905); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 503.

Appraisement. (a) In case of total loss. Where the loss is total, a stipulation requiring the amount of loss to be determined by appraisers is in conflict with § 9583. The insured need not comply with such condition.

Insurance Co. v. Drackett, 63 O. S. 41 (1900).

Insurance Co. v. Leslie, 47 O. S. 409 (1890).

Insurance Co. v. Luce, 11 C. C. 476; 5 C. D. 210 (1896).

Insurance Co. v. McBee, 12 C. C. n. s. 229; 21 C. D. 469 (1909); aff'd, 85 O. S. 161.

By consenting to have the amount of loss determined by appraisers, the insured does not waive the right to maintain an action and recover as for a total loss.

Insurance Co. v. Drackett, 63 O. S. 41 (1900).

Insurance Co. v. Fish Co., 14 C. C. 160; 7 C. D. 468 (1898); aff'd, no rep., 61 O. S. 643.

Insurance Co. v. Luce, 11 C. C. 476; 5 C. D. 210 (1896).

Where an award has been made, and an action is thereafter brought for a total loss, there can be no recovery unless a total loss is proven, and the only question for the jury is whether the loss is partial or total.

Insurance Co. v. Gray, 2 C. C. n. s. 265; 14 C. D. 268 (1902); aff'd, no rep., 69 O. S. 542.

— (b) Where the loss is partial. Stipulations in a policy making the ascertainment of the amount of loss by appraisers, in case of disagreement between the parties, a condition precedent to an action by the insured, are valid, when the loss is partial. The petition, in an action by the insured, must allege an award by the appraisers or a legal excuse for its absence.

Graham v. Insurance Co., 75 O. S. 374 (1906); (overruling Insurance Co. v. Finn, 60 O. S. 513).

Insurance Co. v. Carnahan, 63 O. S. 258 (1900).

Fire Ass'n v. Appel, 76 O. S. 1. 7 (1907).

Assurance Co. v. Weinberger, 23 C. C. n. s. 246 (1912).

Under many of the forms of such stipulation, in general use, no obligation rests on the insurer to demand an appraisal, but the burden rests on the insured to show that he has performed, or offered to perform, the condition as to appraisal.

Graham v. Insurance Co., 75 O. S. 374 (1906).

Where the insurer, upon receiving the proof of loss, disputes the amount claimed, and demands an appraisement, a disagreement exists sufficient to be the foundation for an appraisal.

Insurance Co. v. Carnahan, 63 O. S. 260 (1900).

Weil v. Insurance Co., 23 C. C. n. s. 281; 27 C. D. 263 (1914).

A letter from the insurer to the insured, stating that it had reason to believe, from information before it, that the loss was caused by a cyclone and not by lightning; and also that the cash value of the property was less, and the salvage more, than claimed in the proofs, is not a denial of liability by the insurer, or a waiver of the stipulation for an appraisal. In such case, the insured can not give his reasons for not demanding an appraisal.

Everett Co. v. Insurance Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 241, 290; 20 L. D. 171 (1909); aff'd, no rep., 81 O. S. 573.

A demand by the insurer for an appraisement, accompanied by a request to the insured to meet the insurers at a time and place convenient to, and to be designated by, the insured, for the purpose of selecting appraisers, is an offer to perform. A neglect to comply with such demand, under a claim that there was no disagreement as to the amount of loss until the goods saved were sold by the insured, is a refusal to perform on the part of the insured.

Insurance Co. v. Carnahan, 63 O. S. 260 (1900).

Where appraisers are chosen, and begin work, but the appraisement is stopped before completion, or the award is made invalid by default of one of the parties, the other party is not bound to enter into a new appraisement, when not required by the policy.

Fire Ass'n v. Appel, 76 O. S. 1 (1907).

Where the appraiser appointed by the insurer withdraws, without the fault of either party, and refuses to proceed further, it is the right and duty of the insurer to choose another. Where the insurer refuses to choose another appraiser, or proceed further, but demands a new appraisement, such conduct is a waiver of the condition.

Fire Ass'n v. Appel, 76 O. S. 1 (1907).

The insurer has no right to refuse to appoint an appraiser, as provided in the policy, on the ground that work has been done toward restoring the building. Hartford Ins. Co. v. Storage Co., 9 Ohio App. 403; 28 O. C. A. 273 (1918).

A stipulation for an appraisement was held not to be a stipulation for an arbitration, and where the appraisers and umpire had before them a list of the property destroyed, and the insured's statement in detail as to his loss, the appraisement was not set aside because the appraisers refused to hear evidence. Such a submission is not to be judged by the rules applicable to arbitration and award.

Insurance Co. v. Ries, 80 O. S. 272 (1909).

Compare Insurance Co. v. Romeis, 15 C. C. 697; 8 C. D. 633 (1898).

A mortgagee, holding a policy with the usual "mortgage clause" attached, making the loss, if any, payable to him as his interest may appear, is in the absence of fraud or collusion, bound by the award of appraisers, required and provided for in the policy, although he was not a party to, and had no notice of, the appraisement or award.

Brewing Co. v. Insurance Co., 81 O. S. 1 (1909); affirming 11 C. C. n. s. 28; 20 C. D. 390.

Denial of liability by an adjuster, on the ground that the insured had himself caused the fire, is not a waiver of an appraisal, in the absence of evidence showing that the adjuster was authorized by the company to deny liability. Assurance Co. v. Kehoe, 24 C. C. n. s. 465 (1913).

Where the insured alleged that there was no disagreement as to the amount of loss and that he had performed all the conditions on his part to be performed, such allegations are not put in issue by a general denial.

Insurance Co v. Titus, 82 O. S. 161 (1910).

Where there is concurrent insurance, and an appraisal was had, the amount recoverable is limited to a proportionate amount of the loss so determined, and the insured can not recover more unless the appraisal is void or is set aside. If only voidable he should in his petition unite a cause of action to set it aside. If void he may plead its invalidity in his reply, where performance of all conditions is alleged in the petition.

Insurance Co. v. Ries, 80 O. S. 272 (1909).

A former statute (Rev. Stats. § 3643b) requiring arbitrators to be residents of the county in which the loss occurred was held constitutional.

Insurance Co. v. Packet Co., 6 N. P. 173; 7 L. D. 571 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1898).

Limiting time for bringing suit. A provision in a policy limiting the time within which suit may be brought thereon is valid, provided the period of limitation is not unreasonable.

Appel v. Insurance Co., 76 O. S. 52 (1907).

(Twelve months) Insurance Co. v. Schwan, 1 C. C. 192; 1 C. D. 105 (1885).

(Six months) Insurance Co. v. Howle, 19 C. C. 621; 10 C. D. 290 (1900).

*See Insurance Co v. Gierl, 16 C. C. 294; 9 C. D. 162; aff'd, no rep., 57 O. S. 671.

A provision that "no suit or action . . . shall be sustainable . . . nor unless commenced within six months next after the fire" is unambiguous and will be enforced in a suit on a policy commenced more than six months after the date of the fire, where no extrinsic facts are alleged excusing delay in bringing the suit.

Appel v. Insurance Co., 76 O. S. 52 (1907).

The time begins to run from the date of fire notwithstanding the policy also contains a provision "that the loss shall not be payable until sixty days after proofs of loss have been received by the company."

Insurance Co. v. Appel, 76 O. S. 52 (1907).

Where a provision required suit to be brought within twelve months after the loss, it was held that the time began to run from the time of the fire.

Insurance Co. v. Schwan, 1 C. C. 192; 1 C. D. 105 (1885).

Meyer v. Insurance Co., 6 N. P. 34; 7 L. D. 573.

Where a petition shows on its face that suit is brought after the time limited, a sufficient excuse for the delay must be alleged.

Minerick v. Insurance Co., 1 Cleve. L. R. 217.

See Meyer v. Insurance Co., 6 N. P. 34; 7 L. D. 573; aff'd, 9 L. D. 596.

But where suit is brought within the twelve months stipulated time, and fails otherwise than on its merits, a second suit brought within twelve months after dismissal of the first suit may be maintained, although brought more than twelve months after the fire. G. C. § 11233; Cortesi v. Insurance Co., 5 Ohio App. 109; 25 C. C. n. s. 509 (1915); motion to certify record overruled, 14 O. L. R. 193.

The waiver of a proof of loss and the denial of liability under the policy is a waiver of a condition providing that the suit shall only be brought after sixty days after proof of loss.

Insurance Co. v. Kukral, 7 C. C. 356; 4 C. D. 633 (1893); aff'd, no rep., 51 O. S. 609.

A provision in a Lloyd's policy that "no action shall be brought to enforce the provisions of this policy, except against the general manager as attorney in fact and representing all of the underwriters, and each of the underwriters hereby agrees to abide by the result of any suit so brought," is valid and binding.

Transportation Co. v. Gilchrist, 2 C. C. n. s. 505; 14 C. D. 165 (1902).

Gilchrist v. Transportation Co., 21 C. C. 19; 11 C. D. 350 (1900).

A policy limitation as to the time of bringing suit has been held binding upon the guardian of an imbecile. Stradley v. Insurance Co., 21 N. P. n. s. 286 (1918).

Subrogation. Where the insured property is destroyed through the wrongful act or neglect of a person other than the insured, the insurer, upon payment of the loss, is subrogated to the rights of the insured against such third person.

Oil Co. v. Insurance Co., 15 C. C. 355; 8 C. D. 145 (1898).

Railroad Co. v. Falk, 62 O. S. 297 (1900).

See Shields v. Cincinnati Traction Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 133 (C. P. 1911).

In an action brought by the insured against a railroad company under G. C. § 8970, the insurance company, having made payment of a portion of the loss, may intervene for the purpose of being subrogated to the extent of its payment. The amount recovered should be adjudged to the insured and insurer according to the interest of each.

Railroad Co. v. Falk, 62 O. S. 297 (1900); affirming 16 C. C. 125; 8 C. D. 765.

The insurance company has no greater rights than those of the insured. Insurance Co. v. Railway, 74 O. S. 30, 36 (1906).

Where the interest of the insured was acquired from a railroad company by written contract, in which he agreed to demolish the building and release the railroad from all damage by fire caused by it, and the underwriters inspected the risk before writing the policy, and did not inquire for the contract nor ask questions about it, the policy was held not invalidated thereby, there being no express stipulation for forfeiture for such cause.

Ensel v. Insurance Company, 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

A provision in a policy for subrogation can only be used to work a forfeiture strictissime juris. It is inserted by the insurer for its own benefit and is to be construed most strictly against the insurer and in favor of the insured.

Ensel v. Lumber Insurance Co., 88 O. S. 269 (1913).

Where the insurer refused, on request, to contribute to the prosecution of an action against the wrong-doer, and, after payment of the insurance, the insured recovered a judgment against the wrong-doer, he is liable to the insurer for no more, if anything, than the surplus of the amount recovered from the wrong-doer, which remains after full satisfaction of his uncompensated loss, and expenses of recovery.

Newcomb v. Insurance Co., 22 O. S. 382 (1872).

Where the insurer pays part of the loss, and agrees with the insured to jointly sue the wrong-doer, the insured can not compromise and dismiss the action without consent of the insurer. In such case the insurer may bring suit against the insured for a violation of the agreement and of his duty as a trustee.

Insurance Co. v. Stang, 18 C. C. 464; 9 C. D. 576 (1897).

Compromise with insured. Where, by threats of a groundless criminal prosecution, an insured is induced to accept less than the amount justly due on his policy, and to surrender to the policy, he may sue for the balance due without tendering back the money so received.

Insurance Co. v. Hull, 51 O. S. 270 (1894).

But where acceptance of the less sum was not induced by threats of a criminal prosecution, but the liability of the insurer was in dispute, the insured can not sue without returning or tendering back the amount received, although the settlement was procured by fraudulent representations.

Insurance Co. v. Burke, 69 O. S. 294 (1903).

Fraud or mistake in inducing a compromise must be pleaded.

Casualty Co. v. Jordan, 3 O. L. R. 133; 17 C. D. 696 (1905).

Section 9588. (Restrictions in advertisements.) No fire insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, or admitted to do business therein, in any public advertisement, card, or circular, shall include in a statement of assets, any item of value, of a class or character not admitted by the superintendent of insurance of this state in the annual reports of such companies. And every such advertisement, card, or circular, containing a statement of assets, in all cases also must contain a full statement of all the liabilities of the company, including the reinsurance reserve, which in no case shall be less than that required by law for its annual report. (R. S. Sec. 3661a; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 419; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 185).

The sale of a fire insurance agency business, with good will, does not affect the right of the insurance companies to revoke the authority of the purchaser and to appoint a new agent. Custom of insurance agents does not entitle the purchaser to an injunction against the new agent, to prevent the securing of renewals by the new agent. Bryson Co. v. Archer, 18 C. C. n. s. 437 (1912); aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 413.

Section 9589. (Forfeiture.) Any violation of the preceding section, after the second notice from the superintendent of insurance will render such company liable to a forfeiture of one thousand dollars, and each subsequent violation to a like forfeiture to be recovered for the benefit of the common school fund of the county, in an action to be instituted by the prosecuting attorney in the name of the state, against such company. (R. S. Sec. 3661b; April 12, 1880, 77 v. 185, 186.)

Section 9589-1. (Rebates and special advantages in policies, etc., prohibited.) No corporation, association or co-partnership engaged in the state of Ohio in the guaranty, bonding, surety or insurance business, other than life insurance, nor any officer, agent, solicitor, employe or representative thereof shall pay, allow or give, or offer to pay, allow or give, directly or indirectly, as inducements to insurance, and no person shall knowingly receive as an inducement to insurance any rebate of premium payable on the policy, nor any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, nor any paid employment or contract for services of any kind or any special advantage in the date of the policy or date of the issue thereof, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatsoever not plainly specified in the policy or contract of insurance or agreement of indemnity, or give or receive, sell or purchase, or offer to give or receive, sell or purchase, as inducements to insurance or in connection therewith any stock, bonds, or other obligations of an insurance company or other corporation, association, partnership or individual. But the provisions of this act shall not apply, however, to prevent the payment to a duly authorized officer, agent or solicitor of such company, association or co-partnership of commissions at customary rates on policies or contracts of insurance effected through him by which he himself is insured, provided such officer, agent or solicitor holds himself out as such and has been engaged in such business in good faith for a period of six months prior to any such payment; nor shall this act prohibit a mutual fire insurance company from paying dividends to policyholders at any time after the same has been earned. (April 13, 1911, 102 v. 81; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 117.)

See § 644-3.

This section does not prohibit agents from extending credit for premiums. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 734.

For similar statute applying to life insurance companies, see §§ 9404-9406.

Section 9589-2. (Testimony. Incrimination.) No person shall be excused from attending or testifying or producing any books, papers or other documents before any court or magistrate having jurisdiction, upon any investigation, proceeding or trial for a violation of any of the provisions of this act, upon the ground or for the reason that the testimony of evidence, documentary or otherwise, required of him may tend to incriminate or degrade him, but no person shall be prosecuted or subject to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter or thing concerning which he may so testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, except for perjury committed in so testifying. (April 13, 1911, 102 v. 81; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 117.)

Section 9589-3. (Penalty.) Every corporation which shall violate any of the provisions of this act, upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars and not exceeding five hundred dollars to be recovered by action in the name of the state, and every officer, agent or solicitor, or other person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars nor exceeding five hundred dollars, and of the fines which shall be levied and collected for the violation of any of the provisions of this act, shall be paid to the county treasurer for the benefit of the common school fund. (April 13, 1911, 102 v. 81; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 117.)

Section 9589-4. (Revocation of license.) It shall be the duty of the superintendent of insurance upon conviction of any agent for violation of any of the provisions of this act, to revoke the license of the agent so offending, and no license shall be granted to such agent for a period of three years after such revocation. (April 13, 1911, 102 v. 81; April 12, 1910, 101 v. 117.)

Section 9590. (Annual report. Contents. Reinsurance.) The president or vice-president and secretary of each insurance company organized under the laws of this or any other state, and doing business in this state, annually, on the first day of January, or within sixty days thereafter, shall prepare, under oath, and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance a statement of the condition of such company on the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, exhibiting the following facts and items, and in the following form:

First. The amount of the capital stock of the company, specifying the amount paid and unpaid.

Second. The property or assets held by the company, specifying:

1. The value of the real estate owned by such company, where it is situated and the value of buildings thereon.

2. The amount of cash on hand and deposited in banks to the credit of the company, specifying in what banks it is deposited.

3. The amount of cash in the hands of agents and in course of transmission.

4. The amount of loans secured by bonds and mortgages, which are first liens on real estate, and on which there is less than one year's interest due.

5. The amount of loans on which interest has not been paid within one year.

6. The amount due the company on which judgments have been obtained and the cash value thereof.

7. The amount of stocks in this state, the United States, of any city of this state, and of any other stocks owned by the company, specifying the amount, number of shares, and the par and market value of each kind of stock.

8. The amount of stock held as collateral security for loans with the amount loaned on, and the par and market value of each kind of stock.

9. The amount of unpaid assessments on stock, premium notes or contingent liabilities.

10. The amount of interest due and unpaid and the amount of interest accrued but not due.

11. The amount of premium notes or contingent liabilities on which policies are issued.

12. The number of policies in force.

13. The amount insured under all policies in force.

14. The amount of premiums received thereon.

15. The amount and description of all other assets.

Third. The liabilities of the company, specifying:

1. The amount of losses due and unpaid.

2. The amount of claims for losses resisted by the company.

3. The amount of losses incurred during the year, including those claimed and not due, and those reported to the company upon which no action has been taken.

4. The amount of dividends declared and due and unpaid.

5. The amount of dividends either cash or scrip, declared but not due.

6. The amount of money borrowed and the security given for its payment.

7. The amount required for reinsurance, being in stock companies a sum equal to fifty per cent of the whole amount of premiums, received and receivable on unexpired risks and policies running one year or less from date of policy and a pro rata amount of all premiums, received and receivable, on unexpired risks and policies running more than one year from date of policy; and in mutual companies a sum equal to fifty per cent of the cash premiums on unexpired risks and policies running one year or less from date of policy and a pro rata amount of all cash premiums on unexpired risks and policies running more than one year from date of policy. But all companies shall be charged the full amount of premiums, received and receivable, on all unexpired ocean and marine risks.

8. The amount of all other existing claims against the company.

Fourth. The income of the company during the preceding year, specifying:

1. The amount of cash premiums received.

2. The amount of notes or contingent assets received for premiums.

3. The amount of interest money received.

4. The amount of income received from other sources.

Fifth. The expenditure during the preceding year, specifying:

1. The amount of losses paid during the year, stating how much of them accrued, prior, and how much subsequent to the date of the preceding statement, and the amount at which losses were estimated in each preceding statement.

2. The amount of dividends paid during the year.

3. The amount of expenses paid during the year, including commissions and fees to agents and officers of the company.

4. The amount paid for taxes.

5. The amount of all payments and expenditures.

6. Amount of script dividend declared. (110 v. 16; R. S. Sec. 3654; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 444; May 9, 1894, 91 v. 211; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 159; April 17, 1891, 88 v. 308; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 273, 276; R. S. 1880; 70 v. 147, § 18; S. & S. 211.)

A company organized under a special charter, before the adoption of the constitution of 1851, is subject to such reasonable regulations as the legislature may prescribe, which regulations serve to secure the ends for which the company was created, and not being repugnant to the franchises and privileges granted in the charter, such a company will not be exempt from a compliance with §§ 9557, 9590 and 9591, unless such exemption appears to have been clearly granted by its charter.

State v. Eagle Insurance Co., 50 O. S. 252 (1893).

Insurance Co. v. Ohio, 153 U. S. 446, 453 (1894).

Section 9591. (Special reports; when required.) The statement of such a company, whose capital is composed in whole or part of notes, in addition to what is above required, shall exhibit the amount of notes which originally formed its capital, and also what proportion of such notes is still held by the company and considered capital. Every company organized under a law of this state which fails to make and deposit such statement, or to reply to an inquiry of the superintendent of insurance with respect to it, shall be subject to a forfeiture of five hundred dollars, and an additional five hundred dollars for every month it thereafter continues to transact any business of insurance, to be recovered by action in the name of the state, and, on collection, paid into the state treasury for the benefit of the state common school fund. (R. S. Sec. 3655; January 21, 1887, 84 v. 5; May 11, 1886, 83 v. 416; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 19; S. & S. 212.)

Section 9591-1. (Annual statement must contain a schedule of its experience as to liabilities. How determined.)
The indebtedness for outstanding losses under insurance against loss or damage resulting from accident to or injuries suffered by an employe or other person and for which the insured is liable, and under insurance against loss from liability on account of the death of or injury to an employe not caused by the negligence of the employer, shall be determined as follows: Each corporation which writes policies covering any of said kinds of insurance shall include in the annual statement required by law a schedule of its experiences thereunder, in the United States and foreign countries in the case of corporations organized in the United States, and in the United States only in the case of corporations organized outside of the United States, giving each calendar year's experience separately, and crediting or charging each item to the year in which the policy to which it relates was written, as follows: (1) the earned premiums on all such policies written during the period of ten years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made, being the gross premiums on all such policies including excess and additional premiums and premiums in course of collection, less return premiums and premiums on cancelled policies, and less the unearned premiums on policies in force as shown in such annual statement; (2) the amount of all payments of whatsoever nature made by reason or on account of injuries covered by such policies written during said period. This amount shall include medical and surgical attendance, payments to claimants, legal expenses, salaries and expenses of investigators, adjusters, and field men, rents, stationery, telegraph and telephone charges, postage, salaries and expenses of office employes, home office expenses, and all other payments made on account of such injuries, whether such payments are allocated to specific claims or are unallocated; (3) the number of suits being defended at the date as of which the statement is made under policies written during said period, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, and a charge of seven hundred and fifty dollars for each suit; (4) the number of deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written during said period, and not paid for at the date as of which the statement is made and a charge of the amount necessary to pay for such deaths; (5) the number of unpaid claims at the date as of which the statement is made on account of non-fatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written during said period, and a charge equal to the present value of the estimated future payments; (6) the loss ratio determined from the foregoing as to each year separately, using as the divisor the earned premiums shown in item (1) and as the dividend the amount of payments shown in item (2) plus the amounts charged in items (3), (4), and (5); (7) the number of suits being defended at the date as of which the statement is made under policies written more than ten years prior to such date, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured; (8) the number of deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written more than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, and not paid for at such date; (9) the number of unpaid claims at the date as of which the statement is made on account of non-fatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written more than ten years prior to such date. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 477.)

Section 9591-2. (Distribution of unallocated payments.)

All unallocated payments in item (2) section 1 [G. C. § 9591-1] made in a given calendar year subsequent to the first four years in which a corporation has been issuing such policies shall be distributed as follows: thirty-five per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year, ten per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding, ten per centum to the policies written in the third year preceding and five per centum to the policies written in the fourth year preceding; and such payments made in the first four calendar years in which a corporation has been issuing such policies shall be distributed as follows: in the first calendar year one hundred per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year; in the second calendar year fifty per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year and fifty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year; in the third calendar year forty per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year and twenty per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding; and in the fourth calendar year thirty-five per centum shall be charged to the policies written in that year, forty per centum to the policies written in the preceding year, fifteen per centum to the policies written in the second year preceding and ten per centum to the policies written in the third year preceding, and a schedule showing such distribution shall be included in such annual statement. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 477.)

Section 9591-3. (Indebtedness for outstanding losses charged and how same to be determined.) Each such corporation shall be charged with indebtedness for outstanding losses upon such policies determined as follows: (10) for all suits being defended under policies written more than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, one thousand dollars for each suit; (11) for all suits being defended under policies written more than five years and less than ten years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, seven hundred and fifty dollars for each suit; (12) for all deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written more than five years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, the amount necessary to pay for such deaths; (13) for all unpaid claims on account of non-fatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence under policies written more than five years prior to the date as of which the statement is made, the present value of the estimated future payments; (14) for the policies written in the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made an amount determined as follows: multiply the earned premiums of each such five years as shown in item (1) by the loss ratio ascertained as in item (6) on all the policies written in the first five years of the said ten-year period, using as the divisor the sum of the earned premiums shown in item (1) for such first five years, and as the dividend the sum of the payments shown in item (2) for such first five years plus the sum of the charges in items (3), (4) and (5) for such first five years; but the ratio to be used shall in no event be less than fifty per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and eleven, nor less than fifty-one per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twelve, nor less than fifty-two per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and thirteen, nor less than fifty-three per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and fourteen, nor less than fifty-four per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and fifteen, nor less than fifty-five per centum at and after December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and sixteen; and from the amount so ascertained in each of the last five years of said ten-year period deduct all payments made under policies written in the corresponding year as shown in item (2), and the remainder in the case of each year shall be deemed the indebtedness for that year; provided, however, that if the remainder in the case of any year of the first three years of the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made shall be less than the sum of the three following items for that year at that date—(a) the number of suits, except suits in which liability is not dependent upon negligence of the insured, being defended under policies written in that year, and a charge of seven hundred and fifty dollars of each suit; (b) the amount necessary to pay for all deaths for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written in that year; and (c) the present value of estimated unpaid claims on account of non-fatal injuries for which the insured are liable without proof of negligence, covered by policies written in that year,—then the sum of said items (a), (b) and (c) shall be the indebtedness for that year. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 477.)

Section 9591-4. (What corporations included.) A corporation which has been issuing such policies for a period of less than ten years shall nevertheless include in its annual statement a schedule as hereinbefore required for the years in which it shall have issued such policies, and shall be charged with an indebtedness determined in the same manner; but in determining the indebtedness for policies written in the five years immediately preceding the date as of which the statement is made, the minimum ratios hereinbefore prescribed shall be used, subject to the same deductions and provisions as in the case of corporations that have been issuing such policies for ten years or more. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 477.)

Section 9592. (Attorney-General to institute suits.) On the request of the superintendent of insurance, the attorney-general shall institute such action against a company so delinquent, in the court of appropriate jurisdiction in Franklin county, or in the court of appropriate jurisdiction of the county in which it is located or has its principal place of business, as he prefers. (R. S. Sec. 3655; January 21, 1887, 84 v. 5; May 11, 1886, 83 v. 416; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 140, § 19; S. & S. 212.)

| § 9592-9. Any deviation shall be uniform to all risks. | |
| § 9592-10. No contract shall be made placing insurance with particular company. | |

Section 9592-1. (Bureau of rating.) Every fire insurance company or other insurer authorized to effect insurance against the risk or loss or damage by fire or lightning in this state shall maintain or be a member of a rating bureau. No such insurer shall be a member of more than one rating bureau for the purpose of rating the same risk. (107 v. 743, § 1.)

Section 9592-2. (How bureau composed; apportionment of expense.) A rating bureau may consist of one or more insurers, and when consisting of two or more insurers, shall admit to membership any authorized insurer applying therefor. The expense of the bureau shall be shared in proportion to the gross premiums less return premiums and premiums on marine and farm risks received by each member during the preceding year in this state, to which may be added a reasonable annual fee. Each member shall have one vote. (107 v. 744, § 2.)

Section 9592-3. (Place of office.) Every such rating bureau shall maintain an office within this state. (107 v. 744, § 3.)

Section 9592-4. (Specification of bureau in application.) Every fire insurance company or other insurer aforesaid shall, in its annual application for license, specify each rating bureau making rates upon property located within this state of which it is a member, and during the year, file written notice of any other such rating bureaus of which it shall become a member. (107 v. 744, § 4.)

Section 9592-5. (Inspection of risk; record.) Every rating bureau engaged in making rates or estimates for rates for fire insurance on property in this state, shall inspect every risk specifically rated by it upon schedule, and make a written survey of such risk, which shall be filed as a permanent record in the office of such bureau. A copy of such survey shall be furnished to the owner upon request. (107 v. 744, § 5.)

Section 9592-6. (Inquiries by superintendent of insurance.) The superintendent of insurance may address inquiries to any individual, association or bureau, which is or has been engaged in making rates or estimates for rates for fire insurance upon property in this state, in relation to the organization, maintenance or operation, or any other matter connected with its transactions, and may require the filing of schedules, rates, forms, rules, regulations, and such other information as may be required, and it shall be the duty of every such individual, association or bureau, or some officer thereof, to promptly make such filing, or reply to such inquiries in writing. (107 v. 744, § 6.)

Section 9592-7. (Examination of rating bureau; report.) The superintendent of insurance shall have power to examine any such rating bureau as often as he deems it expedient to do so, and shall do so not less than once every three years. A report thereof shall be filed in his office. The superintendent of insurance may waive such examination upon the filing with him of a report of such examination made by some other insurance department or proper supervising officer within such three years. A statement with regard to such examination shall be made in the annual report of the superintendent of insurance. (107 x. 744, § 7.)

Section 9592-8. (Discrimination between risks prohibited.) No fire insurance company or other insurer against the risk of fire or lightning, nor any rating bureau, shall fix or charge any rate for fire insurance upon property in this state which discriminates unfairly between risks in the application of like charges and credits, or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire. (107 v. 744, § 8.)

Section 9592-9. (Any deviation shall be uniform to all risks.) Any deviation of any company or insurer from the schedule of rates established and maintained by the bureau which it maintains, or of which it is a member, shall be uniform in its application to all of the risks in the class for which the variation is made, and no such uniform deviation shall be made unless notice thereof shall be filed with the bureau of which the insurer is a member, and the superintendent of insurance of his state, at least fifteen days before such uniform variation is in effect, and schedules providing for such variation shall be filed with the rating bureau and the superintendent of insurance showing the amended basis rate and amended charges and credits and application of the amended schedules to individual risks in the class affected. (107 v. 745, § 9.)

An agent of a mutual company may charge a uniform "survey fee" for writing policies, without violating this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 771.

Section 9592-10. (No contract shall be made placing insurance with particular company.) Except as contained in the policy and the usual agreement for other insurance, no such insurance company or insurer or rating bureau shall make any contract or agreement with any person insured or to be insured that the whole or any part of any insurance shall be written by or placed within any particular company, insurer, agent or any group of companies, insurers or agents. (107 v. 745, § 10.)

Section 9592-11. (Hearing upon complaint of discrimination; order; review.) The superintendent of insurance may upon written complaint that discrimination in rates exists between risks in the application of like charges or credits, or discrimination between risks of essentially the same hazard and having substantially the same degree of protection against fire, order a hearing for the purpose of determining such questions of discrimination, and the review of such questions and the rates complained of before said superintendent shall be had only after due notice to all parties interested, and if upon such hearing the superintendent shall determine that the rate complained of is discriminatory he shall have power to order the discrimination removed, but no such discrimination shall be removed by increasing the rate or rates on any risk or class of risks affected by such order unless it shall be made to appear to the superintendent of insurance that such increase is justifiable and an order of approval has been filed in the office of the superintendent of insurance. Any party in interest being dissatisfied with any order of the superintendent of insurance may within thirty days from the issue of such order and notice thereof commence an action in the supreme court for the purpose of reviewing such order and such cause shall be duly set for hearing and proceed as in other cases. During the pendency of such court proceedings the order shall be suspended, and in the event of final determination against any insurer, any overcharge during the pendency of such proceedings shall be refunded by the insurer to the persons entitled thereto. (107 v. 745, § 11.)

Section 9592-12. (Agreements relative to rates must comply with this act.) No fire insurance company or any other insurer, and no rating bureau, or any representative of any fire insurance company or other insurer or rating bureau, shall enter into or act upon any agreement with regard to the making, fixing or collecting of any rate for fire insurance upon property within this state except in compliance with this act. (107 v. 745, § 12.)

Section 9592-13. (Enforcement of agreements.) Any such agreement may be made and enforced provided the same be not contrary to public policy and is in writing, and prior to its taking effect, a copy thereof be filed with the superintendent of insurance and with each rating bureau of which any of the parties thereto shall be a member or subscriber. (107 v. 746, § 13.)

Section 9592-14. (Disapproval of agreement; service of order; review.) The superintendent of insurance may, after due notice and hearing, upon complaint or upon his own motion, make an order disapproving any such agreement. No such agreement shall be in force, nor shall any rights be based thereon, after service of a copy of such order upon each of the parties to such agreement, and upon each bureau with which such agreement is required to be filed. Service may be made by mail and shall be completed upon the expiration of a reasonable time for transmission fixed in such order. Any person in interest being dissatisfied with the order or refusal to make an order by the superintendent of insurance may within thirty days from the issuance of such order or refusal and notice thereof commence an action in the supreme court against the superintendent of insurance as defendant to review any action of said superintendent either in making or refusing to make any such order and such cause shall thereupon proceed as herein provided in section 11 (G. C. § 9592-11). (107 v. 746, § 14.)

Section 9592-15. (Act does not apply to mutual protective associations.) This act shall not apply to mutual protective associations organized under the provisions of section 9593 of the General Code. (107 v. 746, § 15.)

Section 9592-16. (Violation of act a misdemeanor; penalty.) Any violation of the provisions of this act by any fire insurance company or other insurer authorized to effect insurance against the risk of loss or damage by fire or lighting in this state, or by any rate making bureau or officer or agent of either shall be a misdemeanor and on conviction shall be punishable by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars for each such violation, and in the event any insurer, insurance company, individual or rating bureau shall be found guilty of violation of the provisions of this act and subjected to the penalty herein provided and the same shall not be paid within thirty days the superintendent of insurance may in his discretion revoke the license of such insurer or insurance company and suspend the certificate of authority of such person or rating bureau until such fine has been paid. (107 v. 746, § 16.)

Section 9592-17. (Insurer shall not pay fine of agents.) It shall be unlawfully for any insurer to pay, either directly or indirectly, any fine assessed against any of its agents, solicitors or other representatives under this act. (107 v. 746, § 17.)

Section 9592-18. (Sections 9563 and 9564 unaffected.) Nothing herein shall be construed as repealing or affecting the provisions of sections 9563 and 9564 of the General Code. (107 v. 747, § 18.)

Section 9593. (Organization of mutual protection associations and scope of business.) Any number of persons of lawful age, not less than ten in number, residents of this state, or an adjoining state and owning insurable property in this state, may associate themselves together for the purpose of insuring each other against loss by fire and lightning, cyclones, tornadoes or wind storms, hail storms and explosions from gas, on property in this state, and also assess upon and collect from each other such sums of money, from time to time, as are necessary to pay losses which occur by fire and lightning, cyclones, tornadoes, wind storms, hail storms and explosions from gas to any member of such association. The assessment and collection of such sums of money shall be regulated by the constitution and by-laws of the association, which shall require such assessments to be made directly and specifically upon the members and to be paid directly and specifically by them and not out of any fund deposited with the association or other trustee in anticipation of assessments or in any other manner except that any such association may borrow money for the payment of losses and expenses, such loans not to be made for a longer period than the collection of their next assessment; and such association may also accumulate a surplus from its assessments not exceeding two dollars on each one thousand dollars of insurance in force, such surplus to be used in paying losses and expenses that may occur and if invested to be under the provisions of sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen of the General Code. Such associations may only insure farm buildings, detached dwellings, schoolhouses, churches, township buildings, grange buildings, farm implements, farm products, live stock, household goods, furniture, pleasure and utility vehicles, motor vehicles; steam, gas, gasoline and oil engines; motor truck, tractors, electric motors, electric appliances, lighting systems and other property not classed as extra hazardous and such property may be located within or without the limits of any municipality; provided that an association whose membership is restricted to persons engaged in any particular trade or occupation and its insurance confined in any particular kind or description of property may insure property classed as extra hazardous and located in any county or counties in this state; and an association whose membership is so restricted and whose insurance is so confined and which insures property classed as extra hazardous as herein provided may also accumulate from its assessments a surplus not exceeding the average yearly losses and expenses of the association as shown by the reports of the association to the department of insurance of the state of Ohio for the preceding three years, such surplus to be used in paying losses and expenses that may occur and if invested to be under the provisions of sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen of the General Code. (107 v. 696; 102 v. 422; May 18, 1910, 101 v. 294; R. S. Sec. 3686; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 335; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 377, 380; February 27, 1885, 82 v. 71; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 185; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 1.)

This section does not authorize a corporation for profit either to its officers or members, and any scheme by which profits are made is unauthorized.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

A corporation can not be organized under this section "for profit," or to do a "general fire insurance business."

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 210.

A mutual protective association is not authorized to do business on the "joint stock" nor on the "contingent liability" plan, as defined in § 9524 et seq., but must confine itself to insuring its members, who agree to be assessed specifically to pay losses and incidental expenses.

State v. Mutual Fire Ass'n, 50 O. S. 145 (1893).

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Such associations are empowered to make and enforce their members' contracts of indemnity, by which the members agree to be assessed specifically for such amounts as may be necessary to pay losses occurring to the members, and also to pay incidental expenses.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

The system of insurance contemplated by § 9593 et seq. differs essentially and radically from the plan of mutual insurance companies provided for by § 9607-1 et seq.

Richards v. Canning Co., 7 N. P. 68; 9 L. D. 70 (C. P. 1900).

See State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555, 563 (1885).

An association organized under § 9593 et seq. may classify risks, by adopting rules and regulations by which the amount to be paid a member may be determined by the amount of his insurance and the respective hazard of his risk. But such classification can not be extended to a division of the members so that a member is liable to contribute only toward payment of losses occurring in his class. There can be only one class of members with mutual obligations and rights.

Members.

See also § 9598.

Prior to the amendment of this section in 1898 (93 v. 335) it was held that non-residents of Ohio could not become members or directors.

By the amendment of 1898 (93 v. 335) residents of an adjoining state and owning insurable property in this state may become members.

Persons become members by signing the constitution (§ 9598). But a person may be estopped, by accepting and holding a policy, from denying that he is a member.

A member is charged with constructive knowledge of the constitution and by-laws.

Crandall v. Association, 8 N. P. 632; 10 L. D. 711 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 674.

Assessments. A contract can not be made with members by which they, upon an advance payment of an agreed annual amount, shall be exempt from assessments during the ensuing year, nor can a member's liability to assessment be limited, without regard to the amount that may be necessary to pay losses.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Such advance payment, based upon the hazards of the risk, without reference to the amount necessary to pay losses, is in fact a premium, and not a specific assessment authorized by this statute.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Where the by-laws provided for an assessment at a certain date each year to pay the losses incurred and expenses, an amount sufficient to reimburse officers for money advanced to pay losses may be included in the assessment. Insurance Assn. v. Crow, 25 C. C. n. s. 65 (1903).

Prior to the amendment of 101 v. 294 assessments could be levied and collected in advance of losses.

State v. Association, 3 O. L. R. 248; 17 C. D. 838 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 498.

The amendment of 101 v. 294 is not retroactive and associations organized prior to the amendment may receive deposits in advance and make assessments on such deposits.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 801.

A membership fee, designed simply to cover the expense of entrance, may be imposed; but considerable sums of money, for the purpose of paying losses and expenses, can not be collected under any designation.

Members are liable to assessments only for losses occurring during their membership, and are not liable for losses occurring before or after such membership.

State v. Fire Association, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

An assessment levied by the board of directors or trustees, for the payment of losses and expenses, is presumed to be "necessary," in the absence of proof to the contrary.

Crandall v. Association, 8 N. P. 632; 10 L. D. 711 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 674.

Funds derived from assessments to pay losses are in their nature trust funds to be applied to such losses; hence the application of such assessments or advance payments, in lieu of assessments, to the purchase of the assets of a like corporation, including real estate not necessary to its business or to the payment of losses to members of such other corporation, is a misapplication of such funds.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Enforcement of assessments; defenses; assessments after insolvency, etc., see note to § 9607-16.

A person holding a policy, as an indemnity, which is expressly made subject to further assessments, is estopped from defending against an action for assessments on the ground that he is not a member of the association because he has not signed the constitution as provided by § 9598.

Richards v. Lipp Co., 69 O. S. 359 (1903).

Richards v. Canning Co., 7 N. P. 68; 9 L. D. 70 (C. P. 1900).

Policies. Where the first part of a policy, issued by an association organized under this chapter, resembles an ordinary absolute fire policy, its construction is governed by subsequent "mutual policy conditions" and the liability is restricted to that provided by the statute, constitution and by-laws of the association.

Fire Ass'n v. Lynchburg Drug Mills, 8 C. C. 112; 4 C. D. 352 (1893).

A member who has failed to pay assessments, within the time limited in the by-laws, can not recover on his policy, unless the default is waived by the association.

Crandall v. Association, 8 N. P. 632; 10 L. D. 711 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 674.

The loss is not a debt for which the trustees are personally liable, even though the certificate be in part ultra vires, if issued in good faith.

Manufacturer's Fire Ass'n v. Drug Mills, 8 C. C. 112 (1893); 4 C. D. 352.

A policy of a mutual assessment association agreeing, upon loss, to pay the member a fund collected by assessment on all the members, implies a promise to levy such assessment, and the insured need not seek specific performance but may sue at law for breach of such promise.

Hall v. Association, 25 W. L. B. 79 (C. P. 1891).

Section 9594. (What certificate of incorporation shall set forth. Change of name or location must be approved by superintendent.) Such persons shall make and subscribe a certificate setting forth therein:

1. The name by which the association is to be known;
2. The place which shall be regarded as its center or business office;

3. The object of the association, which shall only be one or more of the objects set forth in the preceding section, and to enforce any contract by them entered into whereby the parties thereto agree to be assessed specifically for incidental purposes and for the payment of losses which occur to its members. The kinds of property proposed to be insured and the casualties specified in such preceding section proposed to be insured against, also must be specified in such certificate. Such certificate may be amended to change the name of the association or the place which shall be regarded as its center or business office or its objects, at any meeting of members thirty days' notice of which, and of the business to come before it, has been given by a majority of the directors in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the county where the company's center or business office is located. Such amendment, if adopted by at least three-fifths vote of the members present and voting at the meeting so called and if not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, and of the United States, shall be approved by the attorney general and secretary of state and such amendment and the certificate of approval by the attorney general shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and shall thereupon be in effect. After recording such amendment the secretary of state shall deposit a copy thereof with the superintendent of insurance.

In event of change of name of the association or change of the place of the center or business office, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of insurance, immediately upon the approval by him of such change or changes, to certify the fact of such change or changes to the secretary of state of Ohio, who shall make note thereof on the files of his office relating to such association. (109 v. 282; R. S. Sec. 3687; 97 v. 150; 86 v. 377, 380; 82 v. 71, 72; 81 v. 185; R. S. 1880; 74 v. 66, § 2.)

Insurance companies are not authorized to incorporate under the general corporation law (§ 8623 to § 8743) but must organize under the special statutory provisions.

State v. Pioneer Live Stock Co., 38 O. S. 347 (1882).

Articles of incorporation. Opinions of attorney general. Corporations or firms can not act as incorporators, or become members.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 210.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 819 (1898).

Ten or more incorporators must execute the articles. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 835.

The articles must show that the incorporators have the qualifications required by § 9593 et seq.: that they are "persons of lawful age" and "residents of this state" or an adjoining state and owning insurable property in Ohio. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 18.

Articles of incorporation should contain all the statements prescribed by this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, pp. 223, 245.

"Real and personal property" is not such a specification of the property proposed to be insured as is contemplated in this section. A more definite designation such as residences, office buildings, household goods, merchandise, etc., is required.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 245.

The articles must state that the members agree to be assessed specifically.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 58.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 19.

Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 904.

Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1013.

The kinds of losses to be insured against, and the property to be insured, must be specified; and the articles must state that the property insured shall be in Ohio. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 20; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 603; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1783; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 18; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 1013; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 33.

The words "Mutual Company" can not be included in the name.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 597 (1885).

Articles of incorporation which stated that the purpose of the association was "to organize an order of property owners, with a general council, empowered to impose and collect annual dues and assessments, thereby providing a fund to protect its members against losses by fire" were rejected as not in compliance with § 9593.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 427 (1892).

Amendment of articles. An amendment to the articles of a mutual protective association must be made under the general corporation law (§§ 8719-8743). It must be adopted by its members and certified to the secretary of state by the president and secretary of the association. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1129; 17 O. L. R. 371.

Section 9595. (Filing of certificate.) The certificate shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. A copy thereof, duly certified by him shall be evidence of the existence and due incorporation of the association for the purposes therein named. (R. S. Sec. 3688; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 3.)

Section 9596. (Directors and officers.) When such certificate is so filed, and a certified copy thereof forwarded to the association, the persons named therein shall elect their directors, a president, secretary, treasurer, and such other officers as are necessary for the complete performance of all the business and objects of the association, to serve for one year. Such officers thereafter shall be chosen in the manner, and at the time fixed upon in the constitution, but directors shall not be chosen for a longer period than three years. (R. S. Sec. 3689; April 30, 1886, 83 v. 106, 107; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 4.)

Non-residents who are ineligible to membership can not become directors or trustees.

State v. Mutual Fire Ass'n, 50 O. S. 145 (1893).

The trustees are not personally liable for a loss upon a certificate issued in good faith.

Fire Ass'n v. Drug Mills, 8 C. C. 112; 4 C. D. 352 (1893).

See Kelley v. Bender, 22 C. C. 144; 12 C. D. 181 (1901).

G. C. § 8666.

This section provides for the officers authorized to conduct the business. An association can not, by its articles, grant this power to a general council.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 427 (1892).

Section 9597. (Powers of association.) The association so organized shall be held to be a body corporate for all such purposes, and may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, in all courts of law and equity, but in no instance shall the power to insure against losses by fire or tornadoes be exercised to other than members thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3689; April 30, 1886, 83 v. 106, 107; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 4.)

An association organized under this chapter is not authorized to do business on the "joint stock" nor on the "contingent liability" plan, authorized by § 9525 et seq., but must confine itself to insuring its members who agree to be assessed specifically to pay losses and incidental expenses

State v. Mutual Fire Ass'n, 50 O. S. 145 (1893).

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Section 9598. (Constitution and by-laws.) Every such association shall adopt such constitution and by-laws not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state or the United States, as in the judgment of its members best will subserve its interests and purposes. All persons who sign such constitution shall be considered and held to be members of the association, and be held in law to comply with all of its provisions and requirements. (R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

This section does not authorize a regulation by which a policy may be declared forfeited, for the non-payment in advance of an annual deposit or premium, whether an assessment to pay losses during such period should be necessary or not.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

To become a member of the association under this section, a person must sign his name to the constitution.

State v. Mutual Fire Ass'n, 50 O. S. 145, 149 (1893).

Richards v. Swain, 7 N. P. 68; 9 L. D. 70 (1900).

But where a policy was issued in good faith by an association and held by the insured as an indemnity, upon the condition set out in the policy that it is made and accepted subject to the express agreement by the insured that he will pay further assessments, the insured is estopped from defending against an action for assessments on the ground that he is not a member of the association because he has not signed the constitution.

Richards v. Lipp Co., 69 O. S. 359 (1903).

Richards v. Hale, 1 C. C. n. s. 181; 14 C. D. 468 (1903).

Richards v. Swaim, 7 N. P. 68; 9 L. D. 70 (1900).

In the absence of direct allegation and proof that a policyholder has not signed the constitution, the presumption is that he has signed it.

Richards v. Hale, 1 C. C. n. s. 181; 14 C. D. 468 (1903).

A member is charged with constructive knowledge of the constitution and by-laws, while in stock or old line companies a policyholder is charged with notice of only such provisions as are brought to his notice in the application or policy.

Crandall v. Association, 8 N. P. 632; 10 L. D. 711 (1891); aff'd, no rep., 52 O. S. 674.

A change in the constitution and by-laws can only be made by a majority of the members of the association itself, and not by the directors merely, although the constitution provides for the latter method.

Insurance Co. v. Bachman, 39 W. L. B. 324 (1898).

Section 9599. (What shall be filed with superintendent of insurance.) Before granting insurance, such association shall file with the superintendent of insurance a copy of its articles of incorporation duly certified to by the secretary of state, and a copy of its constitution, by-laws, and forms of certificates of membership or insurance. If the superintendent finds that it was duly organized and has complied with the law, he shall issue to it his certificate reciting such compliance, which certificate shall be the authority of the association to commence business and grant insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

Section 9600. (Renewal of certificate.) Upon filing its annual statement, the superintendent, annually, shall issue a renewal of such certificate to the association if he finds that it has complied with the law. For each such certificate and renewal every association shall pay to the superintendent for the use of the state five dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

Section 9601. Repealed. (April 4, 1910, 101 v. 103; R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

Section 9602. (Annual statements.) The president, or vice-president, and secretary of every such association annually on the first day of January, or within thirty days thereafter, shall prepare under oath and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance a statement of the condition of such association on the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, exhibiting such facts as are enumerated in section ninety-five hundred and ninety, and applicable to such associations, and such other information necessary to reveal the financial condition of the association, as the superintendent requires in a printed form by him to be supplied for that purpose. (R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

Immaterial variations between a report filed pursuant to this section and the actual condition of the association do not warrant the ouster of the association by quo warranto.

State v. Association, 3 O. L. R. 248; 17 C. D. 838 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 498.

Section 9603. (Failure to make statement.) Every such association which fails to make and deposit such statement or to reply to any inquiry of the superintendent of insurance, shall be subject to a forfeiture of five hundred dollars and an additional five hundred dollars for every month that it continues thereafter to transact any business of insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3690; April 24, 1904, 97 v. 150; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 197; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1877, 74 v. 66, § 5.)

Section 9604. (Mutual associations may organize as companies.) Any mutual fire insurance association organized under section ninety-five hundred and ninety-three, doing business and having the number of policies and amount of insurance in force and the amount of assets required in order to organize a mutual fire insurance company, may reorganize as such mutual fire insurance company in the following manner: The board of trustees of such association shall give notice, by publication in a newspaper of general circulation, and published in the county wherein its principal office is situated, at least three consecutive weeks before such application is made, of their intention to so organize, and thereupon make application to the superintendent of insurance respecting their desire to assume the requirements of the laws governing mutual fire insurance companies organized and doing business under the laws of this state, setting forth the amount of insurance carried, the number of policies in force, and the amount of its assets and liabilities. (R. S. Sec. 3690-1; March 24, 1890, 87 v. 88, § 1.)

Section 9605. (Certificate of superintendent of insurance.) If by examination, or otherwise, of the condition of such association, the superintendent of insurance is satisfied that it possesses the required amount of assets, and the number and amount of policies in force required to organize a mutual fire insurance company, he shall so certify upon a certificate of incorporation, containing the requisite statements required to incorporate a mutual fire insurance company, which certificate, after having been duly executed shall be delivered to the secretary of state, who shall record it and issue his certificate of incorporation as in other cases for change of name, capital or location of an incorporated company, charging only such fees therefor as authorized by law in other cases for change in capital or location of company. (R. S. Sec. 3690-1; March 24, 1890, 87 v. 88, § 1.)

Section 9606. (How rights of policyholders affected.) Thereafter the business of such fire insurance association shall be conducted as and be subject to all laws governing mutual fire insurance companies. All members thereof shall be members of such reorganized company, to the time of the expiration or cancellation of their policies, and entitled to all the benefits of such, precisely as if original members, with out exchanging policies or contracts, and entitled to all the benefits as if original members thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3690-2; March 24, 1890, 87 v. 88, § 2.)

Section 9607. (Policies and by-laws.) After such change in the plan of insurance by such association, and the organization of such mutual fire insurance company, policies thereafter issued shall be in the name and by the authority of the company, and the policies theretofore in force, and the by-laws, rules and regulations of such association, if not in conflict with the laws governing mutual fire insurance companies, shall remain in full force and effect until they have terminated or been lawfully changed by the company or its board of directors. (R. S. Sec. 3690-3; March 24, 1890, 87 v. 88, § 3.)

Section 9607-1. (Terms relating to corporations and associations defined.) In this act, unless the context otherwise requires, "company" includes corporations and associations. "Domestic" designates companies organized under the laws of this state. "Foreign" designates companies organized under the laws of another state or territory. "Alien" designates companies organized under the laws of any country other than the United States, or some state, province or territory thereof. The terms "surplus" or "net assets" shall be deemed to mean funds and assets invested as required or permitted by the laws of the state, territory or district where the company is organized, in excess of all liabilities including unearned premium reserve, but excluding from such assets all contingent liabilities of policyholders or members. (104 v. 202, § 1.)

Section 9607-2. (Organization of mutual companies; kinds of insurance allowed to transact. Fire. Liability. Disability. Automobile. Steam boiler. Use and occupancy. Miscellaneous.) A domestic mutual company may be organized by a number of persons, not less than twenty, to carry on the business of mutual insurance and to reinsure and to accept reinsurance as authorized by law and its articles of incorporation. Such persons shall execute articles of incorporation which, if not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state and of the United States, shall be approved by the attorney general and secretary of state, and such articles and the certificate of approval by the attorney general shall be recorded by the secretary of state who shall deposit a copy thereof with the superintendent of insurance. A mutual or a stock company may transact only the first kind of insurance, or may transact such as it may elect of the other kinds of insurance, following:

I. FIRE INSURANCE. Against loss or damage to property and loss of use and occupancy by fire, lightning, hail, tempest, flood, earthquake, frost or snow, explosion, fire ensuing, and explosion, no fire ensuing; except explosion by steam boiler or flywheels; against loss or damage by water caused by the breakage or leakage of sprinklers, pumps or other apparatus, water pipes, plumbing, or their fixtures, erected for extinguishing fires, and against accidental injury to such sprinklers, pumps, other apparatus, water pipes, plumbing or fixtures; against the risks of inland transportation and navigation; upon automobiles, whether stationary or operated under their own power, against loss or damage by any of the causes or risks specified in this subsection, including also transportation, collision, liability for damage to property resulting from owning, maintaining or using automobiles and including burglary and theft of automobiles and accessories, but not including loss or damage by risk of bodily injury to the person. To insure against loss resulting to the members of any mutual or stock company or association of any kind whatsoever from assessments levied against all members thereof in pursuance of the conditions of any policy of insurance, contract, statute or law.

2. LIABILITY INSURANCE. Against loss, expense or liability by risk of bodily injury or death by accident, disability, sickness or disease suffered by others for which the insured may be liable or have assumed liability not including workmen's compensation.

3. DISABILITY INSURANCE. Against bodily injury or death by accident, and disability by sickness.

4. AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE. Against loss, expense and liability resulting from the ownership, maintenance or use of any automobile or other vehicle, provided no policies shall be issued under this sub-section against the hazard of fire alone.

5. STEAM BOILER INSURANCE. Against loss or liability to persons or property resulting from explosions or accidents to boilers, containers, pipes, engines, flywheels, elevators and machinery in connection therewith and against loss of use and occupancy caused thereby and to make inspections and issue certificates of inspection thereon.

6. USE AND OCCUPANCY INSURANCE. Against loss from interruption of trade or business which may be the result of any accident or casualty.

7. MISCELLANEOUS INSURANCE. Against loss or damage by any hazard upon any risk not provided for in this section, which is not prohibited by statute or at common law from being the subject of insurance, excepting life insurance. (110 v. 116; 107 v. 647, § 1; 104 v. 202, § 2.)

Effect of § 9607-2 on §§ 9510, 9511 and 9556. The attorney general has ruled that §§ 9510, 9511 and 9556 have been supplanted by § 9607-2, basing his opinion upon the following language in § 9607-2: "A mutual or stock company may transact only the first kind of insurance, or may transact such as it may elect of the other kinds of insurance, following:"

The conclusion reached by the attorney general was, that fire insurance companies, whether stock or mutual, have only the powers conferred by § 9607-2; that the powers conferred by § 9607-2 are available to either stock or mutual companies but powers mentioned in §§ 9510 and 9556, but not mentioned in § 9607-2 may not be exercised by either stock or mutual companies; that in some respects the powers conferred by § 9607-2 are broader than those enumerated in § 9510; and that a company originally organized under § 9510 may obtain the additional powers by amending its articles of incorporation.

In State, ex rel., v. Gearheart, 103 O. S. 263 (1921), a foreign stock company claimed certain powers by virtue of § 9607-2. But the court said (p. 265): "This section is a part of the chapter dealing with 'mutual fire insurance companies'. It is difficult to comprehend how it can be stretched to include the relator."

Powers of mutual company. A mutual company is not necessarily an assessment company. It is authorized to collect premiums in advance, accumulate a surplus and in general transact business on practically the same plan as stock companies, except that a mutual company must provide in its policies for contingent mutual liability.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 343, 347 (1900).

A mutual company may borrow money to carry on its legitimate business.

2 Opins. Attys. Gen. 1040.

Limitation as to kinds of insurance. A mutual company may be organized to transact any or all of the kinds of insurance mentioned in § 9607-2. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2186.

But a fire insurance company originally organized under § 9510 may, by amendment, acquire only the fire insurance powers granted by subsection 1 of § 9607-2. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 1348.

Automobile insurance. Paragraph 4 of § 9607-2 authorizes insurance on automobile property, against theft, property damage, collision, liability to the public, and against fire. State v. Tomlinson, 101 O. S. 509 (1920).

But does not authorize reciprocal insurance. State v. Gearheart, 103 O. S. 263 (1921).

Liability insurance. Insurance to physicians against loss by malpractice was authorized by §§ 9510 and 9385. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, pp. 2274, 2284. Contra, Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 996; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 137.

For employers liability insurance, see notes to §§ 9510 and 9510-1.

A provision in a policy of liability insurance, limiting the amount of insurance to $5,000 on account of injuries to one person is valid, and the insured can not recover more from the company. Klein v. Assurance Corp., 9 Ohio App. 241; 29 O. C. A. 175 (1919); affirming, 19 N. P. n. s. 426.

Where, at the time of the accident, it did not appear that bodily injuries were sustained, but such injuries developed subsequently, it is sufficient that notice be given to the company immediately after the insured learned of the injuries. Fisher Co. v. General Accident Corp., 8 Ohio App. 176; 29 O. C. A. 300 (1917); Employers Liability Corp. v. Roehm, 99 O. S. 343 (1919); affirming, 29 O. C. A. 486; 10 Ohio App. 418.

Use and occupancy insurance. Before the enactment of § 9607-2 insurance against the "loss of use" of property was not authorized. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 721.

Health insurance. A provision that to constitute total disability the insured must be "strictly, necessarily and continuously within the house and there regularly and personally attended by a legally qualified physician" does not bar recovery by an insured who, under the advice of his physician, went out for air and to his physician's office for treatment.

Assurance Co. v. Dickson, 15 C. C. n. s. 228 (1912).

Section 9607-2a. (Amendment of articles; notice; approval by attorney general and secretary of state; deposit of copy.) Such articles of incorporation may be amended at any meeting of members, thirty days' notice of which, and of the business to come before it, has been given by a majority of the directors in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the county where the company's principal place of business is located. Such amendment, if adopted by at least three-fifths vote of the members present and voting at the meeting so called and if not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state, and of the United States, shall be approved by the attorney general and secretary of state and such amendment and the certificate of approval by the attorney general shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and shall thereupon be in effect. After recording such amendment the secretary of state shall deposit a copy thereof with the superintendent of insurance. (109 v. 283.)

Section 9607-3. (Legal existence of company; power of original incorporators.) The company shall have legal existence subject to the limitations prescribed in this act, from the filing of its articles of incorporation with the secretary of state, and the original incorporators shall have power to fix and call the first meeting and adopt by-laws which thereupon shall be filed with the superintendent of insurance, and to elect the first officers and directors who shall continue in office until the first annual meeting of the members. (104 v. 202, § 3.)

Section 9607-4. (Bond prerequisite to solicitation for insurance or acceptance of premiums.) No such domestic company shall solicit applications for insurance, or accept premiums, until it has filed with the superintendent of insurance its bond (with sureties) in the sum of ten thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful accounting for all funds and property which it may receive or possess, nor until it has procured the certificate of the superintendent of insurance approving such bond and the sureties thereon. The premiums received on subscriptions for insurance shall be held by the company in trust for the respective subscribers until policies of insurance are issued to them. (104 v. 202, § 4.)

Section 9607-5. (Conditions upon which license shall issue.) No such domestic company shall issue policies or effect insurance until the superintendent of insurance has,

by his license, authorized it to do so; nor shall such license be issued or renewed unless the company shall comply, as to each kind of insurance which it shall effect, with the following conditions:

1. It shall hold bona fide applications for insurance upon which it shall issue simultaneously, or it shall have in force, at least twenty policies to at least twenty members for the same kind of insurance upon not less than one hundred separate risks, each within the maximum single risk described herein.

2. "The maximum single risk" shall not exceed twenty per cent. of the admitted assets or three times the average risk or one per cent. of the insurance in force, whichever is the greater, any reinsurance taking effect simultaneously with the policy being deducted in determining the maximum single risk.

3. It shall have collected a premium upon each application, which premium shall be held in cash or securities in which insurance companies are authorized to invest and shall be equal, in case of fire insurance to not less than twice the maximum single risk assumed subject to one fire nor less than ten thousand dollars, and in any other kind of insurance to not less than five times the maximum single risk assumed. (107 v. 647, § 2; 104 v. 202, § 5.)

Section 9607-6. (Every policyholder a member.) Except as otherwise provided by law, every policy-holder of a domestic mutual company shall be a member while his policy is in force, and entitled to one vote and no more. (104 v. 202, § 6.)

Section 9607-7. (Cash advance premiums.) A domestic mutual company may, in its articles of incorporation, or in its by-laws, provide for a cash premium payable in advance and a contingent liability of the policy-holder of not less than one, nor more than ten times the cash premium in each policy, and may further provide for policies not exceeding on any one risk five per cent. of the company's assets, to be issued for cash premiums payable in advance without contingent liability of the policy-holder. (104 v. 202, § 7.)

For interpretation of former analogous sections, see 4 Opins. Atty. Gen., pp. 517, 520, 499; 3 Opins. Atty. Gen. 761.

Section 9607-8. (How by-laws amended.) The by-laws of such company may be amended at any meeting of the board of directors, but such amendment shall not become effective unless and until the same is approved by the superintendent of insurance. (107 v. 647, § 6; 104 v. 202, § 8.)

Section 9607-9. (Maximum premium; when policy may be issued for cash premium.) The maximum premium payable by any member, may be a cash premium and an additional contingent premium not less than the cash premium, or may be solely a cash premium. No policy shall be issued for a cash premium without an additional contingent premium unless the company has a surplus which is not less in amount than the capital stock required of domestic stock insurance companies transacting the same kind of insurance. (107 v. 647, § 3; 104 v. 202, § 9.)

Section 9607-10. (Stipulation or provision as to contingent liability.) Every such mutual company shall set forth in every insurance policy which it issues upon a cash premium and contingent liability, either a stipulation of the contingent liability of the policy-holder or the provision in the article of incorporation or by-laws fixing the contingent liability. Such contingent liability shall cease with the expiration of the time for which a cash premium has been paid in advance, except for liability incurred during said time. (104 v. 202, § 10.)

Section 9607-11. (Investment of assets.) No domestic mutual company shall invest any of its assets otherwise than as provided for the investment of assets of stock fire insurance companies, and in computing the assets, liabilities and surplus of such company, no contingent liability or unauthorized investments shall be considered. (104 v. 202, § 11.)

Section 9607-12. (Money advanced not a liability against company; exception.) Any director, officer or member of any domestic mutual insurance company, or any other person, may advance to such company any sum or sums of money necessary for the purpose of its business, or to enable it to comply with any requirement of the law, or as a cash guarantee fund. Such moneys, and such interest thereon as may have been agreed upon, not exceeding eight per centum per annum, shall not be a liability or claim against the company, or any of its assets, except as herein provided, and shall be repaid only out of the surplus earnings of such company; and, except as otherwise approved and ordered by the superintendent of insurance, no part of the principal thereof shall be repaid until the surplus of the company remaining after such repayment is equal in amount to the principal of the money so advanced. Such advancement and repayment shall be subject to the approval of the superintendent of insurance, provided that this section shall not affect the power to borrow money which any such company possesses under other laws. No commission or promotion expenses shall be paid by the company, in connection with the advance of any such money to the company, and the amount of any such unpaid advance shall be reported in each annual statement. (107 v. 649, § 4; 104 v. 202, § 12.)

Section 9607-13. (Expense shall not exceed forty per cent. of premium income.) Subsequent to the first calendar year after organization, the expense of management of any such domestic company shall not exceed in any one calendar year forty per centum of its premium income in such year; provided that the income on policies issued on the premium note or assessment plan shall be computed according to the annual basic premium. (104 v. 202, § 13.)

Section 9607-14. (When company shall be deemed impaired; assessment.) Except as otherwise provided by law, any domestic mutual company having a contingent liability, which is not possessed of assets above its unearned premium sufficient for the payment of incurred losses and expenses, shall be deemed to be impaired and shall make an assessment for the amount needed to pay such losses and expenses upon its members liable to assessment, in proportion to and within the limits of their several liabilities. (104 v. 202, § 14.)

Section 9607-15. (When impaired company may continue to issue policies.) If the impairment be not more than twenty-five per cent. of such company's reinsurance reserve fund, computed according to law, the superintendent of insurance may permit it to continue to issue policies for such period as he may designate, not exceeding ninety days.

If such impairment be not restored within the period designated, or exceeds twenty-five per cent. of such reinsurance reserve, it shall be unlawful for the company to issue new policies until such impairment be restored and until authorized by the superintendent of insurance or by a court in a proper proceeding. (104 v. 202, § 15.)

Section 9607-16. (Record of the order for assessment. Liability of policy-holder.) Such company shall cause to be recorded in a book kept for that purpose the order for such assessment, with a statement which shall set forth the condition of the company at the date of the order, the amount of its assets and of its deposit notes or other contingent funds liable to the assessment, the amount which the assessment calls for, and the particular losses or other liabilities which it is to provide for. The said record shall be made and signed by the directors who voted for the order, before any part of the assessment is collected, and any person liable to the assessment may inspect and take a copy of the same.

Each policy-holder shall be liable to pay his proportional part of any assessments which may be laid by the company in accordance with law and his contract, on account of losses and expenses incurred while he was a member, if he is notified of such assessment within one year after the expiration or cancellation of his policy; and when an assessment is ordered, the directors shall forthwith cause written notice and demand for payment to be made upon each person subject thereto, by mail or personal service. (104 v. 202, § 16.)

Forfeiture of insurance for non-payment of assessments. Where the holder of a policy leaves the payment of assessments to his bookkeeper, who proves a defaulter and fails to pay them, such act is not an unavoidable accident or mistake, for which a court will grant relief against forfeiture.

Graveson v. Life Ass'n, 8 C. C. 172; 6 C. D. 327 (1894).

See Insurance Co. v. Troy, 20 C. C. 644; 10 C. D. 761 (1900).

The fact that the forfeiture of the policy was not declared sooner by the association than it had a right to do, does not amount to a waiver of its right to forfeit the policy.

Graveson v. Life Ass'n, 8 C. C. 172; 6 C. D. 327 (1894).

Phoenix Insurance Co. v. Hoffer, 2 C. C. 131; 1 C. D. 403 (1890); reversed, 23 W. L. B. 108.

After a fire the insured paid to the agent an assessment which was then so long overdue that the insurance was suspended under the terms of the policy. The agent remitted the premium to the company which returned it with instructions to refund to the insured, which the agent failed to do until six or eight months after the fire. Held to be a waiver of the suspension of the policy. Insurance Co. v. Billman, 18 C. C. n. s. 261 (1909); aff'd, no rep. 82 O. S. 451.

Enforcement of assessments.

See §§ 9540, 9541.

Extent of liability. A member of a mutual fire company is not liable for assessments levied to pay losses occurring before he became a member or after his membership ceased.

State v. Fire Ass'n, 42 O. S. 555 (1885).

Wilhelm v. Parker, 17 C. C. 234; 9 C. D. 724 (1898).

After the policy has expired and the policy and premium notes surrendered, the insured is not liable for assessments made to pay subsequent losses, but he remains liable for losses occurring during the life of his policy.

Wilhelm v. Parker, 17 C. C. 234; 9 C. D. 724 (1898).

Leverone v. Brown, 12 C. C. n. s. 277 (1909).

The estate of a decedent, who had effected mutual fire insurance during his life, is liable for assessments; and is jointly liable with the heirs for assessments made after his death during the term of the policy.

Defenses.

Statute of limitations. An action to recover assessments must be brought within six years after demand is made.

Mills & Co. v. Whitmore, 22 C. C. 467; 12 C. D. 338 (1901).

Where, after insolvency, an assessment for the full amount of the liability of a policyholder was made by the court, and subsequently another assessment is made on all policyholders, covering the same liability, but adding the probable costs of collection of the assessment, the statute begins to run on the first assessment and is not revived by the second assessment.

Swing v. Crane, 11 C. C. n. s. 297 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 79 O. S. 461.

See Swing v. Cultivator Co., 9 C. C. n. s. 45; 19 C. D. 365 (1906); reversed, no report, 77 O. S. 610.

Compromise. The directors have power to compromise a claim for assessments, and return the premium notes to the member, and such compromise is a defense against subsequent assessments made to pay losses occurring prior to the compromise.

Wadsworth v. Davis, 13 O. S. 123 (1862).

See Swing v. Rose, 75 O. S. 355, 369 (1906).

Necessity for or amount of assessment. Where an assessment is made by a court, in a dissolution proceeding to which the corporation is a party, such decree is binding upon the policyholders as to the necessity for and amount of the assessment, although the individual policyholders were not parties to the proceeding.

Swing v. Rose, 75 O. S. 355 (1906).

But policyholders may defend on other grounds.

Swing v. Crane, 11 C. C. n. s. 297 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 79 O. S. 461.

Cancellation of policy. Where a policy was cancelled in good faith by the company, on the ground that the risk was undesirable, and the premium note was returned to and accepted by the insured, he is relieved from liability on such note, and the receiver of the company can not recover thereon.

Mansfield v. Furniture Co., 12 C. C. 222; 4 C. D. 473 (1896); aff'd, no rep., 54 O. S. 653.

See Wadsworth v. Davis, 13 O. S. 123 (1862).

Wilhelm v. Parker, 17 C. C. 234; 9 C. D. 724 (1898).

But the insured, and his surety on the premium note, are liable for the earned portion of the premium, although the policy provides that in case of loss the amount due for premium is to be deducted from the amount payable by the insurer.

Irwin v. Insurance Co., 2 Dis. 68 (1858).

Payment of loss to insured. Although a policyholder has suffered a loss, which is paid to him by the company, he remains liable for his share of the losses which occurred during the life of the policy.

Machine Co. v. Partridge, 25 N. H. 369 (1852).

Insurance not in force because of default of insured. Where the insurance is not in force because of default in payment of installments on a premium note, the maker of the note is liable for assessments.

Insurance v. Sorter, 1 Cleve. L. R. 133 (1878).

Insurance Co. v. Leavy, 136 Pa. St. 499 (1890).

Huntley v. Perry, 38 Barb. 569 (N. Y.).

Fraud. Ignorance of insured of assessment character of insurance. Non-compliance with law by company. A mutual company which issues a policy without the word "mutual" thereon as required by § 9607-22, and by falsely representing that there is no contingent liability thereon, induces its acceptance, commits a fraud on the policyholder. A person who, after he had notified the agent that he would not accept any assessment insurance, received such a policy and retains it until he receives a notice of an assessment, is not liable to the receiver of the company.

Williams v. Receiver, 10 C. C. n. s. 422; 20 C. D. 197 (1907).

Swing v. Crane, 11 C. C. n. s. 297 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 79 O. S. 461.

But where the policy shows on its face that it is issued by a mutual company, a policyholder can not defend on the ground of fraud as against innocent creditors, although he was deceived as to the character of the insurance.

Section 9607-17. (Petition to have court examine assessment and necessity therefor. Notice to parties interested. Hearing and report. Effect of decree. When further collection may be stayed.) If the directors by authority of statute make an assessment or call on the members for money, or vote that there exists a necessity for such assessment, or call, they or any person interested in the company as an officer, policy-holder or creditor may apply to a court of competent jurisdiction by a petition in the nature of a bill in equity, praying for the court to examine such assessment or call, the necessity therefor, and all matters connected therewith, and to confirm, amend or annul the assessment or call, or to order the same to be made as law and justice may require; but if an application is made by any party except the company, or a receiver, or the insurance superintendent, the court may decline to exercise jurisdiction thereof. If the directors unreasonably neglect to make an assessment or call to satisfy an admitted or ascertained claim upon the company, any judgment creditor, or any person holding such claim, or the insurance superintendent, may make application to the court. Upon such application, if made by the directors, or upon an order of the court, if made by any other person, the directors shall set forth the claims against the company, its assets, and all other facts and particulars appertaining to the matter.

The court before which such application is filed shall order notice to be given by publication or otherwise to all parties interested, and upon the return thereof shall examine the assessment or call, and the necessity therefor, and all matters connected therewith. Any parties interested may appear and be heard thereon. All questions that arise shall be heard and determined as in other equity cases.

The application shall be referred to a master who shall appoint a time and place to hear all parties interested, and who shall give personal notice thereof in writing to the insurance superintendent, and through the post-office, so far as he is able, to all persons liable upon said assessment or call. The master shall hear the parties, and report upon the correctness of the assessment or call, and all other matters connected therewith. The court may confirm, amend or annul the assessment or call, or order one to be made; and may make such orders and decree as under all the circumstances justice and equity require. If the assessment or call is altered or amended, or one is ordeerd to be made, the directors shall forthwith proceed to vote the same in legal form, and the record of such vote shall be set forth in a supplemental bill or answer.

When an assessment or call has been so confirmed, ascertained or established, a decree shall be entered which shall be final and conclusive upon the company and all persons liable to the assessment or call, as to the necessity of the same, the authority of the company to make or collect the same, the amount thereof, and all formalities connected therewith. An assessment or call altered or amended by vote of directors and decree of the court thereon shall be binding upon all parties who would have been liable under it as originally made, and in all legal proceedings shall be held to be such original assessment or call. All such proceedings shall be at the cost of the company and in all cases the court may control the disposition of the funds collected under such proceedings.

If the court finds that the net proceeds of any assessment or call will not be sufficient to furnish substantial relief to those having claims against the company, it may decree that no assessment shall be collected; and if, upon the application of the insurance superintendent or a member of the company, or of any person interested, the court is of the opinion that further attempts to collect an assessment then partially collected will not benefit those having claims against the company, it may stay the further collection of said assessment. (104 v. 202, § 17.)

Section 9607-18. (When trustees or directors personally liable.) The trustees or directors of any such company shall be personally liable for any losses upon risks taken after the superintendent of insurance has issued his requisition to restore any deficiency in the assets and before such deficiency is restored. Provided that nothing herein shall be construed to require any mutual fire insurance company, now doing business on the premium note plan, to keep on hand any cash reinsurance reserve or funds invested in securities, other than their premium notes, when the premium notes amount in gross to three per centum of the amount at risk by the company. (104 v. 202, § 18.)

Section 9607-19. (When foreign company shall be admitted to transact business.) A foreign mutual company shall be admitted to transact the kinds of insurance authorized by its charter or articles of incorporation to the extent and with the privileges and powers permitted by law to domestic mutual companies when such company shall be solvent and shall transact its business according to the requirements of law applicable to like domestic mutual insurance companies. (107 v. 649, § 5; 104 v. 202, § 19.)

A foreign company which issued a contract providing for assessments at certain specified rates was held not authorized to levy assessments in excess thereof. Insurance Co. v. Douds, 103 O. S. 398 (1921); aff'd, — U. S. — (1923); 67 L. Ed. 488.

Section 9607-20. (Alien company admitted to do business, when.) An alien mutual company, transacting the business of insurance authorized in this act [G. C. §§ 9607-1 to 9607-29] on the mutual plan, in accordance with the laws of the country, state or province in which it was organized, may be admitted to transact such business within this state upon complying with the laws applicable to it, when its assets—invested according to the laws of the state where its assets are held in the United States, pledged for the payment of its liabilities in the United States—exceed its liabilities in the United States by two hundred thousand dollars. (104 v. 202, § 20.)

Section 9607-21. (When license of foreign or alien company may be revoked.) Whenever the superintendent of in-insurance shall find that any foreign or alien mutual company, doing business in this state, does not have the qualifications required of such company for admission to this state, or that it has not complied with the law, he may revoke the license of such company to transact business in this state. (104 v. 202, § 21.)

Section 9607-22. (Every domestic, foreign or alien company shall contain the word "mutual", exception.) The name of every such domestic, foreign and alien mutual company shall contain the word "mutual."

This section shall not apply to any company now licensed to do business in this state, whose name does not now contain the word "mutual," unless it does now, or hereafter shall, issue policies which are subject to contingent liability or assessment. (104 v. 202, § 22.)

A mutual company which issues a policy without the word "mutual" thereon, and, by falsely representing that there is no contingent liability thereon, induces its acceptance, commits a fraud on the policyholder. A person who, after he had notified the agent that he would not accept any assessment insurance, receives such a policy and retains it until he receives notice of an assessment, is not liable to the receiver of the company.

Swing v. Crane, 11 C. C. n. s. 297 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 79 O. S. 461.

But where the policy shows on its face that it is issued by a mutual company, a policyholder can not defend on the ground of fraud as against innocent creditors, although he was deceived as to the character of the insurance.

Section 9607-23. (Company having similar name of another not permitted.) No such domestic, foreign, or alien mutual company shall be permitted to transact business if its name is so similar to any name already in use by any company organized or doing business in the United States, as to be confusing or misleading to the public, unless the company whose name is so similar shall consent thereto. The superintendent of insurance and secretary of state shall determine all questions respecting such similarity of names, and if they fail to agree, the attorney general shall determine whether any proposed name may be adopted or used. (104 v. 202, § 23.)

Section 9607-24. (Maintenance of unearned premium reserve.) Every domestic, foreign and alien mutual company shall maintain an unearned premium reserve of fifty per centum of the cash premiums received and receivable on unexpired risks and policies running one year or less from date of policy, and a pro rata amount of all cash premiums received and receivable on all other unexpired risks and policies. (104 v. 202, § 24.)

Section 9607-25. (Retaliatory law shall not apply, when.) No retaliatory law of this state, relating to insurance companies, shall apply to any such mutual company organized under the laws of any state which has a similar law exempting mutual fire insurance companies from the retaliatory laws of such state. (104 v. 202, § 25.)

Section 9607-26. (Laws applicable.) The laws of this state governing corporations and the laws relating to insurance, to the extent they are now or hereafter may be applicable to any such mutual companies and not in conflict with the provisions of this act [G. C. §§ 9607-1 to 9607-29], are hereby made specifically applicable to such mutual companies. (104 v. 202, § 26.)

Section 9607-27. (Companies and associations not affected by this act.) This act shall not affect any company now doing business within this state on the premium note plan, nor any mutual protective association now or hereafter organized or doing business under the provisions of Tit. IX, Div., III, Subdiv. II, Chap. 2 of the General Code or amendments thereof, unless such company or association elect to reorganize under the provisions of this act [G. C. §§ 9607-1 to 9607-29]; provided also that the sections repealed by this act shall remain in force, so far as applicable, to any such company or association not so electing. (104 v. 202, § 27.)

Section 9607-28. (What companies held organized under laws of this state.) Every mutual fire insurance company created by or organized under a general or special law of this state and doing business herein upon or without the premium note plan, which by its policy, by-laws or public statements of its financial affairs claims the benefit of the guarantee fund or the contingent liability of its policy-holders as provided for in this act [G. C. §§ 9607-1 to 9607-29], shall be held as having organized under the laws of this state now in force, and be governed by the portions thereof as applicable to such company. (104 v. 202, § 29.)

Section 9607-29. (Refusal to make report forfeits charter.) Any mutual company which neglects to make and forward to the superintendent of insurance an annual report of its affairs, as required by law, or refuses to allow him free access to its books and papers, and to investigate its financial standing if organized under the laws of this state, shall thereby forfeit its charter, and the superintendent of insurance shall proceed without delay to bring its affairs to a close. (104 v. 202, § 30.)

Section 9607-31. (Deposit of securities to transact business outside state.) That any domestic mutual fire insurance company, for the protection of all its policies, may deposit with the superintendent of insurance of Ohio, securities of the kind hereinafter described, in such sum as shall be necessary to enable such company to transact business in any other state under the laws of said state. (107 v. 500, § 1.)

Section 9607-32. (Execution of receipt; record of securities.) Said superintendent of insurance shall execute his receipt therefor to the depositing company, safely keep such securities as provided by law until same be withdrawn by the depositing company as hereinafter provided, and also keep in his office a record in which shall be entered the name of the company so owning and depositing such securities, the name of the debtor, the par value and serial number of each such security, the date of its maturity, and the date of maturity and amount of each installment of interest to become due. (107 v. 500.)

Section 9607-33. (Securities specified; registration.) Said securities shall consist of United States bonds, bonds of the state of Ohio or bonds of a county or incorporated city of this state, issued in conformity with law, not estimated above their par value, which, before being deposited, shall be registered by the company in favor of "the superintendent of insurance of the state of Ohio in trust for the benefit and security of all the policy-holders of said company." (107 v. 500.)

Federal farm loan bonds may be deposited. § 9518-2.

Section 9607-34. (Collection and deposit of principal and interest.) Said superintendent of insurance shall collect and pay over to the depositing company the principal and interest on said securities as same mature, but before receiving the proceeds of the principal sum of any deposited security, the company shall substitute securities of the required character equal in amount to those maturing. (107 v. 501.)

Section 9607-35. (Exchange of securities.) Such depositing company at any time may exchange for any securities so deposited other securities of like character which shall be deposited and handled in all respects as said original deposit. (107 v. 501.)

Section 9607-36. (Certification under seal, of deposits.) Upon request of the depositing company, said superintendent of insurance shall certify under the seal of his office to the insurance department of any other state, or to any other interested person, to the fact of such deposit, and the amount and description of the securities so on deposit. (107 v. 501.)

Section 9607-37. (Examination of securities, annually.) Every insurance company having securities deposited in the office of the superintendent of insurance, may, once during each calendar year, at such proper time as the company may select, cause its securities so deposited to be examined by its president, secretary or other agent whom it may designate for that purpose. (107 v. 501.)

Section 9607-38. (Surrender of securities upon termination of liability; examination of records.) No part of the securities so deposited shall be surrendered by said superintendent of insurance to the depositing company until liability shall have terminated on all policies for whose benefit the securities have been deposited. When liability on all such policies shall have terminated, the depositing company may apply to said superintendent of insurance for the surrender of the deposited securities, thereupon the president or principal officer and secretary of the company shall make oath that all liability on such policies has terminated and said superintendent of insurance shall cause an examination to be made of the records and files of the company and if it appear that liability no longer exists, the superintendent shall surrender such securities to the depositing company. Such superintendent of insurance, ninety (90) days prior to the time of surrendering same, shall advise of the contemplated withdrawal by registered mail addressed to all persons who may have been notified of the fact of such deposit under section 9607-36 hereof. (107 v. 501.)

Section 9608. (Association for insurance against loss by death of domestic animals.) Any number of persons of lawful age, residents of this state, not less than five, may associate themselves together for the purpose of becoming a body corporate, and insure themselves, and any person becoming a member of such corporation, in accordance with the rules and regulations thereof, against loss from death of domestic animals, and assess upon and collect from each other such sums of money, from time to time, as are necessary to pay losses which occur from the death of such animals to any member of the corporation, and incidental expenses and may assess upon and collect from each other an amount equal to the average yearly losses and expenses, such average yearly losses and expenses to be based upon the preceding three years, the same to be treated as a surplus; such surplus to be used in paying losses and expenses that may occur, and if invested, to be under the provisions of sections 9518 and 9519 of the General Code. (June 9, 1911, 102 v. 355; R. S. Sec. 3691-1; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 377.)

The articles of incorporation must show that all the incorporators are residents of Ohio.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 223.

In case of failure to pay a certificate, the holder need not seek specific performance to levy assessments, but may sue at law for the sum stipulated in certificate.

Hall v. Live Stock Ass'n, 25 W. L. B. 79 (C. P. 1891).

Section 9609. (Certificate of organization.) Such persons shall make and subscribe a certificate, setting forth therein:

1. The name by which the corporation is to be known.

2. The place which is chosen as its principal office.
3. The object of the corporation, which shall only be to enable its members to insure each other against loss from death of domestic animals, and to enforce any contract by them entered into, whereby they specifically agree to be assessed for the payment of losses and incidental expenses.
4. An acknowledgment of the signing of such certificate before a notary public, or other officer authorized to take the acknowledgments of deeds and mortgages. (R. S. Sec. 3691-2; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 2.)

Section 9610. (Certificate to be filed.) Such certificate shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and a copy thereof duly certified by such secretary, shall be evidence of the existence and due incorporation of the company for the purposes therein named. (R. S. Sec. 3691-3; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 3.)

Section 9611. (Election of officers.) When such certificate is so filed, and a certified copy thereof forwarded to the company, the persons named therein shall elect their directors, a president, secretary, treasurer, and such other officers as are necessary for doing the business and accomplishing the objects of the company, to serve for one year, or until their successors are duly elected and qualified. Such officers shall thereafter be elected annually, by the members of the association, at such time as is fixed upon in the constitution. Such company so organized shall not insure against loss by death of domestic animals for others than members of the company who are bona fide residents of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3691-4; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 4.)

Section 9612. (Constitution and by-laws.) Every such company shall adopt such constitution and by-laws consistent with the constitution and laws of this state and the United States, as in the judgment of its members best will subserve its interests and purposes. All persons who obtain insurance in the company shall thereby become members thereof, with power to vote at regular meetings of members, upon all subjects, and also be held, in law, to comply with all the provisions and requirements of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3691-5; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 5.)

Where the constitution and by-laws of an association provided that payment of dues entitled the person to membership, "so long as he carries insurance and for one year thereafter," members were liable for assessments, in the opinion of the attorney general, during the entire year of their membership, regardless of whether they had property insured during all of such period.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 343.

Section 9613. (Annual statement. Renewal certificate. Fee.) The president, or vice-president, and secretary of such company, annually on the first day of January, or within thirty days thereafter shall prepare, under oath, and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance, a statement of the condition of the company on the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, exhibiting such facts as are enumerated in section ninety-five hundred and ninety, applicable to such companies, and such other information as is necessary to reveal the financial condition and general management of the company, as the superintendent requires in a printed form, to be by him supplied for that purpose.

Upon filing its annual statement, the superintendent shall annually issue a renewal certificate to such company, if he finds the company has complied with the law. For filing each such annual statement and for each certificate and renewal certificate, every such company shall pay to the superintendent for the use of the state, five dollars to cover the cost of filing annual statement and fee for issuing such certificate. (April 23, 1910, 101 v. 129; R. S. Sec. 3691-5; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 5.)

Section 9614. (Failure to make statement.) Any such company failing to make and deposit such statement, or to reply to any inquiry of the superintendent of insurance, shall be subject to a forfeiture of five hundred dollars, and an additional five hundred dollars for every month it thereafter transacts any business of insurance, and shall forfeit its right to do the business contemplated by this chapter. The superintendent by proceedings in quo warranto shall enforce such forfeiture. (R. S. Sec. 3691-5; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 378, § 5.)

Section 9615. (Examination.) The superintendent of insurance, whenever he deems it advisable, may cause an examination of the affairs of such company to be made by one or more disinterested persons, at the expense of the company, the expense not to exceed five dollars per day for each person employed. If upon such examination, it appears that it is exercising powers or franchises contrary to law, the superintendent shall institute proceedings in quo warranto against the company, and if it be found, in such proceedings, that it has exercised powers or franchises contrary to law, a forfeiture of its right to do business shall be declared. (R. S. Sec. 3691-6; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 379, § 6.)

Section 9616. (Applications necessary.) No company organized under this chapter shall issue any certificate or policy of insurance until bona fide applications for insurance to the amount of fifty thousand dollars have been filed with the secretary of the company, and a statement of such fact sworn to by the secretary and president, filed with and approved by the superintendent of insurance. The treasurer of such company shall not receive money, as treasurer, until he has filed with the superintendent his bond, payable to the state of Ohio, for the benefit of the members of such company, in the sum of ten thousand dollars, with security, to be approved by the superintendent. Such bond shall be conditioned for the faithful application of all money coming into his hands as treasurer. (R. S. Sec. 3691-7; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 379, § 7.)

Section 9617. (When company may commence business.) When the statement of the secretary and president, and the bond of the treasurer required by the preceding section, are filed and approved by the superintendent of insurance, he shall issue, to such company, his certificate, certifying that fact, and such certificate shall constitute the authority of the company to commence business. (R. S. Sec. 3691-8; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 379, § 8.)

Section 9618. (When charter may be forfeited.) Should the amount at risk in such company be reduced below fifty thousand dollars, it shall issue no more certificates or policies of insurance until bona fide applications, sufficient to restore the insurance to such amount have been secured, and a sworn statement of that fact is filed with and approved by the superintendent of insurance, and by him certified to the company. If such company fails to restore such amount, for the period of six months, it shall forfeit its right to do business. When its liabilities exceed seven per cent of the amount of risk in force, as determined by the last preceding assessment, such company shall be deemed to be insolvent, and to have forfeited its charter. Such forfeiture shall be enforced by the superintendent of insurance by proceedings in quo warranto. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 72; R. S. Sec. 3691-9; 86 v. 380, § 9.)

Section 9619. (Bond of secretary and treasurer.) The treasurer and secretary of such companies shall give bond for the faithful performance of their duties, to the directors or trustees thereof, in such sum and with such security as are prescribed in the by-laws of the company, the security to be approved by its directors or trustees. (R. S. Sec. 3691-10; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 380, § 10.)

Section 9620. (Directors.) The directors or trustees of such company before qualified, shall take an oath, to be administered by any officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds, faithfully to perform their official duties. (R. S. Sec. 3691-11; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 380, § 11.)

CREDIT GUARANTY.

§ 9621.	Organization.	§ 9629.	Annual statements.
§ 9622.	Capital stock.	§ 9630.	Companies of other states.
§ 9623.	Increase of capital stock.	§ 9631.	When company of other state exempted from making deposit.
§ 9624.	Investment of capital.	§ 9632.	Forfeiture of right to do business.
§ 9625.	Certificate and authority to do business.	§ 9633.	Examination.
§ 9626.	Deposits.
§ 9627.	Powers.
§ 9628.	May purchase certain accounts.

Section 9621. (Organization.) Any number of persons, not less than five, may associate and form a company to guarantee and indemnify merchants, manufacturers, traders and those engaged in business, and giving credit, from loss and damage by reason of giving and extending credit to their customers and those dealing with them, by making, acknowledging and filing articles of incorporation pursuant to, and by complying with sections ninety-three hundred and forty, ninety-three hundred and forty-one and ninety-three hundred and forty-two. (R. S. Sec. 3691-14; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Under the language of paragraph two of § 9510 permitting a company to "guarantee the performance of contracts other than insurance policies" a credit insurance company may be organized or admitted under § 9510 et seq.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 535. (1893).

A credit insurance bond required notice of insolvency of each debtor, within a fixed time, and provided that knowledge by or notice to any agent or representative other than certain designated officers should not estop the company from enforcing any provisions of the policy or be a waiver. The insured, within the time fixed, gave notice on a blank form furnished by the company but did not fully comply with the requirements as to notice. The company began an investigation and one of the designated officers corresponded with the insured and had full knowledge of all facts of which the insured was required to give notice. Held, knowledge of the officer was notice to the company, and its action waived the more formal notice. Koblitz v. Indemnity Co., 92 O. S. 272 (1915).

An insured notified his insurer that a debtor had been adjudged a bankrupt. The insurer replied that it had been informed that the debtor was "closed out under execution" and the proof showed that the latter was correct. Held, immaterial, as the bond covered either event, and the insured had prompt and sufficient notice of the threatened loss, and did not dispute liability on the ground of defective notice. Casualty Co. v. Fechheimer, 220 Fed. 401 (C. C. A. Ohio 1915).

Bond construed; provisions as to losses during terms of original and renewal bonds, and amount of loss to be born by insured. Casualty Co. v. Fechheimer, 220 Fed. 401 (C. C. A. Ohio 1915).

Section 9622. (Capital stock.) No such company shall be organized with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, the whole of which, before proceeding to business, shall be paid in and invested in treasury notes, in stocks or bonds of the United States, in stocks or bonds of the state of Ohio, or a municipality or county thereof, or in mortgages on unincumbered real estate within this state, worth double the amount loaned thereon at the time the loan is made. (R. S. Sec. 3691-15; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9623. (Increase of capital stock.) Such company may increase its capital stock as provided in section ninety-three hundred and forty-five. (R. S. Sec. 3691-16; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9624. (Investment of capital.) Such company may invest its capital stock and change such investment as provided in section ninety-three hundred and forty-six. But it shall not commence business until it has made the deposit of securities required by such section, which shall be held and controlled by the superintendent of insurance for the purpose and in the manner provided in sections ninety-three hundred and forty-six, ninety-three hundred and forty-seven and ninety-three hundred and forty-eight. (R. S. Sec. 3691-17; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9625. (Certificate and authority to do business.) When such company is fully organized and has deposited the requisite amount of securities as hereinbefore provided, together with a certified copy of the papers required by this chapter, unless he finds the name assumed by it so nearly similar to that of another company organized in this state as to lead to uncertainty or confusion on the part of the public, the superintendent of insurance shall furnish such company with a certificate of such deposit and of authority to transact business. (R. S. Sec. 3691-18; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9626. (Deposits.) No such company shall undertake any business or risk until it also deposits with the superintendent of insurance, for the benefit and security of its policy-holders, fifty thousand dollars in bonds of the United States, the state of Ohio, or a county, township, city or other municipality in this state, which he shall not receive at more than their par value, but which may be exchanged from time to time, for other securities, and so long as it continues solvent and complies with the laws of this state, he shall permit it to collect the interest on such deposits. (R. S. Sec. 3691-19; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9627. (Powers.) When such company has complied with all of the foregoing requirements, it may agree to pay to merchants, manufacturers, dealers and persons engaged in business and giving credit, the debt or debts, or such part thereof as is agreed upon, or which may be thereafter owing to them; and to indemnify them from loss on account thereof in such an amount or per cent as is agreed upon, and to charge and receive therefor such sum or per cent as the consideration for such an agreement, guaranty or indemnity, as is agreed upon between it and the person guaranteed or indemnified, and to buy, hold, own and take an assignment of any claims, accounts and demands so guaranteed, and to hold, own and collect them, and enforce collection thereof by action the same as the original holder and owner might or could do. Such corporation may also guarantee the payment of money for personal services under contract of hiring. (R. S. Sec. 3691-19; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9628. (May purchase certain accounts.) Such corporation may use its capital stock, or funds accumulated in the course of its business to purchase or pay for any claim or demand, the payment of which it has guaranteed, or against the loss of which it has indemnified the holder. Such of its capital stock or accumulated funds as are not so used shall be vested in the same classes of securities in which the deposit to be made with the superintendent of insurance is required to be invested. But when on account of losses or otherwise, the amount of its funds falls below such sum as hereinbefore is required to be deposited, no further guaranty of indemnity shall be issued until the deficiency has been made good. (R. S. Sec. 3691-19; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 345, § 7; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9629. (Annual statement.) The president or vice-president of each company organized under this chapter, or under the laws of another state, or the general manager for the United States of a company organized for like purposes under the laws of a foreign government, and doing business in this state, annually, on the first day of January, or within thirty days thereafter, shall prepare under oath and deposit in the office of the superintendent of insurance a statement of the condition of such company on the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, exhibiting the following facts and items, in the following form:

First. The amount of the capital stock of the company, specifying the amount paid and unpaid.

Second. The property or assets held by the company specifying:

1. The value of the real estate owned by it, where it is situated, and the value of the buildings thereon.

2. The amount of cash on hand and deposited in banks to the credit of the company, specifying in what banks it is deposited.

3. The amount of cash in the hands of agents and in the course of transmission.

4. The amount of loans secured by bonds and mortgages which are first liens on real estate and on which there is less than one year's interest due.

5. The amount of loans on which interest has not been paid within one year.

6. The amount due the company on which judgments have been obtained, and the cash valued thereof.

7. The amount of stocks in this state, the United States, of any city in this state, and of any other stocks owned by the company, specifying the amount, number of shares, and the par and market values of each kind of stocks.

8. The amount of stock held as collateral security for loans, with the amount loaned on, and the par and market values of each kind of stock.

9. The amount of unpaid assessments on stock, premium notes or contingent liabilities.

10. The amount of interest due and unpaid, and the amount of interest accrued but not due.

11. The amount of premium notes or contingent liabilities on which policies or bonds of guaranty or indemnity are issued.

12. The number of policies or bonds of guaranty or indemnity in force.

13. The amount of premiums received thereon.

14. The amount and description of all other assets.

15. The amount guaranteed under all policies in force.

Third. The liabilities of the company, specifying:

1. The amount of losses due and unpaid.

2. The amount of claims for losses resisted by the company.

3. Gross losses in process of adjustment or in suspense, including all reported and supposed losses.

4. The amount of dividends declared and due and unpaid.

5. The amount of dividends, either cash or scrip, declared, but not due.

6. The amount of money borrowed, and the security for their payment.

7. The amount of all other existing claims against the company.

Fourth. The income of the company during the preceding year, specifying:

1. The amount of cash premiums received.

2. The amount of notes or contingent assets received for premiums.

3. The amount of interest money received.

4. The amount of income received from other sources.

Fifth. The expenditure during the preceding year, specifying:

1. The amount of losses paid during the year, stating how much thereof accrued prior to and how much after the date of the preceding statement, and the amount at which losses were estimated therein.

2. The amount of dividends paid during the year.

3. The amount of expenses paid during the year, including commissions and fees to agents and officers of the company.

4. The amount paid for taxes.

5. The amount of all payments and expenditures.

6. The amount of scrip dividend declared. (R. S. Sec. 3691-20; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 346; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9630. (Companies of other states.) Any corporation, company or association organized under the laws of another state of the United States or of a foreign government to transact a like business as that hereinbefore provided for, may be admitted and licensed to do business in this state. As a condition precedent to being admitted, and transacting business in this state, it shall deposit with the superintendent of insurance the following:

1. A certified copy of its charter or articles of incorporation;

2. If the applicant be a corporation, company or association organized under the laws of another state of the United States, a certificate from the insurance commission, commissioner or superintendent of insurance of its own state showing its authority to do such business, also a certificate from such officer that corporations, companies or associations of this state engaged in a like business, upon complying with the laws of such state, are legally entitled to do business therein;

3. A statement under oath of its president and secretary, or like officers, or of the general manager for the United States of a company organized under the laws of a foreign government, in the form herein provided for, of its business for the preceding year;

4. A copy of its policy, bond or guaranty, application and by-laws;

5. If the applicant be a corporation, company or association organized under the laws of another state of the United States, a certificate from the insurance commissioner, superintendent of insurance or other proper officer of its own state, that such company has invested at least one hundred thousand dollars of its assets in the interest paying bonds or stocks of the United States or of this state, or of some other state of the United States, of the market value of one hundred thousand dollars in the city of New York, or in bonds and mortgages on unincumbered real estate in this state, or in the state under the laws of which it is organized, of at least double the value of the amount loaned thereon, that such securities are held under the laws of such state by such officer for the benefit of all its policy, bond or guaranty holders, and also stating the character of the securities held by such officer and their value;

6. A duly certified copy of the resolution of its board of directors or authority, duly acknowledged before a notary public by the general manager for the United States of a company organized under the laws of a foreign government, appointing an attorney in this state upon whom service of summons or other process in all actions begun in this state may be made. (R. S. Sec. 3691-21; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 348; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9631. (When company of other state exempted from making deposit.) No deposit in this state shall be required of any corporation, company or association of another state, if it has made the deposit in its own state, referred to in the preceding section, and has filed with the superintendent of insurance of this state the certificate mentioned in that section, as evidence of such deposit. But a corporation doing a credit guaranty business in this state, which is incorporated by or organized under the laws of a foreign government, shall make the deposit with the superintendent of insurance of such securities to the amount and for the purpose required by sections ninety-five hundred and sixty-five and ninety-five hundred and sixty-six. (R. S. Sec. 3691-22; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 349; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9632. (Forfeiture of right to do business.) A corporation so organized, or doing business in this state under the foregoing provisions, which fails or refuses to file a statement or report, shall thereby forfeit its right to do business, which forfeiture the superintendent of insurance shall enforce by proceedings in quo warranto; and upon his written request the attorney-general of the state shall institute such proceedings. (R. S. Sec. 3691-23; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 349; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9633. (Examination.) Such corporation, association or company shall be subject to examination by the superintendent of insurance under and pursuant to the provisions of the laws of this state relative to the examination of life insurance companies. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24; May 2, 1902, 95 v. 349; May 21, 1894, 91 v. 415.)

Section 9634. (License.) An insurance company organized or incorporated on the mutual plan under the laws of this or any other state for the purpose of insuring against loss or damage from burglary and robbery or attempt thereat, and securing against the loss of money and securities in course of transportation shall be authorized, admitted and licensed to do business in this state as hereinafter provided. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24a; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 350.)

A company to insure against theft should be organized under this chapter and not under § 9510. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 88. Contra. 4 Opins. Atty. Gen. 526, 653 (1893).

Section 9635. (Requisites for beginning business.) Before such company may transact business in this state, except to solicit and receive applications for insurance and premiums, or parts thereof, as hereinafter provided, it shall have in force five hundred or more policies on which premiums are paid in cash, or evidenced by the written contracts of the policy-holders, on which not less than one-fifth of the amount has been paid in cash. The cash and contracts for premiums shall amount in the aggregate to a sum not less than one hundred thousand dollars. The premium contracts so held shall constitute a part of the valid assets of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24b; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 351, § 2.)

Section 9636. (Papers to be filed with superintendent of insurance.) Every such company, association or partnership shall also file a certified copy of its charter, articles of incorporation or deed of settlement, together with a statement under the oath of the president or vice-president and secretary of the company for which he or they act, containing its name, the place where located, a detailed statement of its assets, the number of its policy-holders, the aggregate amount of premium contracts, the amount of cash on hand, in bank, or in the hands of agents, the amount of real estate, and how it is encumbered by mortgage, the number of shares of stock of every kind owned by the company, its par and market value, amount loaned on bond and mortgage, the amount loaned on other securities, and the kind and amount loaned on each, and the estimated value of the whole amount of such securities, and other assets or property of the company; also, its indebtedness, the amount of losses adjusted and unpaid, the amount incurred and in process of adjustment, the amount resisted by the company as illegal and fraudulent, and all other claims existing against the company; and for a company organized under the laws of another state, a copy also of the last annual report, if any, made under any law of such state. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24c; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 351, § 3.)

Section 9637. (When may begin to do business.) No agent shall be allowed to transact business for such company whose reinsurance reserve, as required herein is impaired to the extent of twenty per cent thereof, while such deficiency continues, nor shall any agent act for any company or companies hereinbefore referred to, directly or indirectly, in taking risks or transacting the business of burglary and robbery insurance or the insurance of the safe shipment of money and securities, without procuring from the superintendent of insurance a certificate of authority, stating that such company has complied with all requirements of law, which apply to such companies. As to a company organized under the laws of another state there shall be added the name of the attorney appointed to act for it. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24c; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 351, § 3.)

Section 9638. (Character of business to be conducted in this state.) Such a company organized, admitted and licensed to transact business in this state, shall confine its line of business to that stated in the first section of this chapter, and within this state, to banks, bankers, loan companies, trust companies, city and county treasurers, and not issue any policy to any person, firm or corporation therein, other than banks, bankers, loan companies, trust companies, city and county treasurers. Every such company shall set aside a reinsurance reserve of fifty per cent of its premiums for unexpired term, whether collected in cash or represented by the obligations of the policy-holders, as written in its policies. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24d; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 352, § 4.)

Section 9639. (Liability of policyholders.) Policy-holders of a company organized and admitted to transact such business in this state shall be liable to pay the membership fee and premium on their insurance as paid or contracted to be paid at the time the policy is taken out, but not for any further or other assessments or claims on the part of the company or its policy-holders. The membership fees and premiums agreed upon may be collected in cash at the time the policy is issued or evidenced by written obligation of the policy-holder, as agreed upon by him and the company. Such payment or obligation shall be the limit of the liability of the policy-holder to the company for premium on his insurance. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24e; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 352, § 5.)

Section 9640. (Appointment of attorney and service of process.) No insurance company, association or partnership incorporated by or organized under the laws of another state of the United States for any of the purposes hereinbefore specified, directly or indirectly shall take risks or transact any business of insurance in this state by any agent therein, until it appoints the superintendent of insurance as an attorney on whom process of law can be served, and files in his office a written instrument duly signed and sealed, certifying such appointment. Any process issued by a court of record in this state, and served upon such attorney by the proper officer of the county in which he resides or is found, shall be a sufficient service of the process upon such company. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24f; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 352, § 6.)

Section 9641. (Annual statements.) The statement and evidence of membership, assets and investments hereinbefore required shall be renewed from year to year in such manner and form as required by the superintendent of insurance with an additional statement of the amount of premiums received in this state during the preceding year, so long as such agency continues. The superintendent, on being satisfied that the membership, assets, securities and investments remain secure, as hereinbefore mentioned, shall furnish such renewal. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24g; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 352, § 7.)

Section 9642. (Revocation of authority.) If a corporation organized as hereinbefore provided, and doing business in this state, violates any of the provisions of this chapter, the superintendent of insurance shall revoke its authority to do business in this state, and no renewal of authority shall be granted to it for a period of one year after such revocation. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24g; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 352, § 7.)

Section 9643. (Definition of terms. Duty of secretary of state.) A corporation for the purpose of raising money to be loaned to its members, and others, shall be known in this chapter and in the laws relating to the department of building and loan associations, as a "building and loan association" or as a "savings association." Associations organized under the laws of this state shall be known as "domestic" associations and those organized under the laws of other states or territories as "foreign" associations. Associations may be organized and conducted under the general laws of Ohio relating to corporations, except as otherwise provided in this chapter; but, upon receipt of articles of incorporation and all papers relating thereto, the secretary of state shall forthwith transmit to the superintendent of building and loan associations a copy thereof and shall not record such articles of incorporation until duly authorized to do so by the superintendent of building and loan associations as hereinafter provided. (110 v. 65; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 1; R. S. Sec. 3836-1; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Inspector of building and loan associations, §§ 674 to 695.

Foreign associations, §§ 678 to 681.

Building and loan associations are corporations formed for profit, having a capital stock. The respective powers and duties of the corporation, and its members, are to be decided according to the statutes of Ohio relating to such corporations.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

This act does not grant "banking powers" within the meaning of article 13, § 7 of the constitution.

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

A building and loan association is not a bank.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 901.

A building association is not exempt from federal income taxes, where it has eliminated the element of mutual interest between its stockholders on the one hand and its depositors and borrowers on the other, and devotes itself to receiving deposits from, and loaning money to, the general public for the profit of its stockholders. Lilley B. & L. Co. v. Miller, 280 Fed. 143; 20 O. L. R. 91 (1922).
Decisions under former acts.

See Simpson v. Association, 38 O. S. 349 (1882).

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

Sayle v. Loan Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 401; 15 C. D. 503 (1904); aff'd. no rep., 72 O. S. 639.

Association v. Vogeler, 7 N. P. 605; 5 L. D. 581.

Section 9643-1. (Superintendent of building and loan to certify to secretary of state. Misleading names.) Upon receipt of the articles of incorporation of such proposed building and loan association, the superintendent of building and loan associations shall immediately examine into all the facts connected with the formation of such proposed corporation, including its location and proposed incorporators, and if it appears that such corporation if formed, will be lawfully entitled to commence the business for which it is organized and entitled under the law to conduct, the superintendent of building and loan associations shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon record such articles of incorporation. But the superintendent of building and loan associations may refuse to certify to the secretary of state, if upon such examination and investigation he has reason to believe that the proposed corporation is to be formed for any other than legitimate building and loan business, or that the character and general fitness of the persons proposed as incorporators in such corporation are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which such corporation is proposed to be located or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment, or that the name of the proposed corporation is likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose; or if the proposed name is the same as one already adopted or appropriated by any existing building and loan association in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public, unless the place of business of such proposed corporation is to be located in a county other than the one in which any corporation bearing such similar name is then doing business. (110 v. 65.)

Section 9643-2. (Appeal from order withholding certificate. Procedure on appeal. Application to probate court. Witness fees; how paid.) If the superintendent of building and loan associations withholds such certificate, an appeal may be made to a board composed of the governor, superintendent of building and loan associations and the attorney general. The decision of such board in the matter shall be final and the superintendent of building and loan associations shall thereupon so certify its action to the secretary of state. Such board shall prescribe the rules and procedure under which all appeals shall be made and heard, and may from time to time amend the same. Upon its order, the superintendent of building and loan associations shall summon in writing, under his seal, any person resident of this state, to appear before such board and testify in relation to any such appeal, and in the event of the failure of any person summoned to appear before such board to testify as herein provided, the superintendent of building and loan associations shall apply to the probate court of the county in which such proposed corporation is to be located to issue a subpoena to such person to appear before such board. Upon such application the probate judge shall issue a subpoena for the appearance forthwith of such persons before such board to give testimony. Whoever, being so subpoenaed, fails to appear or appearing, refuses to testify, shall be subject to like proceedings and penalties for contempt as witnesses in action pending in the probate court. Each witness who appears before the board or probate court by order of the superintendent of building and loan associations, shall receive for his attendance, the fees and mileage provided for witnesses in civil cases in the common pleas court, not limited, however, to county lines, which shall be audited and paid by the state out of moneys provided for, for the department of building and loan associations upon the presentation of proper voucher, sworn to by such witness and approved by the superintendent of building and loan associations. (110 v. 66.)

Section 9643-3. (When secretary of state shall record; copies.) Upon receipt of such certificate from the superintendent of building and loan associations, the secretary of state shall record said articles of incorporation; one copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state shall thereupon be furnished to the incorporators of such corporation, and one copy to the superintendent of building and loan associations, to be by him filed in his office. All certificates thereafter filed in the office of the secretary of state relating to such corporation shall be recorded and a certified copy thereof forthwith furnished the superintendent of building and loan associations and filed in his office. (110 v. 67.)

Section 9643-4. (Shall not establish branches; shall begin business within one year.) No association shall establish more than one office nor maintain branches other than those already established except with the approval of the superintendent of building and loan associations, previously had in writing, and any such association failing to commence business within one year from the date of issuance of articles of incorporation shall cease to exist and such articles of incorporation shall be null and void. (110 v. 67.)

Section 9644. (Name.) The name of every such corporation hereafter organized, or heretofore organized and hereafter changing its name, shall begin with any word it may select, and end with the word "company" or with the word "association." It also shall use its name in any order it designates, and if it so desires, with other words not forbidden by law, any one or more of the following words, or combinations of words, at its option: "Savings", "building", "loan", "savings and loan", or "building and loan". But such association shall not use the words "bank", "banking" or "trust", nor any one or more of them in combination. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 2.)

The words "Loan and Savings Association" may be used in name.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 102.

Prior to the enactment of this section the words "Loan and Trust Company" in a name were authorized.

Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 395, 402 (1905).

Section 9645. (Capital stock. Names and addresses of officers. Amount of stock. Commissions for sale of stock. Certificate. When business may commence. What certificate shall contain.) Where capital stock is named in the articles of incorporation it shall be deemed to refer to the authorized capital and the organization may be completed and business commenced when a sum equal to five per cent thereof is subscribed and paid in, which amount must thereafter be maintained, and the name and addresses of its officers and not less than two copies of its constitution and by-laws have been filed with the superintendent of building and loan associations, and approved by him and no such corporation shall transact any business whatever except such as is incidental and necessary to its preliminary organization until it has been authorized by the superintendent of building and loan associations to do so, and no amendment to such constitution or by-laws shall become effective until approved by him. The authorized capital of such corporation shall be not less than three hundred thousand dollars; provided that in cities the population of which exceed five thousand, such capital shall be not less than five hundred thousand dollars. The stock sold by any building and loan association shall be accounted for to the association in the full amount paid for the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association or corporation for selling such stock. The superintendent of building and loan associations shall refuse authority to commence business to any building and loan association, if commissions, contributions, or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid, directly or indirectly by the building and loan association, or by anyone, to any person, association or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such building and loan association. When a certificate is transmitted to the superintendent of building and loan associations, signed by the president, secretary or treasurer of such corporation notifying him that the required amount of capital stock of such corporation is subscribed, and paid in, and that such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to be done before it can be authorized to commence business, the superintendent of building and loan associations shall examine into its affairs, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each director, the amount of capital stock paid in of which each is the owner in good faith, and whether such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to entitle it to engage in business. If upon such examination of the facts referred to and of any other facts which may come to the knowledge of the superintendent of building and loan associations he finds that such corporation is lawfully entitled to commence business, he shall give it a certificate under his hand and official seal that it has complied with all the provisions required by law and is authorized to commence business. Books or records shall be kept by every building and loan association, in which shall be entered the name and the last known address of each stockholder, the number of shares or fractions of shares or of stock deposits held by each and the time each person became a stockholder; also all transfer of stock, stating the time when made, the number of shares or of stock deposits and by whom transferred. (110 v. 67; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 3; R. S. Sec. 3836-2; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Prior to the amendment of 110 v. 67 this section did not require any part of the five percent of the subscribed capital to be paid in before business was commenced. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 905.

The charter of an association can not be forfeited for non-user unless it has continued for five years. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 904; G. C. § 12323.

Section 9646. (Directors, term of office.) Directors may be elected for any term, not less than one year nor longer than three years. If such term be longer than one year, it shall be so arranged that as nearly as may be, the term of office of an equal number of directors will expire each year. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 4; R. S. Sec. 3836-2; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

A director, who is neither the secretary nor treasurer, has no implied authority to bind the association by accepting deposits from members who are employes under him. In accepting such deposits he is the agent of the members and not of the association.

Hasselmeyer v. Building Co., 8 N. P. 195; 10 L. D. 570 (Super. Ct. Cin.).

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1897).

A provision in the constitution of an association requiring all directors to be associated in some way with another corporation is ultra vires and void.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 814.

Section 9647. (Powers.) Such corporation shall have all the powers set forth in the following sections of this chapter. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 5; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 9648. (Receiving of deposits; joint accounts.) To receive money on deposits, and all persons, firms, corporations and courts, their agents, officers and appointees may make such deposits and stock deposits, but such corporation shall not pay interest thereon exceeding the legal rate. When such deposits or stock deposits are made to the joint account of two or more persons, whether adults or minors, with a joint order to the corporation that such deposits or any part thereof are to be payable on the order of any one or more of such joint depositors, and to continue to be so payable notwithstanding the death or incapacity of one or more of the persons making them, such account shall be payable to any one or more of such survivors or survivor or order notwithstanding such death or incapacity. No recovery shall be had against such corporation for amounts so paid and charged to such account. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 528, § 6; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

The power to receive deposits of money, granted to building and loan associations, is not a grant of "banking powers" prohibited by section 7 of article 13 of the constitution.

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

A building and loan association can not be depository for a county, municipality, township or school district. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 859; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910, 1911, p. 901.

An association should not accept deposits and issue certificates of deposit by number only, the name of the depositor not appearing on the certificate or on the books of the association. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 861.

A depositor, who is not a stockholder, is not a member, but a creditor of the association. He can not be fined and is not entitled to share in the earnings.

Ashbrook v. Savings Co., 8 N. P. 246; 11 L. D. 360 (1901).

Turner Bauverein v. Woodburn, 27 W. L. B. 409 (C. P. 1892).

Where the constitution of a building and loan association specified the officers to whom, and place where, deposits should be made, the association is not liable for deposits made to other officers, or at other places, unless the association actually received the money. The burden of proof is on the depositor to show that his deposits were made in accordance with the rules, and this burden is not sustained by the mere introduction of the pass book showing entries of credits.

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1897).

Hasselmeyer v. Building Co., 8 N. P. 195; 10 L. D. 570.

A guardian subject to control of an Ohio court is not authorized to invest funds of his ward in a certificate of deposit of a building and loan association. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 1029.

Joint deposits. This section was not repealed by the enactment of the inheritance tax law, but if an association pays a joint deposit to the surviving depositor without retaining sufficient money to pay the inheritance tax thereon, the association is liable for the tax. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1271; 11 Dept. Rep. 169; G. C. § 5348-2.

Section 9649. (Stock issue; vote of holder. Loans.) To issue stock to members upon certificates or upon written subscription on such terms and conditions as the constitution and by-laws provide, but no initiation or membership fee shall be charged and if the stock is sold at a premium all such premiums shall be placed in the reserve fund of the association. Each member may vote his stock to the extent and in the manner provided by the constitution and by-laws, but no member shall cumulate his votes. (110 v. 67; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 7; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Decisions prior to amendment of 110 v. 67. An association can not, by its action, authorize or permit a member to hold more than twenty shares of its stock in his own right.

State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92 (1876).

An executory contract between a building association and one of its members, in respect to shares claimed by him in his own right and in excess of twenty shares, is ultra vires, and can not be enforced by action.

Simpson v. Association, 38 O. S. 349 (1882).

The fact that a member is permitted to hold in his own right a number of shares greater than the maximum prescribed by the by-laws of the company, but not in excess of the number limited by statute, is not a matter of defense by such member against the claims of the company against such shares. The association may waive its rule.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

A person who has borrowed money on more than twenty shares is estopped to deny the right of the association to make the loan.

Association v. Arbeiter Bund, 6 W. L. B. 823; 10 Am. L. Rec. 485 (Dist. Ct. 1882).

A wife having signed a mortgage to secure a loan taken out by her husband in her name, for the purpose of evading this section, is estopped from defending against the mortgage on such grounds.

Association v. Leyden, 1 W. L. B. 126; 4 Am. L. Rec. 765 (Dist. Ct. 1876).

A member who has taken stock in the names of other persons, but really for himself, may exercise the privilege of withdrawal in their behalf.

Association v. Henderson, 3 W. L. B. 386; 6 Am. L. Rec. 755 (Dist. Ct. 1878).

See § 9651.

An association has no power to traffic in its own stock.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

An association, acting in good faith and reasonably, may compromise with a member and release him from liability on a subscription to stock.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250 (1890).

Nature of stock. Unlike other corporations for profit, a share in a building association has, at the inception, only a nominal value. Its value is expected to increase by the lapse of time and the success of the association. It is contrary to the purpose and genius of a building association that a share in it should be paid up at the time of the subscription. This is done by the payment of small dues, and the crediting, at stated times, of the earnings in the way of dividends. When the aggregate dues with the credited earnings equal in amount the par value of a share of stock, it is paid up, and the owner, for that share, ceases to be a stockholder. He is entitled to the par value of his stock, but can no longer participate in the earnings of the association.

Minshall, C. J., in Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174, 184 (1895); quoted in Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 409 (1905).

See § 9675.

Stock in a building and loan association is not a legal investment for a commercial or savings bank or a trust company. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 608.

Section 9650. (Assessments.) To assess and collect from members and others, such dues, fines, interest and premium on loans made, or other assessments, as may be provided for in the constitution and by-laws. Such dues, fines, premium or other assessments shall not be deemed usury, although in excess of the legal rate of interest. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 8; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Members. A borrowing member is one who receives in advance the par value of his shares and agrees, in consideration of such advance, to pay dues on the shares and interest on the loan until the dues paid and the dividends declared are equal to the par value of his shares. He then ceases to be a member, and is entitled to a cancellation of the mortgage given to secure the obligations arising from the loan.

Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

Members, whether borrowers or non-borrowers, have a mutual interest in its affairs, and, sharing alike in its earnings, must assist alike in bearing its losses.

Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

The difference between borrowing members and non-borrowing members is simply in the time at which each class is paid the par value of its shares.

Minshall, C. J., in Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174, 185 (1895).

A manufacturing corporation may become a member of a building association in order to borrow money from the association to use in its business. Even if it had no such power it can not defend, on such ground, against a mortgage given to the building association.

Norwalk, etc., Co. v. Stamping Co., 14 C. C. 1; 7 C. D. 275 (1897); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 603.

See § 9648.

State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92, 96 (1876).

In their dealings with the association members are charged with knowledge of the provisions of its constitution and by-laws.

See Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1897).

Mortgage contracts between borrowing members and the association create vested rights, and can not be modified by the association without consent of such members.

Betz v. Association, 1 N. P. 42; 1 L. D. 58 (1894).

Where the constitution of an association provided that no one could become a member without acquiring stock, it was said that a by-law permitting any person desiring a straight loan to become a member by depositing $10 was invalid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 740.

Termination of membership.

See 9651.

Dues. Where the constitution provides for the payment of dues until the amount of the capital is paid in full, such dues are analogous to payments of installments on subscriptions to stock in other corporations.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Where, by common consent, all members stopped paying dues before the stock was paid in full, borrowing members do not become in default thereby.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Where an association is in liquidation, under the dissolution statutes, the obligation to pay dues ceases, except as ordered by the court for the purpose of paying debts and equalizing the stockholders among themselves.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

An association may, by its by-laws, assess a reasonable fine for default in the payment of dues, but can not assess or collect more than one fine for non-payment of the same stated due.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

A fine can not be imposed for failure to pay dues which accrue after liquidation of the association has been entered upon.

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

The obligation to pay dues ceases upon notice of withdrawal given by a member in accordance with its constitution and by-laws.

Rehn v. Savings Co., 5 N. P. 314; 7 L. D. 398; s. c., 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594.

Except such dues as are necessary to pay losses.

Vincent v. Association, 5 N. P. 273; 7 L. D. 353; 39 W. L. B. 386 (1898).

Fines.

A fine is a penalty imposed in order to secure the prompt fulfillment of some duty or obligation. In building associations it is usually resorted to to compel the punctual payment of dues.

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

An association may, by its by-laws, assess a reasonable fine for default in the payment of dues, but can not assess or collect more than one fine for non-payment of the same stated due.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

An association can not assess a fine for default in the payment of interest on loans.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

There is no limitation as to the amount of, or occasion for, fines, except as prescribed in the constitution or by-laws of the association, and there is no express limitation on the power of the association to adopt by-laws. There are limits, however, on the power to impose a fine.

(1) The amount must be reasonable. (2) It can be imposed only by way of punishment for some delinquency in the performance of a duty which the member may owe to the association by reason of his membership. (3) It is unreasonable that more than one fine should be imposed for the same delinquency.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186, 202 (1874).

Liability for fines does not cease on the making of an assignment for creditors, by the borrowing member.

Hutchinson v. Straub, 64 O. S. 413 (1901); affirming 16 C. C. 452;

9 C. D. 171.

Fines during pendency of foreclosure suit, see below Mortgage securing dues, fines, etc.

The payment of stated dues and fines can not be resisted by a member on the ground that the by-laws have not been adopted by a vote of the directors, where the by-laws have been recorded, acted upon and enforced as the by-laws of the association.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Interest. Interest on premiums can not be charged. The money actually advanced is the basis for the computation of interest.

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

Although the association is in the hands of a receiver, and dues have stopped by common consent, a loan continues to draw interest, without any order of court. It is no defense to show that such interest is unnecessary to equalize the members.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Where the right of amendment is reserved in the constitution of the association, a borrowing member is bound by an amendment providing that interest should be charged only on the amount remaining due at the beginning of each year, and dividends paid only on the amount paid in during the current year.

Metz v. Building Co., 6 O. L. R. 418 (1908).

Not more than eight percent may be charged as interest. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 907, G. C. § 8303.

Premiums. A premium is a bonus which a member agrees to pay for the privilege of having an advance made to him, by way of loan, of the par value of his stock.

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

Under former statutes premiums could only be fixed by competitive bidding, and the association had no power to fix the premium as a condition of making the loan.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92 (1876).

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

But under the present statute competitive bidding is not required and the association may fix the amount of premium.

Association v. Roberts, 5 N. P. 86; 5 L. D. 489 (C. P.).

Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 395, 406 (1905).

A premium is not usury, although, when added to the interest, it exceeds the legal rate of interest.

Cramer v. Trust Co. 72 O. S. 395 (1905).

Lucas v. Association, 22 O. S. 339 (1872).

Interest on premiums can not be charged.

Association v. Gallagher, 25 O. S. 208 (1874).

Where a premium is fixed by a rate per cent, the association can not recover the premium for a longer period than that fixed in the contract of loan. If the time of payment of the loan is extended either by a renewal of the note or mere forbearance to collect, no premium can be collected after the maturity of the note.

Association v. Stevens, 3 W. L. B. 113 (1878).

When liquidation of the association is entered upon, the obligation to pay further premiums ceases.

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

The weekly installment of premium, fixed in and secured by a mortgage, can not be increased and covered by the mortgage unless the constitution and by-laws have reserved such right in plain and unmistakable language.

Burke v. Association, 7 W. L. B. 114 (Dist. Ct. 1882).

See Association v. Boning, 7 W. L. B. 174; 10 Am. L. Rec. 626 (Dist. Ct. 1882).

Extortionate premiums.

See Association v. Boning, 7 W. L. B. 174; 10 Am. L. Rec. 626 (Dist. Ct. 1882).

Other assessments.

See also § 9674.

The mortgage executed by a borrowing member contained a stipulation for the payment of such "assessments" as might be levied on him as a member. Upon insolvency of the association the receiver ascertained the "shortage" in the assets and made a pro rata assessment on the members to meet it. Held, that an assessment for such purpose was within the stipulation of the mortgage, and that the member was not entitled to its cancellation until such assessment was paid.

Eversman v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

Where a mortgagor has not defaulted on any of the conditions of his mortgage, he can not be fined or assessed any sum as an attorney fee.

Kesting v. Donahoe, 13 C. C. 653; 6 C. D. 262 (1895).

A stipulation for attorney fees in a building and loan mortgage is invalid. Attorney fees are not proper "other assessments."

Lucas v. Association, 22 O. S. 339 (1872).

Association v. Roberts, 5 N. P. 86; 5 L. D. 489.

In an action to recover dues, etc., in an amount exceeding the legal rate of interest, an association must prove its corporate capacity, to show that it is a corporation which has the right to the amount demanded. Loan Co. v. Philen, 18 C. C. n. s. 410 (1910).

An association can not charge more than eight percent as interest. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 907.

Under former statutes, in order to save the premium from being obnoxious to the laws against usury, it must have been paid for precedence in obtaining the loan and at competitive bidding.

Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 395, 406 (1905).

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

Competitive bidding is not required under the present statute.

Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 395, 406 (1905).

Mortgage securing dues, fines, premiums, etc. Dues, fines, premiums and other assessments may be provided for in, and secured by, the mortgage of a borrowing member.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Eversman v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

Foreclosure. The decree in foreclosure should be confined to the amount of dues, interest, fines, etc., that had accrued at the time the decree is rendered.

Hutchinson v. Straub, 16 C. C. 452; 9 C. D. 171 (1897); aff'd, 64 O. S. 413.

Where the assignee for creditors of the mortgagor brought a proceeding for authority to sell the land, the filing of an answer and cross petition therein by the association does not estop it from claiming fines accruing after the making of the assignment.

Hutchinson v. Straub, 64 O. S. 413 (1901); affirming 16 C. C. 452; 9 C. D. 171.

Where the premium is included in the note and mortgage, a stipulation making the entire amount of the note due immediately on failure to pay an installment is invalid, as it would amount to a forfeiture of the entire premium.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186, 205 (1874).

A provision in a mortgage that, on foreclosure, the amount shall be ascertained by taking the face of the mortgage and arrearage, and deducting the credits paid in, is invalid, its effect being to forfeit the rights of membership.

Association v. Eggen, 5 W. L. B. 752 (Dist. Ct. 1880).

Order of distribution. Computation of the amounts, in the order of distribution should be made by adding (1) amount found due by order of sale, (2) interest on that amount to confirmation, (3) dues and interest from order of sale to confirmation, (4) average interest on that amount, (5) present value of future dues and interest from date of confirmation.

Association v. Mueller, 8 W. L. B. 97 (1882).

Payments. Where the constitution of an association provided that payments should be made in money, payments of dues must be made in cash, and the giving of checks is not payment, and if a check is taken the officers are acting as the agents of the member in the matter of the collection of the check, unless it can be shown that the stockholders, by acquiescence in custom or otherwise, authorized a departure from the rule requiring cash payments.

Mueller v. Cohen, 27 W. L. B. 353 (1892).

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (1897).

Where the constitution of an association specified the officers to whom, and place where, payments should be made, the association is not bound by payments made to other officers or at other places unless the association actually received the money.

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1897).

Hasselmeyer v. Building Co., 8 N. P. 195; 10 L. D. 570.

The burden of proof is upon the claimants to show payment made according to law, and this burden is not sustained by the mere introduction of the pass-book, showing credits to the amount claimed.

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 254 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1897).

Section 9651. (Withdrawal of stock deposits.) To permit members to withdraw all or part of their stock deposits, at such times, and upon such terms, as the constitution and by-laws provide. Any member, however, who withdraws his entire stock deposit, or whose stock has matured, shall be entitled to receive all dues paid in and dividends declared thereon, less all fines or other assessments, and less the pro rata share of all losses, if any have occurred. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 9; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

An association may, in its constitution and by-laws, provide that stock deposits shall not be withdrawn until they have been paid in full. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1862.

A member who has taken stock in the names of other persons, but really for himself, may exercise the privilege of withdrawal in their behalf, and, on refusal of the association to refund, an action as for money had and received will lie.

Association v. Henderson, 3 W. L. B. 386; 6 Am. L. Rec. 755 (Dist. Ct. 1878).

The difference between borrowing and non-borrowing members is simply in the time at which each class is paid the par value of its shares.

Minshall, C. J., in Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174, 185 (1895).

Where the constitution of an association provided that withdrawal claims could only be paid in the order of filing, a mortgagor, having purchased the withdrawal claim of a non-borrowing member which was not yet payable, can not compel the association to cancel his mortgage by tendering in payment the withdrawal claim.

Ward v. North Fairmount, etc., Co., 5 N. P. 133; 8 L. D. 489 (1897).

As the settlement of the liability of stockholders is a matter between creditors and stockholders, the association can not make deductions in allowing withdrawals to provide for possible losses.

Jungkuntz v. Association, 6 W. L. B. 428 (1881).

Mere notice of withdrawal does not change a member into a creditor.

Rehn v. Savings Co., 5 N. P. 314; 7 L. D. 398; s. c., 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594.

Association v. Howell, 39 W. L. B. 386; 5 N. P. 273; 7 L. D. 353 (1898).

An agreement, in a certificate of stock in a foreign building and loan association, that the stock shall mature at a certain time, can not be specifically enforced where the failure of the stock to mature was due to financial depression and not to the fault of the association.

Demland v. Loan Co., 20 C. C. 223; 11 C. D. 249 (1899).

This section prohibits an association from prescribing that a withdrawing member shall receive only a certain percentage of dividends declared, the balance being assessed against him as a withdrawal fee.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 454 (1892).

An agreement, in a certificate of stock, that the member shall be paid its full value at the end of five years, is of no effect as against a provision in the mortgage executed by the member, requiring him to pay dues, etc., until the full value of his stock is paid. He is not entitled to a cancellation of the mortgage until his stock is so paid.

Haynes v. Association, 2 N. P. 181; 3 L. D. 228 (C. P. 1895).

Where a shareholder made application for withdrawal, and, although other applications had been previously filed, and the association had no funds with which to pay them, the association issued its warrant for the full amount of the claim, and thereupon executed its note for the amount of the warrant, and cancelled the warrant, the transaction was held not to be ultra vires and the association was held liable on the note.

Pugh v. Loan Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 253; 14 L. D. 50 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1901); aff'd, no rep., 68 O. S. 730.

Amendment of statute and by-laws as to premiums and withdrawals, effect: See Windhorst v. Association, 7 W. L. B. 29 (1882).

An agreement by an association that retiring members may withdraw the amounts paid by them with interest in excess of eight percent was held not usurious.

Jungkuntz v. Association, 6 W. L. B. 428 (1881).

The obligation to pay dues ceases upon notice of withdrawal, given by a member in accordance with its constitution and by-laws.

Rehn v. Savings Co., 5 N. P. 314; 7 L. D. 398; s. c., 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594.

Except such dues as are necessary to pay losses of the association.

Vincent v. Loan Co., 5 N. P. 273; 7 L. D. 353 (1898).

Members, whether borrowers or non-borrowers, who withdraw, in good faith and cease to be members, are not liable for losses.

Eversman v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174, 189 (1895).

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250, 261 (1890).

Compromise. An association has power to compromise with a member and release him from further obligation to the corporation, whether the indebtedness arose from a loan or on a subscription for stock. And where the parties to the compromise have acted in good faith, the transaction will not be rescinded because the released member was paid a greater sum of money than he would have received upon a pro rata distribution of the assets.

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250 (1890).

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

Main Street, etc., Co. v. Richter, 16 C. C. 191; 9 C. D. 74 (1898).

A compromise which is unfair and inequitable is not binding and conclusive in an action to adjust liabilities and pay debts.

Main Street, etc., Co. v. Richter, 16 C. C. 191; 9 C. D. 74 (1898).

A compromise in violation of the constitution is invalid and does not release members, where there will be a deficiency as to remaining members.

McKeown v. Association, 5 W. L. B. 52 (1880).

Section 9652. (Withdrawal of deposits.) To permit withdrawal of deposits upon such terms and conditions as the association provides except by check or draft. But no such association shall be permitted to carry for any member or depositor any demand, commercial or checking account. Nothing in this chapter shall prevent members or depositors from withdrawing funds by non-negotiable orders. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 9; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

A building and loan association is not a bank.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 901.

An association may permit depositors to withdrawn funds by orders. Such orders should be non-negotiable and not made payable to order or to bearer. Orders may, however, be assigned. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1775.

Under a former statute which permitted associations to loan only to depositors, it was held that the loan was valid although a small de-deposit only was made on the day of the loan and withdrawn on the next day.

Lockwood v. Robbins, 1 Cleve. L. R. 101 (1878):

See Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 665 (1885).

Where a member, acting at the solicitation and in common with other members, cancelled a credit which he had in the association, with a direction that its amount be used to make good a shortage caused by the default of an officer, the member can not subsequently sue to set aside the cancellation of his credit, on the ground that the agreement constituted the compounding of a felony.

Richter v. Loan Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 360; 17 C. D. 793 (1905).

Section 9653. (Cancellation.) To cancel shares and parts of shares of stock upon which the credits have been withdrawn, or upon which loans have been repaid, and re-issue them as new stock. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 10; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

The power to make loans on stock in the association, and to cancel such stock, applies only to stock owned by the borrower in his own right, and does not authorize a loan to a trustee, for his personal use, on stock in the association belonging to the trust estate.

Mook v. Akron S. & L. Co., 87 O. S. 273 (1913).

Section 9654. (Rules as to minors.) To issue stock to minors and receive deposits thereon and permit both stock and deposits to be withdrawn, transferred, pledged and voted by such minors as other stock and stock deposits; to receive deposits of money by or for minors and to pay them to such minors, or upon their order. The receipt or paid order of such minor, therefor, shall be a valid acquittance of the rights of all concerned. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 11; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 9655. (Property, leasing, holding of.) To lease, acquire, hold, encumber, convey and rent such real estate and personal property as is necessary for the transaction of its business, or necessary to enforce or protect its securities. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 529, § 12; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

A building association has no power to purchase land on credit to be allotted among its members, and its notes given in part payment are void in the hands of holders with notice.

Vos v. Association, 9 W. L. B. 194 (1883).

Real estate of a building and loan association is taxable, whether purchased with profits or not.

Gruner v. Defiance, etc., Ass'n, 85 O. S. 484 (Supreme Court journal entry).

Section 9656. (Borrowing money.) To borrow money, not exceeding twenty per cent of the assets, and issue its evidence of indebtedness or other security therefor. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 13; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Under earlier statutes an association had no power to borrow money for the purpose of lending it.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

Where an association, being without funds to pay a withdrawing member, issued its warrant for the amount due, and thereupon executed and delivered its note to the member, cancelling the warrant, the transaction was held tantamount to borrowing money from the stockholder.

Pugh v. Loan Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 253; 14 L. D. 50 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1901); aff'd, no rev., 68 O. S. 730.

Section 9657. (Security for loan.) To make loans to members and other[s] on such terms and conditions as may be provided by the association and upon the following securities only:

First. Obligations secured by mortgage or deed of trust on real estate, which mortgages or deeds of trust may be made direct to the association or they may be made to third persons or corporations and pledged by them to the association as collateral. Such obligations shall be the first liens on real estate, but additional loans may be made where the association holds all prior mortgage liens. Nothing herein, however, shall prevent an association organized under this act from accepting additional security other than that herein provided where the primary and principal security is a first mortgage or deed of trust on real estate.

Second. Obligations secured by pledge of stock or of deposits in such association, but such loans shall not exceed either the paid-up value or the withdrawal value of such stock or deposits.

Third. Obligations secured by pledge of any of the securities provided for in section 9660 of the General Code not to exceed, however, ten per cent of the assets of the association.

Fourth. Building and loan companies that have been making loans primarily on other securities than those named in the above sections continuously since January 1, 1913, are authorized to continue the loaning on such securities. (110 v. 68; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 14; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

By making loans a building and loan association does not engage in the business of banking.

Dearborn v. Bank, 42 O. S. 617 (1885).

See State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92, 96, 97 (1876).

An association is not required to ascertain the use to which the borrower intends to apply the money.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

A building and loan association is not authorized to loan its funds upon the promissory note of the borrower, without other security.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, p. 115.

Where an association agrees to loan money for the purpose of building, the money to be advanced as the work progresses and as the borrower directs, the money can be paid only to parties designated by the borrower, and not to parties designated by the contractor.

Kesting v. Donahue, 13 C. C. 653; 6 C. D. 262 (1895).

Where the constitution and by-laws of an association provide that suit may be brought on a loan where the borrowing member is three months in arrears in the payment of his dues, an action brought before such three months have elapsed is prematurely brought.

Home, etc., Co. v. Tenney, 7 N. P. 130; 8 L. D. 391 (C. P. 1898).

The representative of an association, authorized to solicit subscriptions to its capital stock, collect dues and fines, solicit loans and cause property to be appraised upon which loans are to be made, is an agent of the association, although his compensation is derived from commissions paid by the borrowers.

McMullen v. Griggs, 3 C. C. n. s. 504; 13 C. D. 417 (1902).

The power to make loans on stock in the association, and to cancel such stock, applies only to stock owned by the borrower in his own right, and does not authorize a loan to a trustee, for his personal use, on stock in the association belonging to the trust estate.

Mook v. Akron S. & L. Co., 87 O. S. 273 (1913).

Chattel loans. This section, prior to the amendment of 110 v. 68, authorized a building and loan association to engage in the business of making loans on chattels. But the license required by G. C. § 6346-1 et seq. was required. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1223; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, pp. 126, 132.

Former statutes.

Under earlier statutes an association had no power to loan to persons who were not members and depositors.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258, 262 (1879).

State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92 (1876).

Under such former statutes loans were made to members bidding the highest premium therefor.

Cramer v. Trust Co., 72 O. S. 395, 406 (1905).

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

Under these statutes it was held that a person who applied to a building and loan association for a loan of money, and deposited therewith a sum of money, however small, for the purpose of making himself eligible as a borrower, and thereby received a loan, was estopped, when sued for the money by the association, from denying that he was in fact a depositor.

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

That a loan to a depositor was not invalid, though he made a deposit the day the loan was made, and drew it out the day after.

Lockwood v. Robbins, 1 Cleve. L. Rep. 101 (1878).

And that an association had no power to refuse to loan its funds to members.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

State v. Association, 29 O. S. 92 (1876).

Mortgage. As security for dues, fines, premiums, etc., see note to § 9650.

A stipulation for attorney fees in a building and loan association mortgage is invalid.

East End Bldg. Ass'n v. McCaffery, 12 C. D. 685; 39 W. L. B. 75 (1898).

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, pp. 130-132.

Even if valid, a provision for attorney fees could not be enforced where the mortgagor is not in default.

Kesting v. Donahue, 13 C. C. 653; 6 C. D. 262 (1895).

A representation by a prospective borrower, that he is the sole owner of the property upon which he desires the loan, whereas in fact he is the legal owner, with an equitable interest outstanding upon which the holder asserts no claim, is not such a false representation as to title as to relieve the association, after the mortgage is executed, from advancing the full amount stipulated in the mortgage contract.

McMullen v. Griggs, 3 C. C. n. s. 504; 13 C. D. 417 (1902).

An association may, to protect its mortgage security, pay taxes or assessments which appear on the tax duplicate to have been duly and legally assessed, where it has no knowledge of defects or illegality in the assessment. Payments so made are a first lien and can not be defeated, as between mortgagor and mortgagee, by showing illegality or irregularity in the assessment.

Bates v. Association, 42 O. S. 655 (1885).

The by-laws of an association required insurance on all mortgaged property, the policies to be deposited with the association, and that on failure of the borrower to procure or to renew insurance, the same should be done by the association at his expense. A borrower, on obtaining a loan, procured insurance and deposited the policy, but had no notice of its expiration and the association did not procure a renewal. Upon a loss by fire, it was held that the by-laws made the association the agent of the borrower, charged with the duty of holding the policy and renewing it, and having failed to renew the policy, it became liable to the borrower for the loss.

Geswine v. Loan Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 279; 13 C. D. 477 (1902).

Defenses. That more shares were issued to the borrower than are authorized by statute, see note to § 9649.

A borrower can not defend on the ground of defects in the incorporation of the association.

Lucas v. Association, 22 O. S. 339 (1871).

An association, acting in good faith and reasonably, may compromise with a member and release him from further obligation, whether the indebtedness be for a loan or on a subscription.

State v. Association, 35 O. S. 258 (1879).

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250 (1890).

Section 9658. (Cancellation of loan.) To cancel such loans and release the securities on such terms as the board of directors may provide. (110 v. 69; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 15; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

The mortgage of a borrowing member may provide for and secure the payment of dues, fines, premiums and other assessments. The member is not entitled to cancellation of such a mortgage where any valid obligations of that character are unpaid.

Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

Where mortgage provisions required the member to pay dues, premiums and interest until the full value of each share was paid to the association, the member is not entitled to a cancellation of the mortgage until his shares are full paid, although, in the certificate of stock, the association promised to pay him the full value of the shares in a shorter time.

Haynes v. Association, 2 N. P. 181; 3 L. D. 228 (1895).

Where an association provided in its by-laws that in case a shareholder who has received a loan shall die, "his or her heirs or legal representatives may return the same to the association," and receive the value of the stock as fixed by the by-laws, or they may continue the loan, held, that where they elected to return the loan, the amount to be returned was the money actually received plus the premium bid for precedence.

Home, etc., Co. v. Tenney, 7 N. P. 130; 8 L. D. 391 (1898).

Section 9659. (Reserve and undivided profit fund.) To accumulate from the earnings a "reserve fund" for the payment of contingent losses, and an "undivided profit fund", both of which may be loaned and invested as other funds of the association. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 16; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

An association is not required to list its surplus and profits for taxation, but real estate is subject to real estate taxes whether purchased with profits or not.

Gruner v. Defiance, etc., Ass'n, 85 O. S. 484 (Supreme Court journal Entry).

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1905-1906, p. 55.

Section 9660. (Idle funds, how invested.) To invest any of its idle funds, or any part thereof, in bonds or interest bearing obligations of the United States, or of the District of Columbia, or of the state of Ohio, or of any county, township, school district, or other political division in the state of Ohio, or of any incorporated city or village, in the state of Ohio; and in such other securities as now are or hereafter may be accepted by the United States to secure government deposits in national banks. But such investments at no time shall amount in the aggregate to more than twenty per cent of the assets of such corporation. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 16; R. S. Sec. 3836-3a.)

French government bonds are not authorized. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 914.

Idle funds may be invested in such securities as are accepted by the United States government to secure postal savings deposits in national banks. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1720.

Section 9661. (May deposit idle funds.) To deposit any of such funds or part thereof, in any financial institution that is subject to inspection by the United States, or by the state of Ohio; and receive therefor certificates of deposit. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 16; R. S. Sec. 3836-4; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 9662. (Consent of superintendent to sell, etc.) To buy but not to sell except with the written consent previously granted by the superintendent of building and loan associations interest bearing obligations secured by real estate mortgages, which shall in all respects comply with, and be within the rules adopted for making mortgage loans by the corporation making such investments. Such mortgage investments may be held and reported as mortgage loans. (110 v. 69; 106 v. 431; 99 v. 530, § 16.)

A mortgage on a 99 year leasehold, whether or not renewable forever, is not a real estate mortgage under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 451.

Nor do collateral trust notes secured by a trust deposit of real estate mortgage notes constitute real estate mortgages. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 919.

Bonds secured by mortgage or deed of trust on real estate are authorized. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 392.

Section 9663. (Distribution of earnings.) To make such annual or semi-annual distribution of the earnings as is hereinafter provided, and as the constitution and by-laws may prescribe. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 17; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

See § 9673.

Section 9664. (Certificate of increase, decrease, etc., where filed.) To increase or decrease its authorized capital or the face value of its shares, or change the name of the corporation by a majority vote of its board of directors. A certificate of such action shall be made by the president and secretary, and duly filed with the secretary of state, after which in the use of the changed stock and changed name, all rights of all parties shall remain the same as before such change was made. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 530, § 18; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

The directors may increase the capital stock or change the name of an association without notice to, or participation by, the stockholders. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 102.

Section 9665. (Dissolution.) To dissolve the corporation when by a majority vote of the stock entitled to be voted under its constitution and by-laws, which shall be consistent with the provisions of section ninety-six hundred and forty-nine, its continuance is deemed to be no longer desirable, but subject to the contract rights of its borrowers, and the vested rights of its members. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 19; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

See § 693.

Dissolution when examination of association by inspector discloses unsound condition, see § 687.

Dissolution of corporations in general, §§ 11938 to 11978.

When, by general consent of members, an association determines to cease business, and the liquidation is left in the hands of the directors, the directors have the same power to dispose of assets, which they had while it was a going concern.

Roth v. Loan Co., 13 L. D. 154 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1902).

Where, on liquidation, certain of the directors agree to purchase property at its fair market value, provided the amounts due them from the association was credited on the purchase price, at their full face value, a member, who does not object to the price received, can not object that the other members are not likely to receive their claims in full and that the credits allowed to the purchasers are therefore too large. The transaction must be set aside as a whole, or upheld.

Roth v. Loan Co., 13 L. D. 154 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1902).

Where an association is in liquidation, the obligation to pay dues, fines, assessments, etc., ceases except as assessments are made to pay debts or equalize the members between themselves.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Association v. Fitzgerald, 8 N. P. 160; 11 L. D. 133 (1901).

But loans continue to draw interest, during the liquidation, until paid.

See Association v. Jones, 64 O. S. 147 (1901).

Section 9666. (Amendment of articles.) To amend its articles of incorporation and its constitution and to increase or decrease the number of its directors by complying with all the requirements provided in its own constitution for the amendment thereof. The other officers of such corporation shall be such as its constitution and by-laws provide. (110 v. 69; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 20.)

Section 9667. (Constitution and by-laws.) To provide, by constitution adopted by its members, and by-laws adopted by its board of directors, for the proper exercise of the powers herein granted, and the conduct and management of its affairs. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 21; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Members, in their dealings with the association, are charged with knowledge of the provisions of its constitution and by-laws.

See Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Sachs v. Association, 4 N. P. 214; 6 L. D. 484 (Cin. Super. Ct. 1897).

By-laws may be amended although they contain no provision for amendments, and though they are signed by all the members.

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250, 260 (1890).

It is not necessary to prove the adoption of by-laws by a formal vote of the members or directors. The adoption of by-laws is sufficiently proved by showing that they appear upon the records of the corporation, and have been uniformly acted upon and enforced as the by-laws of the association.

Hagerman v. Association, 25 O. S. 186 (1874).

Where the constitution provides that one of its articles shall not be changed or amended, in any manner, an amendment to such article must be unanimously adopted.

McKeown v. Association, 5 W. L. B. 52 (1880).

Amendments to the constitution and by-laws can not affect the rights of borrowers under existing contracts, unless the right to do so is reserved in plain and unmistakable language.

An association may, in its constitution or by-laws, provide for the appointment of an attorney.

Building Co. v. Kuehnert, 7 N. P. 264; 6 L. D. 502 (1896).

A provision in the constitution of an association requiring all directors to be associated in some way with another corporation is ultra vires and void.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 814.

Where the constitution of an association provided that no one could become a member without acquiring stock, it was said that a by-law permitting any person desiring a straight loan to become a member by depositing $10 was invalid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 740.

Section 9668. (Other powers.) To have all such other powers as are necessary and proper to enable such corporation to carry out the purpose of its organization. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 22; R. S. Sec. 3836-3; March 31, 1906, 98 v. 173; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Section 9669. (Depository of funds.) The board of directors shall designate a bank or banks, in which it shall cause the funds of such corporation to be deposited in its name. Such funds when so deposited, can be withdrawn only in such manner and for such purpose as is provided in the constitution and by-laws and authorized by law. Provided, however, the directors may designate a sum to be kept in the offices of such association for the transaction of current business. (110 v. 69; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 23; R. S. Sec. 3836-4; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Under a former statute (R. S. § 3836-4) the secretary had no authority to withdraw funds from the depository.

A cashier of a bank, who is also treasurer of a building association, can not bind the bank by entering on the books of the bank a fictitious credit to the building association, on the faith of which a dividend is paid.

Webb v. Stasel, 4 N. P. n. s. 587; 17 L. D. 317 (1906); s. c., 80 O. S. 122.

Former statute construed.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 148.

Section 9670. (Bank books; officers, employees and bonds. Who eligible as bondsmen.) All bank books showing such deposits shall be open to the inspection of any director at any time. All officers and employees of building and loan associations having control or access to moneys or securities of such association in the regular discharge of their duties before entering upon their duties, shall give bond with two or more responsible freeholders or a surety company qualified to transact business in the state of Ohio, as surety thereon; such bond shall guarantee the faithful performance of duty on the part of said officers and employees, and the safe keeping and proper application of all moneys or property coming into their hands. All officers of such corporation on being re-elected to office shall renew their bonds. The amount and form of said bond and sufficiency of the surety thereon shall be approved by the board of directors, which form shall be substantially that prescribed by the superintendent of building and loan associations. If the sureties on such bonds are individuals, then each individual signing such bond shall make oath that he is the owner in fee simple of unincumbered real estate, the actual value of which is not less than double the amount of such bond. Directors of building and loan associations to which bond is given shall not be eligible as bondsmen on such bonds but shall be individually liable for any loss to members, caused by their neglect to comply with the provisions of this section or any other provisions of law prescribing their duties, or the duties imposed upon them by the constitution and by-laws of such association, and the superintendent of building and loan associations may at any time require additional bond or security when, in his opinion, any such bond then in force is insufficient. (110 v. 69; May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 23; R. S. Sec. 3836-4; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

A surety on the bond of the secretary of an association is not liable for acts beyond the scope of his authority. Trustees v. Deposit Co., 76 O. S. 253 (1907); s. c., 7 C. C. n. s. 66; 17 C. D. 662.

In an action by a withdrawing shareholder for the amount of his paid-up installments, with dividends, the association may plead, by way of set-off and affirmative relief, its claim against him for moneys wrongfully paid out by him while acting as treasurer. Gelhaus v. Association, 4 N. P. 255; 6 L. D. 443 (1897).

An attorney of an association is not an officer, and his bond is not an official bond.

Building Co. v. Kuehnert, 7 N. P. 264; 6 L. D. 502 (1896).

But see § 9666.

It is competent for an association to appoint an attorney and to provide for a bond.

Building Co. v. Kuehnert, 7 N. P. 264; 6 L. D. 502 (1896).

And sureties on the bond of the attorney for an association are liable for a loss suffered through his negligence in loaning money upon property, the title to which was defective. Notice of the loss to the attorney or his sureties is not necessary, and estoppel or laches can not be a defense to the sureties where the attorney had knowledge of his mistake.

Dienst v. Building Co., 10 C. C. n. s. 46; 20 C. D. 537 (1907).

Where an officer embezzles funds of the association there is a civil as well as a criminal liability therefor.

Richter v. Loan Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 360; 17 C. D. 793 (1905).

Section 9671. (Reserve fund.) The amount to be set aside to the reserve fund, for the payment of contingent losses shall be determined by the board of directors, but in all permanent or perpetual associations, at least five per cent of the net earnings shall be set aside each year to such fund until it reaches at least five per cent of the total assets. All losses shall be paid out of such fund until it is exhausted. When the amount in such fund falls below five per cent of the assets as aforesaid, it shall be replenished by annual appropriations of at least five per cent of the net earnings as hereinbefore provided until it again reaches such amount.

(May 11, 1908, 99 v. 531, § 24; R. S. Sec. 3836-5; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Both borrowing and non-borrowing members have an interest in the reserve fund.

Seibel v. Building Association, 43 O. S. 371, 375 (1885).

The word "losses" means the difference between the amount invested and the amount received back by the company when the investment is terminated. When a mortgage is foreclosed the taxes which are a lien and the court costs are "losses". But attorneys fees in the foreclosure suit and the cost of carrying the property when it is bid in by the association are "expenses" and can not be charged to the reserve fund. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 742.

Section 9672. (Expenses, how paid.) All expenses of such association shall be paid out of the earnings only, and so much of the earnings as may be necessary must be set aside each year for such purpose. But charges incident to a loan, if paid by the borrower, shall not be deemed a part of the current expenses. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 532, § 25; R. S. Sec. 3836-6; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

An association can not make an assessment upon its stock for the specific purpose of paying expenses.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 454 (1892).

Attorney fees in foreclosure cases are "expenses" and can not be paid out of the reserve fund, but must be paid out of earnings. Where property is bid in by the association, the repairs, taxes and insurance paid while the property is carried by the association are "expenses". Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 742.

Section 9673. (Dividends.) After payment of expenses and interest, a portion of the earnings to be determined by the board of directors, annually or semi-annually, shall also be placed in the reserve fund for the payment of contingent losses, as hereinbefore provided, and a further portion of such earnings to be determined by the board of directors, shall be transferred as a dividend annually or semi-annually, in such proportion to the credit of all members as the corporation by its constitution and by-laws provides, to be paid to them at such time and in such manner in conformity with this chapter as the corporation by its constitution and by-laws provides. Any residue of such earnings may be held as undivided profits to be used as other earnings, except that such undivided profit fund at no time shall exceed three per cent of the total assets of the association. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 532, § 25; R. S. Sec. 3836-6; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

The value of a share may not be a proper basis for distribution of earnings due such share; but the amount of dues paid thereon and other credits due to it make such a basis.

Seibel v. Association, 43 O. S. 371 (1885).

Both borrowing and non-borrowing members are entitled to pro rata dividends.

Seibel v. Association, 43 O. S. 371 (1885).

Where a borrowing member was fully advised as to how dividends are declared, and received them several years on that basis, and allowed other members to be dealt with in the same way, and it is impossible to recast accounts, he will be estopped to deny the legality of the division.

Association v. Voegler, 7 N. P. 605; 5 L. D. 581 (1895).

A borrowing member is bound by an amendment to the constitution of the association, in which the right to amend was reserved, changing the method of crediting dividends.

Metz v. Building Co., 6 O. L. R. 418; 19 L. D. 161 (1908).

A member who acquiesced for seven years in interest and dividend settlements, made under an amendment to the constitution, and then made no claim until six years after final settlement of his loan, is estopped from claiming further earnings.

Metz v. Building Co., 6 O. L. R. 418; 19 L. D. 161 (1908).

Where an association sells land by land contract for a price in excess of its cost, the excess can not be deemed "earnings" or "profits" until the entire amount of the cost to the association has been repaid to it.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 812.

Section 9674. (Losses.) All losses shall be assessed in the same proportion and manner on all members after the amounts in the reserve fund and the undivided profit fund have been applied to the payment thereof. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 532, § 25; R. S. Sec. 3836-6; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

Members, whether borrowers or non-borrowers, must assist in bearing its losses. Where the mortgage of a borrowing member secured the payment of "assessments," such member was held not entitled to a cancellation of his mortgage, as against the receiver of the association, until his share of an assessment made by the receiver, to pay losses, was paid.

Eversman v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

See Haynes v. Association, 2 N. P. 181; 3 L. D. 228 (1895).

Demland v. Loan Co., 20 C. C. 223; 11 C. D. 249 (1899).

The receiver of an insolvent association may make a pro rata assessment, which is binding on members, although they, as individuals, are not parties to the suit in which the receiver was appointed.

Eversman v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174 (1895).

Such assessment may be made by the court appointing the receiver.

Swing v. Rose, 75 O. S. 355 (1906).

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

The proper basis of assessment upon the stock of an insolvent association to pay its debts and equalize losses, both in the case of borrowing and non-borrowing members, was held to be the dues and earnings which should stand to the credit of their stock.

Loan Co. v. Richter, 16 C. C. 191; 9 C. D. 74 (1898).

See in re Building Ass'n, 7 N. P. 518; 5 L. D. 518 (1897).

§ 9673.

A provision, in the constitution of an association, limiting the liability of members to the amount standing to their credit on the books of the association, is invalid.

Loan Co. v. Richter, 16 C. C. 191; 9 C. D. 74 (1898).

Members, whether borrowers or non-borrowers, who withdraw, in good faith, and cease to be members, can not again be brought into the association for the settlement of losses.

Eversmann v. Schmitt, 53 O. S. 174, 189 (1895).

Wangerien v. Aspell, 47 O. S. 250, 261 (1890).

But a compromise, not made in good faith, which works gross injustice or fraud upon other members, does not relieve the member from liability for losses.

Loan Co. v. Richter, 16 C. C. 191; 9 C. D. 74 (1898).

Notice of withdrawal does not relieve a member from liability for losses suffered before his withdrawal is completed.

Harrison Bldg. Ass'n. v. Howell, 39 W. L. B. 386; 5 N. P. 273; 7 L. D. 353 (1898).

Section 9675. (Listing of shares for taxation.) The shares and loans advanced to its members, shall be exempt from taxation, except that shares of stock upon which no loans have been made or money advanced by the company, shall be considered and held as credits. The members individually shall list for taxation the number of shares held by them, and the true value thereof in money, on the day preceding the second Monday in April each year, and they shall be assessed at such valuation for taxation and taxes as other property. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 532, § 26; R. S. Sec. 3836-7; May 1, 1891, 88 v. 469.)

An association is not required to list its surplus and profits for taxation, but real estate is subject to real estate taxes whether purchased from profits or not.

Gruner v. Defiance, etc., Ass'n, 85 O. S. 484 (Supreme Court Journal Entry).

An association is not required to return any personal property to the county auditor under § 5404. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1375.

"Stock deposits" as "credits". The mere privilege of withdrawal of stock deposits does not make them taxable as "credits". But if the association follows a practice of allowing interest on stock deposits, without regard to dividends declared or losses sustained, then the stock deposits are taxable as moneys. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 415; 19 O. L. R. 294.

PART XXI.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Sections 9676 to 9849 were repealed (108 (Pt. 1) v. 80) at the time of the enactment of the Banking Code of 1919, which is contained in §§ 710-1 to 710-189 inclusive.

TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANIES.

Section 9850. (Powers of such companies.) A title guaranty and trust company may prepare and furnish abstracts and certificates of title to real estate, bonds, mortgages and other securities, and guarantee such titles, the validity and due execution of such securities, and the performance of contracts incident thereto, make loans for itself or as agent or trustee for others, and guarantee the collection of interest and principal of such loans; take charge of and sell, mortgage, rent or otherwise dispose of real estate for others, and perform all the duties of an agent relative to property deeded or otherwise entrusted to it. (R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

Banking and trust powers may be acquired. § 710-168 et seq.

A title guaranty company, organized under this section, is not under control of the state insurance department. It may issue a certificate or abstract of title, and guarantee the correctness thereof, but is not authorized to do merely a title insurance business. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, pp. 1157, 1681.

Abstract companies have been permitted to acquire the powers of title guaranty and trust companies. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, pp. 1695, 868; 12 O. L. R. 497.

A state bank may not amend its articles so as to engage in the title guaranty and trust business. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 1137.

A title guaranty and trust company may be a county depository under G. C. § 2715 et seq. A title company is not a bank, but may receive deposits for the sole purpose of loaning the same. A certificate or acknowledgment of the receipt of the money may be given, although the company can not issue ordinary certificates of deposit. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1743; 12 O. L. R. 553.

See articles by Chas. C. White, 19 O. L. R. 580 on "Some thoughts on title insurance." and by H. A. Hauxhurst, 18 O. L. R. 459, on "Certificates of Title and Title Insurance."

An abstract company, employed by the vendor of real estate, is not liable to the vendee for negligence in the making or certifying of an abstract of title, in reliance on which the vendee accepted a defective title and paid the purchase money. The abstract company is liable, as a general rule, only to the person who employed it.

Thomas v. Trust Co., 81 O. S. 432 (1910).

Section 9851. (Capital required; deposit.) No such company shall do business until its capital stock amounts to at least one hundred thousand dollars fully paid up, and until it has deposited with the treasurer of state fifty thousand dollars in securities permitted by sections ninety-five hundred and eighteen and ninety-five hundred and nineteen. Except such deposit, the capital shall be invested as the board of directors of such company prescribes. (R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

Section 9852. (How deposits shall be held.) The treasurer of state shall hold such fund or securities deposited with him as security for the faithful performance of all guarantees entered into and trusts accepted by such company, but so long as it continues solvent he shall permit it to collect the interest of, or dividends on, its securities so deposited, and to withdraw them or any part thereof, on depositing with him cash or other securities of the kind heretofore named so as to maintain the value of such deposit at fifty thousand dollars. (108 (Pt. 2) v. 1192; R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

Section 9853. (Operation limited to one county; exception.) Any company so organized shall be limited in its operation to only one county in this state, which shall be designated in its application for a charter, except, that if it desires to issue its policies of title insurance in more than one county it may issue them in such other county or counties upon depositing with the treasurer of state an additional sum of fifty thousand dollars in securities as above provided, for each additional county in which it proposes to operate. (R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

This section authorizes the issue of title policies in other counties, if the required deposit is made. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 520.

Section 9854. (Treasurer to surrender surplus deposits.)

If such a company has made deposits with the treasurer of state as herein required, it may request such treasurer to return to it securities in excess of the amount so required, and he shall surrender such excess to the company, taking proper receipts therefor. (R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

Section 9855. (Laws by which such companies governed.)

All companies doing the business of guaranteeing titles to real property shall comply with and be governed by the foregoing provisions relating thereto. But such companies heretofore organized and doing business thereunder, may continue business without prejudice to any rights thereby acquired or obligations incurred. (R. S. Sec. 3821ggg; March 29, 1906, 98 v. 153; April 22, 1902, 95 v. 222.)

COLLATERAL LOAN COMPANIES.

Section 9857. (Powers and limitations.) Corporations may be organized for the purpose of making loans on pledges of goods and chattels and upon mortgage thereof; but they shall not receive money on deposit, engage in banking, nor make loans upon security other than herein is provided. The names of such corporations shall begin with the word "The" and end with the words "Collateral Loan Company." (R. S. Sec. 3821q-1; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 134, § 1.)

A collateral loan company can not amend its articles of incorporation under § 8719. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1746.

Section 9858. (Capital stock.) The capital stock of such company shall not exceed five hundred thousand dollars in shares of fifty dollars each. When twenty thousand dollars have been duly subscribed and one-fourth of it actually paid in, the subscribers thereto may organize and transact business. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-2; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 134, § 2.)

A collateral loan company can not be incorporated with a capital stock of only $10,000.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1905-1906, p. 49.

A collateral loan company is not authorized to reduce its capital stock or the par value of its shares. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 689.

Section 9859. (How loans made.) When such company has disposable funds, it shall loan on all goods and chattels offered, embraced within its rules and regulations, in the order offered; with the exception that it always shall discriminate in favor of small loans to the indigent. It may loan to four-fifths of the appraised value of gold and silver plate and ware, and to two-thirds of such value on other goods and chattels. The rate of interest charged shall not exceed eight per cent per annum, and other charges, including insurance, investigation of titles, and the expense of the custody and care of property offered as security must not exceed ten per cent of the amount loaned. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-3; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 134, § 3.)

If a loan company has not complied with the so-called "loan shark" law (G. C. § 6346-1 et seq.) a loan in excess of the legal rate is void. Collateral Loan Co. v. Bell, 17 N. P. n. s. 385 (1915).

Prior to the enactment of the "loan shark" law it was held that, in an action to recover interest exceeding the legal rate, a loan company must prove its corporate capacity, viz.: that it is a corporation having the right to such interest. Loan Co. v. Philen, 18 C. C. n. s. 419 (1910).

Section 9860. (Insurance.) Such company shall insure all pledged property in its possession against loss or damage by fire, in an amount equal to the appraised value thereof, to be ascertained when the loan is made. In case of loss or damage by fire it shall be liable to the pledgers of such property for the amount thereof after paying the principal, interest, loan charges and expenses. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-3; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 134, § 3.)

Section 9861. (Memorandum of loans.) Such company shall give to each pledger a card inscribed with its name, the article or articles pledged, name of the pledger, the amount loaned, the rate of interest, amount of loan charges and expenses, the date when made and date when payable. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-5; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 135, § 5.)

Section 9862. (Redemption of pledges.) A person who has deposited property with such company as a pledge to secure a loan, at any time before the maturity of such loan may redeem it, on payment of the principal sum borrowed with interest and other charges which have accrued at the date of payment. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-4; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 135, § 4.)

Section 9863. (Sale of pledges.) If the property pledged is not redeemed upon the maturity of the loan it shall be sold at public auction. Notice specifying the time and place of such sale shall be mailed to the last known address of the pledger at least one week previous to the time of such sale. The net surplus from a sale, after paying loan charges and expenses, shall be held three years for the owner; when, if not demanded, it shall be forfeited to the company. (R. S. Sec. 3821q-5; April 21, 1904, 97 v. 135, § 5.)

UNKNOWN DEPOSITORS.

Section 9864. (Annual report to probate judge.) Every incorporated bank or banking association located in this state, whether now or hereafter incorporated or organized under the laws of this state, or of the United States, and every company, association, or person, who in this state keeps an office or other place of business, and engages in the business of lending money, receiving money on deposit, buying and selling bullion, or bills of exchange, notes, bonds, stocks, or other evidence of indebtedness, with a view to profit, annually, between the first and second Mondays of January, shall make out and return to the probate judge of the county in which such bank, office, or other place of business is located, under oath of the owner, or principal officer or manager thereof, a true and complete statement, setting forth, in alphabetical order, the names of all unknown depositors with such bank, company, association or person, together with the amount due to every such unknown depositor, including accrued interest and dividends. (March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 1; R. S. Sec. 3821-89.)

Section 9865. (Who are to be deemed "unknown depositors.") Every corporation, company, association, or person, in whose name a deposit of any money, bullion, bill of exchange, note, stock, bond or other evidence of indebtedness has been made with any bank, company, association, or person, designated in the preceding section, shall be deemed an unknown depositor within the meaning thereof, when the date of the last bona fide item of debt or credit to the account of such depositor on the books of said bank is more than seven years prior to the time fixed by such section for the filing of such statement with the probate court of the proper county. In fixing the date of the last item of credit to the account of a depositor, reference shall not be had to any item of credit for interest or dividends accrued on such deposit, unless it be entered upon a pass book presented by and returned to the depositor, or unless the depositor be a minor. (R. S. Sec. 3821-90; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 2.)

Section 9866. (Record to be kept by probate judge.) The probate judge of each county, on or before the third Monday of January, annually, shall record in a book kept for that purpose, entitled, "record of unclaimed deposits in banks, _____ county, Ohio," and which at all times shall be open to public inspection, all statements returned to him for the preceding year under the above provisions. Such judge shall designate in such book at the head of each statement recorded therein, the name of the bank, company, association or person by whom such statement was returned. The original statement returned to him shall be kept on file and preserved in his office. (R. S. Sec. 3821-91; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 3.)

Section 9867. (Fees for making such record.) There shall be allowed and paid to the probate judge of each county, the sum of eight cents per hundred words, for all statements recorded by him, as above provided. The cost of recording the names and amounts due to depositors, by whom such deposits were made, and who are "unknown," shall be paid to such judge by the bank, company, association, or person, as herein provided, at the time such annual statement is returned, and by such bank, company, association, or person shall be deducted from the amount due such unknown depositor. (R. S. Sec. 3821-92; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 4.)

Section 9868. (Unknown deposits to be paid into county treasury.) When a corporation, company, association, or person, in whose name a deposit is made with a bank, company, association, or person designated herein, becomes unknown within the definition and meaning hereof, the amount due to such depositor shall be paid by such bank, company, association or person, to the treasurer of the county, in which such bank, company or association is located, and by such treasurer be credited to the general fund of such county. But it shall not be paid until after the expiration of eight years from the date of the first statement, in which the name and amount due such unknown depositor was returned to the probate judge. The bank, corporation, association or person so making such payment shall thereby be released from any claim, demand, or liability to pay it or any part thereof to the depositor, his administrators, executors or assigns. (R. S. Sec. 3821-93; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 5.)

Section 9869. (How such deposits reclaimed.) If at any time thereafter proof is made to the satisfaction of the probate court, or the county commissioners, of the right of any person or persons, by inheritance or otherwise, to such funds or any part thereof, or so paid to the treasurer, such court or commissioners shall so certify to the county auditor, who thereupon shall draw a warrant on the treasurer of the county in favor of such claimant or claimants, or the legal representative or duly authorized agent thereof, for the sum so paid into the treasury. If any such person or persons become aggrieved by the decision, finding or action of the probate court or the county commissioners, such person or persons may appeal to the court of common pleas, in the manner provided by law for appealing from the decisions of county commissioners, or from those of the probate judge. (R. S. Sec. 3821-94; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 6.)

Section 9870. (Penalty for refusal or neglect to comply.) Every bank, company, association, or person designated herein, who neglects or refuses to comply with these provisions, shall forfeit and pay five hundred dollars, for every such offense. (R. S. Sec. 3821-95; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 7.)

Section 9871. (Recovery and disposition of penalties.) The penalty so imposed shall be recovered by action in the name of the state, before any court of competent jurisdiction; and when collected, shall be paid to the treasurer of the county in which the judgment therefor is recovered. One-half thereof shall be by such treasurer credited to the general fund of such county, and one-half thereof be by him held for the use of the state. (R. S. Sec. 3821-96; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 8.)

Section 9872. (Who may sue; duty of prosecuting attorney.) The action provided by the preceding section may be instituted and prosecuted to judgment by any citizen of the state. The prosecuting attorney of such county hereby is required to institute and prosecute such action against every bank, company, association or person so designated, and located in such county, who fails to comply with the foregoing provisions. (R. S. Sec. 3821-97; March 6, 1888, 85 v. 65, § 9.)

Section 9873. (Powers.) Corporations, not for profit, may be organized under the general corporation laws of this state, and as hereinafter provided for the purpose of discovering and preventing fires and of saving property and life from conflagration, with power to provide a patrol of men and a competent person to act as superintendent to discover and prevent fires, with suitable apparatus and equipment to save and preserve property and life at and after fires. To enable them so to act with promptness and efficiency, the superintendent and patrol may enter a building at any time for the purpose of inspection and any building on fire or which is exposed to or in danger of taking fire from other burning buildings, for the purpose of protecting and saving such building and the property therein, or of removing the property or a part thereof during the fire or from the ruins after the fire. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24h; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 324, § 1.)

Section 9874. (Subordinate to fire department.) Nothing in this chapter shall in any degree lessen, impair or interfere with the powers, privileges, duties or authority of a regular or volunteer fire department organized and maintained by public authority within the state. Such superintendent and the members of the patrol, while on duty at a fire, shall be subordinate to and under the control of the public authority having charge of the extinguishment and prevention of fires. No act of the superintendent or the patrol of men shall justify an owner of a building or property in abandoning it. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24h; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 324, § 1.)

Section 9875. (Regulations.) The articles of incorporation of such a corporation shall set forth the municipality or other subdivision of the state within which it is to prosecute its business, and thereafter it shall be confined to such municipality or other subdivision. It may elect officers and make needful by-laws not contrary to the provisions of the constitution or laws of this state or of the United States. Except as in this chapter provided, such company shall be subject to the general corporation laws of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24i; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 324, § 2.)

Section 9876. (Biennial meetings; assessments.) Before such corporation may begin business, and in the month of March of every second year thereafter, a meeting thereof shall be held, of which ten days' previous notice shall be given by inserting it in at least two newspapers published or of general circulation in the municipality or other subdivision in which the corporation is organized and established, if there be such newspapers, and if not, by posting notices thereof, at which meeting each insurance company, corporation, association, underwriter, person or persons doing a fire insurance business in such municipality or other subdivision, whether members of such corporation or not, may be represented and have one vote. A majority of the whole number so represented may decide upon the question of sustaining the fire patrol organized by the corporation, and shall fix the maximum amount of expenses which may be incurred therefor during the fiscal years next to ensue and until the next meeting, which in no case shall exceed two per cent of the aggregate premiums returned as received. Such amount, or so much thereof as is necessary, may be assessed upon all insurance companies, corporations, underwriters, agents, person or persons who assume risks and accept premiums for fire insurance in such municipality or other subdivision, whether members of the corporation or not, in proportion to the several amounts of premiums returned as received by each. Such assessments shall be collectible by and in the name of the corporation in any court in this state having jurisdiction thereof in such manner and at such time or times as it determines. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24j; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 325, § 3.)

Section 9877. (Quarterly statement to be filed by insurance companies.) To insure the collection of such assessments, provide for the payment of persons employed by the corporation, maintain suitable rooms therefor and for the acquisitions of such real and personal property as is necessary, all which is to be determined at the regular meetings, the corporation may require a statement to be furnished quarterly by all insurance companies, corporations, associations, underwriters, agents, or persons of the aggregate amount of premiums received by each for insuring property in the municipality or subdivision where the corporation is organized and established, for and during the three months next preceding the thirty-first day of March, the thirtieth day of June, the thirtieth day of September and the thirty-first day of December of each year. Such statement shall be sworn to by the president and secretary of the corporation or association, or by the agent or person so acting or effecting such insurance in the municipality or subdivision, and shall be given to the secretary of the corporation created under the provisions of this chapter, within ten days after the first days of April, July, October and January of each year. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24k; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 325, § 4.)

Section 9878. (Written demand for statement.) The treasurer or other appointed officer of such a corporation, within the ten days aforesaid, by written or printed demand, signed by him shall require such statement from every insurance company, corporation, organization, underwriter, agent or person engaged in the business of fire insurance in the municipality or other subdivision where the corporation is organized and established. Such demand may be delivered personally at the office of the insurance company, corporation, association, underwriter, agent or person within the municipality or other subdivision, or at the residence of any officer of such corporation or association, underwriter, agent or person. (R. S. Sec. 3691-24l; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 326, § 5.)

Section 9879. (Failure to file statement.) An insurance company, corporation or association, or officer thereof, and an underwriter, agent or person within the municipality or other subdivision in which the corporation is organized and established, engaged in the business of fire insurance, or of assuming risks and accepting premiums therefor, who fails to furnish the statement hereinbefore required, shall forfeit for the use of the corporation entitled thereto, the sum of twenty-five dollars for every day he neglects to furnish it, which amount the corporation may recover in any court in the state having jurisdiction thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3691-241; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 326, § 5.)

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETIES.

Section 9880. (Organization of societies.) When thirty or more persons, residents of a county organize themselves into a county agricultural society, which adopts a constitution and by-laws, selects the usual and proper officers, and otherwise conducts its affairs in conformity to law, and the rules of the state board of agriculture, and when such society has held an annual exhibition in accordance with sections 9881, 9882 and 9884 of the General Code, and made proper report to the state board, then upon presentation to the county auditor, of a certificate from the president of the state board attested by the secretary thereof, that the laws of the state and the rules of the board have been complied with, the county auditor of each county wherein such agricultural societies are organized, annually shall draw an order on the treasurer of the county in favor of the president of the county agricultural society for the sum of eight hundred dollars, and the treasurer of the county shall pay it. The total amount of such order shall not exceed one hundred per cent (100%) of the amount paid in regular class premiums. (109 v. 240; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 381; R. S. Sec. 3697; May 6, 1902, 95 v. 403; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 395; April 21, 1896, 92 v. 205; April 13, 1893, 90 v. 173; April 16, 1886, 80 v. 142; R. S. 1880; February 28, 1846, 44 v. 70, § 1; S. & C. 61.)

A society organized under § 9880 et seq. is a private corporation. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 40; 20 O. L. R. 58.

The state board of agriculture can not be compelled, by mandamus, to issue the certificate provided for by § 9880. State v. Stroop, 99 O. S. 522 (1919). See Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1782.

A society, organized under this section, which has constructed seats on its fair grounds for the use of patrons, is liable, in its corporate capacity, to a person, attending its fair and rightfully occupying a seat, who is injured in consequence of negligence in their construction.

Dunn v. Agricultural Society, 46 O. S. 93 (1888).

This section is not in violation of Art. VIII, Sec. 4 of the constitution which prohibits the state from loaning its credit or becoming a joint owner or stockholder in any company or association.

State v. Kerns, 104 O. S. 550 (1922).

Commissioners v. Brown, 1 N. P. n. s. 357; 14 L. D. 241 (C. P. 1903).

A county society, entitled to aid under this section, is not entitled to the additional aid for independent societies under § 9880-1. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 240.

This chapter provides for only one society in a county. Where two societies desire to participate in the public fund, the society which was first properly organized is alone entitled to aid. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1412; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2080; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 416. Compare Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 15.

Societies organized subsequently may receive aid only as independent societies under § 9880-1. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 416.

Payment is not authorized, after the date specified in § 9884, unless the secretary of the state board has certified to the county auditor that the reports required by that section have been made. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 61.

The county auditor may require verification of the amount paid out in premiums. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 240.

An amendment to R. S. § 3697 which exempted Cuyahoga County from its provisions and made special provisions therefor was rejected and held not to render the remainder of the section unconstitutional.

Commissioners v. Brown, 1 N. P. n. s. 357; 14 L. D. 241 (C. P. 1903). Amount of state aid prior to last amendment, see

State v. Reed, 12 L. D. 415 (C. P. 1902).

Agricultural societies in the year 1911 were entitled to an amount based on the census of 1910.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 597.

Real estate used for holding agricultural fairs conducted by the county, or by an agricultural society which has complied with § 9880 et seq., is exempt from taxation, whether the title is in the county or in the society. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 828.

By the adoption of the General Code, section 3697, Revised Statutes, which authorized payment to two agricultural societies in Cuyahoga County, was repealed. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 234.

Section 9880-1. (Independent societies, organization of. What sum may be drawn from the county. When board are residents of more than one county.) When thirty or more more persons of a county or of contiguous counties, not to exceed three shall have been organized into an independent agricultural society and has held an annual exhibit for three years previous to January 1, 1919, in a county wherein is located a county agricultural society, and when such independent society has held an annual exhibition, in accordance with the three following sections and made proper report to the state board, then, upon the presentation to the county auditor of a certificate from the president of the state board attested by the secretary thereof, that the laws of Ohio and the rules of the board have been complied with, the county auditor of the county, if the fair board be residents of one county, shall draw an order on the treasurer of the county in favor of the president of the independent association for a sum equal to one hundred per cent of the amount paid in regular class premiums, as calculated in section 9880 herein, but which shall not exceed the sum of eight hundred dollars, and the treasurer shall paid said order.

If the fair board be residents of more than one county the auditor of such counties shall draw orders on their respective treasurers for the proportionate share of the sum of eight hundred dollars to be divided according to population of the counties according to the last federal census, but shall not exceed more than one hundred per cent of the amount paid in regular class premiums, and the treasurer or treasurers shall pay such order or orders from the county funds. (109 v. 240; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 382; 106 v. 273.)

This section is constitutional. State, ex rel., v. Kerns, 104 O. S. 550 (1922).

A corporation organized for profit may be entitled to aid. State, ex rel., v. Kerns, 104 O. S. 550 (1922).

A society organized under § 9911, which held three annual fairs prior to 1915 and an annual exhibition in 1915, is not an "independent" society under § 9880-1 entitled to an allowance from the county treasury under § 9880. Nor can it by reorganizing in December, 1915, come within §§ 9880, 9880-1. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1448.

A society is not entitled to public aid if it has failed to comply with § 9882. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2252.

Section 9881. (Premiums offered.) The several societies formed under the provisions of the preceding sections, annually shall offer and award premiums for the improvement of grains, fruit, vegetables, live stock, articles of domestic industry, public school displays, and such other articles, productions and improvements, as they deem proper, and may perform all acts that are best calculated to promote the agricultural and household manufacturing interests of the county or counties, and of the state. They shall regulate the amount of premiums, and their different grades, so that all may have an opportunity to compete therefor. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 382; R. S. Sec. 3698; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 143; R. S. 1880; February 28, 1846, 44 v. 70, § 2; S. & C. 63.)

Section 9882. (Duties of persons offering to compete therefor.) Persons offering to compete for premiums on improved methods of production of crops or other articles, before such premium is adjudged, shall deliver to the awarding committee if required, a full and correct statement of the process of the method of production, and the expense and value thereof, with a view of showing accurately the profits derived or expected to be derived therefrom. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 383; R. S. Sec. 3698; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 143; R. S. 1880; February 28, 1846, 44 v. 70, § 2; S. & C. 63.)

Section 9883. Repealed. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385.)

Section 9884. (Publication of treasurer's account and list of awards.) County societies shall publish annually an abstract of the treasurer's account, in a newspaper of the county, and make a report of their proceedings during the year. Also make a synopsis of the awards for improvement in agriculture and household manufactures which shall be made in accordance with the rules and regulations of the state board of agriculture, and be forwarded to the secretary of agriculture on or before the first Thursday after the second Monday in January of each year. No subsequent payment shall be made from the county treasury unless a certificate be presented to the county auditor, from the secretary of agriculture showing that such reports have been made. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 383; R. S. Sec. 3699; February 20, 1861, 58 v. 22, § 1; S. & S. 4; S. & C. 63.)

“Subsequent payment” means payments made after the date fixed by this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 61.

Section 9884-1. (Who may be members; certificate; fee. List of members sent to state secretary and kept in local office.) Members of county agricultural societies must be residents of the county in which the county agricultural society is organized. The annual membership fee shall be fixed by each society or its board of directors and paid to the secretary or treasurer as its by-laws may direct. A printed certificate of membership shall be issued to each member who pays the required fee, and said certificates shall be issued from a book in which duplicate stubs of same shall be properly filled out and preserved. All certificates shall be numbered consecutively. No person shall pay or secure more than one membership, and that for himself or herself. The secretary of each society shall send the name and address of each member of the board of directors to the secretary of the state board of agriculture within ten days after the election. A list of the members shall be kept in the office of the secretary of each society and open to public inspection at all times so as to afford convenient information to any resident of the county. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 383.)

Section 9884-2. (Board of directors; term of office; election; vacancy.) The board of directors shall consist of at least eight members, and the county agent and county school superintendent may be members ex-officio. The terms of office shall be determined by the rules of the state board of agriculture. Any vacancy, caused by death, resignation, refusal to qualify, removal from county, or other cause, may be filled by the board until the next annual election when a director shall be elected for the unexpired term. The annual election of the directors shall be by ballot at time and place fixed by the board; provided, however, that this election shall not be held later than the first Saturday in December. The secretary shall give notice of the director's election for three weeks prior to the holding thereof, in at least two newspapers of opposite politics and of general circulation in the county, or by letter mailed to each member. Only persons holding membership certificates at the close of the fair, or at least fifteen calendar days before the date of election, as may be fixed by the board of directors, shall be entitled to vote, unless such election is held during the time of the holding of the annual county fair. If the said election is held on the fairgrounds during the continuance of the county fair, then all persons holding membership certificates of the date and hour of the election shall be entitled to vote. When the election is to be held during the continuance of the annual county fair, notice of such election must be prominently mentioned in the premium list, in addition to the notice required in newspapers. The terms of office of the retiring directors shall expire, and that of the directors-elect shall begin not later than the first Saturday in January of each year. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 383.)

An election for directors may not be held after the date fixed by this section. If no valid election is held by that date, the incumbents hold over until their successors are elected and qualified. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 61.

The directors of a county society are not personally liable for voting in favor of a waiver of the limitations of G. C. § 3819, if they act in good faith, and if the act is not prohibited by the by-laws. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 40.

Section 9884-3. (Annual meeting; organization of board; oath.) The board of directors shall annually meet not later than the first Saturday of January, and elect a president, vice-president, treasurer, secretary, and such other officers as it may deem proper; the president, vice president and treasurer to serve one and the secretary not to exceed three years, as the board of directors may determine and until their successors are elected and qualified. The president and vice-president shall be directors. The secretary and treasurer may or may not be directors. Before election of officers the newly elected directors shall qualify by taking oath (or affirmation) before a competent authority; and the board of directors shall conform to the rules and regulations of the state board of agriculture. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 384.)

Section 9884-4. (Permit shall not be issued to sell, etc., liquors; immoral shows. When aid of state withheld.) County agricultural societies shall not sell or grant to any person or persons, or permit in any manner, the privilege of selling, dealing, or bartering in spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, allow, or tolerate immoral shows, lottery devices, games of chance, or gambling of any kind, including pool selling and paddle wheels, in or about any building or anywhere on its fairgrounds, at any time. If it be shown from the report of any county agricultural society, from witnesses or otherwise, that the annual exhibition held by such society was not conducted along moral or agricultural lines or was not of sufficient educational value to justify the expenditure of the per capita tax as provided by section 9880 of the General Code, the certificate for such financial aid may be withheld by the state board of agriculture. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 384.)

Under this section the state board may withhold its certificate from a county society if its exhibitions are improperly or inefficiently conducted in the respects mentioned in § 9884-4. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1920, p. 61.

Section 9884-5. (Licenses for sides shows, etc.) It shall be unlawful for any person to conduct or operate any side show, amusement, game, device, or to offer for sale at auction, or solicitation, any novelty, at any county or independent agricultural society fair without first obtaining from the director of agriculture, a license so to do. (110 v. 454, § 1.)

Section 9884-6. (License must be obtained from director of agriculture.) No officer, agent, or employe of a county or independent agricultural society, shall grant a privilege or concession to any person, who does not hold a license issued by the director of agriculture under the provisions of this act, to conduct or operate any side show, amusement, game, device, or to offer for sale at auction, or solicitation, any novelty at a county or independent agricultural society fair. (110 v. 454, § 2.)

Section 9884-7. (Written application must be made; fee.) Licenses to conduct or operate any side show, amusement, game, device, or to offer for sale at auction, or solicitation, any novelty at county or independent agricultural society fair, shall be issued by the director of agriculture only upon a written application containing a detailed description of the concession. Blank applications shall be prepared and furnished by the director of agriculture. No license shall be issued until the applicant therefor shall have paid to the director of agriculture the sum of $5.00.

All licenses issued under the provisions of this act shall contain a detailed description of the concession so licensed, shall expire on the December 31st following the date of issue, and shall be kept by the licensee in a conspicuous place where his concession is in operation. Nothing herein contained however, shall be construed to require the officers of any county or independent agricultural society to grant any privilege or concessions to any licensee. (110 v. 454, § 3.)

Section 9884-8. (Penalty for violating provisions of license.) Any person holding a license issued to him under the provisions of this act, who permits or tolerates, at any place on the fair grounds where his concession is in operation, any immoral show, lottery device, game of chance or gambling of any kind, including pool selling and paddle wheels, or who violates in any way, the provisions and terms of the license issued to him, shall forfeit his license, and the director of agriculture shall not issue any other license to said person until after a period of two years. (110 v. 455, § 4.)

Section 9884-9. (Enforcement.) It shall be the duty of the director of agriculture to enforce all the provisions of this act [G. C. §§ 9884-5 to 9884-11] and to make all rules and regulations, not otherwise herein provided, necessary for the enforcement of the same, and shall, after giving notice to such licensee, if he find the provisions of this act have been violated, revoke said license. (110 v. 455, § 5.)

Section 9884-10. (License fees; where paid.) The license fees collected under the provisions of this act [G. C. §§ 9884-5 to 9884-11] shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund. (110 v. 455, § 6.)

Section 9884-11. (Penalty.) Whoever violates any of the provisions of this act [G. C. §§ 9884-5 to 9884-11] shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than $100.00 or more than $500.00. (110 v. 455, § 7.)

Section 9885. (Powers when they become incorporated.) County societies which have been, or may hereafter be organized, are declared bodies corporate and politic, and as such, shall be capable of suing and being sued, and of holding in fee simple such real estate as they have heretofore purchased, or may hereafter purchase, as sites whereon to hold their fairs. They may mortgage the grounds of the society for the purpose of renewing or extending pre-existing debts, and for the purpose of furnishing money to purchase additional land. But if the county commissioners have paid money out of the county treasury to aid in the purchase of the site of such grounds, no mortgage shall be given without the consent of such commissioners. (R. S. Sec. 3700; March 31, 1904, 97 v. 60; February 15, 1853, 51 v. 333, § 1; S. & C. 66.)

Under former statutes an agricultural society had no power to mortgage its fair grounds. Such a mortgage was held to be absolutely void.

Stewart v. Agricultural Society, 7 Am. L. Rec. 668 (Dist. Ct. 1879).

It is unnecessary for an agricultural society to incorporate under the general corporation law. State, ex rel., v. Kerns, 104 O. S. 550 (1922).

Section 9886. (Conveyances declared valid.) Deeds, conveyances and agreements in writing, made to and by such county societies, for the purchase of real estate as sites for their fairs, shall vest a title in fee simple to real estate therein described, without words of inheritance. (R. S. Sec. 3701; February 15, 1853, 51 v. 333, § 2; S. & C. 67.)

Section 9887. (Commissioners may assist societies.) When a county society has purchased, or leased real estate whereon to hold fairs for a term of not less than twenty years, or the title to the grounds is vested in fee in the county, but the society has the control and management of the lands and buildings; if they think it for the interests of the county, and society, the county commissioners may pay out of the county treasury the same amount of money for the purchase or lease and improvement of such site as is paid by such society or individuals for that purpose, and may levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county sufficient to meet such payment. ((R. S. Sec. 3702; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 230; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1871, 68 v. 50, § 3; S. & S. 6.)

The public aid authorized by this section is additional to the payment provided for in § 9880.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 441 (1884).

A tax levy under this section does not preclude further aid authorized by § 9894. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 369.

A county prosecuting attorney is not authorized to act as legal adviser of an agricultural society, and can not accept employment from the society. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1459.

A county commissioner should not be a member of a county agricultural society. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 1497.

Money raised under this section must be used for the purchase and improvement of the original fairground site and can not be used for the purchase of a new site. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 369.

Nor for the purpose of employing an attorney to advise the directors as to incumbering real estate owned by the society. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1459.

If authorized by a vote of the people, county commissioners may pay indebtedness of a county society if it amounts to $15,000 or more; and if it amounts to less than $15,000, and has been incurred for improvements on fairgrounds, may contribute an amount equal to one-half of the purchase and improvement cost; or, if authorized by a vote of the people, more than one-half of the cost, if the tax rate therefor does not exceed half a mill. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 952.

A society may transfer to the county the title to real estate acquired for a fair site, subject to a mortgage. The county commissioners under this section may pay a sum equal to that paid by the society, to be applied upon improvements and the incumbrance, but the commissioners may not make a binding contract to do so until a levy for the purpose has been placed on the tax duplicate for collection. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 183.

This section does not authorize the payment, out of county funds, of special assessments for street improvements, levied against property of the society. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1406.

A society organized prior to the enactment of §§ 9880 and 9885 may receive aid under § 9887. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 480.

An exhibit building is an "improvement" within the meaning of § 9887. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1922, p. 480.

Section 9887-1. (Tax levy to improve real estate of agricultural societies.) In counties wherein there is a county agricultural society which has purchased a site whereon to hold fairs, and the title to such grounds is vested in fee in the county, but the society has the control and management of the lands and buildings, if they think it for the interest of the county and society, the county commissioners may levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county for the purpose of improving such grounds not to exceed one-twentieth of one mill in any one year and not for a period of more than five years; and in anticipation of the collection of this tax the commissioners may issue and sell the bonds of the county, bearing interest not to exceed six per cent. per annum payable annually. (106 v. 484.)

This section is probably constitutional. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 742.

Money raised under this section may be turned over to the society in accordance with §§ 9897 and 9892 and controlled and expended by the society. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 157.

Section 9888. (Submission of question of issuing bonds.) In counties wherein there is a county agricultural society which has purchased a site whereon to hold fairs, or if the title to such grounds is vested in fee in the county, and such society is indebted fifteen thousand dollars or more, upon the presentation of a petition signed by not less than five hundred resident electors of the county praying for the submission to the electors of the county of the question whether or not county bonds shall be issued and sold to liquidate such indebtedness, such commissioners, within ten days thereafter by resolution shall fix a date which shall be within thirty days, upon which the question of issuing and selling such bonds, in amount and denomination such as are necessary for the purpose in view, shall be submitted to the electors of the county. They also shall cause a copy of such resolution to be certified to the deputy state supervisors of elections of the county, who, within ten days thereafter shall proceed to prepare the ballots and make all other necessary arrangements for the submission of such question to such electors at the time fixed by the resolution. (R. S. Sec. 3702-1; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 358, § 1.)

Section 9889. (Conduct of the election.) Such election shall be held at the regular places of voting in the county and conducted, canvassed and certified except as otherwise provided by law, as are elections for the election of county officers. The deputy state supervisors of election must give fifteen days' notice of the submission by publication in one or more newspapers published in the county once a week for two consecutive weeks, stating the amount of bonds to be issued, the purpose for which issued and the time and places of holding such election. Those who vote in favor of the proposition shall have written or printed on their ballots "for the issue of bonds" and those who vote against it, have written or printed on their ballots "against the issue of bonds." If a majority of the voters voting upon the question of issuing the bonds vote in favor thereof, then and not otherwise they shall be issued, and the tax hereinafter mentioned be levied. (R. S. Sec. 3702-1; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 358, § 1.)

Section 9890. (Bonds.) If a majority of the voters of such county voting upon the question of issuing the bonds vote in favor thereof, the board of county commissioners, for the purpose of liquidating such indebtedness, shall issue and sell the bonds of the county according to law, in the amount necessary and bearing not more than six per cent interest, payable semi-annually. (R. S. Sec. 3702-2; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 359, § 2.)

Section 9891. (Levy.) Such bonds shall be issued for a period of not less than ten nor more than twenty years. The county commissioners thereupon shall levy a tax upon all the taxable property on the duplicate of the county to pay such bonds as they mature and the interest thereon, at the rate and for such length of time as may be necessary for the purpose. (R. S. Sec. 3702-2; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 359, § 2.)

Section 9892. (Liquidation of debts.) From the proceeds arising from the sale of such bonds, the county commissioners shall pay off and liquidate the indebtedness for which they were so sold. (R. S. Sec. 3702-3; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 359, § 3.)

Section 9893. (Money raised shall be applied to purpose.) When money has been raised by taxation in a county for the purpose of leasing lands for county fairs, or of erecting buildings for county fair purposes, or for making improvements on county fair grounds, or any purpose connected with the use of county fair grounds or the management thereof by a county agricultural society, it shall be used for such purpose only, notwithstanding the law under which the money was so raised has expired by limitation. Such moneys shall be used for the purposes intended by the act under which they were levied and collected by taxation. (R. S. Sec. 3702-4; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 316, § 1.)

Section 9894. (One-tenth mill levy for use of society.) When a county or a county agricultural society, owns or holds under a lease, real estate used as a site whereon to hold fairs, and the county agricultural society therein has the control and management of such lands and buildings, for the purpose of encouraging agricultural fairs, the county commissioners shall on the request of the agricultural society annually levy taxes of not exceeding a tenth of one mill upon all taxable property of the county, but in no event to exceed the sum of two thousand dollars, or be less than fifteen hundred dollars, which sum shall be paid by the treasurer of the county to the treasurer of the agricultural society, upon an order from the county auditor duly issued therefor. Such commissioners shall pay out of the treasury any sum from money in the general fund not otherwise appropriated, in anticipation of such levy. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 384; 102 v. 105; R. S. Sec. 3702b; April 30, 1908, 99 v. 249; April 10, 1902, 95 v. 122; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 292.)

Limitations on tax rate, see G. C. § 5649-2.

Where fair grounds are leased to a society for one week only, the commissioners are not authorized to levy a tax under this section for its assistance.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 1236.

Upon the request from a proper society it is mandatory upon the commissioners to levy a tax, but the amount thereof is within the discretion of the commissioners.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 1413.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1095; Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2080.

Where no request from the society is made for a levy, until after the time for making the levy has passed, the society is not entitled to public funds. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1419.

The money need not be used within any specified time. Money remaining in the general fund of the county may be used by an association when properly appropriated. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1406.

An agricultural society does not bar itself from public aid by leasing its fairgrounds to a city for park purposes, retaining, however, the right to use the grounds for fair purposes. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 787.

Only a society organized under §§ 9880-9884 is authorized to request a tax levy. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2080.

A tax levy under § 9887 does not preclude further aid under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 369.

Section 9895. (Commissioners may purchase grounds.)

If a county society and the county commissioners decide that the interests of the society and county demand an appropriation from the county treasury for the purchase and improvement of county fair grounds greater than that authorized by the preceding section, or without action of or purchase by the society, the commissioners may levy a tax upon all the taxable property of the county, the amount of which they shall fix, but shall not exceed half a mill thereon, in addition to the amount authorized in the preceding section to be paid for such purpose. (R. S. Sec. 3703; March 30, 1871, 68 v. 50, § 30.)

This section does not authorize the payment, out of county funds, of special assessments levied against property of the society. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1406.

Section 9896. (Question of tax to be submitted.) No such tax shall be levied until the question as to the amount is submitted by the commissioners to the qualified electors of the county at some general election, a notice of which, specifying the amount to be levied, has been given at least thirty days previous to such election, in one or more newspapers published and of general circulation in the county. Those voting at the election in favor of the tax shall have written or printed on their ballots "Agricultural tax, Yes," and those voting against it, "Agricultural tax, No." If a majority of the votes cast be in favor of paying such tax, it may be levied and collected as other taxes. (R. S. Sec. 3704; March 30, 1871, 68 v. 50, § 3.)

A majority of all votes cast at the general election is not required by this section. A majority of the votes cast on the question submitted is sufficient.

4 Opins. Attys. Gen. 168 (1888).

This section refers only to § 9895 and not to § 9894. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1095.

Section 9897. (When tax paid to treasurer of society.)

When such tax is collected by the county treasurer, the auditor shall issue his order for the amount thereof to the treasurer of the county agricultural society, on his filing with the auditor a bond in double the amount collected with good and sufficient sureties, to be approved by the auditor, conditioned for the faithful paying over and accounting to such society for such funds. (R. S. Sec. 3704; March 30, 1871, 68 v. 50, § 3.)

Section 9898. (When real estate vests in county.) When a society is dissolved or ceases to exist, in a county where payments have been made for real estate, or improvements thereon, or for the liquidation of indebtedness, for the use of such society, all such real estate and improvements shall vest in fee simple in the county by which the payments were made. (R. S. Sec. 3705; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 360; February 15, 1853, 51 v. 333, § 4; S. & C. 67.)

Where payments have been made by the county for purchase or improvement of real estate of a society which has dissolved or ceased to exist, or for the payment of debts of such society, the real estate vests in the county and may be sold or held by the county. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1921, p. 183.

An agricultural society, by ceasing to give fairs on grounds purchased by the county for its use in that manner, and by granting a license to an exposition company for the use of the grounds for the giving of expositions of a prescribed character for a period of twenty years, does not thereby fall within the provisions of this section, that when a society is "dissolved or ceases to exist" its real estate and improvements thereupon vest in the county. The rights of the society in the property lapse when it ceases to exist as a corporation, and not when it ceases to give fairs.

Exposition Co. v. Kerr, 8 C. C. n. s. 369; 18 C. D. 547 (1906).

Where in such case the exposition company ceased to give expositions and the county commissioners brought an action for recovery of the real estate, claiming to be the owner thereof, and that the property was wrongfully held by the exposition company, to which was added a cause of action for rents and profits, and a prayer for a large amount claimed to be due, it was held:

(1) That the action was one for recovery of real property under G. C. § 11903 et seq., notwithstanding allegations which appear to call for equitable relief.

(2) The exposition company, being a tenant of the agricultural society, had a right to defend under the title of that society, and could not be ousted from the property unless it appeared that the agricultural society had lost its rights therein.

Exposition Co. v. Kerr, 8 C. C. n. s. 369; 18 C. D. 547 (1906).

A cross petition, filed in such case by the agricultural society, seeking possession of the grounds because of failure to comply with the terms of its license, was held properly dismissed, in so far as it was a cross petition or counter claim, for the reason that one action in ejectment can not be engrafted upon another action; but that in so far as the cross petition was available for the purpose of combatting the claim of the commissioners, it should have been allowed to stand.

Exposition Co. v. Kerr, 8 C. C. n. s. 369; 18 C. D. 547 (1906).

Section 9899. (Insurance on buildings.) The county commissioners of a county shall insure the buildings on the grounds of the county agricultural society for the benefit of such society. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385; R. S. Sec. 3705a; April 10, 1902, 95 v. 123; March 10, 1898, 93 v. 40.)

Section 9900. (May sell lease or purchase sites.) When a county society desires to sell its site in order to purchase another, or if for any reason such site is unfit or insufficient for the purposes for which it is used, and at a regular meeting, by a vote of at least a majority of all the members of its board of directors, upon a call of the yeas and nays, it adopts a resolution for the purpose of securing the benefits hereof and declaring a desire to sell such site in order to buy another, or that the site has become unfit or insufficient, and that it is for the best interests of the society and county, that such site be sold or leased, and a new one bought or leased, the society may sell or lease such old site and buy or lease a new one for holding county fairs as hereinafter provided. But in cases where the county paid all or any portion of the purchase money for the site to be sold or leased, the written consent of the county commissioners shall first be given to such sale or lease. Within thirty days after its passage, such board of directors shall give notice in writing to the commissioners of such county of the adoption of such resolution declaring the necessity of selling or leasing such site and of buying or leasing a new site, which notice shall contain or have annexed thereto a certified copy of the resolution, signed by the president and secretary of the board of directors. (R. S. Sec. 3706; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 297; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 503; March 28, 1859, 56 v. 76, § 1; S. & C. 69.)

Section 9900-1. (Authority to sell or exchange site.) When the premises in the possession or under the control of an agricultural society and used by it as a site on which to hold annual exhibitions, is greater in size than is necessary for the purposes and uses to which it is devoted, or is not suitable in its formation or character, such society, or if the title thereof is in the county, the county commissioners, may sell any part thereof, or exchange any part thereof for other lands, so as to reduce the size of such premises or site, or change the formation or character thereof. (107 v. 449.)

Section 9901. (When commissioners shall carry out contracts.) When such society has given notice to the commissioners as above provided, and has selected or secured options for the purchase or lease of a new site for holding county fairs in such county, its board of directors shall immediately give notice of all of such facts to the commissioners, which notice, if such old site is sold or leased before the purchase or lease of the new one, shall state the amount for which it was sold or leased, also the amount of money necessary to acquire such new site, and the terms and conditions of the purchase or lease thereof, together with a full description of the tracts or parcels of land and improvements thereon, included therein. After the filing of such notices, the commissioners may complete and carry into effect any contract or contracts which such society made for the purchase or lease of the new site. (R. S. Sec. 3706a; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 297; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 504.)

Section 9902. (Payment for purchase or lease of land.) Payment for the purchase or lease of the land included in such site, and the improvements thereon, may be made by the county commissioners from any unappropriated funds in the county treasury at the time it is to be made. If no such funds are then in the treasury, the commissioners may issue the bonds of the county for such amounts as are necessary for the purchase or lease of the land and the improvements thereon. But if such old site is sold or leased before the new site is purchased or leased, in making the payment such society first shall apply the moneys realized from the sale or lease to the purchase or lease of the new site. If the old site is sold or leased after the purchase or lease of the new site, the amounts realized from such sale or lease shall be placed to the credit of the sinking fund for the redemption of bonds issued as hereinafter provided. Such bonds shall bear not more than five per cent interest per annum, payable semi-annually, not be sold at less than their par value, and shall be payable at such place, times, and in such denominations as the commissioners determine. (R. S. Sec. 3706b; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 298; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 504.)

Section 9903. (Levy for payment of bonds.) To provide for the payment of such bonds, and interest thereon, the county commissioners may levy such annual taxes on all the taxable property of the county, as are necessary to create and provide a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds at maturity and the interest accruing thereon. Such levy shall be collected and accounted for to the county treasurer in the manner provided for the collection of other taxes. (R. S. Sec. 3706b; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 298; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 504.)

Section 9904. (Submission of question of issuing bonds.)

Before issuing such bonds, the commissioners by resolution shall submit to the qualified electors of the county at the next general election for county officers held not less than thirty days after receiving from such agricultural society the notice provided for in section ninety-nine hundred, the question of issuing and selling such bonds, in amount and denomination as necessary for the purpose in view, and shall certify a copy of such resolution to the deputy state supervisors of elections of the county. (R. S. Sec. 3706b; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 298; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 504.)

A compliance by the society with § 9901 is a condition precedent to the submission of the bond issue under this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1611.

Section 9905. (The election.)

Such deputy state supervisors shall place the question of issuing and selling such bonds upon the ballot and make all other necessary arrangements for the submission of such question to the qualified electors of such county, at the time fixed by such resolution. The votes cast upon the question must be counted, canvassed and certified in the same manner, except as otherwise provided by law, as votes cast for county officers. Fifteen days' notice of such submission shall be given by the deputy state supervisors, by publication once a week for two consecutive weeks in two or more newspapers published in the county, stating the amount of bonds to be issued, the purpose for which they are issued, and the time and places of holding the election. Such question must be stated on the ballot as follows: "For the issue of county fair bonds, yes;" "For the issue of county fair bonds, no." If the majority of the voters voting upon the question of issuing the bonds are in favor thereof, then, but not otherwise, they shall be issued, and the tax hereinbefore mentioned be levied. (R. S. Sec. 3706b; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 298; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 504.)

Section 9906. (Control of lands when title vested in commissioners.)

When the title to grounds and improvements occupied by agricultural societies is in the county commissioners, the control and management of such lands and improvements shall be vested in the board of directors of such society so long as they are occupied and used by it for holding agricultural fairs. Moneys realized by the society in holding county fairs and derived from renting or leasing the grounds and buildings, or portions thereof, in the conduct of fairs or otherwise, over and above the necessary expenses thereof, shall be paid into the county treasury of the society, to be used as a fund for keeping such grounds and buildings in good order and repair, and in making other improvements from time to time deemed necessary by its directors. (R. S. Sec. 3706c; May 10, 1902, 95 v. 505.)

Where title to fair grounds is in the county, the county commissioners, although having the consent of the directors and of a majority of the members of the society, are not authorized to donate such grounds to the state for educational purposes.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 1077.

Section 9907. (How conveyances executed.) Conveyances of grounds sold under section ninety-nine hundred, which are owned exclusively by any society, may be executed by the president as such. Grounds owned partly by the society and partly by the county may be conveyed by deed executed by the president of the society, as such, and by the county commissioners. (R. S. Sec. 3707; March 28, 1859, 56 v. 76, § 2; S. & C. 69.)

Section 9908. (When society may encumber grounds; limitation.) When the commissioners of a county have paid, or pay, money out of the county treasury for the purchase of real estate as a site for an agricultural society whereon to hold its fairs, the society shall not encumber such real estate with any debt, by mortgage or otherwise, without the consent of the commissioners duly entered upon their journal.

When such consent is obtained the society may encumber such real estate in order to pay the cost of necessary repairs and improvements to an amount not exceeding fifty per cent. of its value. In order to ascertain the value of such real estate the commissioners shall appoint three disinterested free-holder residents of the county to appraise such real estates. The appraisers so appointed shall, within ten days after their appointment, upon actual view of such premises, appraise such real estate and return such appraisal under oath to the board of county commissioners. And the appraisal so made shall be considered the value of such real estate for the purpose of mortgage or other encumbrance. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 560; R. S. Sec. 3708; April 15, 1908, 99 v. 120; February 26, 1875, 72 v. 42, § 1.)

Money received from a tax levy can not be used in employing an attorney for services in incumbering real estate of the society. Legal services must be paid for with money raised from other sources. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1459.

Section 9909. (Appropriation of land for fair purposes.)

When deemed necessary by the board of directors of a county agricultural society to enlarge the fair grounds under its control, and the owner or owners of the proposed addition to the grounds and the board are unable to agree upon the sale and purchase thereof, the board shall make an accurate plat and description of the land which it desires for such purpose and file them with the probate judge of the proper county. Thereupon the same proceedings of appropriation shall be had which are provided for the appropriation of private property by municipal corporations, such board to act for the society therein as the council would for the municipality. (R. S. Sec. 3713-10; March 2, 1892, 89 v. 52, § 1; April 8, 1880, 77 v. 128.)

Section 9910. (Directors to prosecute proceedings.) If the law makes it the duty of the county commissioners to purchase such additional grounds for the use of such society, its board of directors shall prosecute the proceedings for appropriation to their final conclusion, except as to payment of purchase money, before the commissioners can be called upon to act in the matter. Such commissioners shall make such payment or deposit, not above fifteen thousand dollars in amount, when required so to do by such board of directors or by the court, and delay on their part shall not prevent such purchase or appropriation. (R. S. Sec. 3713-11; April 8, 1880, 77 v. 128, § 2.)

TOWNSHIP SOCIETIES.

Section 9911. Repealed. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385.)

Section 9912. (Justice of the peace may appoint special constables.) On the application of a state, county, township or independent agricultural society, or industrial association, or other association or meeting of citizens for the purpose of promoting social or literary intercourse, a justice of the peace may appoint a suitable number of special constables to assist in keeping the peace during the time when such society or assembly is holding its annual fair or meeting. He shall make an entry in his docket of the number and names of all such persons so appointed. (R. S. Sec. 3710;

April 9, 1908, 99 v. 86; April 11, 1856, 53 v. 141, § 1; S. & C. 67.)

Section 9913. (Powers of such constables.) Constables so appointed shall have all the power of constables to suppress riots, disturbances, and breaches of the peace. Upon view they may arrest any person guilty of a violation of any law of the state, and pursue and arrest any person fleeing from justice in any part of the state. They also may apprehend any person in the act of committing an offense, and, on reasonable information, supported by affidavit, procure process for the arrest of any person charged with a breach of the peace, forthwith bring him before a competent authority and enforce all the laws for the preservation of good order. (R. S. Sec. 3711; April 11, 1856, 53 v. 141, § 2; S. & C. 68.)

Section 9914. Repealed. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385.)

See G. C. §§ 13206 and 13207.

Theis v. State, 54 O. S. 245 (1896).

State v. Long, 48 O. S. 509 (1891).

Heck v. State, 44 O. S. 536 (1886).

Section 9915. Repealed. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 385.)

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Section 9916. (Organization of farmers' institute societies.) When twenty or more persons, residents of a county, organize themselves into a farmers' institute society, for the purpose of teaching better methods of farming, stock raising, fruit culture, and business connected with agriculture, and adopt a constitution and by-laws conforming to rules and regulations furnished by the trustees of the Ohio state university, and when such society has elected proper officers and performed such other acts as are required by the rules of the trustees of the Ohio state university, it shall be a body corporate. (106 v. 356; 103 v. 338; R. S. Sec. 3713-1; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 330.)

Section 9917. (Number of annual meetings in each county.) Not to exceed five farmers' institute societies so organized shall hold annual meetings under the auspices of the trustees of the Ohio state university in any one county. The trustees of the Ohio state university may determine the number, and name the times and places for holding such institute meetings. (106 v. 356; 103 v. 339; R. S. Sec. 3713-2; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 330, § 2.)

Section 9918. (Certificates for county payments.) When a society so organized has held annual farmers' institute meetings in accordance with the rules of the trustees of the Ohio state university, the dean of the college of agriculture shall issue certificates, one to the president of the farmers' institute society and one to the county auditor, setting forth such facts. On the presentation of such certificates to the county auditor, he, each year, shall draw orders on the treasurer of the county as follows: One in favor of the dean of the college of agriculture of Ohio state university for one hundred and seventy-five dollars and one in favor of the president of each farmers' institute society in the county holding meetings under the auspices and by the direction of the trustees of the Ohio state university for the amount of the actual expenses and not to exceed twenty-five dollars to pay necessary local expenses, and when such expenses have been itemized and certified to by the president of an institute and submitted to the dean of the college of agriculture of the Ohio state university, he shall authorize the auditor to issue a warrant, and the treasurer of the county shall pay them from the county fund. But in no county shall the total annual sum exceed three hundred dollars, nor shall the payment to the farmers' institute society exceed the expenses, as per detailed statement provided in the following section. (106 v. 356; 103 v. 339; June 6, 1911, 102 v. 292; R. S. Sec. 3713-3; April 2, 1906, 98 v. 307, § 3; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 330.)

Moneys received under this section are not to be paid into the state treasury, but should be retained as a trust fund for the purposes specified in § 9920. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 568.

Section 9919. (Detailed statement of expenses filed with certificate.) With each certificate of the dean of the college of agriculture of the Ohio state university to the county auditor, which certificate shall show the number of societies organized in the county and holding meetings by direction of the trustees of the Ohio state university, and before he issues his order on the treasurer, there shall be filed with the auditor a detailed statement of the expenses of the institute for the current year, no part of which shall be for salaries of officers of the institute society. This provision does not apply to the order in favor of the dean of the college of agriculture of the Ohio state university. (106 v.

357; 103 v. 339; R. S. Sec. 3713-4; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 331, § 4.)

Section 9920. (Lecturers shall be furnished by the state.)

At the annual farmers' institute meetings held as herein provided, and under the auspices of the trustees of the Ohio state university, the department shall furnish lecturers or speakers whose compensation and expenses it shall pay. A majority of these lecturers and speakers shall be practical farmers. (106 v. 357; 103 v. 339; R. S. Sec. 3713-5; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 331, § 5.)

Section 9921. (Publication and distribution of lectures and papers.)

At the close of each season's institute work the trustees of the Ohio state university, in pamphlet or book form, may publish such lectures and papers delivered at the several institute meetings as may seem of general interest and importance to the farmers, stock breeders and horticulturists of the state, copies of which shall be furnished the secretary of each institute society, and the remainder for general distribution. The cost of preparing and distributing the pamphlet or book shall be paid from appropriations made for this purpose from the general revenue fund of the state upon the warrant of the auditor of state upon vouchers approved by the dean of the college of agriculture of the Ohio state university. (106 v. 357; 103 v. 339; R. S. Sec. 3713-6; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 331, § 6.)

Sections 9921-1 to 9921-5, inclusive (106 v. 356), and 9921-6 (108 (Pt. 1) v. 364) relating to the employment of county agricultural agents omitted.

Section 9922. (When officers may be appointed and degrees conferred.) When a college, university, or other institution of learning incorporated for the purpose of promoting education, religion, morality, or the fine arts, has acquired real or personal property, of twenty-five thousand dollars in value, has filed in the office of the secretary of state a schedule of the kind and value of such property, verified by the oaths of its trustees, such trustees may appoint a president, professors, tutors, and any other necessary agents and officers, fix the compensation of each, and enact such by-laws consistent with the laws of this state and the United States, for the government of the institution, and for conducting the affairs of the corporation, as they deem necessary. On the recommendation of the faculty, the trustees also may confer all the degrees and honors conferred by colleges and universities of the United States, and such others having reference to the course of study, and the accomplishments of the student, as they deem proper. (R. S. Sec. 3726; May 1, 1908, 99 v. 262; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, § 1; March 11, 1853, 51 v. 403, §§ 2, 3; S. & C. 266; S. & C. 270.)

Degrees.

See also Medical colleges below.

A schedule of property must be filed, as required by this section, before an institution is authorized to confer degrees. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 1614.

The essential characteristic of a college in the original sense of the word, and one recognized by this section, is the power to confer degrees.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 1074.

Where the trustees of a college, incorporated under the laws of Ohio, sign diplomas in blank and leave them within the control of one of its officers who sells them, and thus confers degrees without merit, there is such a misuse of the power conferred as requires the dissolution of the corporation.

State v. College Co., 63 O. S. 341 (1900).

A student who has failed in examinations can not maintain an action against the corporation for breach of contract in refusing to confer a degree. Under § 9922 a degree can only be conferred "on recommendation of the faculty". Sutton v. University, 12 O. L. R. 535; 60 Bull. 33 (Municipal Court).

A corporation organized to conduct a training school for nurses, and to grant graduates certificates as trained nurses, is not an institution of learning as defined under this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 64.

A young men's christian association, incorporated for the "spiritual, mental, moral, social and physical" improvement of young men, may prescribe courses of study and confer degrees.

5 Opins. Attys. Gen. 61 (1900).

Public or private corporation. An incorporated university, exempted by the legislature from taxation, but receiving no other benefit from the state, having an endowment fund contributed by private donors, and charging tuition fees to students, is a private and not a public corporation. The charity administered may be public, but the corporation is private.

Koblitz v. University, 21 C. C. 144; 11 C. D. 515 (1901).

Courts will not interfere with the government of a private university, which is not administering public funds, unless there has been unjust, unfair and oppressive treatment of its students, nor will the management of its affairs be interfered with except in case of breach of trust on the part of its officers.

Koblitz v. University, 21 C. C. 144; 11 C. D. 515 (1901).

The expulsion of a student by a private university will not be reviewed by the courts although he has paid tuition.

Koblitz v. University, 21 C. C. 144; 11 C. D. 515 (1901).

The fact that an institution of learning, founded by private donations, receives money derived from a tax levy made by the board of education of the municipality, in which it is located, does not take the institution out of the class known as private schools, nor is the levy of taxes in the support of such a school unconstitutional.

State v. Toledo, 3 C. C. n. s. 468; 13 C. D. 327 (1902); s. c., 5 C. C. n. s. 277; 16 C. D. 628 (1904).

University. An institution founded for the purpose of promoting a knowledge of the arts and trades is within the line of that purpose when its curriculum qualifies students desiring to become artisans or artificers for their intended work, and if this purpose is being accomplished, it is immaterial whether the institution be called a university or a polytechnic school.

State v. Toledo, 3 C. C. n. s. 468; 13 C. D. 327 (1902); s. c., 5 C. C. n. s. 277; 16 C. D. 628 (1904).

Medical colleges. An institution incorporated for the purpose of "the education of suitable persons in the art and science of curing diseases by the use of air, baths, electricity, heat, magnetism, massage and all other resources of nature" does not offend against the law of its creation by imparting instruction concerning the administering of drugs.

State v. Medical College, 60 O. S. 122 (1899).

Whether a diploma presented by one who desires a certificate authorizing him to practice medicine is from "a legally chartered medical institution . . . in good standing" (G. C. § 1270) is to be determined in the first instance, not by the court, but by the state medical board.

State v. Medical College, 60 O. S. 122 (1899).

A writ of mandamus will not lie, on the relation of a medical college, to compel the state medical board to recognize the college as an institution in good standing.

State v. Coleman, 64 O. S. 377 (1901).

Section 9923. (Certificate to be filed with secretary of state.) But no college or university shall confer any degree until the president or board of trustees thereof has filed with the secretary of state a certificate issued by the superintendent of public instruction that the course of study in such institution has been filed in his office, and that the equipment as to faculty and other facilities for carrying out such course are proportioned to its property and the number of students in actual attendance so as to warrant the issuing of degrees by the trustees thereof. (104 v. 236; R. S. Sec. 3726; May 1, 1908, 99 v. 262; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, § 1; March 11, 1853, 51 v. 403, §§ 2, 3; S. & C. 266; S. & C. 270.)

Section 9924. (May hold donated property in trust.) A university, college, or academy of the trustees thereof, may hold in trust any property devised, bequeathed or donated to such institution, upon any specific trust consistent with the objects of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3727; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, § 5; S. & C. 267.)

A municipality has authority to receive property in trust for institutions of learning, located therein, beneficial to its inhabitants.

State v. Toledo, 3 C. C. n. s. 468; 13 C. D. 327 (1902); s. c., 5 C. C. n. s. 277; 16 C. D. 628 (1904).

Perin v. Carey, 65 U. S. (24 How.) 465; 3 O. F. D. 634.

A corporation formed for the purpose of carrying out a trust, such as the establishment of an institution of learning, is subordinate and subsidiary to the trust.

State v. Toledo, 3 C. C. n. s. 468; 13 C. D. 327 (1902).

Subscriptions. Subscriptions to an incorporated educational institution, for the accomplishment of its purposes, are valid and enforceable where expenditures are made or obligations are incurred in reliance thereon.

Irwin v. Lombard University, 56 O. S. 9 (1897); affirming, 7 C. C. 269; 4 C. D. 590.

Ohio Wesleyan College v. Higgins, 16 O. S. 20 (1865).

Sturges v. Colby, 3 W. L. B. 643 (1878).

Durrel v. Belding, 9 C. C. 74; 4 C. D. 263 (1894).

But where no obligation is incurred, or expenditures made, on the faith of a gratuitous subscription it can not be enforced.

Sutton v. Trustees, 7 C. C. 343; 4 C. D. 627 (1893); aff'd, no rep., 54 O. S. 665.

Subscriptions to a fund for the payment of an existing indebtedness are without consideration and unenforceable.

Johnson v. University, 41 O. S. 527 (1885).

Devise.

A testator having devised property to an educational institution, and in case the devise should fail for any cause, then to the children of his two brothers, and having in a codicil authorized and requested his daughter, his only lineal descendent, to ratify and confirm the devise to the institution, declaring that "in case she complies" with this request the devises and requests over to the children of the testator's brothers "are revoked," and the testator having died within a year from the making of the will, so that the devise to the institution become invalid under G. C. § 10504 and the daughter having executed the power by a deed to the institution the nephews of the testator take nothing by the will.

Thomas v. Trustees, 70 O. S. 92 (1904).

Trustees v. Folsom, 56 O. S. 701 (1897).

in such power conferred on the daughter and heir at law of the testator, a devise ^{see}, is a naked power to appoint to a designated object, and not § 10504. trust to or for the university, and is not invalid under G. C.

Thomas v. Trustees, 70 O. S. 92 (1904).

A deed of confirmation, expressly purporting to execute such power and conveying the devised property, is operative to invest the university with a full and perfect title.

Thomas v. Trustees, 70 O. S. 92 (1904).

Section 9925. (How to constitute faculty; powers.) The president and professors shall constitute the faculty of any incorporated literary college or university, may enforce the rules and regulations enacted by its trustees for the government and discipline of the students, and suspend and expel offenders, as they deem necessary. (R. S. Sec. 3728; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, § 6; S. & C. 267.)

Where a student of a college, not administering public funds, is expelled for a violation of its rules, such expulsion will not be reviewed by the courts.

Koblitz v. University, 21 C. C. 144; 11 C. D. 515 (1901).

Section 9926. (May acquire machinery and land.) Any incorporated university, college, or academy may connect therewith, to be used as a part of its course of education, mechanical shops and machinery, or lands for agricultural purposes not exceeding three hundred acres, to which may be attached all necessary buildings for carrying on the mechanical or agricultural operations of such institution. (R. S. Sec. 3729; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, § 8; S. & C. 267.)

Section 9927. (May change stock into scholarships.) Any company formed in pursuance of this title or which exists by virtue of a special act of incorporation, the property of which is held as stock, and not derived by donation, gift, devise, or gratuitous subscription, may change its capital stock into scholarships when it becomes necessary for the purpose of carrying out the object for which it was formed, in the mode provided in this title for increasing the capital stock of corporations. (R. S. Sec. 3730; April 9, 1852, 50 v. 128, §§ 9, 10; S. & C. 268.)

A college, organized as a private corporation, has power to receive a subscription to its endowment fund, for which the donor receives a scholarship entitling him to instruction for one pupil, perpetually, free of charge.

Farmers College v. Cary, 35 O. S. 648 (1880).

Endowment stock. A dental college organized under a special charter, not for profit and which had made no profits, had as capital certain real estate derived from the proceeds of certificates of stock, which certified that each holder was "entitled to one share of the real estate property of the college, drawing an interest of six percent." On the margin of the certificate was printed "shares $100 each," at which sum each certificate was valued and sold. All shareholders were dentists and members of the corporation. The real estate had always constituted its entire property. During its existence of about forty years no interest had been paid on any share. At a time when it was a going concern, and the real estate was indispensable to its existence, and a stockholder brought an action to recover a money judgment on his share, it was held that the action was not maintainable.

Ohio College, etc., v. Rosenthal, 45 O. S. 183 (1887).

See Bryant v. Ohio College, etc., 1 C. S. C. R. 307 (1871).

Section 9928. (Location may be changed.) A college, university or other institution of learning, existing by virtue of an act of incorporation, or that hereafter becomes incorporated for any of the purposes specified in this chapter, if three-fourths of the trustees or directors thereof deem it proper, or if the institution is owned in shares, or by stock subscribed or taken, by a vote of the holders of three-fourths of the stock or shares, may change the location of such institution, convey its real estate, and transfer the effects thereof, and invest them at the place to which such institution is removed. No such removal shall be ordered, and no vote taken thereon, until after publication in the manner provided by law in case of a sale and distribution of the property of such an institution, in which notice shall be fully set forth the place to which it is proposed to remove the institution. In case of removal, a copy of the proceedings of such meeting shall be filed with the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 3731; April 29, 1854, 52 v. 77, § 12; S. & C. 268.)

Section 9929. (How endowment fund diverted.) The trustees of a corporation incorporated to create, hold and manage a college endowment fund, the articles of incorporation of which provide that the fund may be applied to any object not inconsistent with the purposes of education different from that particularly specified therein, may apply to the common pleas court in the county where the corporation is located for permission to make such change, designating particularly the purposes to which it is proposed to apply the fund. On being satisfied that such change is not inconsistent with the object of the original creation and institution of the fund, the court shall authorize and sanction it. (R. S. Sec. 3732; March 12, 1853, 51 v. 393, § 2; S. & C. 269.)

Endowment fund corporations, see § 9948.

Under G. C. § 5353, an endowment fund of a college, which belongs exclusively to it, and which is devoted solely to deriving an income for its support, is exempt from taxation.

Little v. Seminary, 72 O. S. 417 (1905); affirming, 2 C. C. n. s. 540; 15 C. D. 609.

The property of a private eleemosynary corporation, although charged with the maintenance of a college or other "public charity" is private property, within the meaning and protection of section 19, article 1 of the constitution.

State v. Neff, 52 O. S. 375 (1895).

Section 9930. (Vacancies caused by amendment of charter.) When a vacancy occurs in whole or part, in the board of trustees of an incorporated college, seminary, or academy, by reason of an amendment of the charter thereof, or from other cause, and there is no provision of law for filling it, within three months after receiving information thereof, the governor shall appoint the required number of trustees, one-third thereof to serve for one year, one-third for two years, and one-third for three years. (R. S. Sec. 3733; March 1, 1878, 75 v. 25, § 2.)

Section 9931. (May increase property.) A college, university, academy, seminary, or other institution devoted to the promotion of education, existing by virtue of a special act of incorporation, or organized under the provisions of any law, whose property came and is held by donation, gift, purchase, devise, or gratuitous subscription, and the amount of which, or the income arising therefrom is limited by such special act, or the articles of association adopted by such institution, may receive, acquire, possess and hold any amount of property, real, personal or mixed, which its board of directors or trustees, for the institution accepts, and by its trustees, sell, dispose of and convey it. But such property shall not be diverted from the express will of the donor, deviser or subscriber. (R. S. Sec. 3734; March 8, 1893, 90 v. 71; April 9, 1856, 53 v. 170, § 1; S. & C. 368.)

See note to § 9924.

Section 9932. (Temporary loans secured by mortgage, authorized.) The board of trustees of such a college, university, academy, seminary, or other institution devoted to the promotion of education, in anticipation of donations to be received and collections to be made, for the purpose of constructing, enlarging or adding to college buildings or improvements, may borrow such sum of money, upon such terms and with such conditions and provisions as they determine to be necessary therefor, by temporary loans without mortgage or by the issue of bonds or notes and secure them by a mortgage upon the property on which such improvement is to be made, if the property is not held by them under some specific trust. (109 v. 21; R. S. Sec. 3734; March 8, 1893, 90 v. 71; April 9, 1856, 53 v. 170, § 1; S. & C. 368.)

Section 9933. (Statement to be filed.) Before such an institution shall be authorized to acquire and hold additional property, the trustees thereof, at a regular meeting of their board, or at a special meeting called for that purpose, from time to time shall make and sign a statement specifying the amount of additional property which they seek to acquire and hold, and set forth therein the purposes to which it is to be devoted, which statements shall be entered at large upon the record book of the trustees and be filed in the office of the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 3735; March 8, 1893, 90 v. 72; April 9, 1856, 53 v. 170, § 2; S. & C. 368.)

Section 9934. (How certain boards may be constituted and governed.) The board of trustees of any university or college heretofore incorporated, or which may hereafter be incorporated, and operating under the patronage of one or more conferences or other religious bodies of any religious denomination, may accept the provisions of this and succeeding sections 9935, 9936, 9937, 9937-a, 9939, 9941, 9942 and 9943 by resolution adopted at any regular meeting of the board, and entered upon the record of its proceedings. After such acceptance the board in all respects shall be organized, constituted, regulated and perpetuated, pursuant to and under said provisions. No right acquired by any such board, university or college; under its charter or any law of this state, shall in any way be affected thereby. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3736; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 1; S. & C. 106.)

Section 9935. (Trustees to be divided into classes; president ex-officio member; limitations and designations.) The president of such university or college shall, ex-officio, be a trustee after the acceptance of the provision of this act by any such university or college. At any meeting of such board after the passage of this act, such board shall divide its number, not including such president, into classes, making one class for each conference or religious body at the time patronizing such university or college, and one class for the alumni of such university or college and one class of trustees at large. No class shall have more than ten members. Each conference or other religious body patronizing such university shall have the same number of trustees. The board of trustees of such university or college may designate the number of trustees to be assigned to the alumni association and to the class of trustees at large, but the combined number of trustees apportioned to said patronizing conferences of other religious bodies shall constitute majority of the entire board, not including the president. (107 v. 636; 104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3737; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 2; S. & C. 106.)

Section 9936. (Term of office of trustees; vacancies.) The regular term of office of such trustees shall be five years, but upon the original formation of classes of trustees one or more trustees may be elected for one, two, three and four-year terms until the regular order can be established. The term of office of an equal number of trustees in each class, as near as may be, shall expire each year. Vacancies which occur in any class of trustees in any manner whatsoever except by expiration of time shall be filled only for the remainder of the term, but the term of office of a trustee shall not expire during any meeting of the board which does not continue for more than two weeks. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3738; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 3; April 24, 1873, 70 v. 157, § 1; S. & C. 107.)

See § 8656.

Section 9937. (Re-classification and re-apportionment of trustees.) If the number of conferences or other religious bodies patronizing such university or college shall at any time be increased or decreased, the board of trustees of such university or college may re-classify said trustees of said bodies by an equal reduction of the number in each such class when a new conference or other religious body becomes a patronizing body and by an equal increase of the number in each such class when a conference or other religious body ceases to be a patronizing body. Whenever, by reason of a change in the number of patronizing conferences or religious bodies, it becomes necessary to re-classify the trustees in said board, and whenever said board deems it proper, for any other reason, to increase or decrease its total membership, within the limits established by section 9935 the board (a lawful quorum being present) shall by appropriate resolution designate the number of trustees apportioned to each class and certify such apportionment to each patronizing conference or other religious body and to such alumni association, and all vacancies in such class thereafter shall be filled in accordance with such apportionment. (107 v. 636; 104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3739; March 17, 1892, 89 v. 119; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 4; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9937-a. (The alumni association may elect one-fifth of board,) The alumni composing the alumni association of such university or college may elect as members of the board of trustees of such university or college, as many members of such alumni association as there are members of the class of alumni trustees assigned or apportioned to said alumni association by the board of trustees of such university or college, this class to constitute not less than one-fifth of the entire board, not including the president. This election shall be held under such regulations as the alumni association may prescribe and the result shall be certified by the proper officials of the alumni association to the board of trustees, which result shall be entered upon the records of said board. Such board of trustees composed of alumni trustees and trustees elected by patronizing conferences or other religious bodies, as provided in section 9935 to section 9937-a inclusive, may increase its own numbers by the election of a class of trustees at large, the number of which class shall be fixed by said board of trustees, under the limitations fixed by sections 9935 and 9937-a. (104 v. 171.)

Section 9938. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3740; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 5; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9939. (How a conference may become a patron.) Any conference or other religious body not patronizing any particular university or college may become a patronizing body upon invitation of the board of trustees of such university or college by a majority vote of the whole board. The intention to become such patronizing body shall be evidenced by the adoption of an appropriate resolution and certification of the same to the board of trustees of such university or college, and such certified resolution shall be entered upon the minutes of the board of trustees of such university or college thereby completing the right of such conference or religious body to act as a patronizing body. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3741; 65 v. 188, § 6; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9940. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3742; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 163, § 7; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9941. (When right of representation ceases.) If a conference or other religious body patronizing a university or college and having a representation in its board of trustees, ceases to exist, or ceases to patronize such university or college, the right of such conference or other religious body to such representation shall cease, and the board of trustees of such university or college shall apportion or distribute the number of trustees in such class to the remaining patronizing conferences or other religious bodies in order to maintain, as nearly as may be, the established number of trustees and equality of representation from each patronizing body. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3743; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 8; April 8, 1876, 73 v. 163; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9942. (Action must be taken by board.) Before a conference or other religious body represented in the board of trustees of such university or college shall cease to be represented in said board, the board of trustees shall declare and enter into the record of its proceedings that the conditions and contingencies terminating such representation have taken place. (104 v. 173; R. S. Sec. 3744; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 9; S. & S. 107.)

Section 9943. (Quorum; how constituted.) Eleven trustees shall constitute a quorum of the board of any such university or college, whatever the number of trustees if more than twenty is or may become; but when the number is twenty or less, a majority thereof shall constitute a quorum. (R. S. Sec. 3745; May 13, 1868, 65 v. 188, § 10; S. & S. 108.)

Section 9944. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3746; April 12, 1872, 69 v. 71, § 1.)

Section 9945. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3747; March 17, 1892, 89 v. 120; 81 v. 174; R. S. 1880; April 12, 1872, 69 v. 71, § 2; May 13, 1879, 76 v. 87, § 1.)

Section 9946. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3748; March 17, 1892, 89 v. 120; April 12, 1872, 69 v. 71, § 3.)

Section 9947. Repealed. (104 v. 171; R. S. Sec. 3749; April 12, 1872, 69 v. 71, § 3.)

Section 9948. (Endowment fund corporations.) The trustees of a corporation incorporated for the purpose of creating a fund, the income of which is to be applied to the promotion of education, may receive subscriptions for membership in the corporation, and they, or a majority of them, by giving ten days' notice, by publication in the county where the corporation is located, may call a meeting of members to adopt by-laws, and elect not more than nine directors. Each member shall have a vote for every amount by him subscribed equal to that in the articles of incorporation specified as necessary for membership, which may be cast in person or by proxy, but at no subsequent meeting can a member vote for or be eligible as a director who is in arrears to the corporation. The trustees shall control the funds and disburse the income of the corporation as provided by its by-laws. (R. S. Sec. 3750; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 173, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.)

Diversion of fund, see § 9929.

Section 9949. (How certain boards constituted and governed.) The board of trustees of a university, college or other institution of learning, incorporated, and acting under the patronage of one annual conference or other religious body of a religious denomination, may accept the provisions of this and the succeeding section, by resolution adopted at a meeting of the board, and entered upon the record or journal of its proceedings. After such acceptance the board shall be organized, constituted, regulated, and perpetuated as therein provided. No right acquired by such board, university, or other institution of learning, under its charter, or any law of this state, shall be impaired or affected thereby. (R. S. Sec. 3751; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 180, § 1.)

Section 9950. (Increase in number of trustees in certain corporations.) The board of trustees of a university or college heretofore incorporated, and now under the patronage of one annual conference, synod or other religious body of a religious denomination, may increase the number of its trustees, not exceeding six. Such additional trustees shall be nominated by the collegiate alumni of the university or college from the collegiate alumni of three years' standing, for appointment or election by such patronizing conference or synod, under such regulations as are prescribed by such board, if it determines to increase the number of its trustees and makes such regulations for their nomination, by resolution adopted at a regular meeting of the board and duly entered on the record of its proceedings, and, such patronizing or governing conference or synod consents to the increase and the rules and regulations for their nomination. And after such board is so increased by not exceeding six additional trustees, in all respects it shall be organized, constituted, regulated and perpetuated pursuant to and under its charter, and such provisions. No rights acquired by such a board, university or college, under its charter or any law of this state, shall be affected or impaired thereby. (R. S. Sec. 3751a; April 19, 1894, 91 v. 155.)

Section 9951. (Colleges under ecclesiastical patronage.) A corporation may be formed for the promotion of academic, collegiate or university education, under religious influences, may set forth in its articles or certificate of incorporation, as a part thereof, the name of the religious sect, association or denomination with which it is to be connected, and grant any ecclesiastical body of such religious sect, association or denomination, whether it be a conference, association, presbytery, synod, general assembly, convocation or otherwise, the right to appoint its trustees or directors, or any number thereof. It also may set forth in its articles or certificate such other rights as to the administration of the purpose for which it is organized, consistent with the laws of this state and of the United States, as the incorporation desires to confer upon the ecclesiastical body of such sect, association or denomination, and that body may exercise all rights and powers set forth therein. (R. S. Sec. 3751b; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 331.)

Section 9952. (How existing corporations may avail themselves of the provisions.) A corporation formed for the promotion of academic, collegiate or university education, under religious influences, incorporated under the laws of this state, by special act or otherwise, may avail itself of the provisions of the preceding section, as a part of its articles or certificate of incorporation, and may confer on an ecclesiastical body of such religious sect, association or denomination, it is or proposes to be connected with, whether it be a conference, association, presbytery, synod, general assembly, convocation or otherwise, any or all of the rights, powers or privileges by such section allowed to be conferred on corporations hereafter organized, and may accept the provisions by a vote of the majority of its trustees at any regular meeting. (R. S. Sec. 3751c; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 331.)

Section 9953. (Copy of acceptance to be filed with secretary of state.) When so accepted, a copy of the acceptance, certified by the secretary or clerk of its board of trustees or directors, shall be sent to the ecclesiastical body with which it is or proposes to be connected. If such body agrees to accept the powers proposed to be conferred upon it, it shall certify its approval upon the certified copy so sent, and it thereupon shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. When thus filed it will be a part of the charter of such corporation, and such ecclesiastical body shall exercise all the rights and powers so set forth in the articles or certificate of corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3751c; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 331.)

Section 9954. (Number of trustees and classes.) After such acceptance the board shall certify it to the patronizing conference or other religious body having the right to elect or appoint trustees of such university or other institution of learning, at the next meeting of such conference or other religious body; and thereafter the board shall consist of twenty-one trustees elected or appointed, and the president of such university or other institution of learning, who shall be ex-officio a member thereof. Such elected or appointed trustees shall be divided into three classes of seven members each. (R. S. Sec. 3752; March 30, 1888, 85 v. 140, 141; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 180, §§ 2, 3; 70 v. 157, § 1.)

Section 9955. (Election; term; vacancies; increase of board.) At the first election or appointment after such acceptance, one of such classes shall be elected or appointed for one year, one for two years and one for three years. In subsequent elections or appointments each of the classes of trustees shall be elected or appointed for three years. No term of office of such a trustee shall expire during a meeting of the board which does not continue more than two weeks. Ten members of the board shall constitute a quorum. Vacancies which occur in any class of trustees otherwise than by expiration of the term of office shall be filled only for the remainder of the term. Such a university or other institution of learning which heretofore accepted the provisions of sections ninety-nine hundred and forty-nine, ninety-nine hundred and fifty-four, and ninety-nine hundred and fifty-five, may increase its board of trustees by electing or appointing two additional members in each of the classes of trustees herein provided for. (R. S. Sec. 3752; March 30, 1888, 85 v. 140, 141; R. S. 1880; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 180, §§ 2, 3; 70 v. 157, § 1.)

Section 9955-1. (Interchangeable use of the words "academy," "college" and "university.") A corporation formed for the promotion of academic, collegiate or university education under religious influences, and connected with any religious sect, association, or denomination, and to which, whether it be a conference, association, presbytery, synod, general assembly, convocation, or otherwise, it has granted the right to appoint its trustees or directors, or any number thereof, and which has incorporated into its charter or certificate of incorporation as a part of its corporate name either one or more of the words "academy," "college," or "university," may use one or more of said words not so incorporated therein interchangeably with said word or words which may have been incorporated therein to the same extent and as fully as the words or words so incorporated therein has or have been heretofore used in the name of such corporation, when authorized so to do by a resolution adopted by a majority vote of its trustees, or directors at any regular meeting, or special meeting called for that purpose. Provided that a copy of such resolution certified by the clerk or secretary of such trustees or directors, and accompanied by a resolution of consent passed by such one of such ecclesiastical bodies as aforesaid, with which such corporation is connected, and certified by its clerk or secretary, shall first be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and a certified copy thereof shall have been issued to and received by said clerk or secretary of such trustees or directors. (104 v. 3.)

Section 9955-2. (Use of interchangeable words does not affect the right or title to any gift, grant, devise or bequest.) Nothing herein contained, or the interchangeable use of said word or words, as herein provided and authorized, shall be held or construed as abolishing the use of the original corporate name of such corporation, or as affecting the title, right or possession of such corporation to, or of, any gift, grant, devise, or bequest heretofore, or hereafter made to it, whether the same shall have been made or shall be made in the original corporate name, or in one or more of said interchangeable names, or in all of such names: And the use of such original incorporate name, or one or more of such interchangeable names shall be held and construed as vesting in such corporation all gifts, grants, devises, and bequests as fully and to the same extent as if the same had been made in the name of the original incorporated name. (104 v. 3.)

Section 9956. (Assessments.) The proportion that each stockholder of a college, academy, university, seminary, or other institution for the promotion of education, shall be required to pay to meet the debts and liabilities of the corporation, may be determined and collected in the manner provided by the three succeeding sections. (R. S. Sec. 3753: February 20, 1861, 58 v. 20, § 1; S. & S. 108.)

Section 9957. (Meeting of stockholders; notice.) The trustees of such a corporation desiring to avail themselves of such provisions shall call a meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of determining what amount of its indebtedness shall be paid by each stockholder, and give thirty days' notice to the stockholders in writing or by publication in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where the corporation is located, of the time, place, and purpose of the meeting, at which also, the trustees shall submit a detailed statement showing the assets and indebtedness of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3754; February 20, 1861, 58 v. 20, §§ 2, 3; S. & S. 108.)

Section 9958. (How amount of assessment fixed.) A majority in interest of the stockholders present at such meeting may determine what amount of the indebtedness of the corporation is to be paid by each stockholder, and fix the time and mode for the payment of the money assessed against each stockholder. But these provisions shall not interfere with or abridge the right of a creditor of the corporation to institute any proceedings authorized by law to enforce the liability of stockholders. (R. S. Sec. 3755; February 20, 1861, 58 v. 20, § 4; S. & S. 108.)

Section 9959. (Limit of assessment and collection.) The assessment shall be pro rata upon the stock subscribed or otherwise acquired by each stockholder, and in no case shall exceed the amount for which each stockholder is or may be liable by law. A stockholder who fails to pay the amount so assessed against him, shall be liable in a civil action to be brought in the name of the corporation, for the recovery thereof, as in other cases of indebtedness. (R. S. Sec. 3756; February 20, 1861, 58 v. 20, §§ 5, 6; S. & S. 108, 109.)

Section 9960. (Board of military academies.) The academic board of an institution incorporated for military and polytechnical education shall consist of the superintendent thereof, the commandant of cadets, and the professors. It may make and enforce rules and regulations for the government of cadets, but they first shall be submitted to and approved by the governor of the state. (R. S. Sec. 3757; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 239, §§ 1, 2; S. & S. 109.)

Section 9961. (Board of visitors.) The board of visitors of such an institution shall consist of the governor, who shall be ex-officio a member and the president of the board, of two other persons to be named by him, and such other persons as the superintendent of the institution appoints. (R. S. Sec. 3758; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 239, § 3; S. & S. 110.)

Section 9962. (Duties of board of visitors.) The board of visitors shall meet at the institution, on the first day of the annual commencement exercises, and examine into the condition of the classes, quarters, and commons, the discipline, drill, records of standing in study, and conduct of the cadets, and report thereon to the legislature at its next session. The board of visitors, or any member thereof, may visit and inspect the institution at any time. (R. S. Sec. 3759; April 16, 1867, 64 v. 239, § 4; S. & S. 110.)

Section 9963. (How term of trustees fixed.) At a regular meeting for the election of directors or trustees of a college or other institution of learning, the authorized voters may determine by vote, whether the election of directors or trustees shall be held annually, if the term of their election is for a longer period than one year, and also what proportion of the entire board shall be so elected. At the first election hereunder the voters shall designate upon their ballots who shall serve for one year, who for two years, and who for three years. Vacancies caused by expiration of term of office shall be filled by election annually thereafter. (R. S. Sec. 3760; April 11, 1873, 70 v. 125, § 1.)

Section 9964. (Certain corporations may change location.) The trustees of colleges and other institutions of learning not endowed by voluntary contributions, established under special acts of incorporation, and which, by the provisions thereof are located at particular places, may change their location to such other places as they deem proper, and erect and maintain academies and other schools auxiliary thereto. (R. S. Sec. 3761; April 11, 1873, 70 v. 248, § 1.)

Section 9965. (Sale and distribution of property of certain corporations.) The trustees of a university, college, or other institution of learning, incorporated by authority of this state under special charter, owned in shares or stock subscribed or taken, may dispose of its property at public sale, on such terms as to payment as the stockholders by a vote of three-fourths of the shares or stock of the institution, direct, after giving public notice thereof, by publication, for six consecutive weeks in some newspaper published in the county where the institution is located. Such notice shall contain a full statement of the terms, time and place of sale, and such action of the trustees. The trustees may close up the corporate existence of such institution, and make an equitable division and distribution of the proceeds of the sale among all the holders of shares or stock, after the payment of its just debts. (R. S. Sec. 3762; March 22, 1870, 67 v. 24, § 1.)

Section 9966. (Certain colleges may file charter and amend.) The trustees of any university, college or institution of learning, incorporated under authority of this state, owned in shares of stock subscribed and paid up in full, by a majority of the owners of such stock, for the sole purpose of promoting education, religion and morality, or the fine arts, exclusively among males or females, on the written petition of the owners of a majority of such stock filed before its trustees or on the vote of the owners of the majority of such shares of paid up stock at any general meeting of the stockholders called for such purpose, after thirty days' notice published in some newspaper published and of general circulation in the county, by them, may change the name and enlarge the purposes and objects of such university, college or institution, by amendments to its charter, approved by the owners of the majority of such stock, so that all the educational rights and privileges thereof may be bestowed in the co-equal and co-ordinate education of both sexes. (R. S. Sec. 3762a; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 270.)

Section 9967. (Copy of amendment to be filed with secretary of state.) When such amendment is adopted and the original articles of incorporation of such corporation have not been filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, a copy of the amendment and of the original articles, with a certificate to each of them thereto affixed, signed by the president and secretary of the corporation, and sealed with the corporate seal, if any there be, stating the fact and date of the adoption of such amendment, and that such copy thereof and of the original articles of incorporation are true copies of the originals shall be recorded in such office. When so recorded, such amendment shall be in law the sole articles of incorporation of the corporation. The property, real and personal, corporate franchises, and endowment funds, gifts, bequests, legacies, or mortgage securities, promissory notes, and rights of every kind belonging to, vested in, claimed, or possessed by the original corporation, by such amendment shall pass to, and be enjoyed and exercised by the corporation named, created and organized by such amendment for the promotion of all the objects and purposes of its creation and organization. (R. S. Sec. 3762a; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 270.)

Section 9968. (Fee of secretary of state.) For recording such amendments and copies of original articles of incorporation, and furnishing a certified copy or copies thereof, the secretary of state shall receive a fee of twenty cents per hundred words, to be in no case less than five dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3762a; April 14, 1888, 85 v. 270.)

Section 9969. (Colleges may change name or purpose.) The board of trustees of a university, college, or institution of learning, incorporated under authority of this state, for the sole purpose of promoting education, religion and morality, or the fine arts, at a regular or special meeting of such board of trustees, called for that purpose, after thirty days' actual notice to each and all such trustees, may change the name and enlarge the purposes and objects of such university, college or institution of learning, by amendment to its charter, approved by a majority of the board at such regular or special meeting, so called and so notified, for such change of its name, and the enlargement of its purposes and objects. (R. S. Sec. 3762b; February 10, 1890, 87 v. 8.)

Section 9970. (Procedure and effect.) When such amendment is so adopted by the board of trustees of such university, college or institution of learning, a copy thereof with a certificate thereto affixed, signed by the president and secretary of such board and sealed with the corporate seal, if any there be, stating the fact and date of such amendment, and that such copy is a true copy of the original amendment, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and when so filed and recorded such amendment shall be in law an integral part of the articles of incorporation of such corporation. The property, real and personal, corporate powers and franchises, endowment funds, gifts, bequests, legacies, mortgage securities and promissory notes, belonging to, such original corporation, by such amendment shall pass to, and be enjoyed and exercised by the corporation created and organized by such amendment for the promotion of the objects of its creation and organization. Such new corporation shall be liable for and must perform all the lawful obligations and contracts of the original corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3762b; February 10, 1890, 87 v. 8.)

Section 9971. (Fees of secretary of state.) For recording such amendment and furnishing a certified copy or copies thereof, the secretary of state shall receive a fee of twenty cents per hundred words, to be in no case less than five dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3762b; February 10, 1890, 87 v. 8.)

Section 9972. (Organic rules may be prescribed in articles of certain corporations.) An association incorporated for the purpose of receiving gifts, devises or trust funds to erect, establish, or maintain an academy in any department of fine arts, a gallery for the exhibition of paintings, or sculpture or works of art, a museum of natural or other curiosities, or specimens of art or nature promotive of knowledge, or a law or other library, or courses of lectures upon science, art, philosophy, natural history, or law, and to open it to the public on reasonable terms; or an industrial training school, or a mechanics' institute for advancing the best interests of mechanics, manufacturers and artisans, by the more general *diffusion of useful knowledge in those classes of the community, or homes for indigent and aged widows and unmarried women, whose directors or trustees may be of either sex, in its articles of incorporation may prescribe the tenure of office of the trustees or directors, the mode of appointing or electing successors, the administration and management of the property, trust and other funds of the corporation and such other organic rules as are deemed expedient or acceptable to donors, which shall be the permanent organic law of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3767; February 21, 1887, 84 v. 31; March 26, 1886, 83 v. 40; R. S. 1880; 75 v. 135, §§ 1, 3.)

Section 6 of Article VIII of the constitution does not prohibit the devotion of fines and penalties, collected in municipal court in state cases, to the aid of a law library association not for profit, whose library is open for use by all judicial officers of the county. State v. Sayre, 90 O. S. 215 (1914).

Effect of Cleveland Municipal Court Act on G. C. § 3056. See State v. Henry, 23 C. C. n. s. 541.

Section 9973. (May add to original objects.) By certificate duly acknowledged by the trustees or directors, and filed in the office of the secretary of state, such corporations may add to the original objects and purposes thereof, any of the several objects and purposes, mentioned in the preceding section, not provided for by the articles of incorporation. (R. S. Sec. 3768; March 26, 1886, 83 v. 41; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 135, § 3.)

Section 9974. (Acceptance of statutory provisions.) Such corporation heretofore incorporated under the laws of the state, by certificate reciting the organic rules adopted by the corporation as its permanent organic law, duly acknowledged by the trustees or directors, and filed in the office of the secretary of state, may accept the provisions of the second preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 3768; March 26, 1886, 83 v. 41; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 135, § 3.)

Section 9975. (Accounts of receipts and disbursements.) The officers of such a corporation charged or intrusted with the receipts and disbursements of its funds or property, shall make and keep accurate and detailed accounts of such funds, and the receipts and disbursements thereof such as are required to be kept by the fund commissioners of the state. On or before the third Monday in January of each year the trustees shall file with the clerk of the common pleas court of the county in which the corporation is located an ab-abstract of their account which shall correspond in date, amount, person to whom paid, from whom received, and on what account, with the vouchers taken or given on account of such receipts and disbursements. At the same time they annually shall file in such clerk's office a report of the names of the donors, the kind, amount, or value of gifts of each, and a brief statement of the conditions and purposes of the gifts. The filing of such abstract and report, and the supplying of any omission in either, may be enforced by order and attachment of the common pleas court of the proper county, against the trustees, on motion of any respectable citizen. (R. S. Sec. 3769; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 135, § 4.)

Section 9976. (Trustees ineligible to other office.) No trustee of such corporation shall be eligible to any office or agency of the corporation to which a salary or emolument is attached, nor shall the trustees be allowed any salary, emoluments or perquisites, except the right of free ingress to the grounds, rooms, and buildings of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3770; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 135, § 5.)

A trustee of a law library association, who is elected librarian, can not thereafter continue to act as trustee.
Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 1081.

Section 9977. (Attorney-general may enforce duties of officers.) On application to the attorney general by five citizens of the proper county, in writing, verified by the oath or affirmation of one of them, setting forth specific charges against any of the fiscal or other agents or trustees of such a corporation, involving a breach of trust or duty, he shall give notice thereof to the trustees or agents complained of, and inquire into the truth of such charges. For this purpose he may receive affidavits, or enforce, by process from the court of common pleas of Franklin county, the production of papers and the attendance of witnesses before him. If, on testimony or other evidence, he believes the charges or any of them to be true, he shall proceed, by action in that court, in the name of the state, against the delinquent trustee or trustees, fiscal agent or agents, and, on the hearing the court may direct the performance of any duty, or the removal of all or any of the agents or trustees, and decree such other and further relief as is equitable. (R. S. Sec. 3771; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 135, § 6.)

Section 9978. (May increase number of trustees of certain corporations.) The board of trustees of a university or college heretofore incorporated, but not under the patronage of conferences or other ecclesiastical bodies of any religious denomination, may increase the number of such trustees to twenty-four, exclusive of the president, or a less number, and divide such trustees into six classes, each class to serve six years, and one class to be chosen each year, for such term. One trustee of each class may be chosen by the votes of the alumni of such university or college, if the board of trustees so provides by by-law, in which case the board also shall provide by such by-laws, a method of nominating and electing such appointee of the alumni. (R. S. Sec. 3771a; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 188; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 341.)

Section 9979. (Distribution of new members.) The president of such university or college shall ex-officio, be a trustee perpetually, and not be included in the classes going out in rotation. If in the first enlargement of the board of trustees, under the preceding section it be necessary to distribute new members to the several classes, whose terms will expire by rotation, the distribution may be made in such manner as the board directs so that no trustee shall be elected for a longer term than six years. (R. S. Sec. 3771a; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 188; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 341.)

Section 9980. (Stock corporations may retire stock.) The board of trustees of a university or college in this state organized as a stock corporation and not under ecclesiastical patronage, upon the surrender and cancellation of all outstanding shares of its capital stock, may cause a certificate of that fact, sealed with the corporate seal and signed by the president and secretary of such board, to be filed in the office of the secretary of state, which certificate the secretary of state shall record for public use in the records of his office, and a certified copy of which he shall return to such board of trustees upon receipt of a fee of twenty cents per one hundred words, to be in no case less than five dollars. Thereupon such university or college shall continue its corporate existence as a corporation not for profit and with the same powers, duties, privileges and immunities as it previously possessed, save such as relate to its capital stock. Such board by resolution may conform the number, tenure and mode of election of its own members to the provisions of the preceding section, except, that trustees not authorized to be elected by the alumni, shall be elected by the board; and that the ex-officio membership thereon of the president of such college or university shall be optional with the board. (R. S. Sec. 3771b; May 1, 1908, 99 v. 260.)

Section 9981. (Cancellation by decree of court.) When such a corporation seeking to avail itself of the provisions of the preceding section has procured the surrender for cancellation of not less than sixty per cent of the outstanding shares of its capital stock, any residue thereof standing upon its books in the names of persons, partnerships, societies or corporations that for seven years or more have been deceased, dissolved or of unknown address, and non-participants in the corporate elections, and of whose shares aforesaid no known owner exists, may be cancelled by decree of the court of common pleas of the county wherein such corporation is located, upon its petition, duly certified, being filed therein, making such persons, partnerships, societies and corporations or their legal representatives parties defendant, and on serving such defendants with public notice of the pendency of such petition in the manner provided for service by publication in civil actions, and upon averment and proof by the plaintiff and a finding by the court of the facts as hereinbefore required, and of the further fact that the plaintiff is an eleemosynary corporation. Thereupon the shares of such defendants shall be deemed to be cancelled and surrendered, and the decree shall not be vacated or set aside, on the application of any such defendant, otherwise than as in the case of judgments in civil actions. (R. S. Sec. 3771c; May 1, 1908, 99 v. 260.)

Section 9982. (Mechanics' institute may borrow money.) A mechanics' institute, incorporated under the laws of this state prior to the year eighteen hundred and fifty-one, may borrow money, issue bonds or notes therefor at no more than the legal rate of interest, and secure them by mortgage upon its real estate. (R. S. Sec. 3768-1; April 9, 1885, 82 v. 118, § 1.)

Section 9983. (Liability of directors and trustees.) The directors and trustees of such corporations shall not be personally liable for debts contracted by them, as in the preceding section provided. (R. S. Sec. 3768-2; April 9, 1885, 82 v. 118, § 2.)

Section 9984. (How medical colleges may receive bodies for dissection.) Superintendents of city hospitals, directors or superintendents of city or county infirmaries, directors or superintendents of work-houses, directors or superintendents of asylums for the insane, or other charitable institutions founded and supported in whole or in part at public expense, the directors or warden of the penitentiary, township trustees, sheriffs, or coroners, in possession of bodies not claimed or identified, or which must be buried at the expense of the county or township, before burial, shall hold such bodies not less than thirty-six hours and notify the professor of anatomy in a college which by its charter is empowered to teach anatomy, or the president of a county medical society, of the fact that such bodies are being so held. Before or after burial such superintendent, director, or other officer, on the written application of the professor of anatomy, or the president of a county medical society shall deliver to such professor or president, for the purpose of medical or surgical study or dissection, the body of a person who died in either of such institutions, from any disease, not infectious, if it has not been requested for interment by any person at his own expense. (R. S. Sec. 3763; April 5, 1898, 93 v. 84; February 19, 1881, 78 v. 33; R. S. 1880; March 25, 1870, 67 v. 25, § 1.)

Post mortem examinations may only be performed as authorized by this and the following sections.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 399.

See 3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 988 (1887).

Delivery of bodies under this section should be at the place of decease. The expense of transportation should be paid by the college, and not out of public funds.

2 Opins. Attys. Gen. 860 (1880).

Any county medical society, organized in good faith, whether auxiliary to a state association or not, is authorized to receive bodies.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 155 (1883).

Unclaimed bodies should be buried at the expense of the county or township.

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 369 (Brief of James Lawrence, 1884).

3 Opins. Attys. Gen. 390.

Section 9985. (Body to be delivered to claimant.) If the body of a deceased person so delivered, be subsequently claimed, in writing, by a relative or other person for private interment, at his own expense, it shall be given up to such claimant. (R. S. Sec. 3763; April 5, 1898, 93 v. 84; February 19, 1881, 78 v. 33; R. S. 1880; March 25, 1870, 67 v. 25, § 1.)

The next of kin of a decedent have the right to the control, custody and burial of the body, and may select the place of burial.

Smiley v. Bartlett, 6 C. C. 234; 3 C. D. 432 (1892).

Section 9986. (Interment of body after dissection.) After such bodies have been subjected to medical or surgical examination or dissection, the remains thereof shall be interred in some suitable place at the expense of the party or parties in whose keeping the corpse was placed. (R. S. Sec. 3763;

April 5, 1898, 93 v. 84; February 19, 1881, 78 v. 33; R. S. 1880; March 25, 1870, 67 v. 25, § 1.)

Section 9987. (Notification of relatives.) In all cases the officer having such body under his control, must notify or cause to be notified, in writing, the relatives or friends of the deceased person. (R. S. Sec. 3763; April 5, 1898, 93 v. 84; February 19, 1881, 78 v. 33; R. S. 1880; March 25, 1870, 67 v. 25, § 1.)

Section 9988. (Body of strangers or travelers.) The bodies of strangers or travelers, who die in any of the institutions above named, shall not be delivered for the purpose of dissection unless the stranger or traveler belongs to that class commonly known as tramps. Bodies delivered as herein provided shall be used for medical, surgical and anatomical study only, and within this state. (R. S. Sec. 3763; April 5, 1898, 93 v. 84; February 19, 1881, 78 v. 33; R. S. 1880; March 25, 1870, 67 v. 25, § 1.)

Section 9989. (Liability for having unlawful possession of body.) A person, association, or company, having unlawful possession of the body of a deceased person shall be jointly and severally liable with any other persons, associations, and companies that had or have had unlawful possession of such corpse, in any sum not less than five hundred nor more than five thousand dollars, to be recovered at the suit of the personal representative of the deceased in any court of competent jurisdiction, for the benefit of the next of kin of deceased. (R. S. Sec. 3764; R. S. of 1880.)

This section is not directed against cemetery associations or their trustees; nor does it relate to the remains of persons long buried and decomposed.

CHURCHES.

Section 9990. (When language of church service may be changed.) Any religious society incorporated under a general or special law of this state, and which act of incorporation prescribes that its public religious services shall be conducted in any other than the English language, by a vote of a majority of its adult members, in good and regular standing, who speak such prescribed language, may decide whether its public religious services, at any time shall be conducted in any other language. (R. S. Sec. 3772; May 8, 1868, 65 v. 163, § 1; S. & S. 162.)

Section 9991. (May sell cemetery grounds.) When a religious or educational corporation or society holds lands within the limits of a city or village which were used as a cemetery, and interments in which have been prohibited by the ordinances of such municipality, the trustees, wardens, vestry, or other officers intrusted with the management of the property of such corporation or society, may file a petition in the court of common pleas of the county where such property is situated, setting forth therein a description of it, the existence of such ordinance, and the names of all persons holding burial privileges in such cemetery, so far as known to them. If such privileges are held by persons whose names are unknown to them, the facts as to these they also must state, and ask that the value, if any, of such burial privileges be determined by the court, for its direction as to the removal of the bodies interred in such cemetery to other cemeteries and for an order to sell such property free from burial privileges. (R. S. Sec. 3773; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 189; April 13, 1889, 86 v. 294; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1867, 64 v. 103, § 1; S. & S. 164.)

Section 9992. (Notice and answer.) Notice of the filing of such petition shall be given by publication in some newspaper, printed and of general circulation in the county where it is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer thereof, and that any persons claiming an interest in its subject matter, or burial privileges in such cemetery, may appear and file an answer therein, within six weeks from the date of the first publication of such notice, and after which such case will stand for hearing. (R. S. Sec. 3773; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 189; April 13, 1889, 86 v. 294; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1867, 64 v. 103, § 1; S. & S. 164.)

Section 9993. (Judgment.) Upon final hearing of the case, if it be made to appear that such cemetery is as above described, with or without the aid of a jury, as the parties appearing elect, the court shall hear and determine the value, if any, of such burial privileges, and order the corporation or society to pay any amount so ascertained to the holder of such privilege. The court may also order the cemetery property sold, free from such burial privileges, and direct a subdivision of it into lots for the purpose of sale, and shall direct the application of the money arising therefrom, to such uses by such corporation or society, for pious or educational purposes, as the trustees, wardens, vestry, or other officers thereof conceive to be most for its interest. Such sale shall not be made until the bodies interred therein are removed to other cemeteries, as directed by the court on the final hearing of the case. (R. S. Sec. 3773; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 189; April 13, 1889, 86 v. 294; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1867, 64 v. 103, § 1; S. & S. 164.)

Section 9994. (Limitations.) A holder of a burial privilege who did not appear in such proceeding, and who has not waived his right to receive compensation for it, may assert his right to receive from such society or corporation, compensation therefor, within five years after the final entry of such proceedings. (R. S. Sec. 3773; April 11, 1890, 87 v. 189; April 13, 1889, 86 v. 294; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1867, 64 v. 103, § 1; S. & S. 164.)

Section 9995. (May transfer cemetery land.) When a religious or benevolent society or association owning real estate used or occupied as a burial place, the title to which is vested in such society or association, or the trustees thereof, desires to transfer such real estate to a cemetery association incorporated under any law of this state, the trustees or other officers entrusted with the management of the affairs of such society or association in the common pleas court of the county in which such real estate is situated, may file a petition stating how and by whom the title thereto is held, that such society or association desires to make such transfer, and asking for an order therefor. (R. S. Sec. 3773a; February 22, 1906, 98 v. 10.)

Section 9996. (Notice and answer.) Notice of the filing of such petition shall be given by publication in some newspaper printed and of general circulation in the county where it is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer thereof, and that persons claiming an interest in the subject matter may appear and file an answer therein within six weeks from the first publication of such notice. (R. S. Sec. 3773a; February 22, 1906, 98 v. 10.)

Section 9997. (Judgment.) At the expiration of such six weeks such case will stand for hearing, and if the court is satisfied that such transfer is desired by the members of such society or association, it may authorize the trustees or other officers thereof to make a good and sufficient deed therefor to such cemetery association. Such association shall assume all legal debts against the real estate so transferred. (R. S. Sec. 3773a; February 22, 1906, 98 v. 10.)

Section 9998. (Conveyance of burying ground to township.) When a public burying-ground is located on or near a township line, and is used by the people of two or more townships for burial purposes, the title of which is vested in a religious or benevolent society, such society, or the trustees thereof, may convey it to the trustees of such townships so using it, and their successors in office, jointly; and such trustees shall accept, jointly take possession of, and keep it in repair, as required as to public burial grounds in and belonging to the respective townships. Each township shall bear an equal share of the expenses thereof, and the trustees of each township shall levy needful taxes in that behalf, not more in any one year than one-fourth of one per cent. (R. S. Sec. 3773-1; April 6, 1893, 90 v. 151, § 1.)

Section 9999. (May apply to court for order to sell property.) When the title to real estate is vested in trustees for the use of churches or congregations of churches, and, owing to its peculiar situation or the nature of the trust or conditions upon which it is held, for twenty years such realty has not been claimed by or appropriated to the use of churches or congregations, as originally contemplated, and such trustees are in doubt as to what disposition to make of it, and when any public church site and meeting house has been abandoned by the public as a place of worship, and the trustees invested with the title to such property have sold it, and are in doubt as to what disposition to make of the proceeds thereof, in either case such trustees may file a petition in the common pleas court of the county where the property is situated, setting forth all the facts in the case, and asking its direction as to the proper disposition of such unappropriated property or proceeds. (R. S. Sec. 3774; April 10, 1868, 65 v. 84, § 1; S. & S. 164.)

See note to § 10051.

Section 10000. (Notice.) Notice of the filing of such petition must be given by publication in some newspaper printed and of general circulation in the county where it is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer thereof, and that a person, church, or congregation, claiming an interest in the subject matter of such petition, may appear and file an answer therein. (R. S. Sec. 3775; April 10, 1868, 65 v. 84, § 2; S. & S. 165.)

Section 10001. (Judgment.) On final hearing of the case the court shall make such order or decree as will best secure the rights of the churches or congregations, or persons having an interest therein, and best promote the interests of religion, having regard, as near as may be, to the nature and terms of the original trust or purpose with which such property or proceeds is charged, and tax the costs of the proceeding as justice requires. (R. S. Sec. 3775; April 10, 1868, 65 v. 84, § 2; S. & S. 165.)

Section 10002. (May convey church site to congregation; subject to judgment.) When real estate has been purchased by or conveyed to trustees for the use of churches or congregations, as sites for meeting houses, and such churches or congregations have erected houses of worship thereon, but no power is possessed by such trustees to convey such real estate to such congregations, or to the trustees thereof, such trustees may convey such improved sites to the trustees of such congregations. But when an incorporated religious congregation, society, association, sect, or denomination uses or occupies as and for a place of worship, real estate which is held in trust for it or the members thereof, as and for a place of worship, and a judgment is recovered against such corporation, the real estate together with such edifice and improvements thereon, by a civil action for that purpose, shall be subjected to the payment of such judgment and costs. (R. S. Sec. 3776; March 7, 1883, 80 v. 51; R. S. 1880; April 10, 1868, 65 v. 84, § 3; S. & S. 165.)

Section 10003. (How consent obtained.) An ecclesiastical society incorporated under the laws of this state connected with a church of Christ therein, by a three-fourths vote of its adult members present and voting at a meeting warned and held for that purpose, may assign, transfer and convey to the church with which it is connected, and which is incorporated under the laws of this state, all the property and estate, real and personal, and trust funds of such society to be held by such corporation under the trusts and for the uses upon which it had been held by such society. Pursuant to such vote, also, the society committee or trustees may make all conveyances necessary to complete such assignment and transfer. Before they shall be effectual, a certificate of the fact of such assignment and transfer shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and in the office of the clerk of the county in which the property is located. (R. S. Sec. 3776-1; April 8, 1891, 88 v. 298; March 12, 1890, 87 v. 56.)

Section 10004. (Consolidation.) When two or more religious societies, churches, or associations, recognizing the same ecclesiastical jurisdiction, form of faith, government, order, and discipline, and incorporated by or under any law of this state, desire to be consolidated or united as a single corporation, the elders, trustees, deacons, directors, or other known and legal representatives of such societies, churches, or associations, may enter into an agreement for such union or consolidation, and prescribe the terms and conditions thereof, the corporate name of such united society, church, or association, the time and place for the first meeting of the new corporation, the number of members of each separate branch or organization to be chosen as directors, trustees, elders, or other officers for the new body, to succeed to the rights, trusts, duties and obligations of those officers who, in the separate organizations, held in trust the estate, real and personal, of such separate churches, societies, or associations, with such other estates as they deem necessary to complete the new corporation. No agreement so made shall be valid until it has been submitted to a separate meeting of the members of each organization, of which due and full notice has been given, according to the form and usage for calling church, congregation, or society meetings, and ratified by a two-thirds vote of all present at such meeting, in person or by proxy and entitled to vote according to the laws, regulations, or usages of such church, society, or corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3777; 67 v. 30, § 1.)

The consolidation of separate religious corporations can only be effected in this state by conforming to §§ 10004, 10005 and 10006.

Presbyterian Society v. Markley, 10 N. P. n. s. 529 (1910).

See Prather v. Presbyterian Society, 13 N. P. n. s. 169, 178 (1912).

Dissenting members of one religious society can not maintain an action in its name to enjoin a proposed consolidation on the ground that the consolidation deprived such society of its property, where no request is made on its trustees to act. First Church v. Young, 21 N. P. n. s. 569 (1919); on appeal, judgment for defendant; motion to certify record overruled, 17 O. L. R. 304.

Section 10005. (Agreement to consolidate.) When the agreement has been ratified by each church, society, or association which is a party to the proposed united organization, the clerk or secretary of each meeting shall certify the record of the proceedings thereof, and deliver it to the clerk or secretary of the first meeting of the united churches, societies or organizations, as hereinbefore provided, and as specified in the terms of agreement. (R. S. Sec. 3778; April 2, 1870, 67 v. 30, § 2.)

Section 10006. (Articles of incorporation; filing.) If, at the first meeting of the united corporations, the proceedings and acts of the several churches, societies, and parties thereto are submitted to and approved by it, and a board of trustees, directors, or other officers are chosen in accordance with the terms of agreement, the clerk or secretary of the meeting shall certify such approved agreement or terms of union, and file it in the office of the secretary of state, whereupon the several churches, societies or associations, parties thereto, shall be one corporation, possessing within this state all the rights, privileges, and franchises, and subject to all the restrictions, disabilities, and duties, of such new corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3779; April 2, 1870, 67 v. 30, § 3.)

Section 10007. (Property passes to new corporation.) Such new corporation, with its officers and chosen representatives, shall succeed to, and be invested with, all the right, title and interest in and to every species of property, and all the rights, privileges and franchises of each of the churches, societies or associations parties to the agreement, without any other act, conveyance or transfer; and such new corporation shall hold and enjoy these with all the rights pertaining to such property, franchises, and trusts, and be subject to all the debts, liabilities, and obligations, in the manner and to the extent as any of the churches or societies parties thereto. (R. S. Sec. 3780; April 2, 1870, 67 v. 30, § 4.)

Section 10008. (Transfer of property after consolidation.) When two or more religious societies, denominations or ecclesiastical corporations in this state, unanimously form, or so have formed a union, and become united or consolidated under and by virtue of rules and regulations of such societies, denominations, or corporations, or laws of this state, the trustees, deacons, directors, or other proper officers of the new society, denomination, or corporation, at the request of a majority of the members of either of the societies, denominations, or corporations, may petition the common pleas court of the proper county, setting forth the fact of such union. Thereupon, in its discretion the court may order such officers, at the time of the union, to convey to the new organization the real estate owned and held by the parties to the union, as it directs, and that, if any of such officers neglect to obey such order, the decree shall serve as such conveyance. In no case shall the order be inconsistent with the original terms upon which real estate became vested in or intrusted to the parties to the union; and in all cases the grantors of the real estate to such parties, or their heirs, shall be made parties to the petition. Such of them as make no defense will not be subject to costs. (R. S. Sec. 3781; April 11, 1876, 73 v. 225, § 1.)

Section 10009. (Notice of application.) Notice of the pendency of such petition shall be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county where the petition is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer of the petition. (R. S. Sec. 3782; April 11, 1876, 73 v. 225, § 2.)

Section 10010. (Association for holding donations and bequests.) An association incorporated for the purpose of receiving and holding donations, bequests, and funds derived from other sources, and disbursing the interest and income arising therefrom as herein provided, shall hold all such principal sums as a permanent fund. The interest arising from such fund, and the annual income arising from all personal and real property held by the association, shall be applied and distributed annually as follows:

First. To the payment of the necessary expenses of the association.

Second. The balance shall be paid to the board of stewards, or any officer designated by the conference, synod, assembly or association within the bounds of which the principal office is located at the time of such organization, to be distributed by the board of stewards or such officer annually, to such persons as may be designated by the conference, synod, presbytery, assembly, or association. (R. S. Sec. 3783; April 20, 1874, 71 v. 110, §§ 1, 2, 3, 4.)

Where a trust is created for the benefit of an incorporated religious society, and there are two such bodies, each claiming to be such society, a court of equity may require the claimants to interplead and proceed to ascertain the true beneficiary, without compelling either party to establish its corporate rights at law.

Presbyterian Society v. Presbyterian Society, 25 O. S. 128 (1874).

Section 10011. (Endowment fund corporations.) When a presbytery, synod, conference, diocesan convention or other representative body of a religious denomination in this state, or when an assembly, synod, conference, convention or other general ecclesiastical body of a religious denomination held in the United States desires to create a board of trustees for an endowment fund or other property of the denomination represented by such body, and, at a regular meeting of such presbytery, synod, conference, diocesan convention or other representative body of such denomination in this state, or of such assembly, synod, conference, convention or other general ecclesiastical body in the United States, elects not less than five members of such denomination, one of whom is a resident freeholder in this state, to serve as trustees, and makes and files in the office of the secretary of state a statement, giving the names of such trustees, the character of the endowment fund or other property to be intrusted to their care, and the uses to which it is to be applied, signed by the proper presiding officer and the secretary or clerk of such body, acknowledged before a clerk of a court of record, notary public or a judicial officer having a seal, and the signing of it is duly attested by such officer, and the statement thus authenticated is recorded in the secretary of state's office, the persons named in such statement as trustees thereupon, with their successors in office, shall become a body corporate and politic for the purpose in such statement specified. A copy of the record, duly certified by the secretary of state, shall be evidence of the existence of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3784; March 21, 1894, 91 v. 83; April 21, 1890, 87 v. 243; April 20, 1874, 71 v. 118, § 1.)

A foreign religious society may acquire property in Ohio by devise of bequest, in the absence of a prohibiting statute.

Liability for inheritance tax.

See Humphreys v. State, 70 O. S. 67 (1904).

A religious society, receiving a gift, may agree to pay an annuity to the giver during his life. Such an agreement is not an insurance contract. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1655.

Section 10012. (Power of trustees.) Such trustees, if chosen to take charge of an endowment fund, may invest, manage, and dispose of it in accordance with the purpose for which it was created, subject to such regulations as the body by which they were elected from time to time prescribe. (R. S. Sec. 3785; April 20, 1874, 71 v. 118, § 3.)

Section 10013. (Power of trustees of a religious society.) If the trustees are chosen to take charge of and manage other property owned or acquired by such religious denomination, they may hold, invest, control, and manage it, for the benefit of the denomination within the presbytery, synod, conference, diocese, or other ecclesiastical territorial limits represented by the trustees, subject to the direction of the proper representative body of such denomination within such limits. If a parish or congregation, connected with the denomination represented by the trustees becomes extinct, by reason of the death or dispersion of its members, the trustees may take possession of the church property of the parish, congregation, or society, whether real or personal, and rent, lease, sell, invest or otherwise dispose of it for the benefit of the denomination represented by them, within the territorial limits represented by the body by which they were appointed, and subject to such regulations as such body prescribes. All property held by such trustees, and the proceeds thereof, shall be applied to the use and benefit of the proper denomination within this state. (R. S. Sec. 3786; February 23, 1882, 79 v. 14; R. S. 1880; April 24, 1877, 74 v. 110, § 1.)

A finding that a certain amount is due from an unincorporated church is not a judgment, but constitutes a debt of record. The real debtors are the members of the church who authorized or acquiesced in the creation of the debt. Funds subsequently accumulated by a congregation composed of other members can not be subjected to the payment of such debt.

Males v. Murray, 3 C. C. n. s. 671; 13 C. D. 396 (1902); affirming, 7 N. P. 614; 10 L. D. 373.

Section 10015. (When and how property of extinct corporations sold.) When a parish, congregation, or society becomes extinct, as mentioned in the second preceding section, the common pleas court of the county in which real property of such extinct parish, congregation, or society is situated, upon the petition of the trustees of the denomination to which the extinct parish, congregation, or society belonged, may make an order for the sale of the property, whether built upon, or otherwise improved, or not, the proceeds of the sale to go to, and be for the benefit of, the denomination represented by such trustees, within the territorial limits represented by the body by which they were appointed. The purchaser thereof shall be vested with as full and complete a title to the property as the character of the original grant to such parish, congregation or society will allow. This section shall not limit, or in any degree restrict, the powers conferred by the three preceding sections upon such trustees. (R. S. Sec. 3787; April 24, 1877, 74 v. 110, § 2.)

Section 10016. (Duties of trustees as to money received from sales.) All money derived from the sale of property under the provisions of the preceding section, shall be placed in the custody of the trustees of the presbytery, synod, conference, diocese, or other ecclesiastical body having jurisdiction in the territorial limits in which the property was located, and they shall hold it in trust for ten years, or for such period as is prescribed by the law of the denomination. If within that time another parish, congregation or society of the same denomination is organized in the same locality, then the court authorizing the sale of the property, upon proper application and evidence may authorize the return of the money to the trustees of the new organization. Otherwise it shall become a part of the funds of the presbytery, synod, conference, diocese, or other ecclesiastical body having jurisdiction. (R. S. Sec. 3787a; March 22, 1889, 86 v. 132, 133.)

Section 10017. (Parties to procedure for sale.) When a petition is filed, as provided for in the second preceding section, all persons who have a vested, contingent or reversionary interest in the real estate shall be made parties thereto, and be notified of the filing and pendency thereof, in the manner provided by law in cases of the partition of real estate. The court may make such order as to costs as it deems just. (R. S. Sec. 3788; April 24, 1877, 74 v. 110, § 3.)

Section 10018. (Incorporation of printing and publishing houses.) When a conference, presbytery, assembly, association, or other general ecclesiastical body held in the United States, in conformity with the rules and regulations prescribed by such body, elects any number of persons, not less than three, as trustees or directors of a printing and publishing house, to hold such office until their successors are elected by that body, and a certificate of the election of such persons setting forth the name by which the corporation is to be known, signed by the clerk, secretary, or other like officer of such body, together with the written acceptance of such office by the persons so elected thereto, is filed in the office of the secretary of state, such trustees shall be duly incorporated, by the name in such certificate set forth. (R. S. Sec. 3789; March 18, 1871, 68 v. 43, § 1.)

Section 10019. (Expired corporations.) A corporation established by special act of the legislature for the purpose named in the preceding section, and whose charter has expired, may be renewed by a compliance with the provisions of that section on the part of the religious sect, association or denomination to which such corporation belonged, or under the direction of which it was carried on; and the title to all property belonging to such former corporation at the expiration of its charter, real, personal or mixed, shall pass to and be vested in the corporation so established. (R. S. Sec. 3790; March 18, 1871, 68 v. 43, § 2.)

Section 10020. (Lands to descend in trust.) Lands and tenements not exceeding twenty acres that have been or may be conveyed by devise, purchase or otherwise to any person or persons as trustee or trustees in trust for the use of a religious society within this state, either for a meeting house, burying-ground or residence for their preacher, shall descend, with the improvement and appurtenances, in perpetual succession, in trust to such trustee or trustees as from time to time are elected or appointed by any such religious society, according to their respective rules, customs, usages and regulations. (R. S. Sec. 3779-1; March 20, 1894, 91 v. 79; 23 v. 9; Chase, p. 1460; Curwen, p. 2347.)

The restriction of this section, to twenty acres, applies only to the land used for purposes of worship in one place.

Section 10022. (Legal title to lands.) Property conveyed in trust for the use of a religious society, church or association, whether incorporated or not, shall be held by the trustee or trustees, so appointed, and their successors, appointed as provided in the instrument creating the trust, or in case no provision is made in such instrument, then by such successor or successors, as are appointed by a competent court. But no person shall be elected or appointed by such society, church or association, to act as trustees, to the exclusion of any trustee or trustees, appointed as aforesaid. (R. S. Sec. 3779-3; March 23, 1850, 48 v. 71; Curwen, p. 1554.)

Where conveyances are made to individual trustees instead of the corporation such individual grantees are trustees for the corporation, and on sale receive the proceeds to its use.

Methodist Church v. Wood, 5 Ohio 283 (1831).

GENERAL OR CENTRAL RELIGIOUS SOCIETIES.

Section 10022-1. (Incorporation of cathedrals or other religious societies.) When a diocesan convention or other representative body of any religious denomination in this state desires the incorporation of a cathedral or other central or general religious society or church of its denomination, having, in addition to local religious, educational or charitable functions, a general charge of such, and missionary functions in the diocese, or other ecclesiastical territory in this state represented by said body, and, at any regular meeting of such representative body, elects not less than five members of such denomination, one of whom shall be a resident freeholder in this state, to serve as members of the chapter thereof, or as trustees, until the election of their successors, and makes a statement, giving the names of such members or trustees, the character of the endowment fund or other property, donations or appropriations, to be intrusted to their care, and the uses to which they are to be applied and their general rights, powers and duties, and the corporate name by which they are to be known, and such statement, is signed, certified, attested, acknowledged, filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state in accordance with the provisions of section 10011, the persons so named in such statement shall, thereupon, with their successors in office, under such corporate name, become a body corporate and politic, for the purposes in such statement specified; and a copy of such record, duly certified by the secretary of state, shall be evidence of the existence of such corporation. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 133.)

Section 10022-2. (Constitution.) Any representative body, creating a corporation under the provisions of section 10022-1 may provide a constitution, not inconsistent with the statement provided for therein, or with the law of this state, for the government of such corporation, and amend the same from time to time; and determine the number, and limit the terms of the members of the chapter, or trustees, and may provide for and designate at any time, a certain number, or proportion of ex-officio members of the chapter thereof, or trustees, and may provide for a certain number, or proportion of members or trustees, to be elected or designated ex-officio by other congregations, or bodies, of the same religious denominations in the same diocese, or ecclesiastical territory, in addition to the aforesaid members, or trustees, to be elected by said representative body, said additional classes of members, or trustees, not constituting a majority of the whole chapter, or board, and having otherwise the same qualifications as those elected by such representative body; and may determine the ratio of clerical to lay membership upon such chapter or board; and may include the whole, or any part of such designations, and provisions, either in the original statement provided for in section 10022-1, or in such constitution. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 134.)

Section 10022-3. (Endowment fund controlled by trustees.) Members of the chapter or trustees of corporations under section 10022-1 and section 10022-2, if chosen to take charge of any endowment fund, may invest, manage and dispose of the same in accordance with the purpose for which it was created, subject to such constitutional regulations as such representative body may from time to time prescribe. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 134.)

Section 10022-4. (Surrender of corporate existence or franchise and consolidation.) When one or more parishes, or other religious societies, represented by the same diocesan convention, or other representative body of any religious denomination in this state, and incorporated by, or under, any law of this state, desires, or desire at the same, or different times, to surrender its or their corporate existence and franchises, and that representatives and their successors, to be elected by its or their congregations, be consolidated as a single corporation, with any corporation created by the same representative body, under the foregoing section 10022-1, under the name, and with the rights, powers and duties of the last aforesaid corporation, the rector, wardens and vestry, or other known legal trustees of such parishes, or other religious societies, and the members of the chapter, or trustees of such corporation under said section 10022-1, may enter into an agreement for such consolidation; and prescribe therein the terms and conditions thereof, the time and place for the first meeting of the members of the chapter, or the trustees constituting the consolidated corporation, the number, or proportion, and time and manner of election of the members of each of said congregations, who shall first, and as their successors, be chosen as members of the chapter of, or trustees of the consolidated corporation, additional to those provided, designated or elected by such representative body, to succeed, with the last aforesaid, to the rights, trusts, duties and obligations of those members, officers or trustees, who in the separate, or original organizations held in trust, or in corporate capacity, the estate of such separate, or original corporations, with such other estates as they may deem necessary to complete the consolidated corporation; but an agreement so made shall not be valid until it has been submitted to, and ratified by, separate meetings of the members of each of said parishes, or societies, in accordance with the provisions of section 10004, and has also been submitted to, and ratified by, such representative body at one of its regular meetings. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 134.)

Section 10022-5. (Merger of corporations; what sections govern.) When a corporation is being, or has been merged with, or into, another, or new corporation, under the provisions of section 10022-4, said merger and the consolidated, or new corporation, resulting therefrom shall be, in substance, subject to, and governed by, the provisions of sections 10005, 10006 and 10007 of this chapter, so far as the same are, in their nature, or by analogy, applicable thereto. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 134.)

Section 10022-6. (Ratification. Evidence.) If, before the creation of a corporation under section 10022-1, for the purposes therein provided, any parish, or religious society, described in section 10022-4, has been acting, by authority of its diocesan convention, or other representative body, as a part of, or in connection with any unincorporated subordinate agency, or body, in whole or in part, chosen, designated, or provided by such representative body, for some, or any, of the same, or similiar purposes, an agreement for consolidation, such as is provided in section 10022-4, may be made, in anticipation of the creation of such corporation under said section 10022-1, by and between, the said several parties who, as aforesaid, have been acting together; but an agreement so made shall not be valid until submitted and ratified, on both parts, as in the foregoing section 10022-4 provided; and thereupon the statement pursuant to the creation of a corporation under section 10022-1 and therein provided for, shall include the terms of said agreement and, on being signed, certified, attested, acknowledged, filed and recorded as in section 10022-1 provided, shall have all the effect of the provisions of section 10022-1, section 10022-4, section 10005, section 10006 and section 10007 of this chapter; and a copy of such record, duly certified by the secretary of state, shall be evidence of such consolidation and of the existence of the new corporation. (May 17, 1911, 102 v. 134.)

WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Section 10023. (Women's christian association may procure homes.) Every women's christian association incorporated under the laws of Ohio, having and maintaining a branch or department as a retreat for unfortunate or fallen women, shall have all the powers and authority conferred upon children's homes, incorporated under the laws of this state, in placing, indenturing, and procuring the adoption in private families of children who are born in such retreats of the inmates thereof, and who are abandoned or deserted by their parents, and the supervision over them after they have been so placed or adopted. (R. S. Sec. 3794-1; April 18, 1892, 89 v. 405.)

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Section 10024. (State association, approval of.) A society of men conducting religious services, performing christian work and co-operating for the mutual benefit of the membership, shall be known as a young men's christian association not for profit. When such a society has received the approval of the state association, and files its application and certificate of approval with the secretary of state and paid a fee of ten dollars he shall cause to be issued to it these articles of incorporation. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 396, § 1.)

The work of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. is of a charitable nature. These institutions may operate employment agencies without a license under G. C. § 893. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 325.

Section 10025. (Management, control, etc.) The management and control of the association shall be vested in five or more trustees. They may be elected for a term of not less than one nor more than five years, but the term of office of an equal number must expire each year. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 396, § 2.)

Section 10026. (Powers of trustees.) The association may adopt regulations for its government. Its trustees may provide rules for the business of the association and for the conduct of the members, departments, branches, committees, officers, employes and guests. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 396, § 3.)

An association incorporated for the "spiritual, mental, moral, social and physical" improvement of young men, may prescribe courses of study and confer degrees on graduates.

5 Opins. Atty. Gen. 61 (1900).

Section 10027. (Branches, organization of.) The association may conduct such work and organize such departments as are deemed by its trustees necessary to attain the purposes of the organization; and organize through its trustees under such rules as they adopt, branches which may become co-ordinate parts of the association. It also may receive dues, fees, fines, assessments and contributions from the members and apply them to their designated use; and accept legacies, devises, bequests, savings, donations and other grants and administer them. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 4.)

This section does not authorize the association to conduct a savings bank department for the benefit of its members or others.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 90.

Section 10028. (Power to hold property.) The association may acquire, hold, convey, lease, encumber by mortgage, improve and otherwise handle any real or personal property, necessary or convenient to enable it to carry out its aims and objects, but its property shall not be liable for any debt or obligation contracted without the approval of the board of trustees. In all respects it may deal with minors the same as it deals with adults. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 5.)

The association can not mortgage its property without complying with § 10051 et seq.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 90.

Section 10029. (Dissolution, where filed.) Subject to the contract rights of its members, by a majority vote of the membership and by filing with the secretary of state a copy of the certificate of their action, an association may dissolve. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 5.)

Section 10030. (State organization.) The young men's christian associations in Ohio may unite and constitute the state association for the supervision and conduct of their work in the state. The associations affiliated with the state association, through their representatives, may make such regulations as they deem necessary; choose such officers as they determine upon and delegate such duties as they desire for the conduct of the work in the state to a state committee to be chosen as the state association decides. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 6.)

Regulations properly adopted are binding upon local associations, which are members of the state association, and may be enforced against such local associations.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 90.

Section 10031. (Power of state association.) The state association may incorporate and exercise the privileges of this chapter. When so incorporated and organized it may receive young men's christian associations into affiliation, and may pass upon all applications for the incorporation of such associations, causing to be affixed thereto, a certificate of its approval. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 6.)

The state association may, in its discretion, refuse the application of an association.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 90.

Section 10032. (Financial statement.) Every affiliated association must file with the state association a copy of its constitution, rules and regulations; and annually thereafter any changes therein, together with a schedule of its property; a financial statement, and such report of its activity as the state association determines. Once a year to the auditor of state the state association must make a statistical report and summary of the associations reporting to it. Nothing herein shall limit or restrict any power or authority now or hereafter conferred upon any corporation not for profit. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 397, § 7.)

BENEVOLENT.

Section 10033. (Fiscal trustees of women's benevolent associations.) A benevolent or charitable association incorporated by or under the laws of this state, and of which women are or may be trustees, managers, or directors, may vest the custody, control, and management of all its endowment or capital, funds, and property in three male trustees, to be styled fiscal trustees, to be appointed from time to time, as follows: One by the common pleas court of the county where such association is located, one by the probate court of such county, and one by the vote of a majority of the members of such association present at a regular meeting duly convoked. Such trustees shall hold their offices for three years, except the first appointed, who shall hold office respectively for one, two and three years. They must meet in the presence of the probate judge, and, by agreement, or by lot if they can not agree, allot themselves accordingly, and the judge shall give to each a certificate of his term. Upon the death, resignation, incapacity, or removal from the county of either of such trustees, the vacancy must be filled for the unexpired term by the same appointing power. (R. S. Sec. 3791; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 524, § 1; S. & S. 51.)

Section 10034. (When appointed.) Trustees shall not be appointed except upon the written request of the association, filed in the probate court, in accordance with a resolution by it adopted, at a regular meeting thereof, duly convoked. Until such appointment the association at a regular meeting may elect any number of such trustees, not less than three, with such power and subject to such duties, to hold their office for such time not more than three years, as the association by its by-laws determines. (R. S. Sec. 3791; May 13, 1878, 75 v. 524, § 1; S. & S. 51.)

Section 10035. (Powers of fiscal trustees.) Such trustees shall have the exclusive right and authority, in the name and behalf of such association, to demand, take, and possess all the endowment or capital, funds, or property which the association has or may be entitled to, and these securely to manage, invest, change, and dispose of at their will, for the use and benefit of the association, so as to yield a regular income. Every three months, or oftener if necessary and convenient, they must give account of all such funds, property and income to the proper board of trustees, managers or directors of the association, and collect at such times, and pay over to them or their order, all the net income of such investments, after deducting the actual necessary expenses of the trust. No charge or allowance for their service shall be made or permitted. (R. S. Sec. 3792; March 30, 1864, 61 v. 87, § 2; S. & S. 52.)

Section 10036. (Limitation of powers.) For such purposes, in the name of the association, the trustees may contract and be contracted with, prosecute and defend suits, and receive, hold, and dispose of, all money and property which the association may have, acquire or be entitled to, by gift, purchase or otherwise, for its endowment, and when necessary for such purposes, use the common seal of the corporation. But they shall not have or exercise any power, or control over the institution or affairs of the corporation, other than its fiscal affairs as hereinbefore limited, nor be liable for its debts, or for anything but their own acts or negligence. (R. S. Sec. 3792; March 30, 1864, 61 v. 87, § 2; S. & S. 52.)

Section 10037. (Other associations may accept provisions.) A benevolent or charitable association hereafter formed, coming within the purview of the third and fourth preceding sections may make the provisions of the four preceding sections part of its articles of incorporation. Such an association now incorporated under general or special law, also may accept such provisions, by a vote of the majority of the members present at a regular meeting. When so accepted, and a certified copy of such acceptance is filed in the office of the secretary of state, the provisions of the four preceding sections shall be a part of its charter. (R. S. Sec. 3793; March 30, 1864, 61 v. 87, § 3; S. & S. 52.)

Section 10038. (Consolidation of charitable or benevolent institutions.) When two or more charitable or benevolent associations, societies or organizations formed or incorporated by or under any law of this state for charitable or benevolent purposes, desire to be consolidated or united as a single corporation, or when two or more charitable or benevolent associations, societies or organizations, one or more of which is, or may be, incorporated under Ohio law for charitable or benevolent purposes, desire to be consolidated or united as a single corporation, the trustees, directors or other known legal representatives, governing body or bodies, of such associations, societies or organizations may enter into an agreement for such union or consolidation and prescribe its terms and conditions; also, a corporate name for such united association, society or organization, which may be that of either one of them, or a new name, the time and place for the first meeting of the new corporations, the number of members of one or more or of each separate branch or organization to be chosen as directors, trustees, or other officers of the new corporation to succeed to the rights, trusts, duties and obligations of those officers who in either of the separate organizations held in trust the estate, real and personal, of the separate association, society or organization, with such other estates as they may deem necessary to complete the new corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3793a; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 136.)

Benevolent or charitable institutions are authorized to consolidate in Ohio, however diverse may be their methods of work.

An organization whose main purpose is to promote the temporal, moral or intellectual uplift of others, without pecuniary reward to itself or its promoters, is a benevolent organization within the meaning of the statute authorizing benevolent and charitable institutions to consolidate.

That donations have been made to a benevolent institution with certain conditions of reverter, which would be violated by the consolidation of the said institution with another, is not ground for equitable interference with such a proposed consolidation.

The statute providing for the consolidation of benevolent institutions is neither retroactive nor in impairment of contracts and is constitutional, notwithstanding the charters of the two organizations which are proposing to consolidate under it were granted prior to this enactment.

The proceeding provided by statute for the consolidation of benevolent or charitable corporations is not violative of the "due process of law" clause of the Federal constitution.

Dunham v. Kauffman, 10 N. P. n. s. 49; 20 L. D. 274 (C. P. 1910).

Societies organized to further the cause of temperance generally or among a certain defined class of persons are "charitable or benevolent" organizations within the meaning of this section and may consolidate.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 69.

Section 10039. (Agreement to be submitted to each organization.) No agreement so made shall be valid until it has been submitted to a separate meeting of the members of each of the associations, societies or organizations, of which due and full notice has been given according to the form and usage for calling meetings of each of such associations, societies or organizations, and ratified by a two-thirds vote of all the members present at the meeting, in person or by proxy, entitled to vote according to the laws, regulations or usages of such associations, societies, organizations or corporations, respectively. (R. S. Sec. 3793a; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 136.)

Section 10040. (Record of ratification of agreement.) When such agreement has been ratified by each association, society, organization or corporation which is a party to the proposed united organization, the clerk or secretary of each meeting shall certify the record of the proceedings thereof, and deliver it to the clerk or secretary of the first meeting of the united association, society, organization or corporation, as herein provided and as specified in the terms of agreement. (R. S. Sec. 3793b; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10041. (Who entitled to vote; agreement to be filed.) At the first meeting of the united association, society, organization or corporation, each member of each of such associations, societies, organizations or corporations will be entitled to vote. If at the meeting the proceedings and acts of the several associations, societies, organizations or corporations, parties thereto, are submitted to and approved by it, and a board of trustees, directors or other officers are chosen, in accordance with the terms of the agreement, the clerk or secretary of the meeting shall certify the approved agreement or terms of union and file it in the office of the secretary of state, whereupon the several associations, societies, organizations or corporations, parties thereto, shall be one corporation under the name by it adopted, possessing within this state all the rights, privileges and franchises, and subject to all the restrictions, disabilities and duties of the new corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3793c; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10042. (Acts may be perfected subsequently.) Any of the acts provided for by the preceding section, which are not done or perfected at such first meeting may be done and perfected at a subsequent or adjourned meeting of the united corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3793d; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10043. (Recording of certificate.) The certificate to the secretary of state provided for by the second preceding section shall be by him recorded, and a copy duly certified by him recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of the county where such corporation exists. It may be recorded in the office of the recorder of deeds of any county where real estate lies belonging to any of such associations, societies, organizations or corporations entering into the union. (R. S. Sec. 3793e; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10044. (Evidence of corporate existence.) A certified copy of the certificate by the recorder of either county in whose office it is recorded, or a copy certified by the secretary of state of the record in his office, shall be prima facie evidence of the existence of such corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3793e; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10045. (Constitution and by-laws.) The united corporation may adopt a constitution, by-laws and rules, consistent with the laws of this state, and amend them under such provisions for amendment as it at any time adopts. (R. S. Sec. 3793f; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10046. (Rights and powers of new corporations.) The various associations, societies, organizations or corporations entering into such union shall be merged in such united body and the new corporation with its officers and chosen directors, trustees or other representatives shall succeed to, and be vested with, all the right, title and interest in and to every species of property, and all the rights, privileges and franchises held by or vested in each of such associations, societies, organizations or corporations, parties to the agreement, without any other act, conveyance or transfer. The new corporation shall hold and enjoy these, with all the rights pertaining to such property, franchises and trusts, and be subject to all the debts, liabilities and obligations in the manner and to the extent as was any of the associations, societies, organizations or corporations, parties to the new corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3793g; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 137.)

Section 10047. (How property held in trust governed.) Real estate or other property vested in or held by either of such associations, societies or organizations or corporations under any trusts or terms governing the grant, shall continue to be subject to such trust and controlled by the original terms under which the real estate or property became vested in or entrusted to the parties to the union. (R. S. Sec. 3793h; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 138.)

Section 10048. (Petition for conveyance, judgment and effect.) The united corporation at the request of a majority of its members, or by act of its trustees, directors or other governing bodies, in its corporate name may petition the common pleas court of the proper county, setting forth the fact of such union, which court in its discretion may make an order requiring such officers to convey to the new corporation the real estate owned and held by the parties to the union, as it directs. If any of the officers refuse or neglect to obey such order, the decree therefor shall serve as such conveyance. The order in no case shall be inconsistent with the original terms under which the real estate became vested in, or entrusted to, the parties to the union. In all cases the grantors of the real estate to such parties, or their heirs, or such other parties as the petitioners deem advisable, may be made defendants to the petition. Defendants who make no defense shall not be subject to costs. (R. S. Sec. 3793i; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 138.)

Section 10049. (Notice of petition.) Notice of the pendency of the petition must be given by publication in a newspaper published in the county where the petition is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3793j; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 138.)

Section 10050. (Subsequent consolidations of union associations.) After the creation of a united corporation under the provisions of the preceding sections relating thereto, any one or more associations, societies, organizations or corporations of like character, at any time may unite with and become a part of such corporation in accordance with such provisions. (R. S. Sec. 3793k; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 138.)

Section 10051. (May sell or incumber real estate, how.) When a charitable or religious society or association desires to sell, lease, exchange or incumber by mortgage or otherwise any real estate owned by it, or held in trust by it for a specified religious or charitable purpose, or held for its use or benefit by trustees either chosen by it or otherwise constituted, for any such purpose, except grounds used or occupied as burial places for the dead, the trustees, wardens and vestry, or other officers intrusted with the management of the affairs of such society or association or holding the title to such property, or such society or association itself, if it be incorporated under any law of this state, in the common pleas court of the county in which the real estate is situated may file a petition stating how and by whom the title thereto is held, that such society or association desires to make the sale, lease, exchange or incumbrance and setting forth the object thereof. If upon the hearing of the case it appears that such sale, exchange, lease or incumbrance is desired by the members of the society or association and that it is right and proper that authority be given to accomplish it, the court may authorize the trustees or other officers of the society or association, or if incorporated the society or association itself, to sell, lease, exchange or incumber such real estate in accordance with the prayer of the petition and upon such terms as the court deems reasonable. (107 v. 173;

A stranger may not take advantage of the want of a court order under this section. A sale without such an order is voidable and subject only to direct attack by persons having a right to object at the time and upon grounds sufficient to have defeated the order. Sullivan v. Agricultural Soc., 23 N. P. n. s. 49 (1918).

See Ashland v. Greiner, 58 O. S. 67 (1898).

Section 10052. (Notice of pendency and prayer of petition.) The petitioners shall cause notice of the pendency and prayer of the petition to be published in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where the real estate proposed to be sold, leased, exchanged or incumbered is situated for four consecutive weeks, before the application is heard. (107 v. 173; R. S. Sec. 3795; April 17, 1882, 79 v. 108, 109; April 8, 1880, 77 v. 122; R. S. 1880; March 24, 1860, 57 v. 85, § 3; S. & C. 372a.)

Section 10053. (Procedure when property held in trust and trustees refuse to file petition.) In case the title to the property is held for the use or benefit of such society or association by trustees, all or a majority of whom are not chosen thereby but otherwise constituted, and who refuse upon request of such society or association, or its duly elected trustees, wardens and vestry or other officers, to file such petition, upon the petition of the society or association or its duly elected trustees or other officers, the court may require the trustees holding the title to lease, convey or incumber the real estate in accordance with the prayer of the petition and upon terms it deems reasonable. But all trustees holding title and refusing to file or join in the petition must be made defendants therein and be served with summons as in civil action. (107 v. 173; R. S. Sec. 3794; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 397; April 17, 1882, 79 v. 108; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 87, §§ 1, 2; S. & S. 163; S. & C. 371, 372.)

Section 10054. (Interconveyance of property.) The trustees of a church organization, religious or charitable society or association, or such organization, religious, or charitable society or association itself, if incorporated, and all persons holding title to property in trust therefor, may upon a two-thirds vote of the members of the organization connected therewith if there be such present and voting at a meeting duly called and held for that purpose, lease, transfer, convey or incumber it to other trustees of the same denomination, or to the trustees of such organization, society or association itself of the same denomination if incorporated under the law of this state. But the lease, transfer, conveyance or incumbrance shall be made only when the property so transferred, leased or incumbered, or the proceeds thereof, or the revenue arising from the use thereof, is still to be used for the religious, missionary or church purposes of said denominations, or, if a charitable organization, for the specified charitable purpose. (107 v. 174; R. S. Sec. 3794a; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 397; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 321.)

Section 10055. (Title guaranteed.) When the trustees or other officers mentioned in the preceding sections heretofore have sold and conveyed by deed in fee simple or mortgaged any real estate therein mentioned, without proceeding as required by such sections, and the grantees thereof, and their successors in line of title, for five years since the date of such conveyance, held continued, exclusive, notorious and adverse possession of the real estate so conveyed, such sales, conveyances and mortgages shall have the same validity and effect as if they had been made by proceedings instituted under such sections and duly confirmed by the court of common pleas. (R. S. Sec. 3794b; April 12, 1898, 93 v. 101.)

Section 10056. (Sale or incumbrance to be confirmed by the court.) The trustees or other officers of such religious society, authorized to make a such sale, lease, exchange or incumbrance, shall make return thereof to the court ordering it, at such time as it orders. Thereupon, if satisfied that the sale, lease, exchange or incumbrance was made according to its order, the court shall approve it, and order that the proceeds be invested in other real estate for the use of the society, used in payments of its debts, or otherwise invested or disposed of according to the prayer of the petition. (107 v. 173; R. S. Sec. 3796; April 17, 1882, 79 v. 108, 109; April 8, 1880, 77 v. 122; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 87, § 2; S. & C. 372a.)

Section 10057. (Secret benevolent association may invest reserve funds.) A secret benevolent association, or society incorporated under or by the laws of the state, which has reserve or accumulated funds, or moneys, held by them for the purpose of endowment of the widows, orphans, families, blood relatives or heirs of the members of the society or association, or for purely charitable purposes, may invest such funds or moneys upon interest, but must take securities for the investment upon real or personal property, or otherwise, as the society or association deems fit. (R. S. Sec. 3796a; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 355; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 146.)

Section 10058. (May elect trustees to manage funds.) Such an association or society may elect a board of trustees, consisting of not less than three members, and entrust to them the right to manage, control, take charge of, invest, collect, demand, receive and deposit all reserves, surplus or accumulated funds or moneys, which the association or society holds from time to time for the purpose of such endowments as are named in the preceding section. (R. C. Sec. 3796b; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 146.)

The funds of a society, organized to assist its sick and needy members, can not, without a change in its constitution, be applied to religious purposes.

Podesta v. Societa, 10 C. C. 19; 6 C. D. 210 (1895).

Section 10059. (Society to fix terms, define duties, etc.) Such an association or society by by-law may define and limit the term of office of each of such trustees; define their duties and powers, and also those of the board of trustees; remove either one for good cause, and fill all vacancies occurring in the board. It also shall demand from each of the trustees security for the faithful performance of their several duties, as it deems fit; cause investments to be made by them in the name or names of either or all, in which name or names also suit may be brought; and may empower the trustees to discharge, acquit, and release all claims or demands of the association or society upon payment thereof. The trustees may sue for a claim or demand, for a loan or investment made by the association or society; and upon foreclosure of a mortgage held by the association or society for an investment or loan, may purchase and hold any lands, tenement or interest in land, in fee or otherwise and lease, rent, sell and convey it by deed. (R. S. Sec. 3796c; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 146.)

Section 10060. (Powers conferred by law.) Such an association or society may sue or be sued, answer or be answered unto, plead or be impleaded in any court in this state. (R. S. Sec. 3796d; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 146.)

Section 10061. (Powers of society.) Such an association or society may accept and receive any donation or voluntary contribution, collect its assessments, which shall not exceed one-fifth of one per cent of the amount payable at the death of a member; and pay endowments in the mode and to the persons named and provided by its laws but in no case exceeding in the aggregate five thousand dollars on the death of any one member. (R. S. Sec. 3786e; April 9, 1880, 77 v. 146.)

Section 10061-1. (Lodge may hold real estate. Conveyance. Notice to lodge members. Attestation.) That any unincorporated lodge or other subordinate body of any society or order which is duly chartered by its grand lodge or body, may take and hold real estate for its own use and benefit, by lease, purchase, grant, devise, gift or otherwise, and loan its funds and secure the same or any unpaid purchase money by mortgage on otherwise unincumbered real estate, may borrow money and execute and deliver notes or bonds and mortgages on real property of the lodge to secure the same in and by the name and number of said lodge or other subordinate body according to the register of the respective grand lodge or body. The presiding officer of such lodge or other subordinate body, together with the secretary or officer keeping the records thereof, may make conveyance, leases or mortgages of any real estate belonging to such lodge or other subordinate body when authorized by a vote of the members present at a regular meeting held by said lodge or other subordinate body, after at least ten days' notice has been given to all members of said lodge or other subordinate body, by mailing a written notice of said proposed action to the last known postoffice address of all such members, under the rules and regulations of the lodge or other subordinate body, and not in conflict with the regulations provided by the respective grand lodge or body. All such conveyances, leases or mortgages shall be in the name of the lodge, attested by the presiding officer and secretary, or other officer in charge of the records, shall have affixed the seal of such lodge or other subordinate body, and any mortgage taken by lodge or other subordinate body in its name and number may, when paid and satisfied, be released by the presiding officer and secretary or officer keeping the records thereof, attested by the seal of the lodge or other subordinate body. (110 v. 88; 101 v. 207.)

Section 10062. (Ohio humane society.) The Ohio state society for the prevention of cruelty to animals, shall remain a body corporate, under the name of "the Ohio humane society," with the powers, privileges, immunities, and duties heretofore possessed by such society, hereinafter specified as to county societies, and may appoint any person, in a county where there is no such active society, to represent the state society, and to receive and account for all funds coming to that society, from fines or otherwise. (R. C. Sec. 3714; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 207; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 21.)

A contract between a humane society and a city whereby the society agrees to enforce an ordinance relating to dogs running at large is ultra vires. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 243.

This section and other statutes making certain acts of cruelty to animals an offense, and affixing a penalty, are constitutional.

Beamer v. State, 21 C. C. 440; 12 C. D. 4 (1901).

As to matters not covered by the federal twenty-eight hour live stock shipment law, such statutes are valid and enforceable as applied to interstate shipments of live stock.

Meeks, etc., Co. v. Humane Co., 12 N. P. n. s. 625; 22 L. D. 517 (1912).

Section 10063. (Objects and power to acquire property.)

The objects of such society, and all societies organized under sections ten thousand and sixty-seven and ten thousand and sixty-eight, shall be the inculcation of humane principles, the enforcement of laws for the prevention of cruelty, especially to children and animals, to promote which objects such societies may respectively acquire property, real or personal, by purchase or gift. All property acquired by gift, devise, or bequest, for special purposes, shall be vested in a board of trustees consisting of three members elected by the society, which board must manage such property, and apply it in accordance with the terms of the gift, devise, or bequest, with power to sell it and re-invest the proceeds. (R. S. Sec. 3714; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 207; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 21.)

Certificate from board of state charities required before filing articles of incorporation of association for care of dependent, neglected or delinquent children. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2436; G. C. § 1352-2.

Section 10064. (Officers and rules.) Such society may elect such officers, and make such rules, regulations and by laws as are deemed expedient by its members for their own government and the proper management of its affairs. The society may appoint agents in any county of this state where no active society exists, under such sections ten thousand and sixty-seven and ten thousand and sixty-eight, to represent it and receive and account for all funds coming to the society from fines or otherwise, and may also appoint agents at large to prosecute the work of the society throughout the state. (R. S. Sec. 3714; March 21, 1887; 84 v. 207; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 21.)

Term of office of agents, see note to § 10071.

Section 10065. (Powers of agents.) The agents of such society and of all societies organized under such sections, whose appointment has been approved as hereinafter provided, may arrest a person found violating any law for the protection of persons or animals, or the prevention of cruelty thereto. Upon making such arrest the agent forthwith shall convey the person arrested before some court or magistrate having jurisdiction of the offense, and there make complaint against him. But agents shall not make such arrests within a municipal corporation unless their appointment has been approved by the mayor thereof, nor within a county beyond the limits of a municipal corporation, unless their appointment has been approved by the probate judge of the county. The mayor or probate judge must keep a record of such appointments. (R. S. Sec. 3714; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 207; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 21.)

Section 10066. (Branches.) Branches of such society consisting of not less than ten members may be organized in any part of the state to prosecute the work of the societies in their several localities, under rules and regulations prescribed by this society. Societies organized in any county under the next following section may become branches of such society by resolution adopted at a meeting thereof called for that purpose, a copy of which resolution shall be forwarded to the secretary of state. (R. S. Sec. 3714; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 207; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 21.)

Award of fund arising under G. C. § 5653, see Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, pp. 1668, 2353; State v. Commissioners, 15 N. P. n. s. 233.

Section 10067. (Other societies authorized.) Societies for the prevention of acts of cruelty to animals may be organized in any county, by the association of not less than seven persons. The members thereof, at a meeting called for the purpose, shall elect not less than three of their members directors, who shall continue in office until their successors are duly chosen. (R. S. Sec. 3715; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 12.)

A society can not be formed under this section for the protection of animals alone. Articles of incorporation must state that the corporation is formed for the protection of children as well as animals. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 2067; § 10063.

And the articles must be approved by the board of state charities. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, pp. 2351, 2353; G. C. § 1352-2.

Section 10068. (Incorporation.) The secretary or clerk of the meeting must make a true record of the proceedings thereat, and certify and forward it to the secretary of the state, who shall record it. This record shall contain the name by which such association is to be known, and from and after its filing, the directors and associates, and their successors, will be invested with the powers, privileges, and immunities incident to incorporated companies. A copy of such record, duly certified by the secretary of state, shall be taken in all courts and places in this state, as evidence that such society is a duly organized and incorporated body. (R. S. Sec. 3716; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 13.)

Section 10069. (Officers and by-laws.) Such societies may elect such officers, and make such rules, regulations, and by-laws, as are deemed expedient by their members for their own government, and the proper management of their affairs. (R. S. Sec. 3717; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 15.)

Section 10070. (May appoint agents.) Such societies may appoint agents who are residents of the county or municipality for which the appointment is made, for the purpose of prosecuting any person guilty of an act of cruelty to persons or animals, who may arrest any person found violating any provision of this chapter, or any other law for protecting persons or animals or preventing acts or cruelty thereto. Upon making such arrest, such agent shall convey the person so arrested before some court or magistrate having jurisdiction of the offense, and there forthwith make complaint on oath or affirmation of the offense. (R. S. Sec. 3718; March 14, 1906, 98 v. 44; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 6 [§ 16].)

A sheriff is ineligible for appointment as humane officer. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 758.

G. C. § 3024, prohibiting police officers from receiving witness fees, applies to agents of humane societies. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 262.

A humane agent may be appointed probation officer of a juvenile court. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 345.

Section 10071. (Approval of appointments.) All appointments by such societies under the next preceding section shall have the approval of the mayor of the city or village for which they are made. If the society exists outside of a city or village, appointments shall be approved by the probate judge of the county for which they are made. The mayor or probate judge shall keep a record of such appointments. (R. S. Sec. 3718; March 14, 1906, 98 v. 44; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 6 [§ 16].)

The probate judge has discretion to determine not only whether the appointee is a proper person, but also whether there is such necessity for the appointment as would justify the expense to the public. State v. Ashman, 90 O. S. 200 (1914).

A probate judge has no power to appoint. His authority is limited to approval. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 61.

A mayor has no power to revoke his approval of an appointment. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1825.

But an agent may be removed by the society with the approval of the mayor or probate judge. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1126.

A humane agent is not under civil service. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 503.

The term of office of agents is not provided for. Unless his term is fixed at the time of appointment, an agent holds his position at the pleasure of the society appointing him, and of the mayor or probate judge.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 891.

Section 10072. (Salary of agents.) Upon the approval of the appointment of such an agent by the mayor of the city or village, the council thereof shall pay monthly to such agent or agents from the general revenue fund of the city or village, such salary as the council deems just and reasonable. Upon the approval of the appointment of such an agent by the probate judge of the county, the county commissioners shall pay monthly to such agent or agents, from the general revenue fund of the county, such salary as they deem just and reasonable. The commissioners, and the council of such city or village may agree upon the amount each is to pay such agent or agents monthly. The amount of salary to be paid monthly by the council of the village to such agent shall not be less than five dollars, by the council of the city not less than twenty dollars, and by the commissioners of the county not less than twenty-five dollars. But not more than one agent in each county shall receive remuneration from the county commissioners under this section. (R. S. Sec. 3718; March 14, 1906, 98 v. 44; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129; § 6 [§ 16].)

The expenses of an agent can not be paid by the county, in addition to his salary. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 395.

An agent is not entitled to fees or costs for making arrests, serving subpoenas or other services. His compensation is fixed by this section. State v. Kleinhoffer, 92 O. S. 163 (1915); Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1730; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 395.

An agent appointed for one year does not hold office after the expiration of the year until his successor is appointed and qualified. His right to salary ceases at the end of the year. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 946.

Section 10073. (Police powers of officers and agents.) An officer, agent, or member of such a society may interfere to prevent the perpetration of any act of cruelty to animals in his presence, use such force as is necessary to prevent it, and to that end may summon to his aid any bystanders. (R. S. Sec. 3720; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 18.)

The discretion of officers and agents of a humane society, in determining that the reloading of crippled live stock in transit, which has been unloaded for rest, food and water, into cars containing the carcasses of dead animals constitute cruelty, will not be interfered with by a court of equity, in the absence of abuse of such discretion.

Meeks, etc., Co. v. Humane Soc., 12 N. P. n. s. 625 (C. P. 1912).

An agent is not authorized to make arrests until after his appointment has been approved under § 10071. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 1730.

The authority of an agent to arrest is only a power and not a duty. He can not be compelled to make arrests and can not be reimbursed for expenses. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1730.

Section 10074. (Interpretation of words.) In this chapter, and in every law relating to or affecting animals, the word "animal" includes every living dumb creature; the words "torture," "torment," and "cruelty" include every act, omission, or neglect whereby unnecessary or unjustifiable pain or suffering is caused, permitted, or allowed to continue, when there is a reasonable remedy or relief. The words "owner" and "person" includes corporations; and the knowledge and acts of their agents and employes in regard to animals transported, owned, employed by, or in the custody thereof, is the act of the corporation. (R. S. 3721; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 19.)

Cited, Meeks, etc., Co. v. Humane Soc., 12 N. P. n. s. 625, 627 (1912). See note to § 10073.

Where the owner provides sufficient help to properly care for his animals, and exercises reasonable care and prudence in so doing, and provides wholesome food and water in sufficient quantities, it is a defense to a charge of cruelty against such owner, that he did not know that they were not being properly fed and cared for.

Muhlhauser v. State, 1 C. C. n. s. 273; 15 C. D. 81 (1900).

Section 10075. (Member may require police to act.) A member of such society may require the sheriff of any county, the constable of any township, the marshal or policeman of any city or village, or the agent of such society, to arrest any person found violating the laws in relation to cruelty to persons or animals, and to take possession of an animal cruelly treated, in their respective counties, cities, or villages, and deliver it to the proper officers of the society. (R. S. Sec. 3722; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181, 183; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 20.)

Section 10076. (Fees.) For this service and for all services rendered in carrying out the provisions of this chapter, such officers, and the officers and agents of the association, shall be allowed and paid such fees as they are allowed for like services in other cases, which must be charged as costs, and reimbursed to the society by the person convicted. (R. S. Sec. 3722; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181, 183; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 20.)

No fee may be taxed for the service of a subpoena by a humane agent. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 395; G. C. § 11504.

An agent is not entitled to fees or costs for making arrests or other services. His compensation is provided for by § 10072. State v. Kleinhoffer, 92 O. S. 163 (1915).

Section 10077. (Person guilty liable to damages.) A person guilty of cruelty to an animal, the property of another, shall be liable to the owner thereof in damages, in addition to the penalties prescribed by law. (R. S. Sec. 3723; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 11.)

Section 10078. (Conviction of agent no bar.) The conviction of an agent or employe shall not bar an action for cruelty to animals against an employer for allowing a state of facts to exist which will induce cruelty to animals on the part of such agent or employer. (R. S. Sec. 3724; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 9.)

Section 10079. (Any person may protect animal from neglect.) When, in order to protect any animal from neglect it is necessary, any person may take possession of it. When an animal is impounded, yarded or confined, and continues without necessary food, water or proper attention for more than fifteen successive hours, as often as is necessary, any person may enter into and upon any place in which the animal is impounded, yarded or confined, and supply it with necessary food, water and attention, so long as it there remains, or, if necessary or convenient, may remove such animal, and not be liable to an action for such entry. In all cases the owner or custodian of such animal, if known, immediately shall be notified of such action, by the person taking possession of the animal. If the owner or custodian be unknown, and can not with reasonable effort be ascertained, such animal shall be held to be an estray, and be dealt with as such. (R. S. Sec. 3725; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181, 183; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 3.)

Section 10080. (Cost and expenses.) The necessary expenses for food and attention given to an animal under the preceding section, may be collected from the owner thereof, and the animal shall not be exempt from levy and sale upon execution issued upon a judgment therefor. (R. S. Sec. 3725; April 14, 1884, 81 v. 181, 183; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 129, § 3.)

Section 10081. (May remove child from parents.) When an officer or agent of a society organized under this chapter, deems it for the best interest of a child, because of cruelty inflicted upon it, or of its surroundings, that it be removed from the possession and control of the parents, or persons having charge thereof, such officer or agent may take possession of the child summarily. (R. S. Sec. 3725-1; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 296, § 1.)

An application under § 10081 et seq. is a civil and not a criminal proceeding, and witnesses may demand their fees in advance. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1679; 12 O. L. R. 496.

Taking temporary possession of a mistreated child does not subject the society to supervision by the board of state charities under G. C. § 1352-2. Opnis. Atty. Gen. 1918, p. 389.

Section 10082. (Notice to persons having control of child and parents.) Such officer or agent shall cause a notice to be personally served upon the person having control or possession of such child, and upon its parent or parents, if within the state, that the society will apply to the probate court of the county in which it is situated, at a time and place named in the notice, for an order as hereinafter set forth. If such person or parents reside or have gone out of the state or if his or her place of residence is unknown so that such notice can not be served, such officer or agent shall file with the probate court an affidavit stating such fact. Thereupon the clerk of said court shall cause such notice to be published once in a newspaper of general circulation throughout the county, and published in the county, if there be one so published. The notice shall state the nature of the complaint, and the time and place of the hearing, which shall be held at least two weeks later than the date of the publication; and a copy of such notice shall be sent by mail to the last known address of such parent, guardian or other person having custody of such child, unless said affidavit shows that a reasonable effort has been made without success to ascertain such address. The certificate of the clerk that such publication has been made or such notice mailed shall be sufficient evidence thereof. Until the time for the hearing arrives, the court shall make such temporary disposition of such child as it may deem best. When said period of two weeks from the time of publication shall have elapsed, said court shall have full jurisdiction to deal with such child as provided by this chapter. (May 9, 1913, 103 v. 905; R. S. Sec. 3725-1; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 296, § 1.)

Section 10083. (Probate judge may make general agent guardian.) At the time stated in such notice, if it appears to the satisfaction of the probate judge, that it is for the best interest of such child that possession and control of it be taken from the parent or other person having it, he shall make an order conferring upon the general agent of the society the powers of a guardian as to the child. (R. S. Sec. 3725-2; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 296, § 2.)

Section 10084. (Guardian to provide home for child.)

As such guardian, such general agent, with the approval of the probate judge, may provide a suitable home for the child until it reaches the age of majority, or the probate judge is satisfied that its parent or parents are in a position properly to provide and care for it. (R. S. Sec. 3725-2; April 25, 1898, 93 v. 296, § 2.)

Section 10085. (Administration of charitable trusts in certain cases.) When, by the last will and testament of a person, duly admitted to probate in this state or elsewhere, a decedent devised or bequeathed, or may devise or bequeath, his or her property, or a portion thereof, for charitable uses within this state, or for the establishment and maintenance of an industrial or educational school or institution to be located within the state; and when in such will it was or may be, provided that the executor or executors thereof shall organize a corporation under our laws, to receive the property so devised or bequeathed, and carry out the charitable purposes therein expressed, or establish and maintain the institution or school it provides for, and such will further provides for the management of such corporation by a board of trustees or directors, consisting, in part, of officials of this state, of the county in which such charities are to be administered or institution or school located, of any municipality in such county, and the member of congress for the district of which it forms a part, or any of such officials, and names others to be associated with them or any of them, and also provides for the appointment of a successor or successors to the person or persons so appointed to act with such officials in a way specified in the will, such executor or executors, or his or their successors in office, and the persons hereinafter named, may constitute themselves a body corporate, with the general powers of benevolent incorporations. (R. S. Sec. 3796-1; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 61, § 1.)

This chapter is constitutional.

Smithsonian Institute v. St. John, 214 U. S. 19 (1909).

Section 10086. (Articles of incorporation.) Such executor or executors, or his or their successors, shall associate with himself or themselves not more than two citizens and residents, other than the persons named in such will, of the county in which such charities are to be administered, or such institution or school located, and he or they and such associates shall execute, acknowledge and file with the secretary of state articles of incorporation. In case of a will hereafter so probated, if within six months of such probate he or they do not file such articles, than a minority of the officials for the time being named in such will or testament may execute, acknowledge and file them, and therein must set forth:

1. A copy of the will or testament to carry out whose provisions the incorporation is organized.

2. The name of the corporation, including the name of the testator unless the will otherwise provides.

3. The location of such corporation.

(R. S. Sec. 3796-2; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 61, § 2.)

Section 10087. (Who members and directors.) The officers or officials named in such will or testament, together with the persons therein named, and in case the articles are filed by the executor or executors, the citizens of such county, not exceeding two in number, who execute and acknowledge them with such executor or executors, shall thereupon become the members and directors of such corporation. As the term of any official expires, his successor thereupon, by virtue of his office, shall become one of the members and directors of such corporation, so that the officials named in such will, for the time being and from time to time, shall be directors of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3796-3; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 62, § 3.)

Section 10088. (Succession.) Upon the death or resignation of the person or persons named in such will as directors associated with such officials, his or their successor or successors shall be appointed in the manner provided in such will or testament, if it makes provision therefor, otherwise by the board of directors, and he or they shall thereupon become members and directors of the corporation. Upon the death or resignation of the two citizens of the county, or either of them, who have become directors by reason of joining in such articles of incorporation, his or their successor or successors shall be chosen by the board of directors, and he or they thereupon shall become members and directors of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3796-3; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 62, § 3.)

Section 10089. (Attorney-general may enforce devise or bequest.) The attorney-general in his official capacity may bring proceedings in any court of record to enforce such a devise or bequest, if he deems such action necessary to protect and carry out the purposes named in such last will and testament, without waiting for the organization of such corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3796-4; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 64, § 4.)

Section 10090. (Officers.) The officers of such corporation shall consist of a president, secretary and treasurer, and such others as the board of directors deems necessary. The president shall be a member of such board. (R. S. Sec. 3796-5; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 62, § 5.)

Section 10091. (Constitution and by-laws.) The board of directors may adopt, and also change, such organic rules, regulations and by-laws as they deem expedient, consistent with the constitution and laws of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3796-6; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 62, § 6.)

Section 10092. (Where directors to meet.) Until the estate is finally settled, the board of directors may meet in the state of the domicile of the testator. (R. S. Sec. 3796-7; March 19, 1902, 95 v. 62, § 7.)

Section 10092-1. (Duties of trustees of a charitable trust. Provision for incorporation.) When any person by deed or will shall grant or devise property and money, or either, to trustees in perpetuity, in trust, the principal and income of which, or such part thereof as may be provided by such deed or will, to be used and applied by said trustees and their successors in office for educational, charitable or benevolent purposes, to be conducted in this state, and such deed or will provides that the trustees shall become a body corporate to hold and invest said property and money, and to administer said trust, said trustees upon accepting said trust shall file with the secretary of state articles of incorporation as now provided by law in cases of corporations not for profit, together with a certified copy of such deed or will, and thereupon said trustees and their successors in office shall become a corporation not for profit to administer said trust, and said trustees shall forthwith become the board of trustees thereof for such term as may be prescribed by such deed or will or by the regulations hereinafter provided for. The members of the board of trustees and their successors forever during their respective terms of office shall be the members of the corporation. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 535.)

Section 10092-2. (Regulations for the administration of trust.) Such corporation shall adopt and maintain regulations for its government and the administration of said trust, in conformity to the provisions of such deed or will. Such regulations shall provide for the election or appointment of the trustees of said corporation and their successors, to fill vacancies or otherwise, and for their term of office, so as to conform to any provision in respect thereto contained in such deed or will, and said trustees and their successors shall be so elected or appointed and for the term so provided. If such deed or will shall contain no provision as to the manner of electing or appointing the trustees or as to their term of office, they shall be elected or appointed in the manner and for the term provided by the General Code relating to corporations not for profit, or by regulations adopted pursuant thereto. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 535.)

Section 10092-3. (Officers of corporation.) The officers of such corporation, in addition to the board of trustees, shall be a president, vice-president, treasurer and secretary, the first three of whom shall be members of the board of trustees. The board of trustees may create such other offices as may be deemed necessary or that may be designated by such deed or will. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 535.)

Section 10092-4. (Subsequent grant or devise.) The trustees of such corporation may accept any subsequent grant or devise of money or property, made to them or to such corporation in perpetuity, in trust, the principal or income of which or any part thereof as may be provided by such grant or devise, to be used and applied to and for the purposes for which said original trust was established, and in such case said property and money shall be invested and administered in accordance with the regulations of such corporation. A certified copy of the deed or will making such grant or devise shall be filed with the secretary of state to be placed with the articles of incorporation and other papers relating thereto on file in his office. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 536.)

Section 10092-5. (Prosecuting attorney shall examine accounts and records. Annual report.) The prosecuting attorney of the county in which said corporation has its general office whenever he may deem it necessary is authorized to examine the accounts and records of such corporation, and may proceed by action in the proper courts, to enforce the administration of the trust and the investment and application of the funds and property thereof in accordance with the provisions of the deed or will creating the same. A copy of the annual financial report of the corporation showing the condition of said trust shall be filed with the probate judge of said county each year. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 536.)

See also § 3461 et seq.

Section 10093. (May acquire and hold land and property; exempt from tax and execution. Sale of unsuitable lands; application of proceeds.) A company or association incorporated for cemetery purposes may appropriate or otherwise acquire and may hold, not exceeding six hundred and forty acres of land; also, take any gift or devise in trust for cemetery purposes, or the income from such gift or devise according to the provisions of such gift or devise, in trust, all of which shall be exempt from execution and from being appropriated for any other public purpose, and shall be exempt from taxation, if held exclusively for burial purposes, and in no wise with a view to profit. And the trustees of such company or association, whenever in their opinion any portion of such lands is unsuitable for burial purposes, may sell and convey by deed in fee simple, in such manner, and upon such terms as may be provided by resolution of such trustees, any such portion or portions of said lands, and apply the proceeds thereof to the general purposes of the company or association; but on such sale or sales being made, the lands so sold shall be returned by the trustees to the auditor of the proper county, to be by him placed upon the grand duplicate for taxation. (109 v. 172; R. S. Sec. 3571; April 26, 1904, 97 v. 442; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 113, § 5.)

The exemption from taxation does not include exemption from assessment for local improvements.

Lima v. Cemetery Ass'n, 42 O. S. 128 (1884).

While the lands, so far as exempted, can not be sold, an assessment may be enforced by such remedies as the statutes and courts of equity afford.

Lima v. Cemetery Ass'n, 42 O. S. 128 (1884).

Gilmour v. Pelton, 2 W. L. B. 158 (1877).

Under a former special statute (R. S. § 3581), providing for exemption for taxation, it was held that the mere purchase of additional ground, on which some work had been done in preparing it for burial purposes, but which had not been platted, and in which no interments had been made, did not exempt it from tax.

German Cemetery v. Brooks, 8 C. C. 439; 4 C. D. 478 (1894).

A private corporation can not conduct a cemetery for profit. Frey v. Nowlin, 19 N. P. n. s. 484 (1917).

Only the property specified in the statute is exempt from execution. Execution may be levied on other property of an association. Canton Assn. v. Slayman, 99 O. S. 28 (1918).

A cemetery association organized under § 10093 et seq. may be liable for malicious prosecution. Canton Assn. v. Slayman, 99 O. S. 28 (1918).

A cemetery association may be liable for negligence. Wulftange v. Cemetery, 15 N. P. n. s. 49 (1913).

Land acquired by a cemetery association, not used for profit, but not laid out and allotted or prepared for use as a burial ground is not exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

A building used as a residence by the cemetery superintendent, erected by the superintendent on land set apart and used for burial purposes, is exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

Section 10094. Repealed. (109 v. 173.)

Section 10095. (Appropriation of land.) If it be necessary to acquire lands by appropriation, such proceedings shall be taken therefor as are provided for the appropriation of property to the use of corporations. No lands shall be appropriated until the probate court is satisfied that suitable premises can not be obtained by contract upon reasonable terms, and no lands shall be appropriated upon which there is a dwelling-house, barn, stable or other farm-buildings, or an orchard, nursery, or valuable mineral or other medicinal spring, or a well actually yielding oil, or salt water, unless it adjoins a cemetery already located and used, on the same or opposite side of a public highway. (R. S. Sec. 3573; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 391; March 22, 1893, 90 v. 103; April 2, 1886, 83 v. 63; May 1, 1885, 82 v. 217; March 6, 1880, 77 v. 41; Rev. Stat. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 113, § 5; 76 v. 137, § 5.)

Section 10096. (Location of cemeteries as to dwellings. Exceptions.) Land shall not be appropriated or a cemetery located by an association incorporated for cemetery purposes or by benevolent or religious societies, within two hundred yards of a dwelling house, unless the owner thereof gives his consent, or unless the entire tract be so appropriated as a necessary addition to or enlargement of a cemetery already located and used. The limit shall not be less than one hundred yards when it is sought to appropriate for cemetery purposes property adjoining a cemetery already located and used, when such dwelling house was erected subsequent to the laying out and establishing of the cemetery. Where the cemetery lies within or adjoins a municipal corporation the association or corporation owning such cemetery, without such consent, may appropriate property within one hundred feet, or the width of a street, or alley of any dwelling house. The addition of any land across a street or public road, as now located or which shall be hereafter established, shall not be considered an enlargement of an existing cemetery under the provisions of this section. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 423; R. S. Sec. 3573; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 391; March 22, 1893, 90 v. 103; April 2, 1886, 83 v. 63; May 1, 1885, 82 v. 217; March 6, 1880, 77 v. 41; R. S. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 113, § 5; 76 v. 137, § 5.)

The change in G. C. § 10096, whereby the distance from a dwelling at which a cemetery may be located was made not less than one hundred yards instead of not less than two hundred yards, can not be construed as an infringement on the vested rights of a property owner who purchased and made his improvements prior to such change, especially where the land which it is proposed to devote to such use adjoins an established cemetery in a rapidly growing town.

A restriction as to the location of cemeteries, which was considered reasonable when it was adopted, may be removed or modified when the legislature determines that necessity or circumstances so demand; and it is not unreasonable to require that such modification be anticipated as to land adjoining cemeteries established, and in use, and so situated that adjoining land would naturally be selected when more burial space becomes necessary.

One who purchases land adjoining the cemetery of a religious society, and builds a house one hundred and sixty feet from the nearest lot therein and makes other improvements, is not entitled to an injunction restraining the society from using for cemetery purposes land purchased by them bordering on the established cemetery grounds, where the part to be so used is more than one hundred yards from the plaintiff's dwelling, although the nearest boundary line is less than one hundred yards from his dwelling.

Morlock v. Horstman, 10 C. C. n. s. 599; 12 C. D. 778 (1908); aff'd, no rep., 60 O. S. 629.

An entrance, park and driveway, in front of a cemetery is used for "cemetery purposes" within the meaning of this section. Frey v. Nowlin, 19 N. P. n. s. 484 (1917).

Section 10097. (What companies prohibited from appropriation.) The provisions of the two preceding sections shall not be applicable to a corporation or cemetery association, owning a cemetery of less dimensions than four acres and situated within one mile of the corporate limits of a municipality. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 423; R. S. Sec. 3573; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 391; March 22, 1893, 90 v. 103; April 2, 1886, 83 v. 63; May 1, 1885, 82 v. 217; March 6, 1880, 77 v. 41; Rev. Stat. 1880; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 113, § 5; 76 v. 137, § 5.)

Section 10098. (How income applied.) After paying for such land future receipts and incomes of such company or association, whether from sale of lots, donations, or otherwise, shall be exclusively applied to laying out, preserving, protecting, and embellishing the cemetery, and avenues leading thereto, the erection of buildings necessary for the cemetery purposes, and to paying the necessary expenses of the cemetery company or association. No debts shall be incurred except for original purchasing, laying out, inclosing and embellishing the ground and avenues, for which debts may be contracted not exceeding ten thousand dollars in the whole, to be paid out of future receipts. Such company or association may adopt rules and regulations as it deems expedient for disposing of and conveying burial lots; but a person not already the owner of a lot in the cemetery shall have the right to purchase any unsold lot, and to have it conveyed to him by the company or association, upon tender of the usual price asked therefor by it. (R. S. Sec. 3574; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 113, § 5.)

A cemetery association may be liable for negligence. Wulftange v. Cemetery, 15 N. P. n. s. 49 (1913).

And for malicious prosecution. Canton Assn. v. Slayman, 99 O. S. 28 (1918).

Land acquired by a cemetery association, not used for profit, but not laid out and allotted or prepared for use as a burial ground is not exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

A building used as a residence for the cemetery superintendent, erected by the superintendent on land set apart and used for burial purposes, is exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

Section 10099. (How land for entrance secured.) When in the judgment of the officers of a cemetery association, it is necessary to secure additional land for the purpose of making an entrance to its ground, or to improve an entrance already made, the officers may apply to the county commissioners of the county in which the cemetery is located for the appointment of appraisers. Upon such application being made to them, they shall appoint three disinterested freeholders of the county as appraisers, whose duty it shall be to view the land sought to be obtained, appraise its value, and make due return of their appraisal to such commissioners. When the cemetery association pays the amount of such appraisal, together with its cost, the title to the land shall vest in it. (R. S. Sec. 3574-1; April 6, 1893, 90 v. 153, § 1.)

Before the change in § 10100 made by the codifying commission, this section and § 10100 were held unconstitutional for the reason that, through an error in the reference to other statutes, no provision was made for a jury on appeal.

King v. Cemetery Ass'n, 67 O. S. 240 (1902).

Section 10100. (Appeal.) An appeal may be taken from the appraisal so made to the probate court of the county in which such cemetery or entrance is located in the manner provided by law for appeals in road cases. (R. S. Sec. 3574-1; April 6, 1893, 90 v. 153, § 1.)

Section 10101. (Sale of lots.) Burial-lots sold by such company or association shall be for the sole purpose of interments, be subject to the rules prescribed by the company, or association, and be exempt from taxation, execution, attachment, or any other claim, lien, or process whatever, if used exclusively for burial purposes, and in no wise with a view to profit. (R. S. Sec. 3575; February 24, 1848, 46 v. 97, § 6; S. & C. 227.)

A lot in a municipal cemetery may be sold by its owner, and the conveyance need not be executed with the formalities of a deed. But the purchaser acquires no right to remove bodies already buried in the lot. Fraser v. Lee, 8 Ohio App. 235 (1917).

Section 10102. (May sell land to be used as site for public monument.) Any cemetery association organized under the laws of this state may sell and convey by deed in fee simple to a corporation organized not for profit under the laws of this state for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a public monument or memorial to any distinguished deceased person, such portion of the real estate of the association as is selected and agreed upon between it and such corporation, which is not used by the association, and has not been disposed of by it for burial purposes; the sale to be at a price, payable in the manner, and on terms agreed upon between the association and such corporation. The land so sold and conveyed shall thereafter be exclusively owned, held and controlled by the corporation purchasing it for the interment of such a deceased person, and for the erection and maintenance thereon of such monument or memorial, and for no other purpose. (R. S. Sec. 3575a; April 1, 1904, 97 v. 66.)

Section 10103. (Plat of grounds; powers.) Every such company or association shall cause a plat of its grounds and of the lots by it laid out, to be made and recorded, or filed in the recorder's office of the county in which situated; the lots to be numbered by regular consecutive numbers. It may inclose, improve and adorn the grounds and avenues, erect buildings for its use, prescribe rules for inclosing and adorning lots, and for erecting monuments in the cemetery, and prohibit any use, division, improvement, or adornment of a lot which it deems improper. An annual exhibit shall be made of the affairs of the company or association. (R. S. Sec. 3576; March 8, 1888, 85 v. 76; R. S. 1880; February 24, 1848, 46 v. 97, § 7; S. & C. 227.)

Section 10103 does not authorize the trustees of a cemetery association to prohibit the placing of markers on the graves of deceased soldiers as expressly authorized by G. C. § 2958. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1428.

Section 10104. (County commissioners may purchase road to cemetery.) On petition for that purpose by a turnpike road company, the commissioners of the several counties may purchase so much of a turnpike road as lies between any city or village and cemetery or public burying ground, and make it a free road to such cemetery or burying-ground, the cost thereof to be paid out of the county bridge fund. So much of the road as is so purchased shall be kept in repair by the commissioners, and the cost of such repairs be paid for from the county general fund. (R. S. Sec. 3577; March 17, 1877, 74 v. 40, § 1.)

Section 10105. (Exemptions.) Lands appropriated and set apart as burial grounds, either for public or private use, and so recorded or filed in the recorder's office of the county where they are situated, or any burial ground that has been used as such for fifteen years, shall not be subject to sale on execution on a judgment, to taxation, to dower, nor to compulsory partition. But land so appropriated and set apart as a private burial ground shall not be so exempt if it exceeds in value the sum of fifty dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3578; March 8, 1888, 85 v. 76; R. S. 1880; 33 v. 11, § 11, (§ 1); S. & C. 227.)

Only the property specified in the statute is exempt from execution. Execution may be levied on other property on an association. Canton Assn. v. Slayman, 99 O. S. 28 (1918).

Land acquired by a cemetery association, not used for profit, but not laid out and allotted or prepared for use as a burial ground is not exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

A building used as a residence for the cemetery superintendent, erected by the superintendent on land set apart and used for burial purposes, is exempt from taxation. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1435.

The exemption from taxation does not include exemption from assessment for local improvements.

Lima v. Cemetery Ass'n, 42 O. S. 128 (1884).

While the lands, so far as exempted, can not be sold, an assessment may be enforced by such remedies as the statutes and courts of equity afford.

Lima v. Cemetery Ass'n, 42 O. S. 128 (1884).

Gilmour v. Felton, 2 W. L. B. 158 (1877).

Under a former special statute (R. S. § 3581), providing for exemption for taxation, it was held that the mere purchase of additional ground on which some work had been done in preparing it for burial purposes, but which had not been platted, and in which no interments had been made, did not exempt it from tax.

German Cemetery v. Brooks, 8 C. C. 439; 4 C. D. 478 (1894).

Section 10106. (Land shall not be mortgaged or sold on execution.) Lands sold and conveyed under the provisions of section ten thousand one hundred and two, so long as they are held and used for the purposes designated therein, shall not be mortgaged, nor be subject to sale for debt on execution or otherwise. (R. S. Sec. 3578a; April 1, 1904, 97 v. 67, § 2.)

Section 10107. (May act as soldiers' monumental association.) Such a company or association may act either as a soldiers' monumental or as a cemetery association, and, as it elects take charge of the management of cemetery grounds, or monuments especially erected in honor of soldiers or seamen who have died in the service of the state, or of the United States, or both. Monuments, and the surroundings thereof, erected in honor of deceased soldiers or seamen, shall be protected by and under the penalties prescribed in the statutes for the protection of cemeteries and burial-grounds. (R. S. Sec. 3579; March 16, 1865, 62 v. 44, § 1; S. & C. 68.)

Section 10108. (Officers may appoint policemen.) The trustees, directors, or other officers of a cemetery company or association, whether incorporated or unincorporated, and township trustees having charge of township cemeteries, may appoint as many day and night watchmen of their grounds as they deem expedient. Such watchmen, and all superintendents, gardeners and agents of such company or association or of the township trustees, stationed on the grounds, may take and subscribe, before any mayor or justice of the peace in the township where the grounds are situated, an oath of office similar to the oath required by law of constables. Upon taking such oath, such watchmen, superintendents, gardeners, or agents shall have and may exercise all the powers of police officers within and adjacent to the cemetery grounds. (R. S. Sec. 3580; April 12, 1889, 86 v. 254; Rev. Stat. 1880; April 6, 1869, 66 v. 48, § 2; S. & S. 69.)

Section 10109. (How receipts and income applied.) The receipts and income of such a company or association, whether derived from the sale of lots, from donations, or otherwise, shall be applied to the payment for such lands, to the laying out, preservation, protection and establishment of the cemetery, the avenues within it, to the erection of necessary buildings, and to the general purposes of such company or association. No debts shall be contracted in anticipation of future receipts, except for the original purchase of the land, and laying out, inclosing, and embellishing the grounds, and avenues therein. No part of the proceeds of land sold, or of the funds of such a company or association, shall ever be divided among its stockholders or lot-owners. All its funds must be used exclusively for the purposes of the company or association, as above herein specified, or invested in a fund the income of which shall be so used and appropriated. (R. S. Sec. 3582; April 6, 1870, 67 v. 35, § 2.)

Section 10110. (May accept and execute certain trusts.)

Every cemetery company or association may take, hold, possess, use, enjoy, and occupy such property of any kind as legally is given, granted, or devised to it, for the purpose of building or repairing fences, graves, vaults, monuments, walks, cemetery lots, drives, or avenues in its cemetery, or for the purpose of building or repairing therein any particular fence, cemetery lot, grave, vault, monument, walk, drive, or avenue, and appropriate such property, or the proceeds thereof, to any of the foregoing purposes according to the terms of the trust for which it was given, granted, or devised. (R. S. Sec. 3583; April 11, 1876, 73 v. 210, § 1.)

Section 10111. (May hold land in a village.)

Any association of persons who have been and are acting as a cemetery association, and have purchased and improved land for cemetery purposes, paid for by subscriptions of lot-holders and the sale of lots, and who are acting through a board of trustees chosen by members of the association, when the lands thus occupied have been brought or held within the corporate limits of a village subsequently to the time of their purchase and improvement, may become incorporated for cemetery purposes, as though the lands held by the association were outside of such corporate limits. (R. S. Sec. 3584; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 132, § 1.)

Section 10112. (Powers of certain corporations.)

Any association organized under the preceding section, as the successor of the original association, through and by its concurrence, may take possession of, hold, and use for cemetery purposes, all the property belonging to and held by the original association for such purposes. (R. S. Sec. 3585; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 132, § 2.)

Section 10113. (Rights of lot-owners assured.)

All rights of lot-owners in the cemetery grounds of the original association are reserved and assured to them, and made valid, without reference to the form of conveyance issued to them by the trustees of original association. (R. S. Sec. 3586; May 7, 1878, 75 v. 132, § 3.)

Section 10114. (Rights and powers of crematory associations.)

Any company or association incorporated for the erection and maintenance of a crematory or other place or building for cremating the dead, may exercise all the rights and powers conferred by this chapter, subject to its conditions. But no building shall be erected for such a purpose within two hundred yards of a dwelling-house, unless its owner gives his consent. It also shall be unlawful for any person, persons, company, association or firm to establish a morgue on a street or part thereof upon which are dwelling-houses, unless the owner or occupants thereof within two hundred yards of the proposed morgue give their written consent thereto. These provisions shall not apply to a crematory already built, or morgue already established. (R. S. Sec. 3586a; April 3, 1900, 94 v. 95; April 11, 1893, 90 v. 161.)

In the interpretation of G. C. § 10114, the word morgue, being without definition in the statute itself, must be given its usual and commonly accepted meaning which is, a place or dead-house, where the bodies of persons found dead are exposed for identification so that they may be claimed by their friends. And the Legislature in the enactment of the section must be held to have used and employed the word in that sense, and as descriptive of such a place.

This section does not prohibit the location of an undertaking establishment on a residence street, nor make it unlawful to receive, care for and keep temporarily in an undertaking establishment thus located, in a private room thereof and unexposed to public view, the bodies of known and identified dead which are from time to time taken to such undertaking establishment at the instance and request of relatives or friends of the deceased that funeral services over the bodies may be held and conducted at that place.

Koebler v. Pennewell, 75 O. S. 278 (1906).

Section 10115. (Sale of certain associations; proceeds.)

The trustees of a cemetery association, whose cemetery is within the limits of a city or village, interments in which have been prohibited by ordinance thereof, or whose cemetery is abandoned as a place for the burial of the dead, or which association is involved in debt it is unable to pay, may apply by petition to the common pleas court of the county wherein such cemetery is located, for the sale of the whole or a portion of its grounds, and the court may order the whole or a portion thereof to be sold. The money derived from such sale, under direction of the court, shall be applied to the costs and expenses of the removal and reinterment of the remains of the dead therein, and to the payment of any debts of such association. Any surplus must be invested upon interest, and the income therefrom applied to keeping in repair the unsold portion thereof, or if the entire premises be sold, the surplus shall be divided pro rata among the lot-owners. The court shall grant such time for the removal of the dead, after the confirmation of such sale, as it deems necessary. (R. S. § 3586-1; February 1, 1888, 85 v. 7, § 1; April 29, 1885, 82 v. 164.)

Section 10116. (Notice of application; order of sale.)

Notice of the filing of such application shall be given by publication in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where it is filed, for four consecutive weeks, setting forth the object and prayer thereof, and that any person claiming an interest in the subject matter of such petition may appear and file an answer therein. On final hearing of the case, the court shall make such order or decree as will best secure the rights of the persons having an interest in such cemetery. (R. S. Sec. 3586-2; April 29, 1885, 82 v. 164, § 2).

Section 10117. (May create sinking fund.) A cemetery association which has been organized under a general or special law may create a sinking fund, out of surplus money on hand, or which has been given to it by will, deed or otherwise. (R. S. Sec. 3586-3; April 3, 1883, 80 v. 91.)

Section 10118. (How such funds invested.) A cemetery association so organized may invest money appropriated to such sinking fund in bonds of the United States, state of Ohio, or of a city therein, or loan it upon first mortgage of real estate in this state worth double the loan, or upon collateral of any of the above securities of equal face value with the loan. But it shall not be lawful to loan such money to a member of the cemetery board. (R. S. Sec. 3586-4; April 3, 1883, 80 v. 91, § 2.)

Section 10119. (How expended.) All moneys thus appropriated to a sinking fund, and interest derived thereon shall be held exclusively for the enlargement of cemetery grounds, their improvements, repair or adornment, or for constructing or keeping in repair buildings, monuments or other structures deemed necessary or appropriate for cemetery grounds, and not be appropriated or used for any other purpose. (R. S. Sec. 3586-5; April 3, 1883, 80 v. 91, § 3.)

Section 10119-1. (Providing for transfer of lands and improvements from one association to another.) When in the judgment of the trustees of any association of persons who have been and are acting as a cemetery association and have purchased and improved land for cemetery purposes, the welfare of all concerned in the lands so purchased and improved would be subserved by transferring such lands and improvements and other assets of such association to another association incorporated under the laws of Ohio for cemetery purposes, said trustees shall call a meeting of the members of the association of which they are the trustees by giving notice of such meeting for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which said cemetery is located, specifying the place, time and object of such meeting; and a majority of the members of such association shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, and if by a majority vote of the members of such association the trustees be authorized to convey and transfer the lands and improvements and other assets aforesaid to another corporation duly organized as aforesaid for cemetery purposes and lawfully electing to accept such transfer said trustees may and are hereby empowered to execute a deed of conveyance and transfer of said lands, improvements and other assets to said other corporation.

It shall thereupon be incumbent upon the corporation to which said conveyance and transfer is made to carry out the objects and purposes for which said original association was formed and to apply any moneys received by it from said original association in laying out, preserving, protecting and embellishing said cemetery.

All rights of lot owners in the cemetery ground of the original association are reserved and assured to them and made valid without reference to the form of conveyance issued by the original association. (May 9, 1913, 103 v. 847, § 1.)

HYDRAULIC.

Section 10120. (May enter upon land for survey.) A company incorporated under the laws of this state for hydraulic or manufacturing purposes, to which the board of public works, for a stipulated revenue, leases and grants the right to use the surplus water of a public canal to propel its machinery, may enter upon land or across which it desires to build, excavate, or construct its hydraulic canal, race-ways, or water-channel, for conveying and discharging such surplus water to and from the point at which such company desires to employ it, and survey the route thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3562; April 5, 1866, 63 v. 147, § 1; S. & S. 172.)

Section 10121. (May appropriate land.) Such company may appropriate so much land as it deems necessary for its canal, race-way, or water-channel, with the necessary culverts, waste-weirs, aqueducts, water-gates, abutments, and fixtures, and a right of way over adjacent lands sufficient to enable it to construct and repair these, if the probate court, in the proceedings instituted for that purpose, finds that the erection and operation of its proposed works will be subservient to the public welfare. (R. S. Sec. 3563; April 5, 1866, 63 v. 147, § 2, 3, 4; S. & S. 172, 173.)

Section 10122. (May borrow money and secure loan.) For the purpose of repairing, completing, or extending its work, a hydraulic company may borrow money to an amount not exceeding one-half of its capital stock actually paid in, and secure the payment thereof by the issue of bonds or notes, bearing interest not to exceed a legal rate, and secured by mortgage on its real estate, or part thereof. Such bonds or notes shall not be issued without the assent in writing of the holders of a majority of the stock in the company. (R. S. Sec. 3565; April 25, 1873, 70 v. 160, § 1.)

Section 10123. (Consolidation.) A hydraulic company organized under the laws of this state, may consolidate with any other hydraulic company in this or an adjoining state, when the works of such companies are connected or proposed to be connected, which consolidation shall be by an agreement of the corporations, duly ratified by a vote of the holders of two-thirds of the stock of each company. When so consolidated the companies shall constitute one company, and take such name as the agreement designates. If both are organized under the laws of this state, the consolidated company shall possess all the rights, privileges, and franchises of each of the corporations parties in the agreement. If one is organized under the laws of another state, the consolidated company shall possess all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the company organized under the laws of this state, and in either case possess and hold all the property and rights of action, subject to all liens upon the respective property of each company. All debts, liabilities, and duties of either of the companies thenceforth will attach to the new company, and may be enforced against it. (R. S. Sec. 3566; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 177, § 1.)

Section 10124. (Notice of meeting for such purpose.)

The notice of a meeting to take into consideration the agreement to consolidate, must be given to the stockholders of such companies, by their respective secretaries, by publication in a newspaper printed and published in the county where such corporation is located, thirty days previous to such meeting, stating the object of the meeting. A printed copy of the notice shall be sent by the secretary of each company, by mail, to any stockholder whose residence is out of the county. The publication and sending of the notice must be certified by the secretaries on their respective record books. (R. S. Sec. 3567; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 177, § 2.)

Section 10125. (Proceedings at meeting.) At the meeting so called the stockholders shall take into consideration the agreement to consolidate, and after its adoption appoint the time and place for the election of directors and other officers of the new corporation, a certified copy of which, and of the proceedings and vote on the consolidation, must be certified by the officers of such meeting, under their seals, be acknowledged by them before an officer authorized to take acknowledgements of deeds, and forthwith be filed in the office of the secretary of state. A copy of the agreement and act of consolidation so filed and duly certified by the secretary of state, shall be evidence of the existence of such consolidated company. (R. S. Sec. 3568; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 177, § 3.)

Section 10126. (When water may be drawn from canals.)

All canal companies and persons having oversight of a canal are prohibited from drawing off the water from such canal for the purpose of cleaning it out, or making the general annual repairs thereof, and from allowing the water to remain out of it between the thirtieth day of June and the thirtieth day of September in any year. If such a company or person violates this section, it or he shall forfeit and pay to the state not less than five hundred nor more than three thousand dollars, to be recovered in a civil action, before any court having jurisdiction thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3569; January 31, 1845, 43 v. 17, § 1; S. & C. 225.)

Section 10127. (What provisions applicable.) The provisions of law for the foreclosure of a mortgage of a turn-pike or plankroad, and the sale thereof upon such mortgage, or execution, shall apply to the foreclosure of a mortgage of the canal of any company, and to the sale thereof on such proceedings or on execution. (R. S. Sec. 3570; April 16, 1857, 54 v. 179, § § 1, 2; S. & C. 339.)

Section 10128. (Construction of dams, pipe lines, etc.) Any company or companies organized for the purpose of erecting or building dams across rivers or streams in this state to raise and maintain a head of water, or for constructing and maintaining canals, locks, and race-ways to regulate and carry such head of water to any plant or power house where electricity is to be generated, or for erecting and maintaining a line or lines of poles whereon to attach or string wires or cables to carry and transmit electricity, or for transporting natural gas, petroleum, water or electricity, through tubing, pipes or conduits, or by means of wires, cables or conduits, or for storing, transporting or transmitting water, natural gas or petroleum, or for generating and transmitting electricity, may enter upon any private land for the purpose of examining or surveying a line or lines for its tubing, pipes, conduits, poles and wires, or for a reservoir, dams, canals, race-ways, plant or power house, and for ascertaining the number of acres overflowed by reason of the construction of such dam or dams, and may appropriate so much thereof as is deemed necessary for the laying down or building of such tubing, conduits, pipes, dams, poles, wires, reservoir, plant and power house, as well as the land overflowed, and for the erection of tanks and reservoirs for the storage of water for transportation and the erection of stations along such line or lines, and the erection of such building as may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid. (R. S. Sec. 3878;

April 23, 1904, 97 v. 300; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382; March 24, 1888, 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 151, § § 1, 2; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 194, § 4.)

An oil and gas company is not authorized to operate a pipe line except for the transportation of its own product.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, pp. 79, 69.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 148.

Sections 10128 et seq. were originally enacted for pipe line companies organized for transportation purposes only. But they may apply also to public utility companies transporting gas to their patrons. Columbus v. Gas Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 394, 396, 397 (1910); s. c., 88 O. S. 547.

By its incorporation, making and adopting plans and surveys, passing certain resolutions, determining to proceed with the construction of dams and reservoirs, adopting descriptions and development programs, and commencing judicial proceedings to acquire rights in a stream, a hydro-electric power company does not acquire such priority in the stream as will prevent a municipality from thereafter appropriating the water thereof for a water supply under G. C. § 3677. Sears v. Akron, 246 U. S. 242 (1918); 16 O. L. R. 96.

Incorporation of a hydro-electric company under §§ 10128 and 10134, and a resolution by its directors for the appropriation of certain lands, does not give the corporation rights in the streams described in such resolution to the exclusion of all others. Cuyahoga River Power Co. v. Traction Co., 252 U. S. 389 (1920).

Jurisdiction of federal courts in suit to enjoin a municipality from taking property of a hydro-electric power company, without compensation, for a municipal water supply, see Power Co. v. Akron, 240 U. S. 461 (1916); reversing, 210 Fed. 524.

Section 10129. (How right acquired.) Such appropriation shall be made in accordance with the law providing for compensation to the owners of private property appropriated to the use of corporations. So far as the rights of the public therein are concerned, the county commissioners as to county and state roads, the township trustees as to township roads, and the councils of municipal corporations as to streets and alleys in their respective jurisdictions, subject to such regulation and restrictions as they prescribe, may grant to such companies, the right to lay such tubing, pipes, conduits, poles and wires therein. But the right to appropriate for any of the purposes above specified, shall not include or extend to the erection of any tank, station, reservoir, or building, or lands therefor, or to more than one continuous pipe, conduit or tubing or land therefor, in or through a municipal corporation, unless the council first consents thereto. (R. S. Sec. 3878; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 300; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382; March 24, 1888; 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 151, § § 1, 2; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 194, § 4.)

Prior to the constitutional amendments of 1912 sections 3714 and 10129 authorized a municipality to make a contract with a gas company or other public utility to use its streets in consideration of the payment of a lump sum or a percentage of its gross receipts. Gas Co. v. Columbus, 96 O. S. 530 (1917).

This section does not extend the right of eminent domain to more than one line. Columbus v. Gas Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 394, 397 (1910); s. c., 88 O. S. 547.

Section 10130. (Right to appropriate public way, how acquired.) Nothing in the two preceding sections shall be construed to confer power to appropriate any portion of any street, alley, highway or other public way or land, or to confer any right in any street, alley, highway or other public way or land situated within any municipality, without its consent. (R. S. Sec. 3878; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 300; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382; March 24, 1888, 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 151, §§ 1, 2; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 194, § 4.)

Section 10131. (Reservoirs in certain places prohibited.) No reservoirs for the storage or transportation of water shall be constructed within the corporate limits of any municipal corporation or any public park, and all excavations, except reservoirs for storage and transportation of water, shall be well filled by such company, and so kept by it. (R. S. Sec. 3878; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 300; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382; March 24, 1888, 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 151, §§ 1, 2; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 194, § 4.)

Section 10132. (Common carrier. Authority to grant by lease to companies certain rights and privileges.) Such company or companies, for the purpose of transporting natural gas, oils, water and electricity shall be common carriers and shall be subject to all the duties and liabilities of such carriers under the laws of this state; and the superintendent of public works is hereby authorized upon the approval of the governor and attorney general indorsed thereon in writing, to enter into leases or agreements with such company or companies for a period of twenty-five years and upon such terms as he may deem for the best interests of the state, granting to such companies the right to flow, transport and convey water from the dams or reservoirs, built by such company or companies under the authority granted in section 10128 of the General Code, through, over and upon any of the lands of the state or channels or beds of any of its reservoirs, lakes, canals, races, aqueducts or water courses; but no rights or privileges granted by any such leases or agreements shall in any wise interfere with the navigation of the canals of the state, nor the control and maintenance of the state reservoirs as public parks or pleasure resorts, nor the sale of water by the state nor shall the state be held to incur any liability on its part under such leases or agreements to continue to maintain such canals, races, channels or water courses, or to continue the use thereof, and all such leases shall contain a clause giving the superintendent of public works such control over all waste-gates and wickets, controlling the flow of water into state reservoirs or canals, as may be necessary to maintain the proper level of the state's reservoirs and canals, and to prevent the flowing into such reservoirs and canals of such quantities of water as might damage or impair any property of the state or of its lessees. (107 v. 428; R. S. Sec. 3878; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 300; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382; March 24, 1888, 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 72 v. 151, §§ 1, 2; April 29, 1872, 69 v. 194, § 4.)

The provision of the federal interstate commerce act, making pipe lines common carriers was held constitutional. Pipe Line Cases, 234 U. S. 548 (1914).

A pipe line is a private enterprise, although the public has an interest. A right of way over private property for a pipe line is not a public easement, such as a highway. Kunkle v. Beck, 1 Ohio App. 70; 18 C. C. n. s. 565 (1913).

Section 10133. (May hold certain property.) Such a company may take, by purchase or otherwise, and hold, such real and personal estate, and erect or purchase the necessary buildings and machinery for carrying on the business, including all the necessary equipments and appendages of the business, such as tubing, pumps, tanks, telegraph apparatus, and engines, as may be necessary to transport oils and water through tubes and pipes. (R. S. Sec. 3879; April 25, 1868, 65 v. 109, § 2.)

Section 10134. (Further powers of such companies.) Such a company may transport, store, insure and ship natural gas, petroleum or water, and transport and store water, for the purpose of furnishing it to engineers employed in developing for, or in the production and transportation of petroleum, and for that purpose it may lay down, construct and maintain the necessary pipes, tubing, tanks, machinery and arrangements. (R. S. Sec. 3880; March 24, 1880, 85 v. 114, 115; R. S. 1880; March 30, 1875, 72 v. 151, § 2; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 382.)

MINING AND MANUFACTURING.

Section 10135. (Manufacturing companies shall keep certain accounts.) At some place within one of the counties in which its business is carried on, every manufacturing company shall establish and keep a principal office, at which shall be kept accurate accounts exhibiting its financial condition, its capital stock or shares, all its property of every description, and credits, subject to taxation. Such accounts shall at all times be subject to the inspection of any assessor lawfully authorized to assess such property and credits. Notice of the place where such office is established, and of any change thereof, shall be published in some newspaper of general circulation in such county. The principal accounting officer of the company shall be a resident of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3855; March 30, 1857, 54 v. 72, § 82.)

The "principal office" required by this section and "the principal place of conducting the business of the corporation" under § 11938 are the same. The legislative intent was to fix the situs of all such manufacturing companies, and the place where their personal property was returnable for taxation, and where they might be sued.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Etna Iron Works, 4 C. C. 579, 588; 2 C. D. 718 (1890).

This section does not require a certificate of change of principal office to be filed with the secretary of state.

3 Opins. Atty. Gen. 280 (1884).

Section 10136. (May extend their operations.) A company incorporated for manufacturing purposes, upon a vote of the holders of a majority of its stock, may extend its manufacturing operations to articles in the same line of business, not authorized by the terms of the original articles of incorporation. After making a certificate of the vote, specifying therein how far the manufacturing operations are to be extended, verified by the oath of its president, and filing it in the office of the secretary of state, the company may manufacture and sell such articles as are named or otherwise provided for in the certificate. (R. S. Sec. 3856; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 58, § 1.)

A manufacturing company which, as an incident to its business, furnishes electric current to consumers for light, heat or power purposes is a public utility. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 545.

Section 10137. (Powers of mining and manufacturing corporations.) Any company incorporated under the laws of this state, for the purpose of mining or boring for petroleum or rock oil, or coal oil, salt or other vegetable, medicinal or mineral fluid, in the earth, or for refining or purifying them, quarrying stone, marble, or slate, mining coal, iron, copper, lead or other minerals, or manufacturing them, or engaged in the manufacturing of articles composed in the whole of iron or part of iron and wood, or for manufacturing cotton or woolen fabrics in whole or in part, or both, and carrying on business connected with the main objects of such corporation may, in its corporate name, carry on its business, or so much thereof as is convenient, in any county in this state, or beyond the limits of this state, and there hold any real or personal estate necessary or convenient for conducting it. (R. S. Sec. 3862; March 26, 1883, 80 v. 76; R. S. 1880; April 13, 1874, 71 v. 69, § 1; April 13, 1865, 62 v. 143, § 1.)

Except as authorized by this and the following sections the "single purpose" rule controls. (See note to § 8623.)

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 229.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 64.

It is said that this section does not authorize refining companies to engage in manufacturing articles composed in part of wood and in part of some metal other than iron.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 229.

The power to acquire and deal in timber lands can not be included in articles of incorporation as incidental to the main purpose of mining oil, gas and coal.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 147.

This section does not authorize the joinder, in articles of incorporation, of the purposes of mining with the purposes of manufacturing and dealing in artificial ice, or of dealing in hay, grain, flour and feed.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 103.

The several corporate purposes authorized by this section and § 10139 can not be joined with power to deal in the articles manufactured as "agent, factor and broker."

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 121.

A corporation may sell products mined and manufactured by itself, and may supply its customers with such products, regardless of whether they are of its own production and manufacture, but such business must be limited to that necessarily and properly incidental to the principal business of the corporation.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 121.

A manufacturing company may, as an incident to its business, purchase and sell patent rights. But a corporation formed for the purpose of developing certain inventions may not include in its articles the purpose of manufacturing and selling the articles to which the patent processes are applicable. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 72.

The dealing in refineries or gas works, apart from those used by the corporation in its business, is unauthorized. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 147.

The power to own and operate pipe lines can not be joined with power to mine and manufacture oil, gas and coal. An oil and gas company can only operate a pipe line for the transportation of its own product. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1909-1910, p. 148; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 79.

A mining company can not be authorized to deal generally in real estate. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 77.

After the incorporators have stated the corporate purpose in the articles of incorporation, the powers of the company are fixed by general laws. Humboldt Min. Co. v. American, etc., Co., 62 Fed. 356; 9 O. F. D. 153 (C. C. A. 1894).

Section 10138. (May subscribe for stock in transportation companies.) The directors of such company may authorize its president, or other proper officer, to purchase or subscribe for, in the name of the company, such an amount of the stocks of any railroad, or other transportation company, as they deem necessary, in order to procure proper facilities for transportation for the manufactories, mines, or other works of the company. But the written consent of the holders of two-thirds of the capital stock of the company to such subscription or purchase first must be had. (R. S. Sec. 3863; April 13, 1874, 71 v. 69, § 2.)

Power to acquire stock in other corporations, generally, see § 8683.

A railroad company is not authorized to acquire stock in a coal mining company. State v. Railway Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 49, 59; 21 C. D. 175 (1909); Railway Co. v. Burke, 19 W. L. B. 27 (C. P. 1887).

This section does not authorize a coal company to construct or operate a railroad: Barlotti v. Commission, 103 O. S. 647 (1921).

Under the provisions of § 10137 and this section the directors, having first obtained the requisite consent of the purchasing company's stockholders, may, in the exercise of a sound discretion, determine what amount of stock it is necessary to subscribe for or purchase, whether a controlling interest or less. Mannington v. Railway, 8 O. L. R. 451, 473; 183 Fed. 133, 150; 16 O. F. D. 552 (U. S. C. C. 1910).

A mining and manufacturing corporation may mortgage its real estate to guarantee the bonds of a railroad company, to enable it to furnish transportation facilities.

Central Trust Co. v. Railway Co., 87 Fed. 815; 10 O. F. D. 328 (C. C. 1898).

But a railway company is not authorized to guarantee the bonds of a coal mining company.

State v. Railway, 12 C. C. n. s. 49; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

Section 10139. (Such companies may consolidate.) Any two or more such corporations may be consolidated in the manner and to the effect provided by law for the consolidation of railroad companies. (R. S. Sec. 3864; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 50, § 1.)

One corporation may be organized to conduct several classes of business which one corporation, formed by the consolidation of several corporations, is authorized to conduct.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, pp. 62, 55, 89.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1904-1905, p. 78.

See note to § 8623 Single purpose rule.

Section 10140. (Certain conveyances must be made.)

When such agreement for consolidation has been duly ratified in the manner specified in the preceding section, the president and secretary of the company, which by the agreement, surrenders its name, properties, rights, and franchises, shall execute and deliver to the consolidated corporation proper deeds, assignments, and transfers, conveying to the consolidated corporation all of the rights, property, and effects of the corporation so surrendering its name and property. From and after the execution of such transfers it shall cease to be a corporation, or to exercise corporate rights. (R. S. Sec. 3865; April 3, 1868, 65 v. 50, § 4.)

Section 10141. (May build a railroad.) Companies organized for the purpose of mining, quarrying, or manufacturing, when such purpose is stated in the articles of incorporation, may construct a railroad, with single or double track, with such side-tracks, turnouts, offices, and depots as they deem necessary to carry out the objects of the incorporation, from any mine, quarry, or manufactory, to any other railroad, or any canal, slack-water navigation, or other navigable water or place within or upon the borders of this state. In respect to such railroad they shall be subject to and governed by the provisions of chapter two of this title. (R. S. Sec. 3866; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 103, § 3.)

Branch railroads to mines, see § 8757.

A mining company having built a railroad under this section may change the office of its railroad under § 8744, but not its principal office, which can only be changed under § 8719.

State v. Coal Co., 4 N. P. 115; 6 L. D. 178.

Snow Fork, etc., Co. v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. 191; 6 L. D. 178.

The railroad authorized by this section is a private road for the benefit of the coal company and in no sense a public road. The road is to begin at a mine, etc., and end at a railroad or other outlet.

Barlotti v. Commission, 103 O. S. 647 (1921).

State v. Railway Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 49, 60; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

An incidental purpose in the charter of a coal mining company to construct a railway from its mines to a railway or other outlet, does not constitute the mining company a railway or kindred company so as to make applicable §§ 8806 or 8683 authorizing a railway company to subscribe for and hold stock in another railroad or kindred company.

State v. Railway Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 49, 60; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

This section does not authorize mining companies to appropriate land.

Miami Coal Co. v. Wigton, 19 O. S. 560 (1869).

A railroad company is not authorized to transact a coal mining business.

State v. Railway Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 49, 60; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

Railway Co. v. Burke, 19 W. L. B. 27 (C. P. 1887).

A coal mining company, which has purchased a public railroad at judicial sale, can not operate it as a private road to the exclusion of the public. State v. Black Diamond Co., 97 O. S. 24 (1917).

A railroad company organized as such with power of eminent domain is impressed with a public interest and must furnish shipping facilities without discrimination. Barlotti v. Commission, 103 O. S. 647 (1921).

A manufacturing company, maintaining a switch engine and several tracks for use in shifting cars in its yards, is not a "railroad corporation" within the meaning of G. C. § 9009, which requires railroad corporations to block angles in switches, etc. Taggart v. Republic, etc., Co., 141 Fed. 910 (C. C. A. 1905).

Side tracks placed by a railroad company on the leasehold estate of a coal mining company, for the purpose of removing the coal, may be removed by the railroad company, over the objection of the lessor, on the abandonment of the premises by the coal company, where the lease permitted the removal of mining appliances by the mining company, on abandonment.

Ambler v. Railroad Co., 9 C. C. n. s. 81; 19 C. D. 89 (1906).

Section 10142. (Mining companies may acquire additional powers.) A company organized for the purpose of mining coal, or iron ores and coal, or a part of whose business is the mining of iron ores and coal, upon a vote of the holders of two-thirds of its capital stock, may engage in the business of manufacturing iron from ores, or in any other branch of iron manufacture. But before it shall engage in such manufacture, by its president, it must execute a certificate, under corporate seal, setting forth the particular branch or branches of iron manufacture in which it purposes to engage, and the place or places where the business, or any part thereof, is to be located, to be verified by the oath of the president, and acknowledged, certified, and forwarded to the secretary of state. Thereupon the company may carry on the business named in such certificate, in addition to that named in the original articles of incorporation. (R. S. Sec. 3867; January 24, 1877, 74 v. 21, § 1.)

Section 10143. (Company to manufacture iron may make steel.) Any company incorporated for manufacturing iron, upon a vote of the holders of a majority of its stock may engage in and carry on the business of manufacturing steel in its branches. (R. S. Sec. 3857; April 2, 1866, 63 v. 67, § 1.)

COMMERCIAL.

Section 10144. (Officers of commercial organizations.) The officers of an incorporated board of trade, chamber of commerce or merchants' exchange or other kindred association, shall consist of a president, two vice-presidents, treasurer, secretary, and not less than ten directors, all of whom shall be members of the association, and be engaged in business at, or residents of the city or town where it is established. They shall be elected by ballot at the annual meeting of the association, and hold their office for one year, unless, by its by-laws, the association provides a longer term for all or any of such officers, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The officers thus elected, together with the directors, shall constitute the board of directors of the association. But the association may provide for the election of not less than ten directors, as aforesaid, and by its by-laws authorize them to elect a president, two vice-presidents, a treasurer and a secretary, and such additional directors as are necessary to complete the maximum membership of the board, all of whom must be members of the association. The officers thus elected, together with the directors, shall constitute the board of directors of such association. All other officers, agents or committees deemed necessary for the interests of the association, shall be elected or appointed in such manner and with such powers as may be provided by the by-laws. In like manner the association may provide for the trial, suspension, fine or expulsion of any of its members by the board of directors constituted as hereinbefore provided. Such association may make provision for the relief and support of the families and dependents of deceased members. (R. S. Sec. 3827; January 24, 1876, 73 v. 3, § 4; R. S. 1880; March 5, 1883, 80 v. 40; April 4, 1894, 91 v. 108.)

Expulsion of members; grounds; procedure and remedies for wrongful expulsion.

See note to § 8653.

The declaration in the articles of incorporation of a chamber of commerce that it "is formed not for profit" is not inconsistent with a provision for capital stock, nor with a declaration that it is intended to promote the prosperity of the city in which it is located; and its trustees or directors are personally liable for all debts contracted by them.

Snyder v. Chamber of Commerce, 53 O. S. 1 (1895).

This section and § 10147 et seq. were held to authorize an association of tobacco dealers to appoint an inspector of leaf tobacco and the performance of his duties, at the instance of the members, was not a usurpation of the duties of inspectors appointed under G. C. § 6041.

State v. Casey, 38 O. S. 555 (1883).

Section 10145. (May appoint committees of arbitration.)

Such corporation may constitute and appoint committees of reference and arbitration, and committees of appeals, who shall be governed by such rules and regulations as may be prescribed in rules or by-laws for the settlement of such matters of reference as voluntarily are submitted for arbitration by members of the association, or by other persons not members thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3828; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 89, § 5.)

Section 10146. (May require bonds from officers.) Such corporations may receive and require from their officers, whether elected or appointed, good and sufficient bonds for the faithful discharge of their duties and trusts, conditioned and made payable as prescribed by the by-laws of the corporations, and may be sued on, and the money collected and held for the use of the party injured, or such other use as is determined upon by the corporation. The president, a vice-president, or the secretary of the corporation, may administer such oaths of office as are prescribed in its by-laws. (R. S. Sec. 3829; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 89, § 6.)

Section 10147. (May appoint inspectors.) Every inspector, gauger, weigher, or measurer appointed by such an association shall be recognized as a legally appointed officer, for the duties pertaining to his position, in the city and county wherein the association is located, and shall be subject to all the provisions and penalties of the laws relating thereto. The certificate of such appointee as to his official acts shall be evidence, and binding upon the persons interested. (R. S. Sec. 3830; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 89, § 9.)

See note to § 10144.

Section 10148. (Inspectors, may appoint deputies.) Every inspector, gauger, weigher or measurer appointed by any board of trade or chamber of commerce organized in this state may appoint one or more deputies to be approved by the board of directors or board of officers of such board of trade or chamber of commerce. Such inspector, gauger, weigher or measurer may take from his deputy a bond, with sureties, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of the appointment, but in all cases the inspector, gauger, weigher, or measurer shall be responsible for his deputy's neglect of duty or misconduct in office. (R. S. Sec. 3830a; April 6, 1883, 80 v. 98.)

Section 10149. (Other like associations may have benefit of these provisions.) Any board of trade or chamber of commerce organized in this state may avail itself of the privileges and powers, in whole or in part, conferred by the five preceding sections, by making a certificate of its adoption thereof, under its seal, and attested by the signatures of its president and secretary, which shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and when so filed shall confer all privileges and powers so defined. (R. S. Sec. 3831; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 89, § 11.)

Section 10150. (Purchase or lease of grounds and erection of buildings; authority to sell and convey.) Such an incorporated association may purchase or lease suitable grounds and erect thereon such buildings as the board of directors may deem proper, for its interest. It may lease any portion of such building, that is not occupied by or needed for its immediate use. Such association, by a two-thirds favorable vote of its board of directors, may sell and convey its real estate and may borrow money and execute and sell or otherwise dispose of its bonds or obligations secured by a mortgage of its property or otherwise. The president and secretary of such association, when so authorized, shall sign all obligations and conveyances. (108 (Pt. 1) v. 607; 74 v. 145, § 1; R. S. 1880; 84 v. 33.)

MARKET-HOUSE.

Section 10151. (Market-house companies.) A company incorporated to construct and maintain a market-house may erect, establish, and maintain, at the place named in its articles of incorporation, a suitable building or buildings to be appropriated and used exclusively as a public market-house, for the sale and vending of meats, vegetables, and all other kinds of provisions, and of fruits, plants, and flowers, and all other articles commonly sold and vended in public market-houses or spaces, on market days, in market hours. (R. S. Sec. 3858; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 92, §§ 1, 2.)

Section 10152. (Powers of such companies.) Such companies may rent, lease, sell, or dispose of stalls, cellar vaults, or other divisions or spaces in their buildings, in the manner, and upon such terms and conditions, as the directors determine. A uniform rule in renting or leasing such stalls, cellar vaults, or other divisions or spaces must be established, printed, and hung in conspicuous places in the buildings. But it may be changed, from time to time, by the directors. (R. S. Sec. 3859; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 92, § 5.)

Section 10153. (Discrimination prohibited.) No preference shall be made, by any variation or difference in rates or prices, in favor of citizens of the city or village wherein the buildings are erected, and against farmers, butchers, or producers not residing in such city or village, and no rule, regulation, order, or condition shall be made or exacted by any company to prevent farmers, butchers, or other persons from disposing of their produce, meats, vegetables, or other articles, in such quantities and upon such terms as they deem proper. (R. S. Sec. 3859; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 92, § 5.)

Section 10154. (What company shall prohibit.) Such companies shall prohibit and prevent in their buildings the use of false weights or measures, the exposure or sale of any diseased or decaying meats or vegetables, and any offensive or injurious articles. (R. S. Sec. 3859; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 92, § 5.)

Section 10155. (May keep streets unobstructed.) Such companies may keep the streets, alleys, or avenues in front of their buildings free, open, and clear of any obstruction from stoppage of wagons, carriages, or vehicles of any kind, or of horses, mules, or cattle, on market days, in market hours. (R. S. Sec. 3860; April 19, 1861, 58 v. 92, § 6.)

Section 10156. (May construct sewers.) When such a company erects its buildings in a city or village having a sewer with which the company may connect sewers of its own construction sufficient to drain its buildings, it shall construct such sewers, and so connect them. In cities and villages not having sewers, such companies may construct sewers for the drainage of their buildings, and charge and receive a compensation for the tapping and use of them, or portions thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3861; March 13, 1861, 58 v. 92, § 7.)

SEWERAGE.

Section 10157. (Sewerage companies.) A company organized for the purpose of draining the streets, alleys, lots, commons, wharves, landings, or buildings of a city or village in this state, may construct and maintain sewers and drains, and lay conductors or pipe for conveying water and other liquid matter from the lots, houses, and streets, through and under the streets, sidewalks, public highways, alleys, commons, wharves, or landings of any such city or village. Upon application by such company the council of any city, or village, may grant to it the privilege of exercising its corporate powers within the limits thereof, for such term of years, and upon such conditions and limitations, as may be deemed expedient. The city council, or the council of the village, may require from the company such reasonable security as it deems necessary for the faithful performance of the duties imposed upon such company by law. (R. S. Sec. 3871; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 5.)

Section 10158. (Grants and privileges prohibited.) No grant shall be made to such a company, and no power or privilege be conferred upon or exercised by it, which will interfere with the rights of any other corporation, or any person, nor shall any person be taxed without his consent for drainage or sewerage constructed by such company. Such companies shall be liable for all damages occasioned by their acts, neglects, or defaults to the rights of persons and other corporations. (R. S. Sec. 3871; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 5.)

Section 10159. (When municipality must purchase property of company.) When a city or village which has granted to such a company, for any term, the rights and privileges herein mentioned, and, at the expiration of the term, upon petition of the company, fails or refuses to renew the grant, the city or village shall purchase of the company its property, consisting of sewers, drains, and pipes actually laid and constructed, with the appurtenances, and the materials and fixtures appertaining thereto, on hand at the time of the expiration of such term, at a price not exceeding the actual cost thereof, for the use and benefit of the city or village. (R. S. 3872; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 5.)

Section 10160. (Municipality may contract with company.) The council of any city, or village, in which such company is organized, may contract with it for the construction and use of such sewers or drains, for draining the streets, alleys, lots, commons, wharves, or grounds within the limits of the municipal corporation. The city or village shall not use the sewers or drains in any manner except by and with the consent of the company, and in the manner, and upon the terms and conditions, which are mutually agreed upon by the company and the city or village. (R. S. Sec. 3873; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 6.)

Section 10160-1. (Owners outside municipalities permitted to use sewers.) The council of any city or village may permit the owners or association of owners of lots and lands abutting on roads or other highways entering such city or village to connect with and use the sewers of such city or village for carrying off sewage and drainage from such outside lots or lands upon such terms as may be agreed upon between such council and the owners or association of owners of such outside lots or lands. (May 29, 1911, 102 v. 191.)

Section 10161. (Company may prescribe rates.) Such companies may prescribe the terms upon which owners and occupants of houses or lots may obtain the use of their sewers and drains for private purposes, and the rate of charge annually for such use, and also the terms upon which the city or village may use the sewers and drains for public purposes. (R. S. Sec. 3874; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 7.)

Section 10162. (Powers of municipalities not limited.)

Nothing in the five preceding sections shall prevent any city or village from constructing sewers, or establishing and maintaining a system of sewerage, under the direction and by the authority of the municipal authorities thereof, not interfering, however, with the work of such company. (R. S. Sec. 3875; April 8, 1856, 53 v. 137, § 8.)

PUBLIC AVENUE.

Section 10163. (Avenue companies.)

A corporation created for the purpose of constructing and maintaining a free public avenue shall construct and maintain its avenue at not less than fifty nor more than one hundred feet in width, of such materials as it deems proper. It shall not charge toll of any kind for the use thereof by the public, but may make and enforce all necessary and reasonable regulations for its use and preservation. If in laying out such avenue, it be necessary to enter upon and appropriate any lands or premises, the proceedings therefor shall be instituted and carried on as is provided by law for the appropriation of private property by municipal corporations. (R. S. Sec. 3823; April 16, 1879, 76 v. 62, §§ 1, 2.)

See Turnpike and Plankroad companies, §§ 9229 to 9304.

Section 10164. (When company may take tolls.)

When such a company puts under contract five consecutive miles of such an avenue, and completes not less than two consecutive miles thereof to the acceptance of the county commissioners, or when the whole of an avenue is completed to such acceptance, the company may erect a toll-gate thereon for the collection of such tolls as turnpike and plankroad companies are allowed by law to collect. When a company completes to such acceptance five consecutive miles of an avenue, it may erect thereon two toll-gates, at such places as in the opinion of the directors will best subserve its interests, for the collection of tolls. (R. S. Sec. 3824; April 3, 1856, 53 v. 46, 3.)

Section 10165. (When consent of authorities necessary.) When in laying out such an avenue it becomes necessary to run through or along the line of any village, the board of directors of the avenue company shall obtain the consent of the council of the village to laying out the avenue through or along the territory over which they have supervision or control. (R. S. Sec. 3825; April 3, 1856, 53 v. 46, § 4.)

Section 10166. (Authorities may surrender roads to company.) If, on application being made to the council of a village, they are of opinion that the public good demands the laying out of such avenue, they may give their written consent to the laying out and construction thereof, which shall have the force and effect of a full and complete release of all authority over the avenue within their corporate jurisdiction. The directors may lay out and construct the avenue through the territory of such village, and control it as though the village did not exist. (R. S. Sec. 3826; April 3, 1856, 53 v. 46, § 5.)

NAVIGATION.

Section 10167. (Companies for improvement of navigable streams.) The directors of a company incorporated for the purpose of improving any stream of water, or part thereof, declared navigable by any law of this state, may prescribe the rates of toll the company shall receive for the passage of any boat or other watercraft through any lock upon such improvement, or for the running of any boat or other watercraft between the locks thereon. (R. S. Sec. 3854; April 6, 1859, 56 v. 239, § 7.)

Section 10168. (Transportation companies.) A company organized for the purpose of transporting freight, or for towing purposes, on any of the navigable rivers of this state, or the lakes and navigable rivers bordering thereon, may build, purchase, and hold such number of steamboats, barges, or other vessels, and other personal property, and such real estate, in this and other states, as it deems necessary for its business, and sell it or any part thereof, in such manner and for such purpose as is prescribed by the rules and regulations of the company, not inconsistent with the laws of this state. The company may carry any articles of freight or produce, tow any barge or other vessel upon any of the navigable streams in this state, and on any of the lakes or navigable rivers bordering thereon. It shall be governed by the same laws, not inconsistent with this section, which govern individuals in such employments. (R. S. Sec. 3877; 66 v. 39, § 4; S. & C. 350.)

Wharfboat as "watercraft."

See Gaff v. Flesher, 33 O. S. 453, 107.

State v. Transportation Co., 23 O. S. 166.

Section 10169. (Wrecking companies.) Any company or association organized for the purpose of wrecking boats and vessels, and saving them, and the property thereon, or property lost by damage or injury to boats or vessels, may build, purchase, and hold such number of boats, vessels, diving-bells, and other appliances and property as it deems necessary for commencing and conducting its business, and may sell and dispose of them, or any part thereof; contract for salvage or compensation for saving boats, vessels, and other property, and demand, recover, and receive salvage, or such compensation, when entitled thereto, by contract or otherwise. They shall be governed by the same laws not inconsistent with this section which govern individuals in such business or employment. (R. S. Sec. 3882; March 11, 1867, 64 v. 44, §§ 2, 4.)

COMMON CARRIER.

Section 10170. (Common carrier companies.) A corporation organized as and for a common carrier company shall have the power:

1. To make all contracts lawful for natural persons to make for the carriage of persons, the storage, forwarding, carriage and delivery of property, but subject to their liabilities.

2. To lease, hold and operate, any line of railway and its appendages, before or after its completion, owned by a municipal corporation of this state, and any railway connecting therewith, lying without this state, and such portion of any railway within this state as may be necessary for the convenient dispatch of its business.

3. To construct, or complete and equip, any railway and its appendages which it is authorized to lease.

4. To borrow money, not exceeding its authorized capital stock, at a rate of interest not exceeding seven and three-tenths per cent per annum, and execute bonds or promissory notes therefor, payable in gold or lawful money, in sums of not less than one hundred dollars, and secure payment thereof by mortgage or pledge of its property then or thereafter acquired, and its income or franchises, including the franchise to be a corporation. But no mortgage bond shall be sold at less than par in lawful money, without the consent of a majority in interest of the stockholders, given at a meeting of the stockholders, or in writing. It may exercise all other powers of a railroad company under the laws of this state, including the right of appropriation, but the powers contained in this paragraph shall be exercised only by common carrier companies organized under this section, and operating a steam railroad. (R. S. Sec. 3838; April 22, 1904, 97 v. 161; April 12, 1877, 74 v. 84, § 4.)

Section 10171. (Any company may subscribe to its stock.) Any company incorporated—or organized under the laws of this state may subscribe for or become the owner of stock in such corporation. But before the subscriptions shall be made, the directors of the company subscribing must be authorized to make it by a vote of the majority in interest of its stockholders, or obtain their consent there-to in writing. (R. S. Sec. 3839; April 12, 1877, 74 v. 84, § 9.)

This section and § 10170 impose no limitation on the amount of stock that a corporation may acquire in a company of the character named, and no restriction as to the kind of corporation that may acquire stock in such a company.

Mannington v. Railway, 8 O. L. R. 451, 473; 183 Fed. 133; 16 O. F. D. 552 (C. C. 1910).

ELEVATOR.

Section 10172. (Elevator companies.) A company or association organized as an elevator company may purchase and hold real and personal estate, erect or purchase, and own, the necessary buildings, offices, and machinery for the purpose of carrying on the business of receiving, storing, delivering and forwarding grain of all kinds, and may add to and connect with this the business of general storage, warehousemen, and forwarders of all kinds of produce and merchandise. On its own account, or for others, it shall not deal as buyer or seller. In the prosecution of its business it shall be governed by the same laws, not inconsistent with this section, as govern individuals in such employment. (R. S. Sec. 3841; March 29, 1867, 64 v. 85, § 3.)

Section 10173. (Railroad company may take stock in such company.) When such company erects or owns an elevator building, and uses it for the purpose of receiving or delivering grain from or to any railroad company, as freight carried or to be carried over its roads, or any part thereof, the railroad company may subscribe to or purchase shares in its capital stock, to an amount not exceeding one-third of the entire capital stock of the elevator company, in the name of its president or other officer, and hold it as trustee. The railroad company shall be liable upon such stock, in its corporate capacity, to the same extent and in the manner a natural person, buying it would be. (R. S. Sec. 3842; March 29, 1867, 64 v. 85, § 4.)

This section fixes the limit of stockholding of the purchasing company at less than a controlling interest.

Mannington v. Railway Co., 8 O. L. R. 451, 472; 183 Fed. 133; 16 O. F. D. 552 (C. C. A. 1910).

The limitation on the amount of stock, authorized to be acquired by the railroad company, indicates a legislative intent to give the railroad company power to aid but not control.

State v. Railway Co., 12 C. C. n. s. 49, 57; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

FISHERY.

Section 10174. (Fishery companies.) When a company organized for the purpose of propagating fish and establishing fisheries in this state acquires the right to use any stream, canal, or reservoir, from the owner of the land adjoining thereto, for the establishment of a fishery to be owned, maintained, and used for the purpose of propagating fish, no person shall fish therefrom without first obtaining authority from such company. A person who violates the provisions of this section shall be liable to such company in trespass, or to the fines authorized by law against persons trespassing upon lands. (R. S. Sec. 3853; January 15, 1873, 70 v. 9 §§ 2, 6.)

Section 10175. (Exceptions to preceding section.) The navigable streams and public canals in this state shall not be subject to the provisions of the preceding section, and nothing therein shall cut off the privilege of any person to use or fish from any lake, river, stream, or reservoir which by custom or usage, has been used for the purpose of fishing therefrom as regulated by law. (R. S. Sec. 3853; January 15, 1873, 70 v. 9, §§ 2, 6.)

FIREMEN'S RELIEF.

Section 10176. (Firemen's relief associations.) An association of members of any regular fire, hose, or hook and ladder company, incorporated for the purpose of affording relief to firemen disabled while on duty, and making donations to indigent, sick firemen, and to the widows and orphans of deceased firemen, may provide for the election of its directors or trustees at separate elections, to be held by the members in good and regular standing of each fire, hose, or hook and ladder company who are members of the corporation, and fix the number to be elected by each company. (R. S. Sec. 3850; March 13, 1861, 58 v. 37; §§ 1, 5, 6.)

The articles of incorporation of a firemen's relief association should comply with this section. The relief should be confined to members disabled while on duty, and benefits should be made payable to the "widows and orphans" of deceased firemen, instead of their "heirs". Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 120.

Section 10177. (Certain powers of such associations.) Such corporations may decide what officers they will have, prescribe the manner of their election, their duties, make regulations for the relief of firemen disabled while on duty, and provide for such entrance fee for members, and such weekly, monthly, or yearly assessment upon members, as it deems best. (R. S. Sec. 3851; March 13, 1861, 58 v. 37, § 6.)

Section 10178. (Power to acquire and dispose of property.) Such corporation may acquire, hold, enjoy, dispose of, and convey all property, real or personal, which it acquires by purchase, contribution, donation, assessment upon its members, or otherwise, for the purpose of carrying out the objects of the corporation, but it shall not acquire or hold property for any other purpose. In order to increase its funds it may loan its money upon bond and mortgage, under such rules and regulations as may be prescribed, and at an annual interest not exceeding six per cent per annum. (R. S. Sec. 3852; March 13, 1861, 58 v. 37, § 5.)

FARM LABORERS.

Section 10179. (Farm laborers' associations.) No association incorporated for the purpose of promoting the interests of agriculture, and for the relief of distressed farm laborers, or their widows and orphans, whether such widows and orphans are members of the association or not, and for any other charitable purpose, shall take or hold real estate, except such as may be actually occupied in the exercise of its legitimate business, or as it acquires in security for or satisfaction of debts justly due it. Real estate so occupied shall not in any case exceed in value the sum of fifty thousand dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3843; May 7, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 5.)

Section 10180. (What investment it may make.) After paying their expenses, such associations shall invest their funds exclusively for the purposes mentioned in their articles of incorporation, and may invest them in mortgages upon real estate, or in county, state, or United States securities. In their articles of incorporation, they may designate the kinds of securities in which their funds shall be invested, in which case no part thereof shall be invested in securities other than those named therein. They shall not make any loan to any of their trustees or officers. They may take by gift, subscription, purchase, devise, or loan. But no loan shall be taken for a less term than three years nor for a greater term than twenty years, nor to an amount exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, nor at a rate of interest greater than four per cent, payable semi-annually. (R. S. Sec. 3844; May 7, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 6.)

Section 10181. (Must report to attorney-general.) Every such association annually shall make, and transmit to the attorney-general, under the signatures of a majority of the trustees, attested by the clerk, a full and true statement of its condition and affairs. For any wilful neglect to make such report within one month after its annual meeting, the attorney-general may proceed against the association for the forfeiture of its charter. (R. S. Sec. 3845; May 7, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 7.)

Section 10182. (Consolidation of two associations.) Any unincorporated association or society organized for any purpose named in the third preceding section may be consolidated with an association incorporated for a purpose named therein, by a resolution of each, adopted by not less than two-thirds of its members, at a meeting called for that purpose. Such resolutions, and votes thereon must be recorded by the clerk of the corporate association, and the consolidated association thereupon shall assume the name or title of the corporate association, and be entitled to all its privileges. But the members of the consolidated association shall not be liable for the debts or obligations of the unincorporated association or society. (R. S. Sec. 3846; May 7, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 8.)

See note to § 10038.

Dunham v. Kauffman, 10 N. P. n. s. 49; 20 L. D. 274 (1910).

Section 10183. (Attorney-general to report annually.)

The attorney-general, annually, shall report to the general assembly, in a condensed form, the number and condition of such associations, as derived from the annual reports of their trustees. (R. S. Sec. 3847; May 1, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 9.)

Section 10184. (May maintain libraries, etc.) All such incorporated associations may keep and maintain libraries, and a museum of art consisting of models of such improved instruments and machinery as are best calculated to promote the interests of agriculture, for the benefit of such associations, under such rules and regulations as its members from time to time adopt, and may make all needful by-laws for their good government and regulation. (R. S. Sec. 3848; May 1, 1877, 74 v. 204, § 11.)

COOPERATIVE TRADE.

Section 10185. (Co-operative trade associations.) An association incorporated for the purpose of purchasing, in quantity, grain, goods, groceries, fruits, vegetables, provisions, or any other articles of merchandise, and distributing them to consumers at the actual cost and expense of purchasing, holding, and distribution, may employ its capital and means in the purchase of such articles of merchandise as it deems best for itself, and in the purchase or lease of such real and personal estate, subject always to the control of the stock-holders, as are necessary or convenient for purposes connected with and pertaining to its business. (R. S. Sec. 3837; April 13, 1867, 64 v. 145, §§ 2, 5.)

A corporation for profit is not authorized by this section. The articles of incorporation should limit the authorized purchases to those authorized by this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 213.

Section 10186. (Distribution of purchases.) Such association may adopt such plan of distribution of its purchases among the stockholders and others as is most convenient, and best adapted to secure the ends proposed by the organization. Profits arising from the business may be divided among the stockholders from time to time, as it deems expedient, in proportion to the several amounts of their respective purchases. (R. S. Sec. 3837; April 13, 1867, 64 v. 145, §§ 2, 5.)

COOPERATIVE AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATIONS.

Section 10186-1. (Definition of terms.) As used in this act (a) the term "agricultural products" shall include horticultural, viticultural, forestry, dairy, live stock, poultry, bee and any farm products; (b) the term "member" shall include actual members of associations without capital stock and holders of common stock in associations organized with capital stock; (c) the term "association" means any corporation organized under this act; and (d) the term "person" shall include individuals, firms, partnerships, corporations and associations. Associations organized hereunder shall be deemed "non-profit," inasmuch as they are not organized to make profit for themselves, as such, or for their members, as such, but only for their members as producers. (110 v. 91, § 1; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1246.)

Section 10186-2. (Number required for incorporation.) Five (5) or more persons, a majority of whom are residents of this state, engaged in the production of agricultural products, may form a non-profit cooperative association, with or without capital stock, under the provisions of this act. (110 v. 91, § 2; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1246.)

Section 10186-3. (Business in which association may engage.) An association may be organized to engage in any activity in connection with the marketing or selling of the agricultural products of its members, or with the harvesting, preserving, drying, processing, canning, packing, grading, storing, handling, shipping or utilization thereof, or the manufacturing or marketing of the by-products thereof; or in connection with the manufacturing, selling or supplying to its members of machinery, equipment or supplies of any kind or character; or in the financing of the above enumerated activities; or in any one or more of the activities specified herein. (110 v. 91, § 3; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1246.)

Section 10186-4. (Powers of such associations.) Each association incorporated under this act shall have the following powers:

(a) To engage in any activity in connection with the marketing, selling, preserving, harvesting, drying processing, manufacturing, canning, packing, grading, storing, handling, or utilization of any agricultural products produced or delivered to it by its members or others, or the manufacturing or marketing of the by-products thereof; or any activities in connection with the purchase, sale, hiring or use by its members or others, of supplies, machinery or equipment of any kind or character; or in the financing of such activities; or in any one or more of the activities specified in this section.

Any such association may limit its activities to the handling or the marketing products of its own members, except for storage. If it handles the products of non-members, such non-members' products handled in any fiscal year must not exceed the total of similar products handled by the association for its own members during the same period.

(b) To borrow money without limitation as to amount of corporate indebtedness or liability except in the case of associations organized with capital stock; and to make advance payments and other advances to members or others.

(c) To act as the agent or representative of any member or members in any of the above mentioned activities.

(d) To purchase or otherwise acquire; and to hold, own and exercise all rights of ownership in; and to sell, transfer or pledge, or guarantee the payment of dividends or interest on, or the retirement or redemption of, shares of capital stock or bonds of any corporation or association engaged in any directly related activity or in the warehousing or handling or marketing of any of the products handled by the association.

(e) To establish reserves and to invest the funds thereof in bonds or in such other property as may be provided in the by-laws.

(f) To buy, hold and exercise all privileges of ownership, over such real or personal property as may be necessary or convenient for the conduct and operation of any of the business of the association, or incidental thereto.

(g) To establish, secure, own and develop patents, trade-marks and copyrights.

(h) To do each any everything necessary, suitable or proper for the accomplishment of any one of the purposes or the attainment of any one or more of the subjects herein enumerated; or conducive to or expedient for the interest or benefit of the association; and to contract accordingly; and in addition to exercise and possess all powers, rights and privileges necessary or incidental to the purposes for which the association is organized or to the activities in which it is engaged; and in addition, any other rights, powers and privileges granted by the laws of this state to ordinary corporations, except such as are inconsistent with the express provisions of this act; and to do any such thing anywhere. (110 v. 91, § 4; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1247.)

Section 10186-5. (Membership limited.) (a) Under the terms and conditions prescribed in the by-laws adopted by it, an association may admit as members (or issue common stock to), only cooperative marketing associations or persons engaged in the production of the agricultural products to be handled by or through the association, including the lessees and tenants of land used for the production of such products and any lessors and landlords who receive as rent all or any part of the crop raised on the leased premises.

(b) If a member of a non-stock association be other than natural person, such members may be represented by any individual, associate, officer or manager or member thereof, duly authorized in writing.

(c) Any association organized hereunder may become a member or stockholder of any other association or associations organized hereunder. (110 v. 92, § 5; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1247, § 9.)

Section 10186-6. (What articles of association shall state.) Each association formed under this act must prepare and file articles of incorporation, setting forth:

(a) The name of the association.

(b) The purposes for which it is formed.

(c) The place where its principal business will be transacted.

(d) The number of directors thereof, which must be not less than five (5) and may be any number in excess thereof; the term of office of such directors; and the names and addresses of those who are to serve as directors for the first term, and or until the election and qualification of their successors.

(e) If organized without capital stock, whether the property rights and interest of each member shall be equal or unequal; and if unequal, the general rule or rules applicable to all members by which the property rights and interests, respectively, of each member may and shall be determined and fixed; and provisions for the admission of new members who shall be entitled to share in the property of the association with the old members, in accordance with such general rule or rules. This provision or paragraph of the articles of incorporation shall not be altered, amended, or repealed except by the written consent or vote of two-thirds of the members.

(f) If organized with capital stock, the amount of such stock and the number of shares into which it is divided and the par value thereof.

The capital stock may be divided into preferred and common stock. If so divided, the articles of incorporation must contain a statement of the number of shares of stock to which preference is granted and the number of shares of stock to which no preference is granted and the nature and definite extent of the preference and privileges granted to each.

The articles must be subscribed by the incorporators and acknowledged by them before an officer authorized by the law of this state to take and certify acknowledgements of deeds and conveyances; and shall be filed in accordance with the provisions of the general corporation law of this state; and when so filed the said articles of incorporation, or certified copies thereof, shall be received in all the courts of this state and other places as prima facie evidence of the facts contained therein and of the due incorporation of such association. (110 v. 93, § 6; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1246, § 4.)

Section 10186-7. (Amendments to articles.) The articles of incorporation may be altered or amended at any regular meeting or any special meeting called for that purpose. An amendment must first be approved by two-thirds of the directors and then adopted by a vote representing a majority of all the members of the association. Amendments to the articles of incorporation, when so adopted, shall be filed in accordance with the provisions of the general corporation law of this state. (110 v. 94, § 7; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1246, § 6.)

Section 10186-8. (Adoption of by-laws. What by-laws may contain.) Each association incorporated under this act must, within thirty (30) days after its incorporation, adopt for its government and management, a code of by-laws, not inconsistent with the powers granted by this act. A majority vote of the members, or their written assent, is necessary to adopt such by-laws. By-laws shall also provide that the by-laws may be amended; and shall provide the voting power by which amendments may be made. Each association, under its by-laws, may provide for any or all of the following matters:

(a) The time, place and manner of calling and conducting its meetings.

(b) The number of members constituting a quorum.

(c) The right of members to vote by proxy or by mail, or both; and the conditions, manner, form, and effect of such votes.

(d) The number of directors constituting a quorum.

(e) The qualifications, compensation and duties and term of office of directors and officers; time of their election and the mode and manner of giving notice thereof.

(f) Penalties for violation of the by-laws.

(g) The amount of entrance, organization and membership fees, if any; the manner and method of collection of the same; and the purposes for which they may be used.

(h) The amount which each member shall be required to pay annually or from time to time, if at all, to carry on the business of the association; the charge, if any, to be paid by each member for services rendered by the association to him and the time of payment and the manner of collection; and the marketing contract between the association and its members which every member may be required to sign.

(i) The number and qualification of members of the association and the conditions precedent to membership or ownership of common stocks; the methods, time and manner of permitting members to withdraw or the holders of common stock to transfer their stock; the manner of assignment and transfer of the interest of members and of the shares of common stock; the conditions upon which and time when membership of any member shall cease; the suspension of the rights of a member when he ceases to be eligible to membership in the association; and the mode, manner and effect of the expulsion of a member; the manner of determining the value of a member's interest and provision for its purchase by the association upon the death or withdrawal of a member or upon the expulsion of a member or forfeiture of his membership, or, at the option of the association, the purchase at a price fixed by appraisal by the board of directors. In case of the withdrawal or expulsion of a member, the board of directors shall equitably appraise his property interests in the association and shall fix the amount thereof in money, which shall be paid to him within one year after such expulsion or withdrawal.

Every association incorporated hereunder may adopt any other by-laws consistent with law, providing for any matter or thing relative to the control, regulation, operation, management, or government of the association. (110 v. 94, § 8; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1248, § 14.)

Section 10186-9. (Annual and special meetings; notice.)

In its by-laws, each association shall provide for one or more regular meetings annually. The board of directors shall have the right to call a special meeting at any time; and ten percent of the members or stockholders may file a petition stating the specific business to be brought before the association and demand a special meeting at any time. Such meeting must thereupon be called by the directors. Notice of all meetings, together with a statement of the purpose thereof, shall be mailed to each member at least ten days prior to the meeting; provided, however, that the by-laws may require instead that such notice may be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation, published at the principal place of business of the association. (110 v. 95, § 9.)

Section 10186-10. (Board of directors. Salaries. Vacancy.) The affairs of the association shall be managed by a board of not less than five directors, elected by the members from their own number. The by-laws may provide that the territory in which the association has members shall be divided into districts and that the directors shall be elected according to such districts, either directly or by district delegates elected by the members in that district. In such a case the by-laws shall specify the number of directors to be elected by each district, the manner and method of reapportioning the directors and of redistricting the territory covered by the association. The by-laws may provide that primary elections shall be held in each district to elect the directors apportioned to such districts and that the result of all such primary elections may be ratified by the next regular meeting of the association or may be considered final as to the association. The by-laws may provide that one or more directors may be appointed by any public official or commission or by other directors selected by the members or their delegates. Such directors shall represent primarily the interest of the general public in such associations. The directors so appointed need not be members of the association; but shall have the same powers and rights as other directors. Such directors shall not number more than one-fifth of the entire number of directors.

An association may provide a fair remuneration for the time actually spent by its officers and directors in its service and for the service of its members of its executive committee. No director, during the term of his office, shall be a party to a contract for profit with the association differing in any way from the business relations accorded regular members or holders of common stock of the association or others, or differing from terms generally current in that district.

The by-laws may provide that no director shall occupy any position in the association, except the president and secretary, on regular salary or substantially full time pay.

The by-laws may provide for an executive committee and may allot to such committee all the functions and powers of the board of directors, subject to the general direction and control of the board.

When a vacancy on the board of directors occurs other than by expiration of term, the remaining members of the board, by a majority vote, shall fill the vacancy, unless the by-laws provide for an election of directors by district. In such a case the board of directors shall immediately call a special meeting of the members of stockholders in that district to fill the vacancy. (110 v. 95, § 10; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1248, § 14.)

Section 10186-11. (Officers.) The directors shall elect from their number a president and one or more vice-presidents. They shall also elect a secretary and a treasurer, who need not be directors or members of the association; and they may combine the two latter offices and designate the combined office as secretary-treasurer; or unite both functions and titles in one person. The treasurer may be a bank or any depository, and as such, shall not be considered as an officer, but as a function, of the board of directors. In such case, the secretary shall perform the usual accounting duties of the treasurer, excepting that the funds shall be deposited only as and where authorized by the board of directors. (110 v. 96, § 11; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1248, § 14.)

Section 10186-12. (Official bonds.) Every officer, employe and agent handling funds or negotiable instruments or property of or for any association created hereunder shall be required to execute and deliver adequate bonds for the faithful performance of his duties and obligations. (110 v. 96, § 12.)

Section 10186-13. (Certificate of membership. Stock. Debts. Amount of stock each member may hold. Dividends.

Vote. Preferred stock may be sold. Purchase its own stock.)
When a member of an association established without capital stock has paid his membership fee in full, he shall receive a certificate of membership.

No association shall issue stock to a member until it has been fully paid for. The promissory notes of the members may be accepted by the association as full or partial payment. The association shall hold the stock as security for the payment of the note; but such retention as security shall not affect the member's right to vote.

No member shall be liable for the debts of the association to an amount exceeding the sum remaining unpaid on his membership fee or his subscription to the capital stock, including any unpaid balance on any promissory notes given in payment thereof.

No stockholder of a cooperative association shall own more than one-twentieth ($1/20$) of the common stock of the association; and an association, in its by-laws may limit the amount of common stock which one member may own to any amount less than one-twentieth ($1/20$) of the common stock. The association shall limit its dividends on stock of any amount not greater than eight (8) per cent per annum; and all other net income, less specified reserves which shall be provided for in by-laws, shall be distributed back to its members only on the basis of patronage. Any receipts or dividends from subsidiary corporations or from stock or other securities owned by the association, shall be included in the ordinary receipts of the association, and shall be distributed accordingly.

No member in any association without capital stock shall be entitled to more than one vote.

Any association organized with stock under this act may issue preferred stock, without the right to vote. Such stock may be sold to any person, member or non-member, and may be redeemable or retireable by the association on such terms and conditions as may be provided for by the articles of incorporation and printed on the face of the certificate. The by-laws shall prohibit the transfer of the common stock of the association to persons not engaged in the production of the agricultural products handled by the association; and such restrictions must be printed upon every certificate of stock subject thereto.

The association may, at any time, as specified in the by-laws, except when the debts of the association exceed fifty (50) per cent of the assets thereof, buy in or purchase its common stock at the book value thereof, as determined by the board of directors, and pay for it in cash within one (1) year thereafter. (110 v. 96, § 13.)

Section 10186-14. (Removal of officers, etc. Petition; notice; etc. Election of directors by districts.) Any member may bring charges against an officer or director by filing them in writing with the secretary of the association, together with a petition signed by five per cent of the members, requesting the removal of the officer or director in question. The removal shall be voted upon at the next regular or special meeting of the association and, by a vote of a majority of the members, the association may remove the officer or director and fill the vacancy. The director or officer, against whom such charges have been brought shall be informed in writing of the charges previous to the meeting and shall have an opportunity at the meeting to be heard in person or by counsel and to present witnesses; and the person or persons bringing the charges against him shall have the same opportunity.

In case the by-laws provide for election of directors by districts with primary elections in each district, then the petition for removal of a director must be signed by twenty per cent of the members residing in the district from which he was elected. The board of directors must call a special meeting of the members residing in that district to consider the removal of the director; and by a vote of the majority of the members of that district, the director in question shall be removed from office. (110 v. 97, § 14.)

Section 10186-15. (Appeals from directors.) Upon demand of one-third of the entire board of directors, made immediately and so recorded at the same meeting at which the original motion was passed, any matter of policy that has been approved or passed by the board must be referred to the entire membership for decision at the next special or regular meeting; and a special meeting may be called for the purpose. (110 v. 98, § 15.)

Section 10186-16. (Contracts.) The association and its members may make and execute marketing contracts, requiring the members to sell, for any period of time, not over ten years, all or any specified part of their agricultural products or specified commodities exclusively to or through the association, or any facilities to be created by the association. The contract may provide, among other things, that the association may sell or resell the products delivered by its members, with or without taking title thereto; and pay over to its members the resale price, after deducting all necessary selling, overhead and other costs and expenses, including interest or dividends on stock, not exceeding eight (8) per cent per annum, and reserves for retiring the stock, if any; and other proper reserves; and or any other deductions. (110 v. 98, § 16; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1247, § 8.)

Section 10186-17. (Damages.) (a) The by-laws or the marketing contract may fix, as liquidated damages, specific reasonable sums to be paid by the members to the association upon the breach by them of any provision of the marketing contract regarding the sale or delivery or withholding of products; and may further provide that the member will pay all costs, premiums for bonds, expenses and fees, in case any action is brought upon the contract by the association; and any such provisions shall be valid and enforceable in the courts of this state; and such clauses providing for liquidated damages shall be enforceable as such and shall not be regarded as penalties. (110 v. 98, § 17.)

Section 10186-18. (May exchange preferred stock as purchase price.) Whenever an association, organized hereunder with preferred capital stock, shall purchase the stock or any property, or any interest in any property of any person, firm or corporation or association, it may discharge the obligations so incurred, wholly or in part, by exchanging for the acquired interest, shares of its preferred capital stock to an amount which at par value would equal the fair market value of the stock or interest so purchased, as determined by the board of directors. In that case the transfer to the association of the stock or interest purchased shall be equivalent to payment in cash for the shares of stock issued. (110 v. 98, § 18.)

Section 10186-19. (Annual reports.) Each association formed under this act shall prepare and file an annual report with the director of agriculture on forms to be furnished by him containing the name of the association; its principal place of business; and a general statement of its business operations during the fiscal year, showing the amount of capital stock paid up and the number of stockholders of a stock association or the number of members and amount of membership fees received, if a non-stock association; the total expenses of operations; the amount of its indebtedness or liabilities, and its balance sheets. (110 v. 99, § 19.)

Section 10186-20. (Exemptions.) Any provisions of law which are in conflict with this act [G. C. §§ 10186-1 to 10186-30] shall be construed as not applying to the associations herein provided for.

Any exemptions whatsoever under any and all existing laws applying to agricultural products in the possession or under the control of the individual producer, shall apply similarly and completely to such products delivered by its farmer members, in the possession or under the control of the association. (110 v. 99, § 20.)

Section 10186-21. (Who may use word "cooperative.") No person, firm, corporation or association, hereafter organized or hereafter applying to do business in this state as a farmers' marketing association for the sale of farm products, shall be entitled to use the word "cooperative" as a part of its corporate or other business name or title, unless it has complied with the provisions of this act. (110 v. 99, § 21.)

Section 10186-22. (May own other corporations.) An association may organize, form, operate, own, control, have an interest in, own stock of, or be a member of any other corporation or corporations, with or without capital stock, and engaged in preserving, drying, processing, canning, packing, storing, handling, shipping, utilizing, manufacturing, marketing or selling of the agricultural products handled by the association, or the by-products thereof.

If such corporations are warehousing corporations, they may issue legal warehouse receipts to the association against the commodities delivered by it, or to any other person and such legal warehouse receipts shall be considered as adequate collateral to the extent of the usual and current value of the commodity represented thereby. (110 v. 99, § 22.)

Section 10186-23. (Cooperation contracts.) Any association may, upon resolution adopted by its board of directors, enter into all necessary and proper contracts and agreements and make all necessary and proper stipulations, agreements and contracts and arrangements with any other cooperative corporation, association or associations, formed in this or any other state, for the cooperative and more economical carrying on of its business or any part or parts thereof. Any two or more associations may, by agreement between them, unite in employing and using or may separately employ and use the same personnel, methods, means and agencies for carrying on and conducting their respective business. (110 v. 99, § 23.)

Section 10186-24. (Corporations organized under laws of other states.) Any corporation or association heretofore or hereafter organized under generally similar laws of another state shall be allowed to carry on any proper activities, operations and functions in this state upon compliance with the general regulations applicable to foreign corporations desiring to do business in this state and all contracts which could be made by any association incorporated hereunder, made by or with such associations shall be legal and valid and enforceable in this state with all of the remedies set forth in this act. (110 v. 100, § 24.)

Section 10186-25. (Association organized under prior laws. Contracts validated.) Any association, organized under previously existing statutes, may, by a majority vote of its members, be brought under the provisions of this act by limiting its membership and adopting the other restrictions as provided herein. It shall make out in duplicate a statement signed and sworn to by its directors to the effect that the association has, by a majority vote of the members, decided to accept the benefits and be bound by the provisions of this act and has authorized all changes accordingly. Articles of incorporation shall be filed as required in section 8, except that they shall be signed by the members of the then board of directors. The filing fee shall be the same as for filing an amendment to articles of incorporation.

(a) Where any association may be incorporated under this act, all contracts heretofore made by or on behalf of same by the promoters thereof in anticipation of such association becoming incorporated under the laws of this state, whether such contracts be made by or in the name of some corporation organized elsewhere, and when same would have been valid if entered into subsequent to the passage of this act, are hereby validated as if made after the passage of this act. (110 v. 100, § 25.)

Section 10186-26. (Not in "restraint of trade.") No association organized hereunder and complying with the terms hereof shall be deemed a conspiracy or a combination in restraint of trade or an illegal monopoly; or an attempt to lessen competition or to fix prices arbitrarily nor shall the marketing contracts and agreements between the association and its members or any agreements authorized in this act be considered illegal as such or in unlawful restraint of trade or as part of a conspiracy or combination to accomplish an improper or illegal purpose. (110 v. 100, § 26.)

Section 10186-27. (Separate sections.) If any section of this act [G. C. §§ 10186-1 to 10186-30] shall be declared unconstitutional for any reason, the remainder of this act shall not be effected thereby. (110 v. 100, § 27; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1250, § 20.)

Section 10186-28. (General corporation laws apply hereto.) The provisions of the general corporation laws of this state and all powers and rights thereunder, shall apply to the association organized hereunder, except where such provisions are in conflict with or inconsistent with the express provisions of this act. (110 v. 101, § 28.)

Section 10186-29. (Annual fees.) Each association organized hereunder shall pay into the state treasury an annual fee of ten ($10) dollars only, in lieu of all franchise or license or corporation or taxes or charges upon reserves held by it for members. (110 v. 101, § 29; 109 v. 52, § 8.)

Section 10186-30. (Incorporation and amendment fees.) For filing articles of incorporation, an association organized hereunder shall pay to the secretary of state ten dollars; and for filing an amendment to the articles, five dollars. (110 v. 101, § 30; 108 (Pt. 2) v. 1250, § 19.)

PARK AND MEMORIAL.

Section 10187. (Associations may purchase battlefield or memorial sites.) Any incorporated association, having for its purpose the preservation of public parks and memorial sites, may acquire and hold in perpetuity for memorial purposes for the free use and benefit of the public, any real estate in this state, which has been, or may be, the site or scene of any battle, or other engagement, in behalf of, or in defense of, the government of the United States or of this state, or which has been used or set apart for the burial of American soldiers. (April 19, 1904, 97 v. 97, § 1; R. S. § 3870-1.)

Section 10188. (When may condemn property.) Such association may improve such real estate so held by it, and prescribe reasonable regulations for the use thereof by the public. In the event that such association and any owner or owners of the real estate, sought to be acquired by it, are unable to agree upon the price to be paid therefor, the association may acquire it by proceedings in a proper court, in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of private property by a municipal corporation of this state. (R. S. Sec. 3870-1; April 19, 1904, 97 v. 97, § 1.)

CHARITY.

Section 10189. (Homes for aged and indigent women.) Corporations designated as the widows' home, and asylum for aged and indigent women, in addition to the estates, real, personal, or mixed, which they are otherwise allowed by law to hold, may take by purchase, gift, or devise, and hold, use, dispose of, and convey, in all lawful ways, any estate, real, personal, or mixed, convenient or necessary for the use of the corporation, or for the investment of its funds. No part of such estate, nor of the income thereof, shall be used for any purpose or business other than in providing a suitable asylum, the support and maintenance thereof, and the support and maintenance of such aged and indigent women as are admitted into it under the by-laws thereof. (R. S. Sec. 3881; February 27, 1878, 75 v. 14, § 1.)

See also §§ 9972 to 9977.

Section 10190. (Contract for care and maintenance of indigent, aged or infirm deaf and dumb.) Any incorporated association organized for the purpose of providing a home for deaf and dumb persons may enter into a contract with the board of county infirmary directors of any county, or with the proper officers of any corporation infirmary, for the care and maintenance at such home of any deaf and dumb person who may be an inmate of such county or corporation infirmary, or who, under the laws of the state, may be entitled to admission thereto. In every such case the county or corporation infirmary, during the period the person remains in such home, shall pay to the association, annually, a sum equal to the per capita cost of maintaining inmates in the county or corporation infirmary. (R. S. Sec. 3881-1; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 369, § 1; April 22, 1898, 93 v. 212; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 419.)

Section 10191. (State board of charities may order removal of such persons to home.) When any deaf and dumb person is maintained in a county or corporation infirmary in this state, who, in the judgment of the board of state charities, should be removed to a home organized under the preceding section, such board may order the removal of the person from the infirmary to the home. When such person is removed on the order of the board from an infirmary to the home, then the transportation of the person to the home and his or her maintenance shall be paid by the infirmary directors of the county infirmary or the proper officers of the corporation infirmary as provided in the preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 3881-1; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 369, § 1; April 22, 1898, 93 v. 212; April 27, 1896, 92 v. 419.)

Section 10192. (Companies for protecting and preserving dead bodies.) Any association organized for the purpose of preserving and protecting bodies of deceased persons before burial may purchase, or take by devise or gift, hold, and convey real estate, not exceeding one acre of land, and erect thereon suitable buildings, construct and maintain vaults, and such other appliances as are necessary to carry out its objects. Such property shall be exempt from execution, from taxation, and from being appropriated to any other public purpose, if used exclusively for the purpose herein described. (R. S. Sec. 3884; R. S. of 1880.)

ENTERTAINMENT.

Section 10193. (Powers of museum, park and rink companies.) When a corporation organized for the purpose of constructing and conducting a museum for the exhibition and preservation of works of nature and art, and for instruction in connection therewith, or a public hall of any kind, or a park, pond or rink for skating or other lawful sports, or for holding fairs, festivals, public meetings, concerts or lawful entertainments of any kind, provides in its articles of incorporation that its buildings or a designated part thereof, shall be devoted to the use of the public for all purposes set forth therein, free from cost, charge or expense except such as are necessary to provide the means to keep the buildings, or part thereof and its grounds in proper condition and repair, and to pay the cost of insurance, care, management and attendance, so that the public may have the benefit thereof for the uses set forth in its articles at as little expense as possible, that no stockholder, subscriber, trustee, director or member shall receive any compensation, gain or profit from the corporation for such public use of its buildings or part thereof, the authorities of any city, village or county in which the corporation is located, may appropriate to such use and grant the right to such corporation to erect and perpetually maintain its buildings on any of the parks, lands, lots or grounds which, or the use of which belong to or are subject to the control of such city, village, county, or the authorities thereof, and to control them on terms and conditions which may be agreed upon between the public authorities and the corporation. In every such case the public authorities and corporation may agree that additional trustees of the corporation may be appointed by such public authorities, and upon the number thereof and the method of their appointment. They also may agree that any officer or officers of such city, village or county to be designated by them ex-officio may act as trustees. (R. S. Sec. 3868; April 12, 1881, 78 v. 127; R. S. 1880; February 12, 1876, 73 v. 8, § 1; March 8, 1872, 69 v. 20, § 1.)

A corporation organized for "musical, artistic and gymnastic purposes" which owns a building where societies meet for such purposes, but no part of which is rented, is not a real estate corporation. Becker v. Germania Hall, 22 C. C. n. s. 395 (1908).

Power to own stock in other corporations, § 10196.

Section 10194. (May provide for reversion of stock, etc.)

Such corporation may provide in its organization a limit as to the number of shares which each stockholder can own, the conditions on which the shares may be held or transferred, and for the reversion thereof to the corporation in case of the death or disqualification of a stockholder. (R. S. Sec. 3869; February 12, 1876, 73 v. 8, § 2.)

Section 10195. (Penalties for trespasses upon property.)

Whoever breaks, throws down, or injures any gate, fence, inclosure, embankment, or erection of any kind, upon the ground of any such corporation, or forcibly or fraudulently passes such gate, or over such fence, or into such inclosure or building, without having paid the charge demanded for entry therein, for each offense, shall forfeit to the party injured the sum of twenty-five dollars, in addition to the damages resulting from such wrongful act. (R. S. Sec. 3870; April 5, 1867, 64 v. 182, § 7.)

Section 10196. (Certain companies may purchase or own stock in other companies.) When an incorporated company organized under the laws of this state, and having a capital stock including museum, park, pond or rink companies, is organized for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a building, any part of which is intended for or to be occupied by two or more incorporated companies not having a capital stock, including religious, scientific, and beneficial associations heretofore incorporated, as a lodge-room, chapel, or regular place of meeting for their members, such incorporated companies, societies or benevolent associations may each subscribe for, purchase or become the owner or owners, by donation or otherwise, of the whole or part of the capital stock of such incorporated company organized for the purpose of erecting and maintaining such building. (R. S. Sec. 3631-8; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 177, § 1.)

Section 10197. (Liable in corporate capacity same as individuals.) Each of such incorporated companies, societies and associations shall be liable in its corporate capacity for and on their respective shares of the capital stock so subscribed, purchased, and owned by it the same as if the stock were held and owned by an individual. (R. S. Sec. 3631-9; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 177, § 2.)

Section 10198. (When and how directors elected.) When two or more or such incorporated companies, societies, or benevolent associations subscribe for, purchase or own all the capital stock of such incorporated company organized for the purpose of erecting and maintaining such building, each of the incorporated companies, societies or benevolent associations, shall elect three members of its company, society or association to act as directors of the company as soon as all the stock is subscribed and ten per cent is paid, and thereafter at its first stated meeting in January of each year, elect three such directors. The directors so elected and their successors in office shall comprise the board of directors of the company, and have all the powers conferred by law on the directors of incorporated companies having a capital stock. The directors need not be the owners or holders of capital stock in such corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3631-10; April 18, 1883, 80 v. 177, § 3.)

Section 10198-1. (Acquisition of prehistoric monuments and sites.) Any incorporated association or society maintained by and operating for and on behalf of the state of Ohio, having for its purpose the preservation of prehistoric monuments or the exploration or examination of such prehistoric monuments with the view of collecting and preserving all relics or artifacts found in such monuments, for educational and scientific purposes and for the use and benefits of the public by being permanently placed in a state museum, may acquire and hold any real estate in the state of Ohio which is the site of an prehistoric mound, earth or stone works, or prehistoric village site. In the event that such incorporated association or society seeking to acquire such real estate and any owner of such real estate sought to be acquired are unable to agree upon the price to be paid for acquiring or holding of the real estate desired, such association or society may acquire such real estate by proceedings in a proper court in the manner provided by law for the appropriation of private property by a municipal corporation of this state. (May 2, 1913, 103 v. 262.)

CRIMES.

Section 10199. (Township society for detection and arrest of horse-thieves and criminals.) When natural persons of a township form a society for the detection and arrest of horse thieves and other criminals, and for mutual protection of the property of its members, such society may become a body corporate in the manner prescribed in section ninety-nine hundred and eleven, with the right to levy and collect, by suit, if necessary, assessments not exceeding three dollars annually from each member as may be required to carry out the objects of the society, and to make for it needful rules and regulations not in conflict with law. (R. S. Sec. 3709a; February 10, 1885, 82 v. 63.)

Whether the word "police" or "special police", in the name of a corporation organized under this section or § 10200, would be likely to mislead the public, is a question for decision by the secretary of state under § 8628. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 55.

Section 10200. (Corporations for the apprehension and conviction of criminals.) Any number of persons, not less than fifteen, a majority of whom must be residents of this state, may become incorporated for the purpose of apprehending and convicting any person or persons accused of either a felony or misdemeanor. (R. S. Sec. 3705-11; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299, § 1; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Sections 10200 et seq. do not authorized the organization of a corporation for the purpose of enabling its members to exercise police powers and collect rewards for the apprehension of criminals. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2505.

A corporation organized under the general corporation law can not, by amendment, acquire the powers of a corporation authorized by this section.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 71.

Section 10201. (Election of officers; by-laws.) An association so incorporated may make and use a common seal with the name of the corporation thereon. A majority of its members may adopt a constitution and by-laws for their government, and elect or appoint such officers as they deem proper, who shall hold their offices during the term provided, by the constitution and by-laws, and perform the duties thereby, and also by law required of them. The presiding officer of such an association may administer the proper oaths of office to any of its officers or members, and certify the appointment or election thereof under its seal. (R. S. Sec. 3705-12; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 339; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Section 10202. (Deputies.) Such presiding officer may appoint deputies, not exceeding one in each township, in a county or counties where the corporation is located, who may administer an oath of office or membership, and certify the appointment or election thereof, which shall be valid when approved by the presiding officer under the seal of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 3705-12; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 339; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Section 10203. (May arrest without a warrant.) The officers and members of the association upon the proper certificate of the presiding officer thereof, when so elected or appointed, if a felony has been committed, may pursue and without warrant arrest any person whom they believe or have reasonable cause to believe guilty of the offense, and arrest and detain the alleged criminal in any county of the state to which he fled, and return him to any officer of the county wherein the offense was committed, and there detain him until a legal warrant can be obtained for his arrest. (R. S. Sec. 3705-12; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 339; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Section 10204. (May obtain a warrant.) An officer or member of such an association, under such certificate of authority may apply for and obtain a warrant for the arrest of a person accused of felony or misdemeanor, which shall be issued to him by any justice of the peace or police magistrate of a city or village under the same conditions as warrants are issued to constables. Under such warrant he shall have the same power to arrest and detain offenders as is vested in constables. (R. S. Sec. 3705-12; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 339; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Section 10205. (Assessments.) Such an association may make and collect from its members, assessments authorized by its constitution or by-laws, and if so provided in its constitution, also may indemnify its members for losses caused by horse thieves or other felons, and expend such moneys as are deemed necessary in the pursuit, arrest, and to procure the conviction of felons. (R. S. Sec. 3705-13; April 29, 1902, 95 v. 299; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 340; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

Section 10206. (Reimbursement of expenses by county.)

Upon the apprehension and conviction of a person charged with felony by such an association, the commissioners of the county in which the crime was committed, may reimburse it in any sum not above one hundred dollars, for necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for by law, incurred in the apprehension and conviction of such criminal. Upon the apprehension and conviction by the association of a person accused of misdemeanor, the commissioners of the county in which the crime was committed may reimburse it in any sum not above seventy-five dollars for necessary expenses incurred, not otherwise provided for by law, in the apprehension and conviction of such criminal. (R. S. Sec. 3705-14, April 29, 1902, 95 v. 300; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 340; March 21, 1887, 84 v. 169.)

OTHER COMPANIES.

Section 10207. (Dock companies.) A company organized for the purpose of constructing and establishing docks in and adjacent to any of the navigable waters in or bordering upon this state, may construct or purchase any dock or docks, and erect thereon any structure suitable for receiving, storing, and delivering produce, and goods of whatever description, repair and protect such dock or docks and structures, and sell them in the manner prescribed by the by-laws of the company. (R. S. Sec. 3840; March 16, 1865, 62 v. 48, § 4.)

Section 10208. (Ferry companies.) A corporation organized for the purpose of carrying on the ferry business on any of the water-courses in this state, or bordering thereon, may build, purchase, and hold steam ferry-boats, and other vessels and floats, real estate, landings, wharves, docks, and other property, in this state or elsewhere, proper to carry on its business, buy or lease, and use, let, or otherwise dispose of them, or any part thereof, in such manner as it deems advisable, carry on the ferry business at the place named in its articles of incorporation, transport persons and property, and receive such compensation therefor as may be lawful. It shall be governed by the laws that govern natural persons in such employments. (R. S. Sec. 3849; April 11, 1865, 62 v. 114; § 4.)

The state has no power to fix ferry rates over a navigable stream from a point in another state. Bellaire v. Ferry Co., 105 O. S. 247 (1922).

Section 10209. (Fruit companies.) Any company organized for the purpose of cultivating, canning, shipping, and dealing in fruit, may purchase, hold, and convey real and personal property for the purpose of conducting and carrying out the objects of the company, and hold it without the state. (R. S. Sec. 3883; R. S. of 1880.)

Section 10210. (Certain corporations may purchase or lease real estate.) A corporation organized for the purpose of constructing and maintaining buildings to be used for hotels, store-rooms, offices, warehouses, and factories, may acquire by purchase or lease, and hold, use, mortgage and lease all such real estate or personal property as is necessary, for such purpose. But no such corporation shall acquire or mortgage any real or leasehold estate, or lease it for a period exceeding, with all privileges of renewal, the term of five years, without the consent of the holders of two-thirds of the stock, obtained at a meeting called for that purpose, written notice of which was given to each stockholder, either personally, or deposited in the post-office, properly addressed and duly stamped, not less than ten days before the day fixed for such meeting. Nothing herein shall authorize corporations to buy and sell, or to deal in real estate for profit. (R. S. Sec. 3884a; April 15, 1889, 86 v. 375, 376.)

Real estate companies, see §§ 8648, 8650.

A corporation organized under this section can not amend its articles of incorporation so as to acquire power of dealing generally in real estate. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1906-1907, p. 66.

Nor can a real estate company, by amendment, acquire the powers conferred by this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 79; Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 68.

A manufacturing corporation can not, by amendment, acquire the powers conferred by this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908-1909, p. 70.

A construction company can not acquire the power to own hotel buildings. Such power is not given by this section. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1910-1911, p. 232.

This section does not authorize a building company to engage in a general rental business. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 62.

A building company which, as an incident to its business, furnishes electric current to tenants for light and power purposes, making a separate charge therefor, is a public utility. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, pp. 575, 545.

A corporation can not be formed to (a) acquire and maintain buildings; (b) manage and rent buildings and (c) do a general contracting business.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1911-1912, p. 62.

Section 10211. (Stock-yard companies.) A company incorporated for the purpose of purchasing or leasing real estate, and erecting thereon pens and buildings for the safe-keeping of live stock intrusted to it on sale, may lease or purchase, and operate the portion of any railroad leading to or connected with its stock-yards as is necessary for the convenient dispatch of its business. The number of miles so leased or purchased shall not exceed thirty, and the lease or purchase shall not be made without the consent of the holders of a majority of the stock in such company, and in the company leasing or selling the railroad. (R. S. Sec. 3876; April 3, 1876, 73 v. 162, § 3.)

Section 10212. (Consolidation of public service companies.) Any two or more electric lighting companies, natural or artificial gas companies, gas light or coke companies, companies for supplying water for public or private consumption; or any electric light and power company and any water company; or any heating company and any incline, movable or rolling road company; doing business in the same municipal corporation or which are incorporated and organized for the purpose of doing business in the same municipal corporation may consolidate into a single corporation in the manner and with the same effect as is provided for the consolidation of railroad companies. (R. S. Sec. 2485a; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 281; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 315.)

This section does not authorize a corporation, formed to furnish gas, electricity, heat, power, light and water, to add to its corporate purposes that of manufacturing and dealing in ice and the doing of a refrigerating and storage business. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1107.

PART XXIV.

JUSTICE OF THE PEACE CODE PROVISIONS.

§ 10238. Service on corporations.	§ 10242. Summons issued to sheriff
§ 10239. Suits against railroad company.	§ 10243. Insurance company.
§ 10240. Process.	§ 10244. Foreign corporation.
§ 10241. Service of process.	§ 10253. Affidavit for attachment.
	§ 10266. Service.

Section 10238. (Service on corporations.) Except as hereinafter specially provided, a summons against a corporation may be served upon the president, mayor, chairman of the board of directors or trustees, or other chief officer; or, if its chief officer is not found in the county, upon its cashier, treasurer, secretary, clerk, or managing agent; or, if none of such officers can be found, by a copy left at the office, or usual place of business of such corporation, with the person having charge thereof. But if the defendant be an incorporated river transportation company, whether organized under the laws of this or another state, the service of a summons may be upon the master or other chief officer of any of its steamboats or other craft, or upon any of its authorized ticket or freight agents, at any port where it transacts business. (R. S. Sec. 6477; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 179, § 15; S. & C. 774.)

Service on corporation in other courts, see § 11288.

Where service is made on a secretary or managing agent it should affirmatively appear in the return that no chief officer could be found.

Rosenham v. Cohen & Mack, 13 C. C. n. s. 102 (1910).

See also note to § 11288.

This section was held not to apply to an attachment suit against a foreign railroad company.

Mo. Pac. Ry. Co. v. Baum, 7 N. P. n. s. 265 (C. P. 1908); affirmed, 12 C. C. n. s. 271; 22 C. D. 505; 81 O. S. 386.

Section 10239. (Suits against railroad company.) Suit may be brought before a justice of the peace against a railroad company, in the township in which the president of the company resides, or in a township into or through which the road owned or leased by such company is located, whether such company be foreign or created under the laws of this state, and whether the charter thereof prescribed the place where suit must be brought against it, or the manner or place of service of process thereon, or not. (R.

S. Sec. 6478; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 52, § 1; March 31, 1866, 63 v. 63, §§ 2, 3; April 30, 1868, 65 v. 116, § 66; R. S. 1880.)

Service on railroad companies in other courts, see § 11288.

Service on a railroad company in an action before a justice of the peace should be made under this section. The mode provided in this section is exclusive.

North v. Railroad, 10 O. S. 548 (1860).

Sections 10239 to 10242 do not apply to proceedings in attachment before a justice of the peace, and a justice may acquire jurisdiction in attachment against a foreign railroad corporation by levy, and publication of notice as provided in G. C. § 10263.

Railway Co. v. Baum, 81 O. S. 386 (1910); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 271; 22 C. D. 505; 7 N. P. n. s. 265; overruling, Squire v. Railway, 1 C. C. n. s. 354; 15 C. D. 30.

Sections 10239 to 10242 do not apply to street railway companies.

Greene v. Street Railroad Co., 62 O. S. 67 (1900).

Section 10240. (Process.) If the principal business office of such company is not kept in the township in which suit is brought, the justice of the peace shall issue a summons against it, directed to any constable in the township in which the suit is brought. (R. S. Sec. 6478; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 52, § 1; March 31, 1866, 63 v. 63, §§ 2, 3; April, 1868, 65 v. 116, § 66; R. S. 1880.)

Section 10241. (Service of process.) On receipt of such summons the constable forthwith shall serve it personally upon the president of such company, if he be a resident of the county in which suit is brought, or by leaving a certified copy at his place of business, if it is within the county. If the president of the company is not a resident of, or has no place of business within the county in which the suit is brought, the constable having such summons may serve it personally upon the person having charge of a ticket office or a freight depot, owned by or under the control of the company, and situated within the county where suit is brought. When the summons is served on either of the last described persons, it shall be done at least eight days prior to trial. When served upon the president, it may be served in accordance with the law for serving summons issued by justices of the peace. (R. S. Sec. 6478; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 52, § 1; March 31, 1866, 63 v. 63, §§ 2, 3; April 30, 1868, 65 v. 116, § 66; R. S. 1880.)

See § 11288 and notes.

To show good service of summons on a ticket agent under this section, it must appear affirmatively that the president of the company is not a resident of the county in which suit is brought, and has no place of business therein, and also that such agent is a person having charge of a ticket office or of a freight depot owned by or under the control of such company, and that such ticket office or freight depot is situated within the county where such suit is brought.

Jones v. Railway Co., 20 C. C. 63; 10 C. D. 789 (1900).

Section 10242. (Summons issued to sheriff.) When the president of such company does not reside, and there is no such officer or depot in the county, then the justice of the peace shall issue a summons directed to the sheriff of the county where the principal business office of the company is located, with an indorsement on the back of the writ, of the name of the postoffice to which it shall be returned. Upon the receipt of the writ, the sheriff shall forthwith serve it personally upon the president, if found, or by leaving a copy at the business office of such company with the person having charge thereof, and immediately return the writ to the justice issuing it, by mail, directed to the postoffice named on its back. (R. S. Sec. 6478; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 52, § 1; March 31, 1866, 63 v. 63, §§ 2, 3; April 30, 1868, 65 v. 116, § 66; R. S. 1880.)

Section 10243. (Insurance company.) When the defendant is an incorporated insurance company, and the action is brought in a county wherein it has an agency, the service may be upon the chief officer of such agency. (R. S. Sec. 6479; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 179, § 16; S. & C. 744.)

See § 11289.

Section 10244. (Foreign corporation.) When the defendant is a foreign corporation, having a managing agent in this state, the service may be upon such agent. (R. S. Sec. 6480; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 179, § 17; S. & C. 774.)

See also § 11290 and note.

The return of service on a managing agent should show that the person served is such agent in this state.

Rosenham v. Cohen & Mack, 13 C. C. n. s. 102 (1910).

ATTACHMENT.

Section 10253. (Affidavit for attachment.) Except as hereinafter provided, the plaintiff shall have an order of attachment against property of the defendant in a civil action before a justice of the peace for the recovery of money, before or after its commencement, when there is filed in his office an affidavit of the plaintiff, his agent or attorney, showing the nature of the claim, that it is just, the amount the affiant believes the plaintiff ought to recover, and that the property sought to be attached is not exempt from execution. If attachment of the personal earnings of the defendant be sought, the affidavit also must state that he is not the head or support of a family nor in good faith the support of a widowed mother wholly dependent upon him for support; or that such earnings are not for services rendered within three months before the action was begun, or that, if earned within that time, they amount to more than one hundred and fifty dollars, and only the excess over that sum is sought to be attached; or that the claim sued on is for work, labor or necessities, and, except in cases for such claims, the existence of one or more of the following particulars:

1. That the defendant, or one of several defendants, is a corporation, having no officer upon whom a summons can be served, or place of doing business in the county, or is a non-resident of the county. No proceedings in attachment shall be had to garnishee the salary or wages of an employe of a railroad company, by reason of his non-residence, except before a justice or on account of his being a non-resident of the county in which his liability was incurred;

2. Has absconded with intent to defraud his creditors;

3. Has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of a summons;

4. So conceals himself that a summons can not be served upon him;

5. Is about to remove his property, or a part thereof, out of the county, with the intent to defraud his creditors;

6. Is about to convert his property, or a part thereof, into money, for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors;

7. Has property or rights of action which he conceals;

8. Has assigned, removed, or disposed of, or is about to assign, remove or dispose of his property, or a part thereof, with intent to defraud his creditors; or

9. Fraudulently or criminally contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation, for which suit is about to be or has been brought. When the defendant is a corporation, having no officer in the county upon whom a summons can be served, or a place of doing business in the county, or is a non-resident of the county, the attachment shall not be granted unless the claim is for a debt or demand arising upon contract, judgment or decree. No attachment shall issue by virtue of this chapter against the personal earnings of any defendant for services rendered by such defendant within three months before the commencement of the action or the issuing of the attachment, unless the defendant is not the head or support of a family, or unless the amount of such earnings exceeds one hundred and fifty dollars, and then only as to the excess over that amount, or unless the claim is one for necessities, and then for only ten per cent of such personal earnings. (R. S. Sec. 6489; February 28, 1862, 59 v. 17, § 28; June 9, 1879, 76 v. 165, § 17; R. S. 1880; April 3, 1891, 88 v. 277; April 26, 1898, 93 v. 319; S. & C. 776; S. & S. 420.)

Attachment in common pleas court, see § 11819.

Exemption of licensed foreign corporations from attachment.

See § 186.

A domestic corporation may be proceeded against under this section on the ground that it is a non-resident of the county.

Machine Co. v. Huston, 24 O. S. 503 (1874).

A domestic corporation may be proceeded against in attachment either as a corporation or as a non-resident of the county, but in either case the affidavit must show that the corporation has no officer in the county upon whom summons may be served, or no place of business within the county.

Cartmel v. Wurlitzer, 5 N. P. n. s. 604; 18 L. D. 380 (C. P. 1907).

A foreign corporation may be proceeded against in attachment before a justice of the peace the same as a domestic corporation, but the affidavit must show that the corporation has no officer in the county on whom summons may be served, or no place of doing business within the county.

Cartmel v. Wurlitzer, 5 N. P. n. s. 604; 18 L. D. 380 (C. P. 1907).

A foreign railroad company is not exempted from attachment under this section by the provisions of § 10239.

Railway Co. v. Baum, 81 O. S. 386 (1910); affirming, 12 C. C. n. s. 276; 22 C. D. 505; 7 N. P. n. s. 265.

An affidavit which alleges that the defendant corporation is a non-resident of the county is not defective because it does not aver non-compliance with foreign corporation laws.

Rosenham Co. v. Cohen & Mack, 13 C. C. n. s. 102 (1910).

In common pleas court, however, non-compliance must be set forth in the affidavit. See notes to §§ 11819 and 186.

An attachment will lie against a foreign corporation for money lost in gambling. Harlan v. Investment Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 492 (1911).

Attachment without bond against non-resident for damages from purchase of stock induced by fraudulent representations. See Hart v. Andrews, 103 O. S. 218 (1921).

Under an earlier form of this section it was held that the words "foreign corporation" did not include a domestic corporation.

Boley v. Trust Co., 12 O. S. 139 (1861).

Section 10266. (Service.) If the garnishee is a person, the copy of the order and notice shall be served upon him personally, or left at his usual place of residence. If a partnership is garnisheed by its company name, they shall be left at its usual place of doing business, or be served personally on one of its members; and if a corporation, they shall be left with the president or other principal officer, or its secretary, cashier, or managing agent. If such corporation is a railroad company, they may be left with any regular ticket or freight agent thereof in the county. (R. S. Sec. 6499; May 4, 1885, 82 v. 261; R. S. 1880; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 179, § 38; S. & S. 778.)

See § 11833.

A return of service upon the "agent" of the corporation has been held valid, although the better practice is to strictly follow the statute. Parkinson v. Crawford, 13 N. P. n. s. 73 (1912).

Section 11038. (Appropriation of private property.) Appropriation of private property by corporations must be made according to the provisions of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 6414; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 1.)

Power of various companies to appropriate property.

Railroad companies, §§ 8759, 8760, 8763 to 8768.

Street and interurban railways, §§ 9108 to 9111, 9118-2, 9119.

Foreign corporations, § 9090.

Application of chapter to appropriations by municipal and other public corporations.

See § 11091.

Railway Co. v. Greenville, 69 O. S. 492 (1903).

Cincinnati v. Lohman, 10 C. C. n. s. 119; 20 C. D. 92.

Purposes for which property may be appropriated. See note to § 8759.

An appropriation proceeding is not a civil action but a special proceeding.

Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 166 (1905).

Constitutionality. This act is valid under article 4; § 8 of the constitution.

Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).

See Railroad Co. v. O'Harra, 48 O. S. 343 (1891).

A corporation which has instituted appropriation proceedings under this chapter is estopped from denying the constitutionality of any section thereof.

Wiler v. Logan, etc., Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 206; 17 C. D. 257 (1904); (aff'd, 72 O. S. 628 for failure to file petition in error in time).

Eminent domain defined. The right of eminent domain is the right to take private property for public use.

Railroad v. Railroad, 72 O. S. 380 (1905).

Power of eminent domain vested in general assembly. Power of courts. The constitution does not confer the power of eminent domain but prescribes modes for and limitations upon its exercise. The power is lodged with the general assembly, and may be exercised directly or indirectly, without the intervention of courts, except for determining the amount of compensation. Courts possess power to determine its proper limits and to prevent abuses in its exercise.

Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).

Whether or not the use is public is a judicial question. The use being public the right is absolute in the general assembly, unless restricted by the constitution, and it is entirely in its discretion whether it is necessary to take property for such use, that is, whether the public welfare requires or will be promoted by such use.

Railroad v. Railroad, 72 O. S. 380 (1905).

Statutes strictly construed. Statutes conferring the power of eminent domain are strictly construed.

Platt v. Penna. Co., 43 O. S. 228, 244 (1885).

Railway Co. v. South, 78 O. S. 10 (1908).

See note to § 8759.

Section 11039. (When appropriations made.) Appropriations can be made only when the corporation is unable to agree with the owner, or his guardian or trustee, as to the compensation to be paid for the property, or easement or interest therein, sought to be appropriated, or when the owner is incapable of contracting in person or by agent, and has no guardian or trustee, or is unknown, or his residence is beyond the state, or unknown. (R. S. Sec. 6415; May 4, 1891, 88 v. 555; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 2.)

Proof of inability to agree. § 11046 and note.

Where property is jointly owned by several persons an effort should be made to agree with each owner, unless his residence is beyond the state or unknown.

Cincinnati, etc., R. v. Murray, 1 N. P. n. s. 301; 48 Bull. 877. (Ins. Ct. 1903).

A guardian of minors can not grant a right of way by deed without authority from the probate court.

State v. Commissioners, 39 O. S. 58 (1883).

See §§ 11040, 11041.

It is proper, but not necessary, to aver in the petition in an appropriation proceeding that the parties are unable to agree.

Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 166 (1905).

The rights of other lot owners, under restrictive agreements in the deeds of land through which the right of way passes is not an "easement or interest" therein, under this section. Vanetten v. Railway, 18 C. C. n. s. 547 (1911); aff'd, no rep., 86 O. S. 323.

Section 11040. (Appropriation of property of minor, idiot, imbecile or insane person.) Under this chapter, when the property of a minor, idiot, imbecile, or insane person, or any easement or interest therein, is sought to be appropriated by a corporation and there is a legally appointed guardian of the person and estate or of the estates, or a trustee of such minor, idiot, imbecile, or insane person, and the guardian has agreed with the corporation upon the amount of compensation to be paid for such property, easement, or interest therein, he may file with the probate court of the county wherein the property is situated, a written application for authority to convey the property or interest to such corporation. The application must fully describe the property, right, easement or interest therein, sought to be conveyed, and set out the price agreed to be paid for it. (R. S. Sec. 6415a; May 4, 1891, 88 v. 554.)

Section 11041. (Notice to ward.) The probate judge shall order the guardian to give such notice as he deems reasonable, to the ward, of the filing of the application, and of the time set for its hearing. At the time for the hearing, if the judge finds that notice was given as ordered of the time set therefor, that the price to be paid is just, and that such conveyance will be to the best interest of his ward, he shall order the guardian to make and execute a deed to the corporation for the property or interests upon the payment of the price agreed upon by them. (R. S. Sec. 6415a; May 4, 1891, 88 v. 554.)

Section 11042. (Petition for appropriation.) In such a case the corporation may file a petition with the probate judge, verified as in a civil action, containing a specific description of each parcel of property, interest, or right, within the county, sought to be appropriated, the work, if any, intended to be constructed thereon, the use to which the property is to be applied, the necessity for the appropriation, the name of the owner of each parcel, if known, or if not known, a statement of that fact, the names of all persons having or claiming an interest, legal or equitable, in the property, so far as they can be ascertained, and a prayer for its appropriation. (R. S. Sec. 6416; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, §§ 2, 19.)

Parties and pleading. A dummy corporation which does not intend to have any real or beneficial interest or use in the property can not maintain an appropriation proceeding. Cemetery Assn. v. Tracton Co., 93 O. S. 161 (1915).

One having an inchoate right of dower is neither a proper or necessary party. Long v. Long, 99 O. S. 330 (1919).

A railway company seeking to appropriate property is the real party in interest although its officers are also officers of another railway company and its stock is largely owned by another company.

Devou v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 4 O. L. R. 313; 19 C. D. 113 (1906).

Mortgagees are necessary parties.

Harrison v. Sabina, 14 W. L. B. 27 (1885).

The purpose and necessity of the appropriation must be clearly alleged.

Valley Ry. Co. v. Bohm, 34 O. S. 114 (1877).

The land must be described with certainty.

Cleveland, etc., R. Co. v. Prentice, 13 O. S. 373 (1862).

See Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Perkins, 22 C. C. 630 (1888).

It is proper but not necessary to aver that the corporation and owner are unable to agree.

Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 166 (1905).

The petition need not set out the termini of the railroad, and need not allege that the property sought to be appropriated is the only property in the country which it is desired to appropriate. Realty Co. v. Railway, 18 C. C. n. s. 86 (1910); aff'd, no rep. 86 O. S. 364.

Only the allegations required by the statute need be made. Realty Co. v. Railway, 18 C. C. n. s. 86 (1910); aff'd, no rep. 86 O. S. 364.

Where the petition specifically describes the property sought to be appropriated, no further written or record evidence of the line of the road is essential to the right of the company to have compensation fixed.

Powers v. Hazelton, etc., Ry. Co., 33 O. S. 429 (1878).

Whether the rules of code pleading are applicable to a petition to appropriate private property for public uses, filed under the statute, in the probate court, quaere. In case of doubt, the judgment rendered in such proceeding will not be reversed for failure to strictly observe such rules.

Toledo, etc., Ry. Co. v. Toledo, etc., Ry. Co., 6 C. C. 362; 3 C. D. 493; aff'd, 50 O. S. 603.

Pleadings after petition are not required.

Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co. v. Pfitzer, 1 Goebel 248 (1889).

Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 166 (1905).

Necessity. The necessity for the appropriation must be pleaded and proved.

Valley Ry. Co. v. Bohm, 34 O. S. 114 (1877).

S. E. Ohio, etc., Co. v. Diamond, etc., Co., 51 W. L. B. 421 (Prob. Ct.).

The power of eminent domain is based upon public necessity, and can only be exercised where such necessity exists, but this necessity relates rather to the nature of the property and the uses to which it is applied than to the exigencies of the particular case; and it is no objection to the exercise of the power that lands, equally feasible, could be obtained by purchase.

Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).
 Toledo, etc., Ry. Co. v. Toledo, etc., Ry. Co., 6 C. C. 362, 389; 3 C. D. 493; aff'd, 50 O. S. 603.

 Bridge Co. v. Magruder, 63 O. S. 455, 476 (1900).
 See note to § 11046.

Quantity of land. Only that quantity of land which is necessary may be appropriated.

Platt v. Penna. Co., 48 O. S. 228 (1885).
 Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).
 See Pittsburg, etc., R. Co. v. Perkins, 22 C. C. 630 (1888).
 The railroad company has primary discretion in determining what land is necessary; but the probate court has power under § 11046 to prevent abuse of such discretion.

 Hawkins v. Buckeye, etc., Co., 6 N. P. n. s. 553, 556; 16 L. D. 333 (C. P. 1905).

Appropriation of easement for elevated railroad track over public landing.

See G. C. § 8767 and note.

Appropriation of use of streets, etc., for tracks.

See G. C. § 8764 et seq.
 Property in which a Catholic school, open to all children, is conducted may be appropriated by a railroad company.
 Cincinnati, etc., R. Co. v. Murray, 1 N. P. n. s. 301; 48 W. L. B. 877 (Ins. Ct. 1903).

In the opinion of the attorney general, an interurban railway is not empowered to appropriate land, the title to which is in the board of education of a school district in trust for public school purposes.
 Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 775.

— Property of other railroad companies. Property of one railroad company may be appropriated by another railroad company to furnish a crossing over such road.

Railway v. Railway, 30 O. S. 604.

See §§ 8834, 8836.

But a company seeking to appropriate land of another company, longitudinally, must establish urgent necessity for the land. Where such necessity is shown, and the other company does not require it for immediate use, and can arrange its tracks so as to avoid using it for a long period, the right to appropriate exists.

Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 45; 49 O. L. B. 240 (Prob. Ct. 1903).

——. Property and rights of abutting owners in streets and highways.

See note to § 8765.

——. Rights of lot owners under covenants restricting use of property.

A railroad company may acquire lots in an allotment, and build a railroad thereon, although all of the lots are restricted by agreement to residence purposes only. Other lot owners can not enjoin the appropriation. Vanetten v. Railway, 18 C. C. n. s. 547 (1911); aff'd, no rep. 86 O. S. 323.

Nor can other lot owners recover damages. Doan v. Railway, 92 O. S. 461 (1915); Ward v. Railway, 92 O. S. 471 (1915).

Jurisdiction of probate court must be exercised in mode prescribed in this chapter. The probate court under this act has a special and limited jurisdiction, to be exercised in the cases and in the mode prescribed in the act; and that court can not, under an order of the court of common pleas, and to carry into effect that order, take jurisdiction of a case or proceed in a mode not authorized by the act.

Dayton, etc., R. Co. v. Marshall, 11 O. S. 497 (1860).

Practice. Revivor. Dismissal.

On the death of a defendant, revivor of the proceedings must be had in the name of the heirs or devisees, and not of the administrator of the deceased.

Valley Ry. Co. v. Bohm, 29 O. S. 633 (1876).

Right of corporation to abandon proceeding.

See § 11060 and note.

Section 11043. (The county petition to be filed in.) The petition may include one or more of the parcels of property, rights, or interests in the county in which it is filed. When any such parcel, right or interest, is situated in two or more counties, the petition may be filed in either of the counties in which an owner is resident, and if no owner resides therein, it may be filed in either. (R. S. Sec. 6417; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71.)

Section 11044. (Summons.) Upon the filing of a precept therefor, the probate judge shall issue summons for the owners, and persons named in the petition as residents of the state, having an interest, which may be directed to the sheriff of any county, and shall command him to notify the persons it names of the filing of the petition, and to appear thereto at a time to be fixed by the judge, and therein stated, not less than five nor more than fifteen days from the date thereof. It must be served and returned as in a civil action. When returned "not summoned," other writs may issue until the parties are duly summoned. (R. S. Sec. 6418; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 1.)

Section 11045. (Service by publication.) When a person having an interest is unknown, or his residence is beyond the state or unknown, the corporation may make service against him by publishing in a newspaper of general circulation in the county where the petition is filed, for four consecutive weeks, a notice containing a summary statement of the object and prayer of the petition, so far as it relates to the property of the person thus to be notified, the court in which it is filed, and the time when such person is to appear thereto, not less than ten nor more than twenty days after the last publication. The fact of publication may be proved by the affidavit of any person having knowledge thereof. (R. S. Sec. 6419; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 3.)

Section 11046. (Jurisdictional questions.) On the day named in a summons first served, or publication first completed, the probate judge shall hear and determine the questions of the existence of the corporation, its right to make the appropriation, its inability to agree with the owner, and the necessity for the appropriation. Upon all these questions the burden of proof shall be upon the corporation, and any interested person shall be heard. (R. S. Sec. 6420; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 4.)

Determination under this section a condition precedent to appropriation. A determination of the preliminary questions under this section in favor of the expropriator is a condition precedent to the right of eminent domain, and is jurisdictional.

Existence of corporation. It is essential to the exercise of the right of eminent domain that the corporation prove its incorporation according to law, including the due and legal election of directors.

A foreign corporation must prove its de jure existence according to the laws of its home state. Railway Co. v. Barger, 10 Ohio App. 443; 30 O. C. A. 65 (1919); s. c., 28 O. C. A. 92; 21 N. P. n. s. 97.

But as § 8759 expressly confers the power of eminent domain upon foreign railroad corporations, it is not necessary to prove that it possesses such powers by the laws of its home state. Railway Co. v. Barger, 10 Ohio App. 443; 30 O. C. A. 65 (1919).

Corporate existence may be proved by a certified copy of the articles of incorporation and the corporate records showing subscriptions to the requisite amount of capital stock, payment of the first installment thereon, notice or waiver of notice of the meeting for the election of directors, and the election of directors.

Right to make appropriation.

See Railroad v. Railroad, 72 O. S. 378, 379 (1905).

Inability to agree with the owner. The purpose of requiring a showing of inability to agree (§§ 11046 and 11039) is to avoid, where possible, an appropriation proceeding.

Where on the preliminary hearing no proof was made of inability to agree, but such proof is made during the trial and before judgment, the judgment will not be reversed.

Toledo, etc., Ry. Co. v. Toledo, etc., Ry. Co., 6 C. C. 362, 388; 3 C. D. 493; aff'd, 50 O. S. 603.

Where a petition was dismissed for failure to show inability to agree, the property owner is not entitled to recover his costs and expenses under § 11060.

To establish a failure to agree it must appear that an explicit offer was made of a definite amount of money for a definite amount of land.

Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 2 N. P. n. s. 45; 49 O. L. B. 240 (Prob. Ct. 1903).

Where offers of the same amount, to several owners of properties of different values, were mailed the evening before the proceeding was commenced, without opportunity on the part of the owners to consider the offers, inability to agree is not shown. Power Co. v. Turner Co., 17 C. C. n. s. 34 (1909).

Where it appears that the property sought to be appropriated is held by a municipal corporation which has no power to contract and convey the same, inability to agree is shown.

L. & N. Ry. v. Cincinnati, 15 C. C. n. s. 62; 23 C. D. 464 (1912); reversed on other grounds, 88 O. S. 283; s. c., 12 N. P. n. s. 65; 22 L. D. 363; 10 N. P. n. s. 749; 56 Bull. 317.

An executory agreement for a settlement, not reduced to writing, nor acted upon by the parties, nor performed, was held not to constitute a defense against an appropriation. Railway Co. v. Devine, 15 N. P. n. s. 56; 58 Bull. 437 (1913).

Necessity for the appropriation. While a corporation has primary discretion in determining what land is necessary, the probate judge, under this section, has power to prevent abuse in its exercise, and may dismiss the petition if he determines that the appropriation will be an abuse of corporate power or destructive of the public use to which the land is already devoted.

Railroad v. Railroad, 72 O. S. 368 (1905).

Directors have primary discretion to determine the necessity for an appropriation under G. C. § 8767, but under § 11046 the court in which the proceeding is brought has the final authority to determine such necessity.

Cincinnati v. Railroad Co., 88 O. S. 283 (1913); affirming, 12 N. P. n. s. 65; 22 L. D. 363; 10 N. P. n. s. 749; 56 Bull. 317; reversing, 15 C. C. n. s. 62; 23 C. D. 464.

The court will not interfere unless there is an abuse of discretion by the corporation. Railway Co. v. Devine, 15 N. P. n. s. 56; 58 Bull. 437 (1913).

The "necessity" required is a reasonable and not an absolute necessity. Reusch v. Traction Co., 19 C. C. n. s. 1 (1912); aff'd, no rep. 89 O. S. 456.

It is not necessary to prove that the directors have acted by resolution. Railway Co. v. Barger, 10 Ohio App. 443; 30 O. C. A. 65 (1919).

Burden of proof. The burden of proof of the jurisdictional questions is on the appropriating corporation. Railway Co. v. Telegraph Co., 68 O. S. 306.

A party is not, as a matter of right, entitled to a separate finding of law and facts, on a preliminary hearing.

L. & N. R. Co. v. Cincinnati, 10 N. P. n. s. 595; 9 O. L. R. 105 (Ins. Ct. 1911).

Motion for new trial. Review on error. Procedure. The determination of preliminary questions under this section may be reviewed on error. A motion for a new trial is not necessary. The time for filing a bill of exceptions is computed from the day on which the determination is made, unless a motion for a new trial is filed, in which event the time is computed from the overruling of such motion. Where the judgment of the probate court is reversed for error in the determination of preliminary questions, the court of common pleas should retain the case and determine such questions de novo.

Time for filing petition in error, see § 11064.

If errors occurring upon the hearing of preliminary questions come within any of the statutory causes for a new trial, they may be included in a motion for a new trial filed under § 11058 within ten days after the verdict is rendered.

Railroad v. Traction Co., 72 O. S. 429 (1905).

Injunction against appropriation. The prosecution of an appropriation proceeding will not be enjoined on the ground that there is no necessity therefor. Sec. 11046 furnishes an adequate remedy at law.

Railroad v. Railroad, 72 O. S. 369 (1905).

"Any interested person." This section does not authorize a competing telephone company to become a party to a proceeding under § 11255 or § 9178.

Sidney Telephone Co. v. Farmers Tel. Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 424; 21 L. D. 241 (1911).

Defenses against appropriation.

— Incorporation for private ends. It is incompetent for a landowner to show in an appropriation proceeding that the corporators procured the incorporation of the company, not for public use, but for private ends merely, and were exercising the corporate privileges in abuse of the law.

Powers v. Hazelton, etc., R. Co., 33 O. S. 429 (1878).

— No public necessity for railroad.

An appropriation proceeding can not be defeated by showing that there is no public necessity for the road.

Powers v. Hazelton, etc., R. Co., 33 O. S. 429 (1878).

— Railroad constructed before appropriation proceeding brought. A company has power to condemn land notwithstanding it has built its road on the land sought to be appropriated.

Ohio Southern R. R. v. Hinkle, 1 N. P. 63 (1894); 1 L. D. 682.

— That other land could be obtained by purchase. It is no defense to an appropriation proceeding that other land, equally feasible, could be obtained by purchase.

Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).

— That another route should have been chosen. Where the route chosen is not unreasonable the court can not order it changed.

Section 11047. (Jurors.) If, as to any or all of the property, and persons interested therein, the judge determines such questions for the corporation, he shall issue an order to the clerk and sheriff to draw sixteen names from the jury wheel, as in other cases, and within two days after the receipt of it they must execute the order, and the clerk forthwith return it to the probate judge, with a list of the names drawn indorsed thereon, who shall issue to the sheriff a venire for the jurors so drawn to attend at his office at a time to be fixed by him, and named in the writ, not exceeding ten days from the date thereof. It shall be served and returned as in other cases. (R. S. Sec. 6421; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71.)

Section 11048. (Who entitled to a separate trial, and conduct of trial.) The owners of each separate parcel, right or interest, are entitled to a separate trial by jury, verdict, and judgment. They shall hold the affirmative on the trial, which must be conducted, evidence admitted, and bills of exception allowed as provided in civil actions. (R. S. Sec. 6422; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, §§ 1, 3; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, §§ 8, 12, 23.)

Section 11049. (Amendments.) The court may amend any defect or informality in the proceedings authorized or required by this chapter or cause new parties to be added, and direct such further notice to be given to a party in interest as it deems proper. (R. S. Sec. 6423; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 17.)

Section 11050. (Time of trial, adjournments, and discharge of jurors.) The court may direct the order and fix the time of the several trials, and adjourn or continue a trial for the purpose of obtaining proper service upon a property owner; or, when deemed necessary for the proper and convenient trial of the several cases, it may discharge a jury, and cause other juries to be impaneled, as provided in this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 6424; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 72, § 5.)

Section 11051. (How panel filled.) If, by reason of non-attendance, sickness, or other cause, any of the sixteen persons are not present and in condition to serve as jurors, the judge shall order the sheriff to fill the vacancies with talesmen. When the list of sixteen is full, the judge shall call upon each separately, beginning with the first named on the list, to take his place in the jury box, and personally inquire of each, as called, whether he is interested in any way in any of the property, rights, or interests sought to be appropriated, or in the corporation which filed the petition, either as owner, stockholder, agent, attorney, or otherwise. If such person answers in the affirmative, or if it be shown to the judge, by satisfactory evidence, that he is so interested, he shall be excused from serving on the jury, and the next person on the list be called, and interrogated in like manner. If the list of sixteen be exhausted before a proper jury of twelve men is taken and accepted therefrom, the judge shall order the sheriff to fill the remaining vacancies in the jury box required to make up the number of twelve with talesmen, who shall be interrogated as above provided. (R. S. Sec. 6425; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 73, § 6.)

Jurors drawn from the box are talesmen within the meaning of this section and the fees of a jury so made up should be taxed as a part of the costs.

See Conservancy District v. Shade, 12 Ohio App. 169, 31 O. C. A. 61; motion to certify record overruled, 18 O. L. R. 15.

Section 11052. (Peremptory challenges.) When a jury box is filled with twelve disinterested jurors, the owners of the property which is the subject of the trial, jointly, and the petitioner, shall each have the right to four peremptory challenges, and to challenge for cause. Vacancies arising in the jury from challenge, or otherwise, shall be filled with talesmen having the qualifications prescribed in the next preceding section, to be ascertained as therein provided. (R. S. Sec. 6426; April 8, 1908, 99 v. 79; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 73, § 6.)

Where proceedings are commenced against the owners of several tracts of land, all the defendants are entitled to but four peremptory challenges; each defendant is not entitled to four.

Ohio, etc., R. Co. v. Kloeb, 5 N. P. 4 (1898).

Cincinnati v. Neff, 19 W. L. B. 404 (1888).

Section 11053. (The oath of jury.) When a jury is filled, the probate judge shall administer to them the following oath: "You, and each of you, do solemnly swear that, according to your best judgment, you will justly and impartially assess the amount of compensation due to the proper owners in the cases which will be brought before you in this proceeding, by reason of the appropriation of their property described in the petition, to the use of (here name the corporation) in the proceeding now pending, irrespective of any benefit from any improvement proposed by such corporation; and you do further swear that in assessing any damages that may occur to such property owners, by reason of the appropriation, other than the compensation, you will further ascertain how much less valuable the remaining portion of such property will be in consequence of such appropriation; this you swear as you shall answer to God. (R. S. Sec. 6427; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 73, § 5.)

Compensation.

See § 8760 and note.

Must be in money.

Railroad Co. v. Holler, 7 O. S. 220 (1857).

"Compensation" and "damages" have different and distinct meanings. "Compensation" means the sum of money which will compensate the owner for land actually taken, irrespective of any benefits to remaining lands. "Damages" is the allowance made for any injury that may result to the remaining lands from the construction of the proposed improvement, after making due allowance for special benefits resulting. Ohio Southern R. Co. v. Rawlins, 29 W. L. B. 260 (1892).

Benefits excluded. The provisions of art. 1, § 19, and art. 13, § 5, of the constitution, the one requiring compensation to be made without deduction for benefits, when property is appropriated to a public use, and the other providing for compensation irrespective of benefits, where it is taken by a corporation for a right of way, are, in legal effect, identical. When property is taken under either section, its fair market value in cash, at the time it is taken, must be paid to the owner; and the jury in assessing the amount, have no right to consider or make any use of the fact that it has been increased in value by the proposal or construction of the improvement.

Giesy v. Cincinnati, etc., R. R. Co., 4 O. S. 308 (1854).

Testimony tending to introduce the element of probable benefit, or as to the price for which a farm may have been offered for sale, is incompetent.

Traction Co. v. Dempsey, 9 N. P. n. s. 65 (C. P. 1909).

Where benefits and injuries are blended. In case an appropriation of a strip causes incidental and local injury to the residue of the tract, although general resulting benefits from the railroad to the value of such residue of the land can not be taken into account in estimating the compensation to be paid to the owner, yet where a local incidental benefit to the residue of the land is blended or connected, either in locality or subject-matter, with a local incidental injury to such residue of the land, the benefit may be considered in fixing the compensation to be paid the owner, not by way of deduction from the compensation, but of showing the extent of the injury done the value of the residue of the land. But whether a local incidental benefit can be considered when not connected or blended either in locality or subject-matter, quaere.

The rule of valuation is, what the interest in the property is worth, not for any particular use, but generally for any and all uses for which it may be suitable.

Goodin v. Cincinnati, etc., Canal Co., 18 O. S. 169 (1868).

The owner is entitled to the fair market value at the time the land was taken.

Traction Co. v. Dempsey, 9 N. P. n. s. 65 (C. P. 1909).

See Cincinnati, etc., Ry. v. Pfitzer, 1 Goebel 248 (1889).

Fair market value is the amount at which the owner may expect to sell it at present at private voluntary sale and not at forced sale. Railway v. Knauss, 47 W. L. B. 807.

In ascertaining compensation, the jury should consider the real value of the land taken, and the diminished value of the residue, and may, for that purpose, take into account, not only the purposes to which the land has been or is applied, but any other beneficial purpose to which it may be applied, which would affect the amount of compensation or damages. Railroad v. Longworth, 30 O. S. 108 (1876); Foote v. Railway, 21 C. C. 319, 11 C. D. 685 (1901); aff'd, no rep. 67 O. S. 543.

The elements of compensation may be: (1) the abstract value of the land taken; (2) the value arising from the relative situation of the land taken in connection with the residue from which it is severed, and (3) the effect on the value of the residue, arising from the uses to which the part taken is appropriated. Lorain, etc., Co. v. Sinning, 17 C. C. 649, 6 C. D. 753 (1895).

The value of existing or future crops or other property that may be thereafter placed on the land should not be considered. Hayes v. Terminal Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 281 (1903); aff'd, no rep. 70 O. S. 425.

Speculative remuneration. Where land is appropriated for a public use, a compensatory, not speculative remuneration is guaranteed by the law for land taken, and for the damage occasioned thereby to the remainder of the premises. The difference in the value of the owners' property, with the appropriation, and that without it, is the rule of compensation. This difference must be ascertained with reference to the value of the property in view of its present character, situation and surroundings. It can not be enhanced by proving facts of a contingent and prospective character, such as the probable rents that may be derived from the property, or its special value as a prospective monopoly of a roadway to the adjoining lands of other persons.

Railroad intersecting land. Where a piece or strip of land is, by appropriation, severed from its connection with the other land of the owner, in estimating the compensation to be made to the owner, not only is the abstract value of the strip taken to be considered, but also its relative value, and the effect arising from its severance from the residue of the owner's land as well as the uses to which it is to be appropriated.

Restrictive agreements as to the use of lots do not apply to the state, or any of its agencies, and a lot owner can not recover damages from a railroad company for violation of restrictions to residence purposes only by using the lots for railroad purposes. Doan v. Railway Co., 92 O. S. 461 (1915); Ward v. Railway, 92 O. S. 471 (1915).

Damage to lands adjacent when canal is converted into railroad. Where a canal company transfers its lands to a railroad company, the owner of the fee is entitled to damages for the additional burdens imposed on his land.

Injury to access to river. Where compensation is claimed for injury to access to river, thereby damaging the shipping facilities, it is competent to show that river transportation had ceased to be valuable.
Cleveland, etc., R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 O. S. 568 (1856).

Interest. A property owner is entitled to interest from and after the time his property was taken, and even though the money may have been paid into court on one verdict, interest will be allowed in a second verdict from the time the land was taken.

Railroad crossing. In a proceeding to appropriate a right of way across the track of an existing railroad, to be used in common, as a railroad crossing, the owner of such track is entitled to compensation for the property or interest therein actually appropriated, and for such consequential damages as are the direct and proximate consequence of such appropriation, but it can not recover as consequential damages the additional expense rendered necessary in operating its road in complying with the crossing law, nor can the jury take into account the detention of trains or loss of future business.

Lake Shore, etc., Ry. Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co., 30 O. S. 604 (1876).

Section 11054. (The form of writ to sheriff.) Upon motion of either party, the probate judge may issue the following writ to the sheriff, to-wit: "To the sheriff of county: You are hereby commanded to conduct the twelve jurors named in the panel to this writ annexed, to view the property or premises sought to be appropriated by (here state the name of the corporation), and owned by (here state the name of each owner), on, the day of, then and there to view the premises or property aforesaid, in the presence of A. B. on the part of the corporation aforesaid and C. D. on the part of the owner, appointed by this court and you shall make return of the manner you have executed this writ to this court, on the day of, A. D." The writ shall be signed by the probate judge, and certified under his seal of office. (R. S. Sec. 6428; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 9.)

See Railroad Co. v. Bolen, 76 O. S. 376 (1907).

Section 11055. (Judge must deliver certain copies to sheriff.) The judge also shall deliver to the sheriff a copy of that part of the petition containing a separate description of each parcel of property, and rights or interests sought to be appropriated within the county, which the jury is required to view. He may appoint, to be present at the view, the two persons named in the writ. The sheriff who is to execute the writ, by a special return upon it, shall certify under his hand that the view has been made according to the command thereof. The expenses of the view must be taxed in the bill of costs. No evidence shall be given on either side at its taking. (R. S. Sec. 6429; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 9.)

Nypano Ry. v. Wadsworth Salt Co., 9 C. C. n. s. 114; 19 C. D. 110 (1906).

Section 11056. (Witness examined before jury.) Witnesses may be examined before the jury after its return to the court. If more than three witnesses be examined by either party, on the same point in the same case, the judge may tax the costs of such additional witnesses to the party calling them. (R. S. Sec. 6430; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 9.)

View of premises by jury. Bill of exceptions. The impressions made on the minds of the jurors by a view of the premises are not of themselves evidence. Hence, a bill of exceptions which contains all the evidence given in court at the trial is, with a record otherwise complete, sufficient to present to a reviewing court the question of the weight of evidence.

But the parties may, by agreement, make the view evidence.

Traction Co. v. Hutchinson, 23 C. C. n. s. 58 (1907).

Where attorneys and representatives of both parties call the attention of the jury, while viewing premises, to certain facts pertinent to case, a verdict based on such facts will be set aside. The misconduct of the parties vitiates the verdict, although both are guilty.

Nypano Ry. v. Wadsworth Salt Co., 9 C. C. n. s. 114; 19 C. D. 110; 16 C. C. n. s. 410 (1906).

Value, how proved. The proper test of the value of land is not the price paid at a particular sale, but the general selling price in the neighborhood.

Neither the price paid for the property, nor evidence as to its value fourteen months prior to the appropriation, prove its present value, but both are admissible as tending to show present value.

A property owner may show the value of the land separate from the building, and the value of the building separate from the land. In the absence of other evidence the aggregate of the two valuations should be taken as the value.

Railroad v. Gorsuch, 8 C. C. n. s. 297; 18 C. D. 468 (1905); aff'd, 76 O. S. 609.

See Lorain, etc., Co. v. Sinning, 17 C. C. 649; 6 C. D. 753 (1895).

It is improper to ask a witness how much less valuable a piece of land would be in consequence of the appropriation, or what the difference in value would be with the appropriation and without it. The proof should be confined to the value with the appropriation and value without it. The jury is to ascertain the difference or damage.

Powers v. Hazelton, etc., Ry. Co., 33 O. S. 429 (1878).

Railway Co. v. Gardner, 45 O. S. 309, 322 (1887).

Where no special ground is laid therefor, account books of persons not parties to the proceedings are not of themselves admissible in evidence to prove the value of the property affected by the appropriation, and quantity of products transported over it from the lands of other parties.

Powers v. Hazelton, etc., Ry. Co., 33 O. S. 429 (1878).

Where a witness, on cross examination, testified as to a low sale of land in the neighborhood, it is competent on re-examination to inquire as to an exceptionally high sale of neighboring land.

Lorain, etc., Co. v. Sinning, 17 C. C. 649; 6 C. D. 753 (1895).

Opinions as to value or damages. Where in a proceeding it is claimed that the land will be injured by severing it, thus injuring the shipping facilities, it is proper to ask the opinion of a witness on cross-examination as to the extent of such injury.

Cleveland, etc., R. R. Co. v. Ball, 5 O. S. 568 (1856).

The opinion of a witness as to the amount of damages which a land-owner will sustain by the appropriation of a part of his land is not admissible, but opinions may be given as to the value of the land.

Section 11057. (When a structure is partly on land to be appropriated.) When a building or other structure is situated partly upon land sought to be appropriated, and partly upon adjoining land, and such structure can not be divided upon the line between such two tracts without manifest injury, in assessing the compensation to any owner of the lands, the jury shall assess its value exclusive of the structure, and make a separate estimate of the value of the structure. The owner of the structure may elect to retain its ownership, and to remove it, or accept the value estimated by the jury. If he fails to make such election within ten days from the date of the jury's report, or within ten days from the termination of the cause in a higher court to which it is taken, he shall be deemed to have elected to retain and remove the structure. If he elects to accept the value of the structure, the title thereto shall vest in the corporation making the appropriation, with the right to enter upon the land for the purpose of removing it therefrom. (R. S. Sec. 6431; April 11, 1876, 73 v. 210, § 1.)

An election may be made either ten days after the date of the verdict, or ten days after the overruling of a motion for a new trial, or ten days after the termination of the proceeding in error.

Covington Bridge Co. v. Devoto, 5 N. P. 330; 8 L. D. 268 (1898).

Section 11058. (Verdict.) The jury shall render its verdict in writing, signed by the foreman, to the judge, who shall cause it to be entered of record. Unless for good cause shown, upon motion to be filed within ten days after the verdict is rendered, a new trial be granted, the judge shall enter a judgment confirming such verdict. (R. S. Sec. 6432; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71.)

The three-fourths jury law applies to appropriation proceedings. Miami District v. Mitman, 100 O. S. 315 (1919).

The verdict must be in money. A verdict assessing damages at $150.00 with a wagon way and stop for cattle is not authorized.

Central, etc., R. Co. v. Holler, 7 O. S. 220 (1857).

The verdict should show, separately, compensation for the land taken and damages to the residue. Railway v. Knauss, 47 W. L. B. 807.

The judgment confirming the verdict is a final judgment provided for in § 11065.

Errors occurring upon the hearing of preliminary questions may, if they come within the causes for a new trial defined in G. C. § 11576, be included in the motion filed under this section.

Railroad Co. v. Traction Co., 72 O. S. 429 (1905).

Section 11059. (When and how corporation may have possession.) Upon payment to the party entitled thereto, or deposit with the probate judge of the amount of the verdict and such costs as lawfully accrued in the case up to the time against the corporation, it will be entitled to take possession of, and hold, the property, rights or interests so appropriated, for the uses and purposes for which the appropriation was sought, as set forth in the petition. The judge shall enter of record an order to that effect, and if necessary, proper process shall be issued to place the corporation in possession thereof. (R. S. Sec. 6433; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71.)

Where the corporation prosecutes error, without taking possession of the premises, and gives an undertaking, it can not be required to pay or deposit the amount of the verdict.

State v. Waite, 70 O. S. 149 (1904); affirming 2 C. C. n. s. 49.

See § 11065 and note.

Appropriation proceedings are effectual, although the owner may have refused to submit to such proceedings, or to receive the amount awarded to him, and deposited for his use.

Hueston v. Eaton, etc., R. Co., 4 O. S. 685 (1855).

Before a corporation can have possession it must make a deposit of the amount of the verdict, and a final judgment or order must be made in the proceedings.

Wagner v. Railway Co., 38 O. S. 32 (1882).

Trustees v. Banning, 17 W. L. B. 319.

Section 11060. (When and how corporation may abandon proceeding.) The corporation may abandon any case or proceeding after paying into court the amount of the defendants' costs, expenses, and attorney fees, as found by the court. If the corporation fails in any case to make payment or deposit, as provided in the next preceding section, within thirty days after confirmation of the verdict, on motion of the party entitled to such payment, to be filed within ten days after the expiration of such thirty days, the judge shall enter an order directing the corporation to make such payment or deposit within thirty days after the date of the order. Unless such corporation, within such time makes such payment or deposit, it shall be held thereby to have abandoned the property, rights, or interests so appropriated, and all claims thereon under its proceeding, and the judge shall issue an order to that effect. He also shall enter a judgment against the corporation, and in favor of the party entitled to such payment, for such amount of expenses, including time spent and attorney fees incurred by him in the proceeding, as, upon the evidence offered in that behalf, the court deems just, for which execution may be issued against the corporation. The directors of the corporation, shall be individually liable upon such judgment, and may be made parties thereto by action. (R. S. Sec. 6434; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 10.)

This section is constitutional.

Wiler v. Logan, etc., Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 206; 17 C. D. 257 (1904); (aff'd, 72 O. S. 628, for failure to file petition in error in time).

This section furnishes the only remedy to the owner of property where the appropriation proceeding was brought in good faith and afterwards abandoned. The owner can not recover damages for deterioration of a partially erected building, the completion of which was halted by the appropriation proceeding. Jack v. Railroad Co., 19 C. C. n. s. 249 (1911).

Section 11061. (Action for costs and expenses.) If such judgment is not satisfied within thirty days after its rendition, or if the party entitled thereto is not satisfied with its amount he shall have a right of action against the petitioner for such expenses, including time spent and attorney fees, and also for his expenses, including reasonable attorney fees, incurred in prosecuting such action. But it must be brought within six months after the rendition of the judgment in the probate court. (R. S. Sec. 6435; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 10.)

This section is constitutional.

Wiler v. Logan, etc., Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 206; 17 C. D. 257 (1904); (aff'd, 72 O. S. 628, for failure to file petition in error in time).

Section 11062. (New trial, proceedings thereon.) A new trial shall be granted for cause only, shall take place in the court where the first trial was had, and be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this chapter so far as they are applicable. Upon granting the motion for a new trial, if the amount of the first verdict has been paid into court the judge shall retain it until the final termination of the second trial. On the new trial, if the verdict of the jury exceeds the amount of the first verdict, the corporation must pay the amount of the first verdict, together with the excess, to the owner of the property. When the verdict upon the second trial is less than that of the first, the judge shall repay to the corporation the difference. If a new trial be granted at the instance of the owner of the property, and the verdict of the jury be the same or less in amount than that first rendered, he must pay all the costs of the second trial. If it be more than that first rendered, the costs of the second trial must be paid by the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 6436, April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 11.)

Time for filing motion for new trial, § 11058.

Grounds for new trial. Errors occurring upon the trial of preliminary questions may, if they come within the causes for a new trial defined in G. C. § 11576, be included in the motion for a new trial.

Railroad Co. v. Traction Co., 72 O. S. 429 (1905).

Misconduct of counsel in stating to the jury that a certain price was paid by the owner for the property is not a ground for a new trial where the jury was instructed to disregard the statement.

Devou v. Cincinnati, etc., Co., 4 O. L. R. 313; 19 C. D. 113 (1906).

When owner entitled to payment. The money paid in on the first verdict, which is afterward set aside, remains the property of the corporation until the final determination of the second trial; and if the second verdict is less than the deposit, the excess is returned to its owner, but if greater, the corporation must increase the deposit to equal the second verdict, to entitle it to take the property.* This section gives no right to appropriate the property pending the second trial.

Wagner v. Railway Co., 38 O. S. 32, 39 (1882).

Trustees v. Banning, 21 W. L. B. 9 (1888).

Injunction against appropriation. The remedy of a landowner dissatisfied with an appropriation, and claiming the company has varied from the route specified in its charter, lies in the appropriation proceedings, not in equity.

Walker v. Mad River, etc., R. Co., 8 Ohio 38 (1837).

Section 11063. (Bills of exceptions.) Bills of exceptions may be taken and shall be allowed, as provided by law in civil actions. (R. S. Sec. 6437; March 21, 1904, 97 v. 44; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 12.)

The time within which a bill of exceptions on the hearing of preliminary questions under § 11046 should be taken is computed from the day on which such questions are determined, unless a motion for a new trial is filed, in which event it is computed from the day the motion is overruled.

Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 156 (1905).

Railroad v. Traction Co., 72 O. S. 429 (1905).

The impressions made on the minds of the jury by a view of the premises are not of themselves evidence. A bill of exceptions which contains all of the evidence given in court at the trial is, with a record otherwise complete, sufficient to present to a reviewing court the question of the weight of evidence.

Railroad Co. v. Bolen, 76 O. S. 376 (1907).

Traction Co. v. Dempsey, 9 N. P. n. s. 65 (1909).

But the omission of an exhibit showing the proposed railroad line renders the bill of exceptions insufficient to present the question of the weight of evidence. Realty Co. v. Railway, 18 C. C. n. s. 86 (1910); aff'd, no rep. 86 O. S. 364.

Section 11064. (Petition in error.) Either party may file a petition in error in the court of common pleas of the proper county within thirty days after the time allowed for such signing of bills of exceptions, and the proceedings in error shall be conducted as in civil cases. (R. S. Sec 6437; March 21, 1904, 97 v. 44; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 12.)

Where the verdict fixing the amount of compensation has been confirmed the landowner may prosecute error before the compensation has been paid, or an order made under § 11059.

See Railroad v. Tod, 72 O. S. 166, 167 (1905).

The reviewing court acquires no jurisdiction where the petition in error is not filed within thirty days. The limitation of this section is not affected by § 12270.

Railroad v. Traction Co., 72 O. S. 429 (1905).

Section 11065. (Corporation may pay judgment and enter on property.) On the rendition of final judgment in the probate court, the corporation may pay into the court the amount of the judgment for compensation, and costs therein rendered, and proceed to enter upon and appropriate property notwithstanding the pendency of the proceedings in error. (R. S. Sec. 6437; March 21, 1904, 97 v. 44; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 12.)

Where a corporation prosecuting error has not taken possession of the premises, it may stay execution on the judgment until the case on error is determined, by giving an undertaking. While such error proceeding is pending, mandamus will not lie requiring the probate judge to order the amount of the verdict deposited or paid to the landowner.

State v. Waite, 70 O. S. 149 (1904); affirming 2 C. C. n. s. 49.

But the corporation can not take possession, and avoid payment by giving a bond. Such possession may be enjoined under § 11088.

In re George, 5 C. C. 207 (1891).

Where the corporation has paid into court the amount of the judgment, the landowner may require the probate judge to pay it over, notwithstanding the pendency of the proceeding in error and the objection of the corporation. The bond of the probate judge is liable on failure to pay.

Trustees v. Banning, 21 W. L. B. 9 (1888).

A corporation which has paid the compensation into court, under a stipulation permitting the landowner to withdraw it, without prejudice to any other rights, may be required by the court to go into a second trial as to the value of the land without a refunder of the first award.

Section 11066. (Proceedings in the common pleas on error.) Upon the hearing of the cause, if the common pleas court affirms the judgment of the probate court, all the costs in the common pleas court shall be paid by the plaintiff in error. If it reverses such judgment, it shall retain the cause for trial and final judgment, as in other cases. The trial shall be had at the term of reversal, unless for good cause shown by either party a continuance is granted. On the trial of the cause in the common pleas court the same inquiry shall be made as to the interest of the jurors, and the same oath administered to the jury as hereinbefore provided. (R. S. Sec. 6438; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 13.)

Where the judgment of the probate court is reversed by the court of common pleas it is the duty of that court to proceed to hearing and trial as if it had original jurisdiction. The judgment of reversal finally disposes of the judgment of the probate court, but it is not a judgment which may be reversed on error. Although the judgment of reversal is erroneous, mandamus will not lie to compel the judges of the court of common pleas to again hear and pass upon the petition in error.

Section 11067. (How school land appropriated.) When a railroad company, incorporated in this state, has located its railroad through a part of reserved section twenty-nine or sixteen, or through a part of sections granted by congress instead of section sixteen for school purposes, and such lands remain unsold, or through a town lot or parcels of ground used for or devoted to school purposes, it may appropriate so much of such land or lots as is necessary for its purposes. Service of the summons made on such trustees or school officers, as have possession or control of the lands, shall have the same force and effect as service in other cases on owners of land sought to be appropriated. The money arising from such appropriation must be disposed of by such trustees or school officers in accordance with law. (R. S. Sec. 6439; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 14.)

Purpose of section.

State v. Railway, 37 O. S. 157, 171 (1881).

Section 11068. (When proceedings to appropriate be commenced in common pleas.) When the probate judge is interested, either as stockholder, director or otherwise, in a corporation seeking to appropriate private property to its use, or if before filing the petition, it is made to appear to the satisfaction of a judge of the common pleas court of the county wherein the action is to be brought, that such probate judge is interested either as owner or otherwise in the property sought to be appropriated, or by reason of sickness, absence or other incapacity is and will be unable to preside at the trial, the proceedings authorized by this chapter may be commenced in the common pleas court of the county. (R. S. Sec. 6440; April 6, 1891, 88 v. 281; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 218; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 15.)

Section 11069. (Procedure in common pleas court.) In such case, so far as applicable, the proceedings shall conform to the provisions of this chapter, and the powers conferred and duties imposed thereby upon the probate court devolve upon the common pleas, which court may make such orders and direct such proceedings to be had as are necessary to do justice between the parties according to the spirit and intent of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 6440; April 6, 1891, 88 v. 281; April 19, 1883, 80 v. 218; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 15.)

Section 11070. (When corporation entitled to possession.) After final judgment, on depositing the amount of the judgment and costs assessed in such court with the clerk thereof, the corporation may be entitled to enter into possession of the property sought to be appropriated. In case such court is not in session when the proceedings are begun therein, nor on the day fixed for the inquiry and assessment of compensation, a special term thereof must be held as provided by law. (R. S. Sec. 6440; 88 v. 281; 80 v. 218; R. S. 1880; 69 v. 88, § 15.)

Section 11071. (When court to appoint attorney.) When a party in interest is unknown, or his residence is unknown, and service has been made by publication, and the party has not appeared in the proceedings by agent or attorney, or when such party in interest is under any legal disability and has no legal guardian, or trustee, within the county where the action is brought, the court shall appoint some competent attorney to attend upon the proceedings, and protect the rights and interests of such party, and also fix the fees of the attorney for such service, which shall be payable out of any money paid on the judgment rendered in such case for property appropriated. (R. S. Sec. 6441; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 16.)

Section 11072. (Conflicting claims.) When there are diverse or conflicting claims, legal or equitable, to the real estate, or any interest therein, sought to be appropriated under the provisions of this chapter, the jury or court shall not pass upon them in the proceedings for appropriation. Such claims shall be reserved for adjudication as hereinafter provided. (R. S. Sec. 6442; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 18.)

Section 11073. (To be adjudicated in the common pleas.) Upon the payment of the money into court by the corporation, a party claiming a legal or equitable interest in the property, or the money arising therefrom by such appropriation, may file his petition in the common pleas court of the proper county, making the other claimants to the property or money parties thereto, setting forth the facts on which the claim is founded, the fact of the appropriation of the property, the amount of money so paid in and such other facts as are required to enable the court to hear and determine the matter between the claimants. (R. S. Sec. 6443; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 19.)

Section 11074. (Custody of the funds.) The court forthwith shall appoint some master, or other suitable person selected by the parties, to hold such fund, or invest it in the manner the court directs, after hearing the parties. Such fund thenceforth will represent the land, and the interests therein, and be subject to the control of the court having jurisdiction of the case, by orders entered in this action, according to the rights of the parties to the land or fund, as from time to time it determines. (R. S. Sec. 6443; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 19.)

Section 11075. (Such proceeding a civil action.) Such proceeding in the court of common pleas, shall be a civil action; and the conflicting claims of parties to such fund shall be determined by the court, or by a jury trial, according as the claim is equitable or legal, as if the land had not been converted into money. (R. S. Sec. 6444; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 20.)

The court is authorized to determine conflicting claims of the lessor and lessee of the property appropriated.

Section 11076. (Condemnation of unfinished road-bed.)

A railroad corporation of this state may condemn and appropriate to its own use the interest and easement in and quiet title to any unfinished road-bed, or part thereof, lying within the state, and on the line of its proposed road, owned or claimed by another railroad company or companies, person or persons, partnership or corporation, when such road-bed, or part thereof has remained in an unfinished condition, and without having the ties and iron placed and continued thereon for the period of five years or more, immediately preceding the commencement of proceedings to condemn or appropriate it as herein authorized. Every such company, or companies, person or persons, partnership or corporation shall be made a party defendant to such proceedings to condemn or appropriate it, and be required to answer therein, setting forth fully its or their title to or interest in such road-bed, or part thereof, so sought to be appropriated, if any, it or they claim, to which answer the plaintiff must plead issuably, unless it admits the validity of the defendant's claim. In such case, if a party defendant be a non-resident of this state, or a foreign corporation, service of summons may be made by publication, as in other proceedings to appropriate the property of foreign corporations, or persons not residing in Ohio. (R. S. Sec. 6445; April 5, 1882, 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 9.)

This section has no application to appropriation proceedings in general. Valley Ry. Co. v. Pouchot, 4 C. C. 187, 193 (1889); aff'd, 51 O. S. 571.

Section 11077. (Construction of terms.) The terms "company or companies" used in this chapter, also embrace "person or persons," "partnership or corporation," as used in the next preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 6445; 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11078. (Proceedings.) When it is determined by the court, upon issue of law, or by the jury upon issue of fact, or by the admission of the pleadings, or by reason of failure to plead that any company asserting such ownership or claim is not entitled thereto, judgment, including costs, must be rendered accordingly. But when in like manner it is determined that such a company has an interest in such road-bed, or part thereof, so sought to be appropriated, the jury shall determine and state the amount of compensation due to such company, according to law, on account of the appropriation of such interest. (R. S. Sec. 6446; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11079. (Where action to be begun.) Such proceedings may be commenced in the probate court, the common pleas or the superior court of any county in which such road-bed, or part so sought to be appropriated or condemned is situated. All or part only of such road-bed within this state may be included in one proceeding, and when it is begun in the common pleas or superior court, the same proceedings shall be had as are prescribed in this chapter for its conduct in the probate court, so far as applicable and not excepted in this section. On motion, the case shall be taken out of its order by the court or by a reviewing court, and determined without unnecessary delay. The provisions of this chapter as to viewers shall not apply to appropriations of road-beds as herein authorized. (R. S. Sec. 6447; April 5, 1882, 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11080. (Error.) Proceedings in error to such common pleas or superior courts, may be commenced directly in the supreme court. (R. S. Sec. 6447; 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11081. (Statement of intention.) When a railroad corporation commences proceedings under section eleven thousand and seventy-six, its president shall make, subscribe and file in the court where such proceeding is had a statement under oath, declaring that it is the bona fide intention of such corporation to complete and operate a railroad on the road-bed so sought to be appropriated. (R. S. Sec. 6447; 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11082. (Failure to occupy road-bed for one year.) For a period of one year after it acquired right to occupy the road-bed, if such corporation fails to expend in and about the completion of a railroad thereon a sum equal to twenty-five per cent of the total cost of completing it, to be estimated by the railroad commission of Ohio, then such road-bed will be open to appropriation and condemnation by any other railroad corporation. (R. S. Sec. 6447; 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; 72 v. 71, § 9.)

Section 11083. (Interpretation of word "road-bed.") The word "road-bed" used in any of the preceding sections includes rights of way, depot grounds, and other easements connected therewith, and it will be sufficient in the petition and proceedings under this chapter to designate the road-bed as the road-bed of the railroad corporation by which the route of the road was located and established with the terminal points within which appropriation is sought. (R. S. Sec. 6447; April 5, 1882, 79 v. 65; R. S. 1880; March 23, 1875, 72 v. 72, § 9.)

Section 11084. (Proceedings when land is held without agreement.) When a corporation, authorized by law to make appropriation of private property or lands reserved for school purposes, has taken possession of and is occupying or using the land of any person, or such school lands for any purpose, and the land so occupied or used has not been appropriated and paid for by the corporation, or is not held by an agreement in writing with the owner thereof, or the trustees or school officers having possession or control of such school lands, such owner or owners, or either of them, or such trustees or school officers, may serve written notice upon the corporation in the manner provided for the service of summons against a corporation, to proceed under this chapter to appropriate the lands. On the failure of such corporation for ten days so to proceed, the owner or owners or such trustees or school officers may file a petition in the probate court of the proper county setting forth the fact of such use or occupation by the corporation, that the corporation has no right, legal or equitable, thereto, and in cases of reserved sections sixteen and twenty-nine, or any part of sections granted by congress instead of section sixteen for school purposes, no right, legal or equitable, derived from the trustees and officers named therein, that such notice has been duly served, that the time of limitation under the notice has elapsed, and such other facts, including a pertinent description of the land so used or occupied, as are proper to a full understanding of the case. (R. S. Sec. 6448; April 12, 1883, 80 v. 114; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 21.)

Baltimore, etc., R. Co. v. Lersch, 58 O. S. 639, 652 (1898).

Railroad Co. v. Hambleton, 40 O. S. 496 (1884).

A strip of land leased by a municipality to a railroad company for a term of years does not become a separate parcel of land. Upon appropriation of the strip the municipality may recover damages to the residue. Damages to the residue may be recovered either in an action to compel an appropriation, or in the appropriation proceeding. Railway Co. v. Cincinnati, 16 N. P. n. s. 587; 60 Bull. 284 (Insolvency Ct. 1914).

Section 11085. (Demand of written statement describing the land occupied without appropriation.) Such owner or owners, or such trustees or school officers, intending to institute such proceeding, may demand, in writing, from the president or chief officer of such corporation a specific description of each parcel of land so used or occupied without appropriation by it, of the work, if any, constructed or intended to be constructed thereon, and the use to which it is to be applied. Upon failure of the corporation for ten days to furnish this as fully as would be required of it in a proceeding to appropriate lands, the fact of such demand and failure may be alleged in the petition in such proceeding. On notice to the corporation and proof thereof to the probate judge having jurisdiction of such appropriation, he shall restrain it from the use and occupation of the land until such demand is complied with. Or, such owner or owners, or trustees or school officers may cause the necessary surveys to be made therefor, and the costs thereof must be taxed to the corporation in such proceeding. (R. S. Sec. 6448; April 12, 1883, 80 v. 114; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 21.)

Section 11086. (Summons.) A summons shall issue and be served upon the corporation, and thereafter the proceedings in such court be conducted to final judgment as provided in this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 6449; April 12, 1882, 80 v. 114; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 21.)

Section 11087. (Judgment and execution.) If the corporation fails to pay the judgment and costs awarded against it in the proceeding, they may be collected by execution as in other cases. This section and the next preceding section shall not impair or lessen the right the owner or owners or the trustees or school officers may have to proceed against the corporation as in other cases of the unlawful entry upon lands. (R. S. Sec. 6449; April 12, 1882, 80 v. 114; R. S. 1880; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 21.)

Lien of judgment. A judgment rendered in a proceeding under § 11084 is not made a charge or lien on the land.

But use of the property may be enjoined until the judgment is paid.

§ 11088.

OTHER REMEDIES.

The remedy provided by § 11084 and § 11085 is not a substitute for the remedy to recover possession but is cumulative.

Railroad v. Perkins, 49 O. S. 326, 330 (1892).

An abutting owner who is injured by the location of a railroad in a street in front of his property may proceed under § 8765. Section 11084 is not exclusive. Traction Co. v. Hart, 2 Ohio App. 1; 19 C. C. n. s. 71; 25 C. D. 347 (1913).

Injunction. An owner may enjoin a corporation from entering upon his land until it has been appropriated and paid for.

Turnpike Co. v. Cincinnati, etc., R. Co., 5 W. L. B. 643 (1880).

Suit for compensation in common pleas court. Where land is held by a company under a verbal agreement, and the owner elects to treat it as an appropriation in fact and tenders conveyance, and sues in the common pleas court, he can not enlarge his suit so as to include an inquiry of damages to other lands, but allegations of such damage will not affect the jurisdiction of the common pleas court.

Fries v. Wheeling, etc., Ry. Co., 56 O. S. 135 (1897); s. c., 18 C. C. 721; 14 C. C. 55.

Appropriation proceedings are not a bar to an action for damages for a trespass previously committed in grading.

Schaible v. Lake Shore, etc., Co., 10 C. C. 334; 6 C. D. 505 (1895).

Effect of appropriation. After appropriation the owner can not maintain a common law action for damages resulting from construction of a railroad on his land. Hueston v. Railroad, 4 O. S. 685 (1855).

Nor can he maintain an action against an employe of the road for cutting timber on the land appropriated. Prather v. Ellison, 10 Ohio 396 (1841).

Section 11088. (Injunction may issue against corporation.) If execution issued as provided in the next preceding section be returned unsatisfied, in whole or part, with the indorsement that no goods, chattels, lands or tenements, can be found whereon to levy, or if the judgment remains unsatisfied for more than sixty days from its rendition, the court, by injunction, may restrain the corporation from using or occupying the lands until the judgment and costs are paid. (R. S. Sec. 6450; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 22.)

This section does not authorize an injunction without an undertaking.

In re George, 5 C. C. 207 (1891).

A corporation which has prosecuted error to the judgment can not take possession, while the error proceeding is pending, without paying the amount of the judgment. An undertaking is not a substitute for payment. Such possession may be enjoined under this section after sixty days from the rendition of the judgment.

In re George, 5 C. C. 207 (1891).

See note to § 11065.

Section 11089. (Fees.) The jurors summoned, and attending or serving, in accordance with the provisions of this chapter, shall be paid the same fees per day as jurors in the court of common pleas, and also five cents per mile for each mile of the distance they travel in the discharge of their duties. Witnesses must be allowed the same fees and mileage as for attendance at the court of common pleas. The sheriff shall be entitled to such fees as he is allowed by law for similiar services in other cases, but not anything in the way of poundage, except on money made on execution. The clerk shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar and fifty cents for drawing, and certifying to the probate judge, the list of jurors. The probate judge shall be allowed to enter a charge of five dollars in the cost bill for each day occupied in the trial of a cause, in addition to his other fees provided by law. The whole costs so taxed must be adjudged against and paid by the corporation, except as provided in the next following section. (R. S. Sec. 6451; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 24.)

Constitutionality. This section is constitutional.

Jurors drawn from the box are talesmen under § 11051 and the fees of a jury so made up should be taxed as a part of the costs.

Hosbrook v. Traction Co., 5 C. C. n. s. 209; 17 C. D. 42 (1904); aff'd, 75 O. S. 584.

Fees of probate judge. The $5 per day is for the trial of the case to the jury. It may not be charged upon the hearing of a motion, demurrer, or hearing of preliminary questions under § 11046. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1917, p. 1288.

Section 11090. (When costs apportioned.) A corporation, by its proper officer, agent, or attorney, at the time of filing the petition with the probate judge, may deposit with him such sum of money, for each separate parcel of property as it deems a just compensation for the property, rights, and interests described in the petition, and sought to be appropriated. If the final verdict of the jury as to any parcel of property does not exceed the amount so deposited, and the owner has refused, after notice of such deposit, to accept it, the whole costs of the proceedings as to such parcel shall be equally divided between the corporation and the owner or owners of the property. When the final verdict as to any parcel or parcels exceeds, and as to other parcel or parcels does not exceed, the amount deposited, the probate judge shall apportion the costs in such manner as he deems just. (R. S. Sec. 6452; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 24.)

Section 11091. (When this chapter does not apply.) The provisions of this chapter shall not apply to proceedings by state, county, township, district, or municipal authorities, to appropriate private property for public uses, or for roads or ditches. In all such cases it shall be optional with such authorities to pay the judgment rendered against them, or to pay the costs and decline to take the property sought to be appropriated. (R. S. Sec. 6453; April 23, 1872, 69 v. 88, § 25.)

Section 11225-1. (When bank liable on forged or raised check.) No bank which has paid and charged to the account of a depositor any money on a forged or raised check issued in the name of said depositor shall be liable to said depositor for the amount paid thereon unless either, (1) within one year after actual written notice to said depositor that the vouchers representing payments charged to the account of said depositor for the period during which such payment was made are ready for delivery, or (2) in case no such notice has been given, within one year after the return to said depositor of the voucher representing such payment, said depositor shall notify the bank that the check so paid is forged or raised. (June 12, 1911, 102 v. 441.)

This section mentions liability to depositors only and not to the holder of a check. A bank is not liable to the holder unless and until it accepts or certifies the check. Savings Co. v. Walker Co., 92 O. S. 406 (1915).

Section 11231. (When action deemed commenced.) Within the meaning of this chapter, an attempt to commence an action shall be deemed to be equivalent to its commencement, when the party diligently endeavors to procure a service, if such attempt be followed by service within sixty days. (R. S. Sec. 4988; March 16, 1894, 91 v. 72; R. S. 1880; 51 v. 57, § 20; S. & C. 949.)

Section 11232. (When corporation goes into hands of a receiver.) If the defendant is a corporation, either foreign or domestic, and whether its charter prescribes the manner and place of service, or either, and before the expiration of such sixty days it passes into the hands of a receiver, then, following such attempt to commence an action, within such sixty days service may be made upon such receiver, or his cashier, treasurer, secretary, clerk or managing agent, or if none of these can be found, by a copy of the summons left at the office or usual place of business of such agents or officers of such receiver, with the person in charge thereof. If such corporation is a railroad company, summons may be served upon any regular ticket or freight agent of the receiver, or, if there be no such agent, then on any conductor of such receiver, in any county in the state in which the company's railroad is located. The summons shall be returned as if served upon the defendant. (R. S. Sec. 4988; March 16, 1894, 91 v. 72; R. S. 1880; 51 v. 57; § 20; S. & C. 949.)

This section does not apply to original service, but applies only to service after the failure of a diligent attempt.

Collins v. B. & O. R. Co., 7 N. P. 270; 7 L. D. 445 (C. P. 1898).

In an action against a railroad company, service on the ticket agent of its receiver is not service on the company.

 Railroad Co. v. Orme, 1 C. C. 511; 1 C. D. 285 (1885).

Where the person served was not the agent of the receiver at the time of service, the attempted service is nugatory.

Independent action in federal court against receiver, see

B. & O. R. Co. v. Freeman, 112 Fed. 237; 13 O. F. D. 66 (C. C. A. 1901).

Section 11233. (Saving in case of reversal, etc.) In an action commenced, or attempted to be commenced, if in due time a judgment for the plaintiff be reversed, or if the plaintiff fails otherwise than upon the merits, and the time limited for the commencement of such action at the date of reversal or failure has expired, the plaintiff, or, if he dies and the cause of action survives, his representatives may commence a new action within one year after such date, and this provision applies to any claim asserted in any pleading by a defendant. If the defendant is a corporation, foreign or domestic, and whether its charter prescribes the manner and place, or either, of service of process thereon, and it passes into the hands of a receiver before the expiration of such year, then service to be made within the year following such original service or attempt to begin the action may be made upon such receiver or his cashier, treasurer, secretary, clerk or managing agent, or if none of these officers can be found, by a copy left at the office or the usual place of business of such agents or officers of the receiver with the person having charge thereof. If such corporation be a railroad company, summons may be served on any regular ticket or freight agent of the receiver, and if there be no such agent, then upon any conductor of the receiver, in any county in the state in which the railroad is located. The summons shall be returned as if served on such defendant. (R. S. Sec. 4991; March 16, 1894, 91 v. 72; R. S. 1880; 51 v. 57, § 23; S. & C. 950.)

Where a suit for false imprisonment was brought in federal court against two corporations, one a New York corporation, and the other an Ohio corporation, and a demurrer by the New York corporation was sustained, and the case was thereafter dismissed, on the application of the Ohio corporation, for want of jurisdiction, the proceeding was held to be the commencement of an action within the meaning of this section, and plaintiff was entitled to commence a new action within one year from such date, although under G. C. § 11225 the action would be barred.

Railway v. Bemis, 64 O. S. 26 (1901).

A voluntary dismissal by plaintiff is not a failure contemplated by this section. Siegfried v. Railroad, 50 O. S. 294 (1893); White v. Foundry Co., 24 C. C. n. s. 180 (1902).

The new action to be commenced within one year must be the same as the first action, and between the same parties. Larwill v. Burke, 19 C. C. 449; 10 C. D. 579 (1900); aff'd, no rep. 66 O. S. 683.

Section 11272. (Other actions against corporations.) An action other than one of those mentioned in the next four preceding sections, against a corporation created under the laws of this state, may be brought in the county in which such corporation is situated, or has or had its principal office or place of business, or in which such corporation has an office or agent, or in any county in which a summons may be served upon the president, chairman or president of the board of directors or trustees or other chief officer. If such corporation is an insurance company, the action may be brought in the county wherein the cause of action or some part thereof arose; but if it be organized for the purpose of mining or operating for petroleum oil or gas, either exclusively or in connection with other business, the action may be brought in any county where such corporation owns or operates a mine or a well for petroleum oil or gas, and the cause of action, or a part thereof arose. (R. S. Sec. 5023; February 15, 1877, 74 v. 29, § 48; R. S. 1880, § 5026; January 16, 1885, 82 v. 5; April 19, 1898, 93 v. 125; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 270, § 5023; April 23, 1902, 95 v. 237.)

The word "may" in this section does not mean "must". Bond v. Insurance Co., 12 Ohio App. 39, 31 O. C. A. 407 (1919). See Casebolt

This section is not intended to apply to statutory actions in which a different rule or mode of proceeding is specially authorized.

Infirmary v. Toledo, 15 O. S. 409 (1864).

A suit by a stockholder to enjoin a corporation from acquiring stock in another corporation must be brought in a county having jurisdiction over the corporation in which the plaintiff is a stockholder. Westfall v. Railway, 13 N. P. n. s. 217; 22 L. D. 75 (1910).

To what corporations applicable. This section applies to life insurance companies as well as to fire insurance companies. The action may be brought in the county where the death of the insured occurred.

See Householder v. Association, 6 N. P. 520; 8 L. D. 321 (1898).

This section does not limit the venue of an action against an insurance company to the county in which it arose. Bond v. Insurance Co., 12 Ohio App. 39, 31 O. C. A. 407 (1919).

This section applies to an Ohio railroad company owning or operating a railroad within the state. Section 11273 is not exclusive. Casebalt v. Railroad Co., 5 Ohio App. 431; 26 C. C. n. s. 161 (1916).

This section applies to a corporation organized under a special charter, which has brought itself under the general laws.

Where actions brought.

Where suit may be brought in either of two counties and an action is brought in one, but summons issued to the sheriff of the other county, the action is improperly brought and the service should be set aside. Fostoria v. Fox, 60 O. S. 340 (1899).

County where principal office or place of business is located. An Ohio corporation can be sued only where it is situated, or has its principal place of business or where an officer or agent is maintained.

Personal service upon the president of a corporation, not having its principal office or place of business in Cincinnati, does not confer jurisdiction on the Superior Court. Schrieffer v. Safe Cabinet Co., 21 N. P. n. s. 127 (1917).

A trust company, having its principal place of business in one county, and a branch in another county, is not "situated" in the latter county within the meaning of the county depository law. State v. Oviatt, 4 N. P. n. s. 481, 17 L. D. 451 (1906).

County in which corporation has an office or agent. A sales agent is not a managing agent and an action may not be maintained in a county in which it has a sales agent only. Monnett v. Goodyear Co., 23 N. P. n. s. 486 (1920).

Suits against joint defendants. Quo warranto proceedings against several corporations, seeking a forfeiture of their corporate franchises for an illegal agreement or conspiracy in restraint of trade and in violation of the anti-trust laws, may be commenced in any county where one or more of the defendant corporations has its principal office or place of business, and summons may be issued to other counties for the other defendant corporations.

State v. King Bridge Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 557; 18 C. D. 147 (1906).

A domestic corporation of another county may be sued jointly with a resident of the county where the suit is brought, and, under G. C. § 11282 summons may issue to the county where such corporation has its principal office or place of business.

The receiver of a corporation may be sued in a county other than that of his domicile when joined as a defendant with a resident of the county where suit is brought.

Rogers v. Railroad Co., 6 N. P. 291; 8 L. D. 107 (C. P. 1899).

Insurance company. Under this section jurisdiction may be obtained over a defunct insurance company in a suit brought in a county other than the one in which its principal office is situated; but such jurisdiction does not extend to trustees appointed under G. C. § 12325 et seq. to administer the affairs of such company, and a motion to quash the service as to the trustees individually should be sustained.

Lernenman v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 58; 21 L. D. 269 (C. P. 1911.)

Oil or gas company. Where a corporation has oil or gas wells in a county, it may, under this section, be sued therein although its principal office is in another county.

Hankinson v. Gas Co., 10 N. P. n. s. 269 (C. P. 1910).

Consent or waiver. An action against a corporation may be brought by consent of the parties in a county where the corporation is not situated and has no office, officer or agent, if the court has jurisdiction of the subject matter of the action. Such consent is evidenced by answer and trial on the merits.

Reece v. Hydraulic Co., 12 C. D. 728.

The appearance of a defendant corporation in court for the sole purpose of objecting, by motion, to the jurisdiction of the court over it, is not an appearance in the action.

Kinsey v. Iron Works, 4 N. P. 293; 6 L. D. 446 (C. P. 1897).

President or other chief officer. Where the president is a non-resident of, or is absent from, the state, the vice president is the "chief officer" upon whom service may be made. Towne v. National Co., 10 Ohio App. 265, 29 O. C. A. 375 (1917); motion to certify record overruled, 15 O. L. R. 559.

The secretary is not a "chief officer". Akron Co. v. Hammond, 24 C. C. n. s. 278 (1902).

Section 11273. (Action against railroad company, interurban, suburban or street railroad, and stage companies, where brought.) An action against the owner or lessee of a line of mail stages or other coaches, a railroad company, interurban railroad company, suburban railroad company or street railroad company owning or operating a railroad, interurban railroad or street railroad within the state, or against a transportation company owning or operating an electric traction road located upon either bank of a canal belonging to the state, may be brought in any county through or into which such line, railroad, interurban railroad, street railroad or electric traction railroad, passes or extends; provided that all actions against such owner, lessee or company for injuries to person or property, or for wrongful death must be brought in the county in which the cause of action or some part thereof, arose, or in the county in which the claimant for injuries to person or property or one whose wrongful death was caused, resides at the time when the cause of action arose, if the road or line of such owner, lessee or company or any part thereof be located in such county. If no part of such line or road be located in such county, then such actions may be brought in the county in which any part of such road or line is located, nearest the place where the claimant for injuries to person or property or the one whose wrongful death was caused, so resided. (109 v. 81; 108 (Pt. 1) v. 49; R. S. Sec. 5024; April 3, 1866, 63 v. 87, § 49; R. S. 1880, § 5027; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 270, § 5024; April 23, 1902, 95 v. 258.)

In this section the word "may" does not mean "must". Casebolt v. Railroad Co., 5 Ohio App. 431; 26 C. C. n. s. 161 (1916). Contra, Kinsey v. Iron Works, 4 N. P. 293; 6 L. D. 446 (1897); Johnson v. Railway Co., 5 N. P. n. s. 347; 18 L. D. 247 (1907). This section refers expressly to railroad companies.

Collins v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. 270; 7 L. D. 445 (C. P. 1898).

An action against an Ohio railroad company may be brought under § 11272. Section 11273 is not exclusive. Casebolt v. Railroad Co., 5 Ohio App. 431; 26 C. C. n. s. 161 (1916).

The petition need not allege that the railroad of the defendant passes into or through the county in which the action is brought. Railroad v. Morey, 47 O. S. 207 (1890).

But the court cannot take judicial notice of the fact. State v. Railroad, 18 C. C. n. s. 546 (1912).

Where the petition alleges that the railroad of the defendant passes through the county, in order to raise the issue of jurisdiction, the defendant should file an answer denying the allegation. Admission in open court, by plaintiff, that the railroad does not extend into the county, does not, alone, deprive the court of jurisdiction nor authorize a writ of prohibition. Railroad v. Common Pleas Court, 6 Ohio App. 244, 28 O. C. A. 364 (1916).

Where actions brought. A railroad company may be served with summons in a county through which it does not run when properly joined as a codefendant.

Jurisdiction is not obtained over a railroad company in an action brought in the county where its principal office is located, where its line of road does not pass through the county.

See Brooks v. Railway Co., 15 L. D. 549 (1904).

Foreign railroad companies. An action against a foreign railroad company may be brought in a county through which its road passes.

Swan v. Railroad Co., 4 L. D. 71 (1895).

Consent or waiver. This section relates solely to the jurisdiction of the person, and it is not necessary that the petition should state that its road passes into or through the county where the action is brought. A railroad company, like a natural person, submits itself to the jurisdiction of the court by appearing for any other purpose than to object to such jurisdiction.

Railroad Co. v. Morey, 47 O. S. 207 (1890).

Where a railroad company objects to jurisdiction over its person and expressly reserves its rights in that behalf, it does not voluntarily submit to the jurisdiction by answering on the merits, where the question of jurisdiction can only be decided by a trial on the merits.

Section 11274. (Against turnpike companies.) An action other than one of those mentioned in sections eleven thousand and two hundred and sixty-eight, eleven thousand two hundred and sixty-nine, eleven thousand two hundred and seventy and eleven thousand two hundred and seventy-one against a turnpike road company, may be brought in any county in which any part of the road lies. (R. S. Sec. 5025; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57, § 50; R. S. 1880, § 5028; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 270, § 5025; S. & C. 960.)

Section 11275. (When this chapter does not apply.) When the charter of a corporation created under the laws of this state prescribed the place where suit must be brought, that provision shall govern. (R. S. Sec. 5026; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57, § 51; R. S. 1880, § 5029; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 270, § 5026; S. & C. 960.)

Insurance Co. v. Stukey, 18 Ohio 455 (1849).

Insurance Co. v. West, 6 O. S. 599 (1856).

This section is not applicable where the company has acted under general laws and thus lost its special rights.

Insurance Co. v. Bowersox, 6 C. C. 275; 3 C. D. 451 (1892).

Section 11276. (Further provisions as to non-residents.)

An action other than one of those mentioned in sections eleven thousand two hundred and sixty-eight, eleven thousand two hundred and sixty-nine, eleven thousand two hundred and seventy and eleven thousand two hundred and seventy-one against a non-resident of this state, or a foreign corporation, may be brought in any county in which there is property of, or debts owing to the defendant, or where such defendant is found, or where the cause of action or some part thereof, arose. (R. S. Sec. 5027; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57; § 52; R. S. 1880, § 5030; April 16, 1900, 94 v. 270, § 5027; April 17, 1902, 95 v. 203; S. & C. 960.)

The general rule here declared has no reference to actions upon causes arising in this state. No matter where the cause arose, if the subject matter be within the jurisdiction of the court. Nor is the rule confined to corporations, other than insurance companies. Any foreign corporation which may be found in this state, may be sued in any county in this state in any court having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the suit.

Handy v. Insurance Co., 37 O. S. 366, 371 (1881).

A plaintiff may sue in Ohio for an injury to property in Ohio occasioned by the diversion of water in Pennsylvania.

Construction of section prior to amendment of 1902 (95 v. 203).

See Handy v. Insurance Co., 37 O. S. 366 (1881).

Foreign corporations. The words "foreign corporation" in attachment cases under the original form of G. C. § 10253 meant foreign to the state, not foreign to the county.

Boley v. Trust Co., 12 O. S. 139 (1861).

Where a foreign corporation has its office and business in one county, and has a debtor in another county, it may be sued and the debts attached in the latter county, personal service being had in the county where its offices are situated.

Rainey v. Jefferson Iron Works, 8 C. C. 674; 4 C. D. 231 (1894).

An action against a foreign life insurance company may be brought where the death of the insured occurred.

Householder v. Kansas Life Association, 6 N. P. 520; 7 L. D. 544 (1898).

Where there are debts owing to a defendant corporation in a county, an action may be brought, under this section, in such county.

Rosenbaum Co. v. Cohen & Mack, 13 C. C. n. s. 102 (1910).

A freight car, used in interstate traffic, and in transit into and from the state, is not subject to seizure in attachment for the purpose of giving jurisdiction.

Service.

No jurisdiction can be acquired over a non-resident of the state, unless he is personally served, or appear, or unless the action is one in which service by publication can be made.

Williams v. Welton, 28 O. S. 451 (1876).

Personal service is not necessary in attachment or garnishment proceedings against a non-resident debtor. Service by publication is sufficient.

Goebel v. Bank, 3 N. P. 109; 4 L. D. 127 (1896).

Section 11288. (How served upon corporation.) A summons against a corporation may be served upon the president, mayor, chairman or president of the board of directors or trustees, or other chief officer; or if its chief officer be not found in the county, upon its cashier, treasurer, secretary, clerk, or managing agent; or, if none of such officers can be found, by a copy left at the office or usual place of business of the corporation with the person having charge thereof. If such corporation is a railroad company, whether foreign or domestic, and whether the charter thereof prescribes the manner and place, or either, of service of process thereon, or, if it be a street railroad company, owning or operating a street railroad passing through two or more counties, or a transportation company owning or operating an electric traction road located upon either bank of any canal belonging to the state, the summons may be served upon any regular ticket or freight agent of such railroad company or street railroad company or transportation company; or, if there be no such agent, then upon any conductor in charge of any train or car upon such railroad or street railroad, or upon any motorman or other person in charge of any electric traction car engine or motor upon any such electric traction road, in any county in this state, in which such railroad, street railroad, or electric traction road is located, or through which it passes. But, if the defendant is an incorporated river transportation company, whether organized under the laws of this or another state, the service of a summons may be upon the master, or other chief officer, or any of its steamboats or other craft, or upon any of its authorized ticket or freight agents, at any port where it transacts business. (R. S. Sec. 5041; 65 v. 116, § 66; 76 v. 145; § 10; 51 v. 57, § 66; S. & C. 963; S. & S. 542; R. S. 1880; § 5044; 94 v. 273, § 5041; April 23, 1902, 95 v. 258.)

Service under this section is limited to Ohio corporations and such foreign corporations as are therein described. Hurd v. Ransom, 13 Ohio App. 135, 31 O. C. A. 477 (1920); Railroad v. Transportation Co., 32 O. S. 116.

This section and § 11290 are exclusive of each other. Section 11290 furnishes the only method of service on foreign corporations, other than those described in this section. Hurd v. Ransom, 13 Ohio App. 135, 31 O. C. A. 477 (1920); Goode v. Association, 3 O. L. R. 600, 16 L. D. 586 (C. P. 1906); Barney v. Railroad, 1 Handy 571 (1855). Contra, Lively v. Pieton, 218 Fed. 401 (C. C. A. Ohio 1914); Consolidated Co. v. Maumee Co., 284 Fed. 550.

President or other chief officer.

Service on the president or chief officer must be had personally. Service by leaving a certified copy of the summons at the usual place of residence of the president is not a compliance with this section, is defective and will be quashed on motion.

State v. King Bridge Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 557; 18 C. D. 147 (1906).

Where a suit has been rightfully brought against a corporation, service may be had on the president in that or any other county, or if service can be otherwise made in the county by serving other officers, etc., it is not necessary to follow the president to another county.

Campbell v. Woodsdale Park Co., 3 N. P. 159; 4 L. D. 152 (1896).

When the president is a non-resident of, or is absent from, the state, the vice president is the "chief officer" upon whom service may be made. Towne v. National Co., 10 Ohio App. 265; 29 O. C. A. 375 (1917); motion to certify record overruled, 15 O. L. R. 559.

The secretary is not a "chief officer". Akron Co. v. Hammond, 24 C. C. n. s. 278 (1902).

Subordinate officers or agents. When service is made upon a subordinate officer, it must appear from the return that the chief officer of the corporation could not be found. When made by copy left at the office or usual place of business of such corporation, with the person having charge thereof, the return must show that none of the specified officers, either chief or subordinate, could be found in the county.

A return by a sheriff which sets forth that on a day named "I served this writ on the within company by delivering a true and certified copy thereof to the treasurer" (naming him) "the president or other chief officers not found in my county" is in exact conformity with this section.

Parker v. Iron Works, 3 C. C. n. s. 547; 13 C. D. 444 (1902).

A service of summons on a corporation, "by delivering a true copy of this writ, with all indorsements thereon, to John Doe, secretary of the company, no other chief officer being found," is a compliance with the statute.

Hotel Co. v. Trust Co., 25 W. L. B. 375 (1891); s. c., 25 W. L. B. 295.

A return of an order of attachment reciting that "the attachment was served upon the following named persons, and firms: The S. G. L. Company" is insufficient and does not give the court jurisdiction.

Prout v. Post, 12 L. D. 141 (C. P.).

Service on a travelling solicitor of business is insufficient. Wilson v. Railroad, 16 W. L. B. 6.

Service on the chief clerk of the superintendent is not service on a chief officer. Railway Co. v. Copenhagen, 12 C. C. n. s. 69 (1908).

Joint-stock company. A joint-stock company, organized under the laws of the state of New York, and having substantially the character and powers of a corporation, may be served with summons in this state in the same manner as corporations are served.

Express Co. v. State, 55 O. S. 69 (1896).

Defunct company. As the last directors of a defunct corporation are in effect the corporation, service on them is sufficient.

Managing agent.

See also note to § 11290.

Where debts are owing to a corporation in a county, service may be made on the secretary or managing agent, if the president or other chief officer be not found in the county. Where a return showed service on a managing agent, and an affidavit supporting a motion to quash the service denied that the person served was a managing agent, and no evidence was presented in support of the return, the motion to quash was granted.

State v. Standard Oil Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 212 (1907).

Railroad companies.

President or chief officer. Service on the president of a railroad company, or upon the general superintendent in the event that the president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer or other chief officer can not be found, is authorized by this section. This section does not require service upon ticket or freight agents exclusively, but extends the class of agents upon whom service may be made so as to include ticket and freight agents.

Brooks v. Railway, 15 L. D. 549 (C. P. 1904).

Service on the chief clerk of the superintendant of a railroad company is not service upon a chief officer, and where such service is had upon a petition in which a wrong company is named as defendant, the substitution of the name of the proper company, and the amendment of the return of summons to conform thereto, is ineffectual to bring the proper company into court.

Railroad Co. v. Copenhagen, 12 C. C. n. s. 69; 21 C. D. 515 (1908).

Regular ticket or freight agent. Service on the ticket agent of a company operating a leased road is valid.

Collins v. Railroad Co., 7 N. P. 270; 7 L. D. 445 (1898).

Service may be made upon a ticket or freight agent notwithstanding the presence of superior officers in the county.

State v. Standard Oil Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 212 (1907).

A return that the summons was served upon a "ticket agent and general agent" is defective in not showing that the person served was "its regular ticket agent." Tallman v. Railroad Co., 45 Fed. 156; 6 O. F. D. 728 (1891).

But the defect was held cured by affidavit of the officer that to his personal knowledge, the person served was the "regular" ticket agent, and that the word "regular" was omitted through oversight. Fountain v. Railway, 210 Fed. 982 (D. C. 1913).

Service on a ticket agent was held sufficient, though the company had no line of road and did not operate in the county.

Woodcock v. Railroad Co. (U. S. C. C.), 46 W. L. B. 121 (1901).

Contra, State v. Railroad, 18 C. C. n. s. 546 (1912).

The service of a summons on a regular ticket and freight agent, at and in charge of an established station, the road being in the hands of a receiver, and such agent being an agent of the receiver, is not good service as against the company.

Where a railroad enters the jurisdiction by ferryboat only, service on a ticket agent located in the jurisdiction is sufficient.

Williams v. Railroad Co., 31 W. L. B. 115 (1894).

Foreign railroad company. So far as this section provides for service on foreign railroad companies, it is cumulative and not restrictive or exclusive, and does not affect § 11290.

Wilson v. Northern Pacific R. R. Co., 16 W. L. B. 6 (1886).

Defective service. On a motion to vacate a judgment, evidence is admissible tending to show that service was not in fact made. The return of the officer is not conclusive.

Service in actions before justices of the peace, § 10244.

Unless a foreign corporation is "doing business" in the state, jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against it can not be acquired. Jurisdiction to render a personal judgment against a foreign corporation can not be acquired unless the corporation is "doing business" in the state "in such a manner and to such an extent as to warrant an inference that through its agents it was present there". Green v. Railway, 205 U. S. 530, 532; Empire Fuel Co. v. Lyons, 257 Fed. 890 (C. C. A. Ohio 1919); Robert Mitchell Furniture Co. v. Selden Breck Construction Co., 257 U. S. 213 (1921); Cons. Iron & Steel Co. v. Maumee Iron & S. Co., 284 Fed. 550 (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1922).

The mere presence of an officer or agent in the state on his personal affairs does not carry the foreign corporation into the state, and service of summons on such officer or agent does not confer jurisdiction. General Investment Co. v. Railway, 250 Fed. 160 (C. C. A. Ohio 1918); aff'd, — U. S. —; 67 L. Ed. 106; Harvester Co. v. Kentucky, 234 U. S. 579 (1914); Shinkle v. Machine Co., 19 N. P. n. s. 104 (1916); Dickey v. Iron Works Co., 19 N. P. n. s. 492 (1915).

The presence of a corporate officer in Ohio for the purpose of attending a convention is not for the purpose of doing business in the state. Hurd v. Ransom, 13 Ohio App. 135; 31 O. C. A. 477 (1920).

But where the general manager of a foreign corporation is in the state on corporate business, jurisdiction over the corporation may be acquired by service on him. Twin Lakes Co. v. Dohner, 242 Fed. 399 (C. C. A. Ohio 1917).

The fact that the business of a foreign corporation is entirely interstate in its character does not render it immune from the service of process in a state. Harvester Co. v. Kentucky, 234 U. S. 579 (1914).

What constitutes doing business in Ohio? See note to § 194.

When not exclusive of other modes of service. Sections 11289 and this section are cumulative and not exclusive of each other, and a foreign insurance company may be served under either section.

See Rocke v. Raney, 15 W. L. B. 333 (Super. Ct. Cin. 1886).

It has been held that § 11288 and this section are exclusive of each other and that this section provides the only mode of obtaining service on a foreign corporation.

Hurd v. Ransom, 13 Ohio App. 135, 31 O. C. A. 477.

Barney v. Railroad Co., 1 Handy 571 (1855).

But it has been held in federal courts that this section is not exclusive and that service upon the president of a foreign corporation (under § 11288) is valid. Lively v. Picton, 218 Fed. 401 (C. C. A. Ohio 1914); Consolidated Iron & Steel Co. v. Maumee Co., 284 Fed. 550 (C. C. A. 8th Cir. 1922).

But in so far as § 11288 provides for service on foreign railroad companies, it is cumulative and not exclusive of this section, and service may be made on its managing agent, whose duties are to contract for freight and to attend to transfers of freight.

See Wheeling, etc., Co. v. Railroad Co., 1 C. S. C. R. 311; s. c., 32 O. S. 116, 135 (1877).

Service may be made on a managing agent notwithstanding an agent for service has been appointed and his name filed with secretary of state. Lesser Cotton Co. v. Yates, 69 Ark 396; 63 S. W. 997 (1901). Venner v. Water Co., 40 Colo. 212; 90 Pac. 623 (1907). State v. King Bridge Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 557, 569, 570; 18 C. D. 147 (1906).

Managing agent. A "managing agent" is an agent having general supervision over the affairs of a corporation. The term implies control over the business, or some part of the business of a corporation.

A letter from a corporation referring to a person as "our Cincinnati agent," without evidence showing that such person has control or supervision over some portion of its affairs, is not sufficient to show that he is a "managing agent."

Service on agent designated by foreign corporation under §§ 179, 181. Service on such agent is sufficient to give an Ohio court jurisdiction of a cause of action arising in another state.

Burke v. McClintic Marshall Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 577 (1910).

Madison v. Construction Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 634; 21 L. D. 368 (1911).

But where a foreign contracting corporation completed its work in Ohio several months prior to the service of a summons in an action arising in another state, and thereafter did no business in Ohio, the service on the designated agent was set aside. The fact that the corporation made a Willis law report under § 5499 after service of the summons did not change the result. In the opinion of the United States Supreme Court service on the designated agent is limited by § 181 to "liability incurred within the state." Robert Mitchell Furniture Co. v. Selden Breck Construction Co., 257 U. S. 213 (1921).

It is held that service may be made on the designated agent in his own action against the corporation.

Kennedy v. Account Co., 1 Dayton T. R. (Iddings) 154.

Where a foreign corporation has designated an agent for the service of process, service may be made either on the designated agent, or on a managing agent.

Process issued from one county may be served upon the designated agent in another county. Blanton v. Adding Machine Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 423 (1912).

Where service of an order of garnishment was made on a district manager, who occupied the same office with the designated agent, and the copy of the garnishee process came into the possession of the designated agent before the filing of a motion to discharge the attachment, the service was held valid as against the defendant.

Riter, etc., Co. v. Mzik, 3 C. C. n. s. 125; 13 C. D. 164 (1901).

Return. While only substantial compliance with the statute is sufficient, a return which does not show that service was had upon the managing agent of the company in the state, but simply "upon defendant's agent," is not sufficient.

Fleckmeyer Wheel Co. v. Commercial Wheel Co., 7 N. P. 613; 8 L. D. 686 (1897).

A service upon J. P. W., agent of said Lamar Insurance Co., and the chief officer of its agency in the city of Cincinnati, no chief officer of said company found," is good as service upon a managing agent.

Mohr Distilling Co. v. Lamar Insurance Co., 7 W. L. B. 341 (1882).

A return showing service of summons by delivering a copy to a superintendent of the corporation, "he being in charge of the usual place of doing business of said company," it not appearing that he is the "managing agent" is defective, and will be quashed where it appears that the corporation has designated another person as agent for service of process.

State v. King Bridge Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 557; 18 C. D. 147 (1906).

Where service is made on a managing agent, but the sheriff failed to so designate the agent served, leave may be granted to amend the return.

CONSTRUCTIVE SERVICE.

Section 11292. (Service by publication.) Service may be made by publication in any of the following cases:

1. In an action for the recovery of real property or of an estate or interest therein, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

2. In an action for the partition of real property, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

3. In an action to foreclose a mortgage or to enforce a lien or other incumbrance or charge on real property, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

4. In an action to compel the specific performance of a contract for the sale of real property, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

5. In an action to establish or set aside a will, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

6. In an action by an executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee seeking the direction of the court respecting the trust or property to be administered and the rights of the parties in interest, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

7. In an action in which it is sought by a provisional remedy to take or to appropriate in any way property of the defendant, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or is a foreign corporation or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

8. In an action against a corporation organized under the laws of this state, which has failed to elect officers or to appoint an agent upon whom service of summons can be made, and which has no place of doing business in this state;

9. In an action which relates to or the subject of which is real or personal property in this state, when the defendant has or claims a lien thereon, or an actual or contingent interest therein, or the relief demanded consists wholly or partly in excluding him from any interest therein, and such defendant is not a resident of this state, or is a foreign corporation, or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

10. In an action against an executor, administrator, or guardian who has given bond as such in this state, but at the time of the commencement of the action is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

11. In an action or proceeding for a new trial or other relief after judgment, or to impeach a judgment or order for fraud, or to obtain an order of satisfaction thereof, when the defendant is not a resident of this state or his place of residence can not be ascertained;

12. In an action where the defendant, being a resident of this state, has departed from the county of his residence, with intent to delay or defraud his creditors, or to avoid the service of a summons, or keeps himself concealed with like intent;

13. In a proceeding in error when the defendant has no attorney of record in this state and is not a resident of and absent from this state, or has left the state to avoid the service of a summons in error, or so conceals himself that it can not be served upon him. (R. S. Sec. 5045; 65 v. 208; § 1; 74 v. 151, § 70; S. & C. 964; S. & S. 543; R. S. 1880, § 5048; 77 v. 45; 87 v. 225; 94 v. 274, § 5045.)

A foreign dissolved corporation may be served by publication.

Vallette v. Bank, 2 Handy 1 (1855).

A plaintiff in an attachment suit, upon a showing that summons can not be served upon the defendant foreign corporation within the county, is entitled to obtain service by publication.

Foote v. Commercial Co., 7 C. C. n. s. 531; 16 C. D. 378 (1904).

Constructive service has no further effect than to give regularity to proceedings for the proper application of the attachment property.

Supply Co. v. Koen, 64 O. S. 422 (1901).

A personal judgment in an attachment suit is void, where the only service upon the defendant was by publication.

Leman v. MacLennan, 7 C. C. n. s. 205; 18 C. D. 137 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 75 O. S. 643.

Jurisdiction may be acquired under this section, in an action for the recovery of money, against a non-resident of the state having property within the state sought to be taken by garnishment.

Bank v. Railway, 21 O. S. 221 (1871).

Where non-resident stockholders of an Ohio corporation, by agreement, gave preferred stockholders the right to elect a certain number of the directors, but subsequently repudiated their agreement, a suit by preferred stockholders to enforce their voting rights is one relating to property in the state under par. 9 of this section. Shinkle v. Machine Co., 19 N. P. n. s. 104 (1916).

Section 11351. (Pleadings to be subscribed and verified.)

Every pleading and motion must be subscribed by the party or his attorney, and every pleading of fact, except as provided in the next following section, must be verified by the affidavit of the party, his agent or attorney. When a corporation is the party, the verification may be made by an officer thereof, its agent or attorney. When the state, or an officer thereof in its behalf, is the party, the verification may be made by any person acquainted with the facts, the attorney prosecuting or defending the action, the prosecuting attorney, or the attorney-general. (R. S. Sec. 5102; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57, § 106; 70 v. 54, § 105; S. & C. 982.)

When a pleading is verified by an agent or attorney of a corporation, the verification must give the reason why it is made by the agent or attorney, and not by an officer. The verification should contain a statement that the case is included in one of the classes defined in G. C. § 11358. The pleading of a corporation may be verified by an officer as by a party.

Manufacturing Co. v. Hedges, 76 O. S. 91 (1907); affirming 10 C. C. n. s. 14.

When in a verification of a pleading by an agent or attorney, the affiant states that he has personal knowledge of the facts, he may state in his affidavit that he believes the facts stated to be true.

Manufacturing Co. v. Hedges, 76 O. S. 91 (1907); affirming 10 C. C. n. s. 14.

Section 11416. (Change of venue in corporation suit.)

When a corporation having more than fifty stockholders is a party in an action pending in a county in which the corporation keeps its principal office, or transacts its principal business, if the opposite party makes affidavit that he can not, as he believes, have a fair and impartial trial in that county, and his application is sustained by the several affidavits of five creditable persons residing in such county, the court shall change the venue to the adjoining county most convenient for both parties. (R. S. Sec. 5030; 50 v. 100, § 1; S. & C. 1140; R. S. 1880, § 5033; 94 v. 271, § 5030; 94 v. 378, § 5033.)

While applicable only to civil cases, this section defines the policy of the state in protecting the rights of litigants to a fair and impartial jury. A defendant charged by indictment with the embezzlement of funds of an insolvent banking corporation which has 257 stockholders and over 5,000 depositors residing in the county, is entitled to a change of venue upon making proof by affidavit pursuant to this section. Baxter v. State, 91 O. S. 167 (1914).

Constitutionality. This act is not in conflict with either the state or federal constitution.

Snell v. Street Railway, 60 O. S. 256 (1899); s. c., 66 O. S. 670.
Street Railway v. Snell, 193 U. S. 330; 15 O. F. D. 895 (1904).

Affidavit. It is not necessary, to entitle the applicant to the benefit of the statute in a case for which it provides, that his affidavit shall state the grounds of his belief that he can not have a fair and impartial trial in the county in which the action is pending, nor that the sustaining affidavits shall state the ground of their belief; it is sufficient, that the affidavit of the applicant state that he can not, "as he believes," have a fair and impartial trial in that county, and his application is "sustained within the purview of the statute," when there are filed the several affidavits of five credible persons residing in the county, stating that they entertain the same belief. When so complied with, the statute is mandatory.

Snell v. Street Railway Co., 60 O. S. 256 (1899).

Issue. The issuable facts are (1) whether the adversary is a corporation; (2) whether such corporation has more than fifty stockholders and keeps the principal office or transacts its principal business within the county in which the action is pending; and (3) the credibility and residence of the affiants.

Dodds v. Railway Co., 20 C. C. 709; 10 C. D. 824 (1899); s. c., 41 W. L. B. 209.

Burden of proof. The burden of proof is on the applicant to establish that the corporation answers the description of the statute.

Snell v. Street Railway Co., 60 O. S. 256 (1899).

Discretion of the court. The court has discretion to determine as to the sufficiency of the affidavits, the credibility of the persons making them and mandamus will not lie to compel change of venue. State v. Wilson, 12 C. C. 136, 7 C. D. 17 (1896); Saner v. Cincinnati, etc., Ry., 4 N. P. 252, 7 L. D. 19 (1896). See Stermer v. Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co., 5 N. P. 419, 8 L. D. 514 (1898).

Error. Error in refusing the application is not waived by going to trial. It may be reviewed on error to the final judgment.

Snell v. Street Railway Co., 60 O. S. 256 (1899).

An order overruling the motion for a change of venue is not a final order.

Street Railway v. Snell, 179 U. S. 395; 14 O. F. D. 765 (1900)

Snell v. Street Railway Co., 60 O. S. 256 (1899).

Most convenient adjoining county. The words "most convenient" as used in this section, are to be taken in the sense of the most suitable, becoming or appropriate, and not in the sense of promotion of physical ease.

Wilson v. Street Railway Co., 7 N. P. 511; 9 L. D. 640 (1899).

BY GARNISHMENT AGAINST RAILROAD COMPANIES.

Section 11761. (How judgment creditor to proceed.) The plaintiff, his agent or attorney, in a judgment against a railroad company, rendered in any court, upon a claim due to the common laborers for work and labor performed for the company, or for cross-ties, lumber or wood furnished thereto, to be used in the construction, repair, or operation of its road or for the erection of fences along the line of its road, required by law to be erected, or upon a note, or other evidence of indebtedness given for the considerations aforesaid, or his agent or attorney, for execution upon such judgment may file his affidavit, with a preceipe, setting forth the claim upon which the judgment is founded, that he has no knowledge of any property of the defendant liable to levy and sale upon the execution, and that a person or corporation, therein named, and within the jurisdiction of the officer to whom the execution is to be directed, is indebted to the defendant, or has property or claims of the defendant, in his possession or under his control, as agent of the defendant, or otherwise. Thereupon the clerk shall issue a notice to each person or corporation named, to the effect that he is required to pay over and deliver to the officer holding such writ the money, property, and claims of the defendant, in his possession or under his control, or which may come into his possession or under his control before the satisfaction of the judgment, not exceeding an amount sufficient to pay it and the costs. (R. S. Sec. 5465; April 5, 1866, 63 v. 126, § 1; S. & C. 1173; S. & S. 119.)

See G. C. § 11762 to 11767 for procedure and practice.

GROUND OF ATTACHMENT.

Section 11819. (Grounds of attachment.) In a civil action for the recovery of money, at or after its commencement, the plaintiff may have an attachment against the property of the defendant upon any one of the grounds herein stated:

1. Excepting foreign corporations which, by compliance with the law therefor, are exempted from attachment as such, that the defendant or one of several defendants is a foreign corporation;
2. Is not a resident of this state;
3. Has absconded with the intent to defraud his creditors;
4. Has left the county of his residence to avoid the service of a summons;
5. So conceals himself that a summons cannot be served upon him;
6. Is about to remove his property, in whole or part, out of the jurisdiction of the court, with the intent to defraud his creditors;
7. Is about to convert his property in whole, or part, into money, for the purpose of placing it beyond the reach of his creditors;

8. Has property or rights in action, which he conceals;
9. Has assigned, removed, disposed of, or is about to dispose of, his property, in whole or part, with the intent to defraud, his creditors;

10. Has fraudulently or criminally contracted the debt, or incurred the obligation for which suit is about to be or has been brought; and

11. That the claim is for work or labor, or for necessities.

An attachment shall not be granted on the ground that the defendant is a foreign corporation or not a resident of this state, for any claim other than a debt or demand, arising upon contract, judgment or decree, or for causing damage to property or death or personal injury by negligent or wrongful act. (109 v. 59; R. S. Sec. 5521; March 20, 1900, 94 v. 44; 93 v. 318; 88 v. 65; R. S. 1880; 62 v. 10, § 191; S. & C. 1002; S. & S. 549.)

Attachment before justice of the peace, see § 10253.

That the defendant is a foreign corporation, which has not complied with the foreign corporation acts, is a ground for attachment.

Auerbach v. Swadner, 18 C. C. 389; 10 C. D. 435 (1899).

Exemption of foreign corporations from attachment.

See also § 186 and notes.

A freight car used in interstate commerce and in transit into and from the state is not subject to seizure in attachment for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the courts of this state.

Buckeye Buggy Co. v. Railway Co., 3 O. L. R. 426; 16 L. D. 279 (C. P. 1905).

A sleeping car is an instrumentality of interstate commerce, and when actually employed in interstate transportation is immune from attachment under process from a state court. A sheriff who seizes such immune property is liable as for conversion. An attaching creditor and his attorney who actively assist in the seizure may also be liable.

Pullman Co. v. Linke, 11 O. L. R. 63; 203 Fed. 1017 (D. C. 1913).

A foreign transportation company engaged in interstate commerce does not, by a voluntary compliance with G. C. § 183, become exempt from attachment.

Bigalow v. Armour, 74 O. S. 168 (1906).

Affidavit. The affidavit for attachment against a foreign corporation must negative the exceptions in paragraph 1 of § 11819.

Edwards Mfg. Co. v. Mill Co., 11 C. C. n. s. 479; 20 C. D. 414 (1908); affirming 6 N. P. n. s. 1; 18 L. D. 413.

An averment in the affidavit that the defendant is a non-resident, when aided by an allegation of the petition that the defendant is a corporation under the laws of Kentucky is equivalent to a statement that it is a foreign corporation.

Edwards Mfg. Co. v. Mill Co., 11 C. C. n. s. 479; 20 C. D. 414; affirming 6 N. P. n. s. 1; 18 L. D. 413.

The affidavit can not be made before a notary public who is the attorney for one of the parties to the action.

Leavitt v. Rosenberg, 83 O. S. 230 (1910).

Venue. Suit was brought in a county in which resided a debtor of the defendant foreign corporation. The foreign corporation had a place of business in another county in Ohio. The debtor of defendant was garnished and a summons was issued to the county where the defendant had its place of business. Held, the court of common pleas in which the action was brought had jurisdiction of the action.

§ 11276.

Bond. Where the ground of attachment is that the defendant is a foreign corporation, no bond is required from the plaintiff.

G. C. § 11821.

Nature of claim. The affidavit should contain a statement of the nature of the claim, in order to show that the action is one in which an attachment may issue. An affidavit is sufficient which refers in appropriate terms to the petition, where the allegations of the petition show the nature of the claim.

American Mfg. Co. v. National Supply Co., 9 C. C. n. s. 529; 19 C. D. 433 (1907).

An action for money lost in gaming is an action ex contractu and an attachment will lie under this section.

Attachment will lie in an action to enforce stockholders' liability.

Gas Co. v. Collins, 19 C. C. 247; 10 C. D. 475.

Bank v. Rolling Mill, 2 N. P. 260; 2 L. D. 67.

An attachment can not issue in an action against a foreign corporation to recover damages for bringing suit in violation of a contract for the extension of the time of payment on a note, and maliciously attaching property.

McCracken v. Covington Nat. Bank, 4 Fed. 602 (1880).

Attachment without bond against non-resident in action to recover damages for fraud in sale of stock. See Hart v. Andrews, 103 O. S. 218 (1921).

Effect of receivership. The following cases were decided before the enactment of the bankruptcy act.

The appointment of a receiver by a state court of another state does not prevent creditors of this state from attaching property located within this state and securing priority as against the receiver.

Wilson v. Gifford, 12 C. C. 597; 5 C. D. 680 (1896).

But a creditor who files his claim with such a receiver is estopped from attaching property.

Barbour v. Lockard, 11 W. L. B. 319 (1884).

President, etc., of Manhattan Co. v. Maryland Steel Co., 31 W. L. B. 100; 1 L. D. 286 (1894).

Creditors residing in the same jurisdiction as the receiver can not attach.
 See Besuden v. Besuden Co., 3 N. P. 165; 4 L. D. 406 (1896).
 An application for the appointment of a receiver, consented to by the company, may amount to an attempt to dispose of the property with intent to defraud creditors.

Bacon v. Northwestern Stove Co., 5 C. C. 289; 3 C. D. 143 (1891).

Foreign corporation as garnishee. A foreign corporation which neither transacts business nor exercises its corporate powers within the state can not be made garnishee in an action against another foreign corporation. But a corporation which has complied with the foreign corporation acts, and is capable of suing and being sued in the state may be made garnishee in such an action.

Service of order, see § 11833.

It has been held that a foreign corporation owing a debt in another state can not be made a garnishee in Ohio upon such debt.
Tin Plate Co. v. Lewis, 20 C. C. n. s. 443; 26 C. D. 438 (1911).

Section 11833. (How garnishee served.) If the garnishee is a person, a copy of the order and notice shall be served upon him personally, or left at his usual place of residence. When a partnership is garnisheed by its company name, they shall be left at its usual place of doing business, or with a member of such partnership; and if a corporation, with the president or other principal officer, or its secretary, cashier or managing agent. If such corporation is a railroad company, the copies may be left with a regular ticket or freight agent thereof, in any county in which the railroad is located. (R. S. Section 11894. (Appointment of receiver.) A receiver may be appointed by the supreme court or a judge thereof, the court of appeals, or a judge thereof in his district, the common pleas court or a judge thereof in his district, or the probate court, in causes pending in such courts respectively, in the following cases:

1. In an action by a vendor to vacate a fraudulent purchase of property, or by a creditor to subject property or a fund to his claim, or between partners or others jointly owning or interested in any property or fund, on the application of the plaintiff, or of a party whose right to or interest in the property or fund, or the proceeds thereof, is probable, and when it is shown that the property or fund is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured;

2. In an action by a mortgagee, for the foreclosure of his mortgage and sale of the mortgaged property, when it appears that the mortgaged property is in danger of being lost, removed or materially injured, or that the condition of the mortgage has not been performed, and the property is probably insufficient to discharge the mortgage debt;

3. After judgment, to carry the judgment into effect;

4. After judgment, to dispose of the property according to the judgment, or to preserve it during the pendency of an appeal, or when an execution has been returned unsatisfied and the judgment debtor refuses to apply the property in satisfaction of the judgment;

5. In the cases provided in this title, and by special statutes when a corporation has been dissolved, or is insolvent, or in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights;

6. In all other cases in which receivers heretofore have been appointed by the usages of equity. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 428; R. S. Sec. 5587; February 7, 1885, 82 v. 16, 35; R. S. 1880; 51 v. 57, § 283; S. & C. 1018.)

Appointment of receiver on dissolution of corporation, see § 11943 et seq. In actions by creditors against stockholders or directors, see § 8691.

See, generally, articles by Austin V. Cannon on "Receiverships", 20 O. L. R. 429, and by Ralph E. Clark on "Appointment of Receivers of Corporations under the Laws of Ohio". 19 O. L. R. 406.

Nature and purpose of receivership. The appointment of a receiver is an equitable remedy, bearing the same relation to courts of equity that proceedings in attachment bear to courts of law, the appointment being treated as an equitable execution. The purpose is to secure the means for satisfying the final order and judgment of the court in the action, and the effect of the seizure is to place the property seized in the custody of the court.

Spear, J., in Cheney v. Maumee Cycle Co., 64 O. S. 205, 214 (1901).

An action can not be maintained having for its ultimate object the appointment of a receiver. It is merely an ancillary proceeding. A receiver is appointed merely to preserve to the court property upon which its subsequent judgment may operate. It can not be an issuable fact in an action. A party may obtain all the relief sought and yet be denied his prayer for a receiver.

Callahan v. Ice Co., 13 C. C. 479; 7 C. D. 349 (1897).

Railroad Co. v. Sloan, 31 O. S. 1, 7 (1877).

When receiver will be appointed.

In pending action only. Under § 11894 a receiver can only be appointed in an action pending in the court.

Dwelle v. Hinde, 18 C. C. 618; 8 C. D. 177 (1897).

Necessity. The appointment of a receiver is merely a provisional remedy, ancillary and auxiliary to the main action, and can only be made in an action brought to obtain some other equitable relief, which the court has a right to grant, and where it appears to be necessary to make such appointment in order to preserve the property during the litigation, so that the relief awarded by the final judgment, if any, may be effective.

Railroad Co. v. Duckworth, 2 C. C. 518; 1 C. D. 618 (1887).

Railroad Co. v. Sloan, 31 O. S. 1, 7 (1877).

Valve Co. v. Williams, 25 C. C. n. s. 497, 28 C. D. 338 (1916); motion to certify record overruled, 14 O. L. R. 210.

Brown v. Hose Co., 18 C. C. n. s. 328 (1911).

Peter v. Machine Co., 53 O. S. 534, 551 (1895).

Other adequate remedy. A receiver will not be appointed where injunction, or other less stringent means, will afford full relief and protection. The appointment of a receiver under such circumstances would be an abuse of discretion.

Railroad Co. v. Duckworth, 2 C. C. 518; 1 C. D. 618 (1887); aff'd, 21 W. L. B. 36.

Benson v. Insurance Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 113; 19 L. D. 17 (1908).

Hamburger v. Dorusmont, 3 N. P. 222; 4 L. D. 232.

But the defense the plaintiff has not exhausted his remedy at law, or is not a judgment creditor, may be waived by the defendant. Re Metropolitan Railway Receivership, 208 U. S. 90 (1908); Cincinnati Equipment Co. v. Degnan, 184 Fed. 834 (C. C. A. Ohio 1910); article by Austin V. Cannon, 20 O. L. R. 429, 438.

To preserve property. When necessary for the preservation of its property, a receiver will be appointed for a corporation regardless of its solvency or insolvency.

Salt Co. v. Salt Co., 8 N. P. 325; 11 L. D. 348 (1901).

But where its assets consist of money and securities readily convertible into money, the appointment of a receiver is not justified.

Everhart v. Investment Co., 8 N. P. 463; 11 L. D. 361 (1901).

To prevent creditors from levying on corporate property. A receiver will not be appointed for the purpose of continuing the business under protection of the court and of preventing creditors from levying on the corporate property.

Brewing Co. v. Herman, 2 Ohio App. 260; 20 C. C. n. s. 187; 28 C. D. 362 (1913).

De La Croix v. Steel Co., 8 N. P. n. s. 489; 19 L. D. 767 (C. P. 1909).

Merrill v. Lake, 16 Ohio 373 (1847).

See Payne v. Stapely Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 361; 19 L. D. 453 (suit by surety).

This rule has been applied where the corporation was insolvent and the application for a receiver was made by a bondholder.

Moss N. B. v. Lakeside Co., 19 C. C. 365; 10 C. D. 542 (1900).

And where the corporation was solvent and application for the receiver was made by a stockholder.

Gott v. Schultze Co., 12 N. P. n. s. 206; 21 L. D. 604 (C. P. 1911).

While the appointment of a receiver for an insolvent private corporation may be, and doubtless is, a beneficent remedy for all interested parties, where a bona fide winding up of affairs and distribution of its assets to those who show a right to them is the object sought and steadily kept in view, yet, on the other hand, to employ that extraordinary remedy as a means by which to indefinitely prolong, by aid of a friendly receiver, the substantial control of an insolvent private corporation over its assets and business, can be justified, in the absence of statutory authority, by circumstances only, if there can be any, that most unequivocally demand such action, or by the consent of all parties in interest.

Peter v. Machine Co., 53 O. S. 534, 551 (1895).

A wrongful application for, or consent to, the appointment of a receiver may be such fraud as to support an attachment.

Bacon v. Stove Co., 5 C. C. 289; 3 C. D. 143 (1891).

Fraud or misconduct of directors. Subdivision 5 of § 11894 does not authorize the appointment of a receiver, except in cases provided for in this title, or by special statutes, and does not include an action by a stockholder for the appointment of a receiver because of fraud of directors.

Railroad Co. v. Duckworth, 2 C. C. 518; 1 C. D. 618 (1887).

De La Croix v. Steel Co., 8 N. P. n. s. 489; 19 L. D. 767 (C. P. 1909).

A receiver will not be appointed at the suit of a stockholder merely because of differences of opinion in conducting the corporate business.

Straman v. Water Works Co., 8 C. C. 89, 100; 4 C. D. 339 (1893).

Nor because of past or present irregularities or mismanagement in the absence of actual fraud.

No. Fairmount, etc., Co. v. Rehn, 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594 (1899).

But a receiver will be appointed where it clearly appears that the corporate property will be fraudulently disposed of, unless taken charge of by an officer of the court;

Railroad Co. v. Duckworth, 2 C. C. 518; 1 C. D. 618 (1887).

where the directors have made a fraudulent sale of the entire corporate property for their personal profit;

Heintzman v. Tenacity, etc., Co., 4 O. L. R. 552; 17 L. D. 554 (1906).

See Hamilton v. Coal Co., 12 C. D. 637 (1894).

and where the corporation has no legal directors or officers to care for the property;

Salt Co. v. Salt Co., 8 N. P. 325; 11 L. D. 348 (C. P. 1901).

and where both the corporation and the directors are insolvent and a fraudulent disposition of the assets is threatened, and where the managing directors, who are also the majority stockholders, wrongfully apply the assets to the payment of alleged debts due to themselves, fraudulently commingle the assets of the corporation in which such directors are interested; have run the business at a loss for two years, and have established a competing company in the place of business of the corporation, and are diverting its business to the competing company.

Upton v. Rocky River, etc., Co., 2 Cleve. L. R. 355 (C. P. 1879).

Divine v. Auto, etc., Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 204 (C. P. 1909).

In dissolution proceedings. Section 11894 does not apply to a proceeding under § 11938 to dissolve a corporation. A receiver can not be appointed in such proceeding until after an order dissolving the corporation has been made.

Bacon v. Stove Co., 5 C. C. 289; 3 C. D. 143 (1891).

Insolvency of corporation. The mere insolvency of a corporation is not ground for the appointment of a receiver, at the suit of a simple contract creditor who has not reduced his claim to judgment.

See Payne v. Stapely Co., 7 N. P. n. s. 361; 19 L. D. 453 (C. P. 1908).

When insolvency is one of the essential elements, constituting the basis of the plaintiff's claim for relief against the corporation, such insolvency must be proven by a preponderance of the testimony. It will not be sufficient by the proof to merely raise a doubt as to the solvency of the corporation.

Building Co. v. Rehn, 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594 (1899).

Where a state court has appointed a receiver for a corporation, on the ground of insolvency, the appointment can not be collaterally attacked by the corporation in a subsequent involuntary bankruptcy proceeding against the corporation, at least where no pleading directly attacks the appointment. Greenwood Gum Co. v. Zimmerman, 240 Fed. 637 (C. C. A. Ohio 1917).

The inability of a corporation to pay its current obligations as they mature in the ordinary course of business constitutes insolvency in a general sense, which will authorize the appointment of a receiver in a creditor's suit in federal court.

Cincinnati Equipment Co. v. Degman, 184 Fed. 834 (C. C. A. 1910).

Illegal business conducted by corporation. Where the corporation has conducted a lottery business, the authorities are conflicting as to whether the court will appoint a receiver to preserve and distribute the fund.

Cincinnati Equipment Co. v. Degnan, 184 Fed. 834 (C. C. A. 1910).

A simple contract creditor, who has not recovered a judgment against a corporation and exhausted his remedies at law, is not entitled to have the affairs of a corporation placed in the hands of a receiver on the ground that it is insolvent.

Directors. The court has no power on the application of the directors of a building association, as such, and who assert no individual rights in the property of the corporation, to divest the stockholders without notice or consent, of the control of their property and place it in the hands of an officer of the court for management and administration.

Section 11895. (Who ineligible as receiver.) No party, attorney, or person interested in an action, shall be appointed receiver therein except by consent of the parties, and no person, except a resident of this state, shall be appointed or act as receiver of a railroad or other corporation within this state. (R. S. Secs. 3248, 5588; R. S. 1880; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57, § 254; S. & C. 1019.)

See § 11944.

A person who is a stockholder, director and treasurer of the corporation, at the time of his appointment, is within the direct prohibition of this section. Consent of the plaintiff and of the directors of the corporation is not a sufficient consent of all parties.

Section 11896. (Oath and bond.) Before he enters upon his duties, the receiver must be sworn to perform them faithfully, and, with surety approved by the court, judge, or clerk, execute a bond to such person, and in such sum as the court or judge directs to the effect that he will faithfully discharge the duties of receiver in the action, and obey the orders of the court therein. (R. S. Sec. 5589; March 14, 1853, 51 v. 57, § 255; S. & C. 1019.)

If the receiver is a debtor of the corporation or person, for whom the receiver is appointed, the debt becomes by operation of law, a "chose in possession", for which the surety on the bond may be liable. Leonard v. Evans, 24 N. P. n. s. 393 (1923).

Real estate. An order appointing a receiver for an insolvent corporation which in terms makes him "receiver for all the property and assets of the company, of every kind and description, wherever located," is sufficiently broad to embrace its real estate, and is not invalid as to the real estate because the petition and motion in the case do not in terms refer to real estate, but prays "that the court will appoint a receiver to take charge of all the property and assets of the company."

POWERS OF RECEIVER.

Receivers of a corporation are not the representatives of the corporation, alone, but are also representatives of its creditors, subject to the orders of the court.

Rogers v. Akron, etc., R. Co., 6 N. P. 291; 8 L. D. 107 (1899).

To continue business. Where receipts from operation are insufficient to pay expenses, the receiver should apply to the court for instructions. Weber v. Naltner, 7 N. P. 290, 10 L. D. 96 (1900).

Authority to perform a contract, as authority to pay for equipment, bond, etc., see McPherson v. Gillespie, 18 N. P. n. s. 167 (1915).

To sell property. A receiver acts under orders and directions of the court, and the only title or property he can convey is that ordered by the court to be sold; therefore, should he include in the sale property not ordered sold, and such sale is afterward confirmed by the court, it must be considered as confirmed inadvertently.

Power of directors to sell property in hands of receiver.

See Donner v. Railroad Co., 1 C. S. C. R. 130 (1877).

To improve or repair property. The court may order improvements or repairs on property in the possession of a receiver.

Stockyards Co. v. Railroad Stockyards Co., 7 W. L. B. 295 (C. P. 1882).

Turnpike Co. v. Howard, 1 W. L. J. 216.

To bind corporation as agent. A receiver is not the agent of the corporation and, after discharge of the receiver, the corporation is not liable on contracts made by the receiver.

Coal Co. v. Railroad Co., 10 W. L. B. 42 (1883).

See Ellis v. Railroad, 6 Am. L. R. 288; 2 W. L. B. 249 (1877).

But the corporation may be liable for negligence of agents of the receiver.

Stewart v. Railroad Co., 8 N. P. 179; 11 L. D. 232 (C. P. 1901).

And where property is returned to the corporation by the receiver on condition that it shall assume all contracts and liabilities made or incurred by him, the corporation is liable.

Brewing Co. v. Betz, 8 C. C. n. s. 64; 18 C. D. 484 (1906).

Receiver's certificates. Where authority is given for an issue of receiver's certificates to borrow money for the purpose of completing contracts on hand, and subsequently a second issue is authorized for the purpose of continuing the business generally by the receiver, the holders of the first issue are entitled to priority in payment over the holders of the second issue.

Morris v. Newark Iron & Steel Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 285 (C. P. 1909).

LIABILITY.

A judgment against a receiver in his official capacity can be satisfied only from the trust funds in his possession.

Marshall v. Caverly Co., 5 N. P. n. s. 185.

Rent. A receiver has a reasonable time in which to decide whether or not he will accept a lease of premises occupied by the corporation. If he accepts he is bound by the terms of the lease. If he does not accept, and no other agreement is made with the landlord, he is liable for reasonable compensation to the landlord not less than the rent stipulated in the lease. When there is an arrear for rent which had accrued prior to the appointment of the receiver, the landlord may make it a condition that such arrears be assumed and paid by the receiver. Where a receiver was authorized, by court order, to pay such arrears of rent, the court refused to vacate the order, although the business was continued by the receiver at a loss and the proceeds of sale of the assets proved insufficient to pay the debts incurred by the receiver. Andrews v. Beigel, 6 Ohio App. 427; 26 C. C. n. s. 433; 28 C. D. 178 (1915). See also Marshall v. Caverly Co., 5 N. P. n. s. 185; 18 L. D. 157 (C. P. 1907).

Insurance. A note given by a corporation for insurance is not payment of the premium, and where a receiver is subsequently appointed and takes possession of the property covered by the insurance, he is chargeable with the cost thereof.

Koch v. St. Charles Hotel Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 163; 22 C. D. 581 (1910).

Taxes. The claim of the state for past due and unpaid taxes on personal property in the hands of a receiver is a lien on the property and is entitled to priority over the claims of general creditors.

Hamilton v. Beggs Co., 7 O. L. R. 397 (U. S. C. C. 1909).

See Treasurer v. Dale, 60 O. S. 180 (1899).

In re Brewing Co., 6 N. P. 472; 9 L. D. 519.

A receiver in possession of personal property should list the same for taxation.

See French v. Bobe, 64 O. S. 323 (1901); distinguishing McNeill v. Hagerty, 51 O. S. 255 (1894).

Franchise taxes, see note to § 5495.

On contract of indemnity to surety on attachment bond. Where a receiver gave bond in an attachment proceeding, with a surety company as surety, under an agreement, authorized by the court, that the surety company should be indemnified against liability and expense, and the surety company incurred expense in defending an action on the attachment bond, the agreement of indemnity was held binding upon a successor receiver. Pugh v. Bonding Co., 5 Ohio App. 404; 26 C. C. n. s. 44; 28 C. D. 80 (1916).

Infringement of trade name. Where receivers continued to use a trade name, owned by a former employe who suggested the use of such trade name, and such receivers were justified in believing that such trade name belonged to the corporation, the receivers can not be charged with fraud. They may be liable for net profits, but not for gross profits. (Rule for determining net profits defined.)

Star Distilling Co. v. Mihalovitch, etc., Co., 12 N. P. n. s. 113; 23 L. D. 342 (1911).

Negligence. The receiver of a railroad is liable in his official capacity for injuries by negligence.

Murphy v. Holbrook, 20 O. S. 137 (1870).

Potter v. Bunnell, 20 O. S. 150 (1870).

Damages for negligence of the receiver or his employes are a part of the expenses of the receivership and in proper cases are chargeable against the corpus of the estate. Brown v. Winterbottom, 98 O. S. 127 (1918).

Where a mortgagee, in applying for a receiver, asks for power to manage and operate the property, he impliedly agrees that damages for injuries, caused by the negligence of the receiver or his employes, shall have priority over the mortgage lien and be paid from the corpus of the property if current earnings or other assets are insufficient. Brown v. Winterbottom, 98 O. S. 127 (1918).

SUITS BY AND AGAINST RECEIVERS.

Railroad receivers, see § 9064.

By receivers. A receiver may sue to avoid a mortgage which is invalid as to general creditors because of failure to record the same.

To set aside a fraudulent conveyance.

Sayle v. Guarantee, etc., Co., 2 C. C. n. s. 401; 15 C. D. 503 (1903).

Where a receiver fails to sue to set aside a fraudulent conveyance, a creditor may commence suit making the receiver and all interested persons parties, such action being substantially an application to the court for an order on the receiver.

Monitor Furnace Co. v. Peters, 40 O. S. 575 (1884).

A receiver may sue to collect stock subscriptions.

Smith v. Johnson, 57 O. S. 486 (1898).

By receiver of foreign corporation.

See Leman v. McLennan, 7 C. C. n. s. 205; 18 C. D. 137 (1905); aff'd, no rep., 75 O. S. 643.

President, etc., of Manhattan Co. v. Maryland Steel Co., 31 W. L. B. 100; 1 L. D. 286 (1894).

A suit brought by the receiver of a foreign corporation appointed by an Ohio court excludes the right of a receiver subsequently appointed in its home state, to sue on the same cause of action. Lively v. Picton, 218 Fed. 401 (C. C. A. Ohio 1914).

Suits against receivers. Leave of court must be obtained before a suit can be maintained against a receiver.

Spinning v. Insurance Co., 2 Dis. 336 (1858).

Osborne v. Railway Co., 9 N. P. n. s. 561 (1910).

But failure to obtain leave does not affect the jurisdiction of the court in which the suit is brought. It may be waived by the receiver.

Tobias v. Tobias, 51 O. S. 519 (1894).

When leave refused.

See Coal Co. v. Coal Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 38 (1910).

Where a receiver has been appointed in a foreclosure proceeding, a person having a claim for operating expenses (including a claim for injuries caused by negligence of the receiver of his employes) may intervene in the foreclosure suit before final distribution of the proceeds and apply for an order postponing distribution pending determination of his claim. Brown v. Winterbottom, 98 O. S. 127 (1918).

A separate suit for attorney fees for services rendered to the receiver can not be maintained. Application should be made to intervene in the action in which the receiver was appointed.

Friend v. Friend Paper Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 425 (C. P. 1912).

Citing, Olds v. Tucker, 35 O. S. 581.

Attorney fees will not be allowed out of a fund unless the attorney or his client have rendered services, the effect of which is to conserve or increase the fund. Where the plaintiff has participated in acts which have diminished the fund, no fee can be allowed to his attorney. Buschle v. Mfg. Co., 15 N. P. n. s. 618 (1913).

Where receivers incur indebtedness in excess of the limit ordered by the court, creditors having such unauthorized claims should file an intervening petition against the receivers and their sureties, in the original suit and not by independent action. Lumber Co. v. Phillips, 21 N. P. n. s. 1 (1917).

An action to compel a receiver to allow a claim is not an action for money only and is appealable.

Webb v. Stasel, 80 O. S. 122 (1909).

State v. Jones, 95 O. S. 357.

The receiver may appeal without giving bond. Young v. Manhattan Co., 16 C. C. n. s. 215 (1907); Smith v. Folsom, 80 O. S. 218 (1909).

But where a claim against a fund in the possession of the receiver is presented by a motion in the nature of an intervening petition in the receivership proceeding, the receiver may prosecute error. Schultz v. Cincinnati, 8 Ohio App. 140; 27 O. C. A. 362; affirmed, 97 O. S. 317 (1917).

A receiver can not appeal from an order or judgment sustaining exceptions to his report. Scheidler v. Railway Co., 20 C. C. 453; 11 C. D. 203 (1900); Becker v. Real Estate Co., 19 C. C. n. s. 593; 26 C. D. 680 (1912).

An appeal lies from an order finally fixing the receiver's compensation. Thompson v. Denton, 95 O. S. 333 (1917).

Mandamus against receiver. Where the court of common pleas, having jurisdiction in an action against a railroad corporation, has appointed a receiver, who is in possession and is operating the road under the orders of the court, a mandamus will not be issued against such corporation and receiver directing their conduct in operating the road.

Section 11938. (When corporation may petition for dissolution.) When a majority of the directors, trustees, or other officers having the management of the concerns of a corporation, or stockholders representing not less than one-third of the capital stock of a corporation, organized under the laws of this state, discover that the stock property, and effects of the corporation have been so far reduced, by losses or otherwise, that it will not be able to pay all just demands for which it is liable, or to afford a reasonable security to those who deal with it, or deem it beneficial to the interests of the stockholders that the corporation be dissolved; or when such directors, trustees, or other officers are authorized, by a majority of the stockholders, to apply for a judgment as hereinafter provided, or when the objects of the corporation have wholly failed, or are entirely abandoned, or their accomplishment is impracticable, they may apply by petition to the common pleas court of the county, or the superior court of the city or county, in which the principal place of conducting the business of the corporation is situated, for its dissolution pursuant to the provisions of this chapter. (R. S. Sec. 5651; March 29, 1875, 72 v. 138, § 1; S. & S. 243.)

Voluntary dissolution where all debts paid, §§ 8738 to 8743.

Dissolution in quo warranto proceeding, § 12323, et seq.

Dissolution of railroad companies, § 8819.

Dissolution of building and loan associations, §§ 9665, 687.

Mode of dissolution. Before the adoption of the code, the modes by which private corporations were dissolved were first, by the death of its members; second, surrender of its franchises, and third, a judgment of forfeiture for nonuser or abuse.

Trustees v. Zanesville, etc., Co., 9 Ohio 203 (1839).

State v. College, 32 O. S. 487.

A corporation is not dissolved by a sale of all of its property.

Removal from the state does not cause a dissolution.

Lander v. Burke, 65 O. S. 532 (1901).

Sale of all the corporate property, in an insolvency or bankruptcy proceeding, or by a receiver, does not operate as a dissolution of the corporation, nor affect the right of the stockholders to elect directors.

State v. Merchant, 37 O. S. 251 (1881).

Power of court to wind up corporation. In the absence of statutory authority, a court of equity has no right, at the suit of a stockholder, to take any step, the sole purpose or the primary object of which is, to wind up the affairs of a corporation.

Corporation as a party.

See Reeder v. Wade, 2 C. S. C. R. 19 (1870).

Determination of jurisdiction. Where the question of the jurisdiction of the court over the subject matter of the action is raised by the pleadings in the case, it is to be tried and determined as any other issue of fact arising thereon.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Aetna Iron Works, 4 C. C. 579; 2 C. D. 718 (1890).

Dismissal. A motion by the petitioning stockholders for a dismissal of the proceeding will be refused where creditors have become parties.

In re Columbus Bicycle Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 461; 14 L. D. 467 (C. P. 1904).

Section 11939. (What the petition must contain.) Such application shall contain a statement of the reasons which induce the applicants to desire a dissolution of the corporation, and there shall be annexed to it:

1. A full and true inventory of all the estate, real and personal, in law and equity, of the corporation, and of all the books, vouchers, and securities relating thereto;

2. A full and true account of the capital stock, if any, of the corporation, specifying the names of the stockholders, their residence, when known, the number of shares belonging to each, the amount paid in upon such shares respectively, and the amount still due thereon;

3. A statement of all the incumbrances on the property of the corporation, and of all engagements entered into by it which have not been fully satisfied or canceled, specifying the place of residence of each creditor, and of every person to whom such engagements were made, if known; if not known, the fact to be so stated, and the sum owing to each creditor, the nature of each debt or demand, and the true cause and consideration of such indebtedness. (R. S. Sec. 5652; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 2; S. & S. 243.)

A petition under this section must contain the amounts and inventories of all the estate of the corporation. There is no provision of the statute for substituting an excuse for not doing what the statute requires shall be done. It is within the power of the court to give the petitioners access to the books of the corporation to enable them to furnish the material required to be set forth, but until such material is set forth, the court has no authority to make an order under § 11941.

Fitch v. Sprague Carriage Co., 19 C. C. 296; 10 C. D. 520 (1900); affirming 7 N. P. 413; 10 L. D. 341.

Section 11940. (Affidavit to be attached to petition.) To every such petition there shall be annexed an affidavit of one or more of the applicants, or if they all are non-residents of the county wherein it is filed, then an affidavit of the agent or attorney of one or more of the applicants, that the facts stated in the application, and the accounts, inventories, and statements contained therein or annexed thereto, are just and true, so far as affiant knows, or has the means of knowing. (R. S. Sec. 5653; April 25, 1902, 95 v. 274; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153; S. & S. 243.)

Section 11941. (Notice of pendency of petition.) Upon such petition, accounts, inventories, and affidavit being filed, an order shall be entered requiring all persons interested in the corporation to show cause, if any they have, why it should not be dissolved, before some referee or master commissioner appointed by the court, and to be named in the order, at a time and place therein specified, not less than three months from its date. A notice of the contents of such order shall be published once each week, for three consecutive weeks, in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the county wherein the principal place of business of the corporation is situated. (R. S. Sec. 5654; April 15, 1867. 64 v. 153, §§ 4, 5; S. & S. 243, 244.)

The term "persons interested in the corporation" is not limited to the stockholders, but includes creditors and persons otherwise interested.

In re Columbus Bicycle Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 461; 14 L. D. 467 (C. P. 1904).

Section 11942. (Hearing before the master.) On the day appointed in the order, the referee or master shall proceed to hear the allegations and proofs of such parties, take testimony in relation thereto, and, with all convenient speed, report it to the court, with a statement of the property, effects, debts, credits, and engagements of the corporation, and of all other matters and things pertaining to its affairs. (R. S. Sec. 5655; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 6; S. & S. 244.)

Section 11943. (When judgment for dissolution rendered.) When the report is made, if it appears to the court that the corporation is insolvent, or that its dissolution will be beneficial to the stockholders, and not injurious to the public interest, or that the objects of the corporation have wholly failed, or been entirely abandoned, or that it is impracticable to accomplish such objects, a judgment shall be entered dissolving the corporation, and appointing one or more receivers of its estate and effects. The corporation thereupon shall be dissolved, and cease. (R. S. 5656; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, S. & S. 244.)

Where one corporation acquires a majority of the stock of another corporation, its representatives constituting a majority of the board of directors, and by means of such control it is attempted to expend large sums for improvements, chiefly for the benefit of the stockholding corporation, thereby diverting profits from dividends, resulting in injunction suits and controversies with minority stockholders, the court may decree a dissolution. In re Mansfield Co., 3 Ohio App. 253; 21 C. C. n. s. 95 (1914).

Until after an order has been made dissolving the corporation, no receiver can be appointed. Section 11894 does not apply.

Bacon v. Northwestern Stove Co., 5 C. C. 289; 3 C. D. 143 (1891).

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Aetna Iron Co., 4 C. C. 579; 2 C. D. 718 (1890).

Where two principal stockholders for a time conducted the business, and divided the profits, no directors meetings being held and no dividends declared, and one of the stockholders deserted the business, and opened a similar business of his own, the corporation having only four directors who were equally divided into opposing factions, the court decreed a dissolution. In re Waldorf Amusement Co., 13 Ohio App. 438; 32 O. C. A. 138 (1920).

The burden of proving that dissolution would be beneficial to the stockholders rests on the party seeking dissolution. That majority stockholders may benefit by salaries as executive officers, and that minority stockholders desire to withdraw their investment, should be disregarded. Dissolution was refused in a case where the corporation was solvent and earning profits. Oppenheimer v. Ptg. Co., 24 N. P. n. s. 483 (1923).

In a proceeding under former § 11960, it was held not error for the court to refuse to order corporate officers to file an inventory under § 11939 until plaintiff had shown by evidence that dissolution was probably beneficial to stockholders. Summers v. Mfg. Co., 82 O. S. 338 (1910).

Costs. Where the directors of a company filed a petition under this section, and it appears to the court that the corporation has no property liable to execution for the payment of costs of the proceedings, the court may order that the directors pay such costs (masters' fees), and that in default of such payment execution issue against them therefor.

Godley v. Pugh, 29 O. S. 438 (1876).

Appeal. Proceedings under this chapter are not appealable.

Brown v. Sayler, 54 O. S. 246 (1896).

Section 11944. (Who may be appointed receiver.) A director, trustee, or other officer of the corporation, or any of its stockholders, may be appointed a receiver. Before entering upon the duties of his appointment, he shall give such security to the state, and in such penalty, as the court directs, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his appointment, and for the due accounting for all money received by him. (R. S. Sec. 5657; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 8; S. & S. 244.)

See § 11895.

Section 11945. (Powers of receiver.) Such receiver shall be vested with all the estate, real or personal, of the corporation, from the time of his filing the security required by law, be trustee of such estate for the benefit of the creditors of the corporation and its stockholders, and have all the powers conferred by law upon trustees to whom assignments are made for the benefit of creditors. (R. S. Sec. 5658; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 9, 10; S. & S. 244.)

The property and rights of the corporation pass to the receiver precisely in the same condition, and subject to the same equities, as they were held by the corporation.

Falkenbach v. Patterson, 43 O. S. 359, 367 (1885).

See Smith v. Johnson, 57 O. S. 486, 488 (1898).

Where a receiver, appointed on the dissolution of a company, takes no step to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of corporate property, a creditor may commence an action to accomplish that purpose, making the receiver and other interested persons parties.

Monitor Furnace Co. v. Peters, 40 O. S. 575 (1884).

The receiver must return for taxation the property of the corporation in his possession.

In re Patent Wood Keg Co., 13 N. P. n. s. 321; 23 L. D. 381 (C. P. 1912).

Section 11946. (Unpaid subscriptions to be collected.) If there be a sum remaining due upon a share of stock subscribed in the corporation, the receiver immediately shall proceed to recover it, unless the person so indebted is wholly insolvent. For that purpose he may prosecute an action without the consent of any creditor of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 5659; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 11; S. & S. 244.)

After judgment against a subscriber in favor of the receiver, the court appointing the receiver may direct the receiver to collect on such judgment only the subscriber's fair share of the corporate debts.

Clarke v. Thomas, 34 O. S. 46 (1877).

An action to collect an unpaid subscription to the capital stock of a corporation by a receiver under this section is a suit at law to recover a money judgment.

Smith v. Johnson, 57 O. S. 486 (1898).

It is not proper practice for such receiver to join in one action all delinquent stockholders as defendants, those who reside out of the county where the suit is brought as well as those who reside within such county, and issue summons to another county to obtain service upon such non-residents, and where this is done a proper motion to set aside service will be sustained.

Smith v. Johnson, 57 O. S. 486 (1898).

An action by the receiver to collect stock subscriptions is not a chancery case and is not appealable. Union Bank, etc., Co. v. Traction Co., 13 Ohio App. 9, 31 O. C. A. 270 (1920); motion to certify record overruled, 18 O. L. R. 112.

In a stockholders' proceeding to dissolve the corporation a creditor may, by cross petition, set up a claim of the corporation against the plaintiffs on stock subscriptions, where the proceeding was delayed indefinitely by the plaintiffs and no action was taken by the receiver to enforce the subscriptions.

Peter v. Machine Co., 53 O. S. 534 (1895).

Payment of dues in building and loan associations are payments upon stock subscriptions analogous to such payments in other stock corporations upon capital stock. When such associations go into liquidation under this act, dues are no longer payable except as ordered by court for the purpose of paying debts and equalizing all the stockholders.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Section 11947. (Duties of trustees.) Immediately on his appointment, the receiver shall give notice thereof, which shall contain the same matters required by law in notices of trustees of insolvent debtors. In addition thereto, it shall notify all persons holding any open or subsisting contract of the corporation to present it to him, in writing and in detail, at the time and place in such notice specified, which shall be published for three weeks in a newspaper printed and of general circulation in the county wherein the principal place of business of the corporation is situated. (R. S. Sec. 5660; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 12; S. & S. 244.)

Section 11948. (Transfers pending the action void.) All sales, assignments, transfers, mortgages, and conveyances, of any part of the estate, real or personal, including things in action, of every description, made after the petition for the dissolution of the corporation is filed, in payment of or as security for any existing or prior debt, or for any other consideration, and all judgments confessed by such corporation after that time, shall be absolutely void as against the receiver appointed on such petition, and the creditors of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 5661; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 13; S. & S. 244.)

A mortgage given to secure a creditor, made prior to the filing of a petition under this act, but in contemplation thereof, is fraudulent as to creditors.

Damarin v. Huron Iron Co., 47 O. S. 531 (1890).

When proceedings to dissolve a building and loan association are pending, an attempted assignment of a mortgage by the officers of the corporation is void.

Hinman v. Ryan, 3 C. C. 529; 2 C. D. 305 (1888).

Section 11949. (Duties of creditors and other persons.)

After the first publication of notice of the appointment of a receiver, every person having possession of property belonging to the corporation, and every person indebted thereto, shall account and answer to the receiver for the amount of such debt, and for the value of such property. The provisions of law in respect to trustees of insolvent debtors, the collection and preservation of such debtors' property, the concealment and discovery thereof, and the means of enforcing such discovery, shall be applicable to such receiver, and to the property of the corporation, except as otherwise provided herein. (R. S. Sec. 5662; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 14, 15; S. & S. 245.)

Section 11950. (Meeting of creditors.) The receiver shall call a general meeting of the creditors of the corporation, within four months from the time of his appointment, at which all accounts and demands for and against the corporation, and all its open and subsisting contracts, shall be ascertained and adjusted, as fully as may be, and the amount of money in the hands of the receiver declared. He may settle controversies that arise between him and the debtors or creditors of the corporation by arbitrament or reference. (R. S. Sec. 5663; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 15, 16.)

Power of majority of creditors. A majority of the creditors have no right to fix an arbitrary price at which all creditors must dispose of their claims; nor have the majority the right to form a new corporation and compel each creditor to take stock in the new company in proportion to the amount which his claim bears to the whole indebtedness.

Pease v. Pease, 6 O. L. R. 486; 19 L. D. 237 (C. P. 1908).

Section 11951. (How contingent engagements discharged.) If there be open and subsisting engagements on contracts of the corporation which are in the nature of insurance, or contingent engagements of any kind, with the consent of the party holding such engagements, the receiver may cancel and discharge them by refunding to such party the premium or consideration paid thereon by the corporation, or so much thereof as shall be in the same proportion, to the time which remains of any risk assumed by such engagements, that the whole premium bears to the whole term of such risk. Upon such amount being paid by the receiver to the person holding or being the legal owner of such engagement, it shall be cancelled and discharged as against the receiver. (R. S. Sec. 5664; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 17; S. & S. 245.)

Section 11952. (Receiver's compensation.) In addition to his actual disbursements, the receiver shall be entitled to such commissions as the court allows not exceeding the sum allowed to executors or administrators, as well as reasonable counsel fees for services rendered him. (R. S. Sec. 5665; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 18; S. & S. 245.)

Section 11953. (Receiver to retain money for certain purposes.) The receiver shall retain, out of the money in his hands, a sufficient amount to pay the sums which he is authorized to pay, for the purpose of canceling and discharging open or subsisting engagements. If a suit be pending against the corporation or the receiver, for a demand he may retain the proportion which would belong to such demand if established, and for the necessary costs of the proceedings, to be applied according to the event of such suit, or distributed in a second or other dividend. (R. S. Sec. 5666; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 19, 20; S. & S. 245.)

Section 11954. (How distribution to be made.) The receiver shall distribute the residue of the money in his hands in the payment of obligations of the corporation exhibited by creditors, and ascertained in the following order:

1. Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States;
2. Mortgages, judgments, and other liens on the real estate of the corporation, in the order of their priority;
3. Debts which are liens upon the capital stock or property of the corporation, other than real estate, in the order of their priority, and the extent of the value of the stock or other property on which they are liens. (R. S. Sec. 5667; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 21; S. & S. 245.)

One unsecured creditor can not, by becoming a party and obtaining a judgment, obtain a preference over other unsecured creditors.

In re Columbus Bicycle Co., 1 N. P. n. s. 461; 14 L. D. 467 (C. P. 1904).

Section 11955. (When dividend may be made.) From time to time, the receiver may make dividends of the money in his hands, among the creditors of the corporation, until they are paid in full. No dividend shall be made to the stockholders of the corporation until after the final dividend to creditors. If, after such final dividend, a surplus remains in the hands of the receiver, he shall distribute it among the stockholders, in proportion to the respective amounts paid in by them severally on their shares of stock. (R. S. Sec. 5668; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 23; S. & S. 246.)

Distribution to stockholders, as part of principal or income of trust estate, by which stock is held.

See Miller v. Miller, 13 N. P. n. s. 1, 17-24 (1912); aff'd, 15 C. C. n. s. 481.

Distribution among members of building and loan associations.

See In re Home Mutual Ass'n, 3 N. P. 145; 4 L. D. 272 (1896).

Section 11956. (Receiver to act on order of court.) The receiver shall be subject to the direction and control of the court as to the time of making dividends, both to the creditors and stockholders of the corporation, and as to the time of closing up its concerns and the rendering of his final accounts, and may be compelled to account at any time. He may be removed by the court; and a vacancy created by such removal, or by death, or otherwise, may be filled by the court. (R. S. Sec. 5669; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 24, 25; S. & S. 246.)

Section 11957. (Account of receiver to court.) When required by the court, the receiver shall render to it a full and accurate account of all his proceedings, on oath, which may be referred to a referee or master commissioner to examine and report thereon. Before he renders such account, he must insert a notice of his intention so to do, once a week, for three consecutive weeks, in a newspaper printed and of general circulation in the county wherein the principal place of business of the corporation is situated, specifying the time and place at which such account will be rendered. (R. S. Sec. 5670; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 26, 27; S. & S. 246.)

Where exceptions are filed to the report of a receiver, it is error for the court to refuse to hear such exceptions, unless the parties excepting give bond conditioned for the payment of costs and interest on the corporate indebtedness, pending the hearing, in case the exceptions are not sustained.

Russell v. Insurance Ass'n, 21 C. C. 472; 12 C. D. 82 (1901).

Section 11958. (Report of referee on receiver's account.) The referee to whom such account is referred shall hear and examine the proofs, vouchers, and documents offered for or against it, and report thereon fully to the court. When the report is made, the court shall hear the allegations of all concerned therein, and allow or disallow the account, and may decree it to be final and conclusive upon all the creditors of the corporation, all persons who have claims against it, upon any open or subsisting engagement, and all stockholders of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 5671; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, §§ 28, 29; S. & S. 246.)

Section 11959. (Further duties of receiver.) The receiver also shall account, from time to time, in the same manner, and with like effect, for all money which comes to his hands after such account is rendered, and for all money retained by him for any of the purposes hereinbefore specified, and pay into court all unclaimed dividends. (R. S. Sec. 5672; April 15, 1867, 64 v. 153, § 29; S. & S. 246.)

Section 11960. (Stockholders' suits to dissolve manufacturing or mining companies.) Repealed May 31, 1911, 102 v. 512. (R. S. § 5673; April 10, 1896, 92 v. 138; March 20, 1875, 72 v. 67, § 1.)

Decisions under § 11960. Dissolution, if beneficial to stockholders, not refused because prejudicial to corporation.

Summers v. Mfg. Co., 82 O. S. 338 (1910).

Parties. Only the registered legal stockholders, and not equitable stockholders, entitled to take proceedings under this section.

Armstrong v. Herancourt Brewing Co., 26 W. L. B. 39 (1891).

In a proceeding under this section persons holding liens on the property of the defendant company were proper if not necessary parties.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Aetna Iron Works, 4 C. C. 579; 2 C. D. 718 (1890).

Creditor entitled, by cross-petition, to reach stockholders' liability.

Peter v. Farrell, etc., Co., 53 O. S. 534 (1895).

Order to file inventory. Duty of court to make order.

Armstrong v. Brewing Co., 53 O. S. 467, 477 (1895).

Fitch v. Carriage Co., 19 C. C. 296; 10 C. D. 520 (1900).

Not error to refuse to order corporate officers to file inventory under § 11939 until plaintiffs had shown by evidence that dissolution was probably beneficial to stockholders.

Summers v. Mfg. Co., 82 O. S. 338 (1910).

Joinder of actions. An action for dissolution could not be joined with one for relief against other defendants, directors and stockholders, based on fraud.

Rabenstein v. Chicago, etc., Co., 8 N. P. 315; 11 L. D. 22 (1901).

Evidence. Evidence not admissible that majority stockholders had offered to fix a value on shares, if minority would buy or sell thereat. Summers v. Mfg. Co., 82 O. S. 338 (1910).

Error. Motion for new trial necessary.

Mercantile Trust Co. v. Iron Works, 4 C. C. 579, 589; 2 C. D. 718 (1890).

An Ohio corporation had not the right to refuse to make a disclosure of its condition in an action under this section, and therefore an order upon officers of a corporation requiring them to file in court an inventory, etc., was not an order affecting a substantial right, and not reviewable on error.

Armstrong v. Herancourt Brewing Co., 53 O. S. 467 (1895).

Dismissal. It seems that any of the petitioning stockholders had the right to withdraw and cease to prosecute the proceeding at any time before dissolution is ordered.

See Herancourt Brewing Co. v. Armstrong, 6 C. C. 468; 3 C. D. 541 (1892); reversed on other grounds, 53 O. S. 467.

Section 11961. (When the last board is without a quorum.) When the last board of directors or trustees of an expired or dissolved corporation, by the refusal or neglect of a part of such trustees to act, or for want of a quorum, becomes unable to act as trustees for closing the affairs of the corporation, any number of such last board of directors or trustees may apply to the common pleas court of the proper county to declare vacant the places of such directors or trustees as refuse or neglect to act. Such court may empower the remaining directors or trustees, not less than two in number, or appoint any other number of persons, not exceeding three, to perform the duties of trustees under the next preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 5676; February 21, 1849, 47 v. 15, § 1; S. & C. 365.)

Section 11962. (Petitions under preceding section.) All applications under the next preceding section, shall be by petition, and the court hearing it, on the same petition, may make needful orders against former trustees, or against assignees of such corporation, for the conveyance of property by them held, for the assignment of rights in them vested, and for the delivery of all books and papers touching the affairs of the corporation. Such order may be enforced by process, or by its terms operate as a conveyance and transfer. (R. S. Sec. 5677; February 21, 1849, 47 v. 15, § 2; S. & C. 365.)

Section 11963. (Trustees appointed succeed to rights of predecessors.) The trustees so appointed, and their successors, shall succeed to all the rights vested in their predecessors, whether trustees or assignees. All securities and effects by them held or acquired, and judgments recovered, whether in favor of the corporation to which they succeed, or in the names of its trustees shall inure to the succeeding trustees, and pass by operation of law as fully as if they were assigned. (R. S. Sec. 5678; February 21, 1849, 47 v. 15, § 3. S. & C. 365.)

Section 11964. (No action shall abate by dissolution of corporation.) No action pending in any court in favor of or against a corporation shall be discontinued or abate by its dissolution, whether the dissolution occurs by the expiration of its charter or otherwise. Such actions may be prosecuted to final judgment by the creditors, assignees, receivers, or trustees having the legal charge of the assets of the corporation, in its corporate name. (R. S. Sec. 5679; March 10, 1843, 41 v. 52, § 1; 40 v. 67, § 14; S. & C. 363, 364.)

Where a corporation is liable in damages to an agent for wrongful discharge and is subsequently dissolved on petition of its stockholders, it remains liable to the party injured notwithstanding the dissolution.

Tiffin Glass Co. v. Stoehr, 54 O. S. 157 (1896).

No actions abate.

Stetson v. City Bank, 12 O. S. 577 (1861).

Section 11965. (Judgments by or against such corporations.) Upon all judgments in favor of or against such a corporation, whether they exist at the time of the dissolution or are obtained afterward in actions pending at that time, execution may be had, and satisfaction or performance of them enforced, by the creditors, assignees, receivers, or trustees having legal charge of the assets of the dissolved corporation, in the corporate name of the dissolved corporation. (R. S. Sec. 5680; March 10, 1843, 41 v. 52, § 2; S. & C. 364.)

Section 11966. (Title to real estate.) The title to real estate belonging to such corporation at the time of its dissolution, shall pass to the trustees of the corporation, who may sell and dispose of it in such manner, and on such terms, as they deem best for the interest of the creditors, and stockholders, and, upon any sale, make a good and sufficient deed therefor. (R. S. Sec. 5681; March 10, 1843, 41 v. 52, § 4; S. & C. 364.)

Section 11967. (Trustees personally liable for an abuse of trust.) The trustees of such a corporation shall be subject to the control of the court of common pleas, and be liable to be sued on behalf of any person interested, on account of any neglect or omission of duty, or abuse of trust. Upon the removal of a trustee by the court for an abuse of trust, it may appoint a suitable person to fill the vacancy. Such trustee, for reasonable cause, upon the application of a creditor or stockholder, may be required by the court to give bond and security, in such amount, and subject to such conditions, as it directs. (R. S. Sec. 5682; March 10, 1843, 41 v. 52, § 5; S. & C. 364.)

Section 11968. (Dissolved corporation may prosecute action in its own name.) After its dissolution, whether occurring by the expiration of its charter or otherwise, a corporation may prosecute an action in and by its corporate name, for the use of the party entitled to receive the proceeds thereof, upon causes of action accrued, or which, but for such dissolution, would have accrued, in favor of the corporation, the same as if it were not dissolved. (R. S. Sec. 5683; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 90, § 1; S. & C. 365.)

A corporation may sue its officers for losses caused by negligence.

Suits by trustees or receivers under former statutes.

See Martin v. Bank, 13 Ohio 250 (1844).

Exporting Co. v. Gano, 13 Ohio 269 (1844).

Section 11969. (May be sued by corporate name.) Such dissolved corporation may be sued by its corporate name, for or upon a cause of action accrued, or which, but for the dissolution, would have accrued against it, in the same manner, and with the like effect, as if it were not dissolved. Process by which an action is instituted against it may be served by the sheriff, or other proper officer, by delivering a copy thereof to an assignee, trustee, receiver thereof, or person having charge of its assets, or by leaving such copy at his residence. (R. S. Sec. 5684; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 90, § 2; S. & C. 366.)

Jurisdiction may be obtained, under this section, over a defunct corporation, by service on the receiver or trustee.

Lerenman v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 58; 21 L. D. 269 (1910).

Taxes. Claims and defenses. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 604.

Section 11970. (Judgments may be revived.) Judgments in favor of or against a dissolved corporation, whether rendered before or after dissolution, and which become dormant, may be revived in favor of or against it, as the case may be, in and by its corporate name, in the same manner, and with the like effect, as if it were not dissolved. In all cases of such judgments against such corporation, the writ of summons or other process must be served in the manner prescribed in the next preceding section. (R. S. Sec. 5685; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 90, § 3; S. & C. 366.)

Section 11971. (Error may be prosecuted.) Petitions in error upon judgments may be prosecuted in favor of or against such dissolved corporation, and by its corporate name, as if it were not dissolved. Process thereon against it shall be served in the manner prescribed in section eleven thousand nine hundred and sixty nine. (R. S. Sec. 5686; March 21, 1850, 48 v. 90, § 4; S. & C. 366.)

Section 11972. (Directors may appoint trustees.) The board of directors or other officers having the control and management of a corporation in this state, may appoint three trustees to adjust and settle its affairs. The trustees so appointed shall be authorized to use the corporate name for such period as may be necessary for the adjustment and settlement of its affairs, by suit or otherwise. (R. S. Sec. 5687; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 272, § 2; S. & C. 367.)

Where a corporation is in voluntary liquidation under this section, in good faith, a court of equity will not interfere unless it appears that the remedy furnished by the statute is inadequate.

North Fairmount, etc., Co. v. Rehn, 6 N. P. 185; 8 L. D. 594 (1899)

Section 11973. (Removal and duties of trustees.) The trustees so appointed shall report annually to the stockholders of the corporation a full and succinct statement of its affairs. A majority in interest of the stockholders may remove a trustee, or appoint a person to a vacancy occasioned by the death, resignation, or removal of a trustee. (R. S. Sec. 5688; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 272, §§ 3, 4; S. & C. 367.)

Section 11974. (Certificate of dissolution, or revocation to be filed with secretary of state.) In case of dissolution or revocation of its charter, every domestic corporation shall file with the secretary of state a certificate thereof. If the dissolution is by voluntary action of the corporation, such certificate shall be signed by the president and secretary of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 2780-31; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127.)

Certificate, from tax commission, as to reports and taxes, as condition precedent to filing certificate of dissolution, see § 5521.

Incorporators who have filed articles of incorporation but have done nothing further toward organization may file with the secretary of state a certificate of abandonment of purpose to form the corporation. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 137.

Section 11975. (By whom certificate made when dissolved by court.) In case of dissolution or revocation of charter by action of a competent court, or the winding up of a corporation either domestic or foreign, by proceedings in assignment or bankruptcy, such certificate shall be signed by the clerk of the court in which such proceedings were had. The fees for making and filing it, shall be taxed as costs in the proceeding, be paid out of the corporate funds, and have the same priority as other costs. (R. S. Sec. 2780-31; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127.)

This section does not impose a continuing liability for franchise taxes until the certificate of dissolution is filed, where the trustee in bankruptcy does not continue the corporate business, but merely liquidates the assets for creditors. State v. Harris, 229 Fed. 892; 14 O. L. R. 95 (C. C. A. Ohio 1916). See Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 17. See also note to § 5495.

A certificate from the tax commission under § 5521 is required in cases of dissolution by judicial proceedings as well as in voluntary dissolution. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, pp. 17, 67.

But a judgment of dissolution or revocation under § 11943, or other judicial proceedings, terminates the corporate existence, although no certificate is filed at the time with the secretary of state. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 67.

Where the superintendent of banks has taken possession of a bank, he may, if it is hopelessly insolvent, obtain an order of dissolution from the common pleas court of the county in which the bank had its principal office, and cause a certificate to be filed under § 11975. If the bank is solvent, such order may be obtained and the certificate filed after the meeting of stockholders provided for in § 710-102. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1065.

Section 11976. (Foreign corporations retiring from state shall file certificate.) When it retires from business in this state, every foreign corporation is required to file with the secretary of state a certificate, to that effect, signed by the president and secretary of the corporation. (R. S. Sec. 2780-31; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127.)

“Retirement from business” under §§ 5520 and 11976 refers to retirement from the exercise of the privilege covered by § 183 et seq. When a corporation retires from business in the state it may have its registration under § 178 et seq. continued. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1172.

Section 11977. (Fee for filing certificate.) The fee for filing certificates of dissolution, revocation of charter, or retirement of corporations, for profit, shall be five dollars; for filing certificates of corporations, not for profit, one dollar, which is shown to be not in active existence subsequent to April 11, 1902, may be surrendered on the payment of one dollar and on proof as otherwise provided by law. (R. S. Sec. 2780-31; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127.)

Section 11978. (Mere retirement from business or voluntary dissolution of corporation.) The mere retirement from business or voluntary dissolution of a domestic or foreign corporation without filing the certificate provided for in sections eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-four, eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-five, and eleven thousand nine hundred and seventy-six, shall not exempt it from the requirements to make reports and pay fees in accordance with the provisions of the next four preceding sections. (R. S. Sec. 2780-31; April 25, 1904, 97 v. 383, § 8; April 11, 1902, 95 v. 127.)

Section 5520 relates only to cases of voluntary dissolution. A judgment of dissolution or revocation of charter, in a judicial proceeding, terminates the corporate existence, and there is no further obligation to make reports and pay taxes, although no certificate is filed under § 11975. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 67.

TO CURE ERRORS AND OMISSIONS and omissions may be corrected. | § 12212. Where petition to be filed.

 § 12213. How service to be made.
 § 12214. Judgment of the court, and its effect. |

Section 12210. (Intention of parties.) When, in an instrument in writing, or in a proceeding, there is an omission, defect, or error, by reason of the inadvertence of an officer, or of a party, person, or body corporate, whereby it is not in strict conformity with the laws of this state, the courts of this state may give full effect to such instrument or proceeding, according to the true, manifest intention of the parties thereto. (R. S. Sec. 5867; March 10, 1859, 56 v. 40, § 1; S. & C. 1172.)

See Warner v. Callender, 20 O. S. 190 (1870).
 Spinning v. Home, etc., Ass'n, 26 O. S. 483 (1875).
 Clark v. Thomas, 34 O. S. 46, 59 (1877).

Section 12211. (Certain errors, defects, and omissions may be corrected.) When such error, omission, or defect occurs in an instrument or proceeding which is required to be made a matter of record, a party, person, body corporate, or persons intending and undertaking to become a body corporate, having or claiming an interest in the correction of such error, omission, or defect, may file a petition in the court of common pleas, setting forth particularly the error, defect, or omission complained of, and asking an order for its correction. (R. S. Sec. 5868; March 10, 1859, 56 v. 40, § 2; S. & C. 1172.)

Section 12212. (Where petition to be filed.) When the record to be corrected is in any way connected with a body corporate, the petition shall be filed in the county wherein the principal office of such corporation is located, and in all other cases, in the county wherein the record is kept. (R. S. Sec. 5869; March 10, 1859, 56 v. 40, § 3; S. & C. 1173.)

Section 12213. (How service to be made.) When the application is made by a body corporate, or by persons intending and undertaking to become such, notice of the application, specifying the error, defect, or omission complained of, and the time and place of hearing it shall be published for six consecutive weeks, in some newspaper of general circulation in the county where the application is made. In all other cases service shall be made in the manner prescribed by law for making service in civil actions. (R. S. Sec. 5870; March 10, 1859, 56 v. 40, § 2; S. & C. 1172.)

Section 12214. (Judgment of the court, and its effect.) Upon being satisfied that such mistake, error or omission, was made, the court shall make an order to correct it, which order shall be filed in the office wherein such record is required to be kept. From and after such filing, such record, and the order correcting it, shall be received as evidence in all cases, in all courts, the same as if no such error, omission, or defect ever existed. (R. S. Sec. 5871; March 10, 1859; 56 v. 40, § 2; S. & C. 1172.)

Section 12303. (Proceedings against a person.) A civil action may be brought in the name of the state:

1. Against a person who usurps, intrudes into, or unlawfully holds or exercises, a public office, civil or military, or a franchise, within this state, or an office in a corporation created by the authority of this state;

2. Against a public officer, civil or military, who does or suffers an act which, by the provisions of law, work a forfeiture of his office;

3. Against an association of persons who act as a corporation within this state without being legally incorporated. (R. S. Sec. 6760; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 1; S. & C. 1264.)

USURPATION OF CORPORATE OFFICE.

In general the proper proceeding to test the validity of an election of directors is a proceeding in quo warranto.

§§ 12318, 12319.

Hullman v. Honcamp, 5 O. S. 237 (1855).

Presbyterian Soc. v. Smithers, 12 O. S. 248 (1861).

See State v. Bonnell, 35 O. S. 10 (1878).

Where an election is held invalid the court may, in its discretion, order a new election.

§ 12319.

Henderson v. Hogan, 1 W. L. B. 227 (Dist. Ct. 1876).

When term of office has expired. A proceeding can not be maintained where the term of office has expired or is about to expire.

State v. Ward, 17 O. S. 543, 548 (1867).

State v. Jacobs, 17 Ohio 143 (1848).

Pleading. Where the information avers continued usurpation of the office of directors, the answer must set out expressly the continuance of every qualification necessary to the enjoyment of the office. It is not sufficient to state the qualifications necessary to appointment, and rely upon the presumption of their continuance.

State v. Beecher, 15 Ohio 723 (1846).

Resignation no defense. The resignation of defendants, after they have been served with process in a quo warranto proceeding, in which they are charged with usurping an office, constitutes no answer to the information. Their successors, as to the unoccupied term, stand in their shoes, and will be bound by the judgment.

State v. McDaniel, 22 O. S. 354 (1872).

Other remedies to try title to corporate office.

See note to § 8647, page 998.

UNLAWFUL EXERCISE OR USURPATION OF FRANCHISE.

The authority of foreign insurance companies to do business in the state is a franchise, the right to exercise which may be tested under this section.

State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

Where the acts complained of are authorized by an amendment of a statute, passed while the quo warranto proceeding is pending, the defendant may be entitled to the benefit of the amendment.

State v. Mutual, etc., Ass'n, 26 O. S. 19 (1875).

Where in a quo warranto proceeding brought against a corporation in its corporate name, charging a usurpation of certain corporate franchises, the defendant answered, pleading in a corporate capacity, and setting up its character, it is not competent for the state, by replication, to deny the corporate existence of the defendant. Where the franchise to be a corporation is intended to be drawn into question, the proceeding should be against the individuals who usurp such franchise.

State, ex rel., v. Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

But a proceeding to oust a corporation from the exercise of franchises which it usurps should be against the corporation and not against individuals.

State, ex rel., v. Taylor, 25 O. S. 279 (1874).

Where an information in the nature of a quo warranto was filed against a corporation, by its corporate name, calling upon it to show by what warrant it claims to be a corporation and to exercise corporate powers, and the defendant pleaded an act of the legislature granting to it the franchises named in the information, it is competent for the relator, by way of replication, to aver cause of forfeiture and to pray for a judgment of dissolution.

State v. Canal Co., 23 O. S. 121 (1872).

The rule of pleading established by the above case was held not to be changed since a quo warranto proceeding has become a civil action.

State, ex rel., v. Road Co., 13 C. C. 375; 7 C. D. 453 (1896).

ASSOCIATIONS OF PERSONS ASSUMING TO ACT AS A CORPORATION.

To bring a case within this section it is not necessary that the association or persons composing it claim to act as a corporation, or assume to do so; it is sufficient if the acts are such as appertain to corporations, or are done after the manner of corporations.

State, ex rel., v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163 (1894).

Where the franchise to be a corporation is intended to be drawn in question, the proceeding should, under our statutes, be against the individuals who usurp such franchise.

State, ex rel., v. Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

See State, ex rel., v. Robinson, 12 W. L. B. 269 (1884).

Where, in a proceeding in quo warranto, certain named persons, and others said to be too numerous to be brought upon the record, were charged with usurping the franchise of being a corporation, and the defendants named plead that they were the directors of the corporation, without denying that they were corporators therein, and averred the legal existence of the corporation, in the absence of allegations or proof to the contrary, the defendants are to be regarded as claiming to be members of the corporation.

State, ex rel., v. Sherman, 22 O. S. 411 (1872).

Trusts as business organizations. An unincorporated association, organized under a written agreement adopting a fictitious name, and providing that its property shall be held and business transacted by trustees, for beneficiaries to whom transferable shares are issued, with annual elections at which the shareholders are entitled to vote for and elect new trustees, and providing that the shareholders are not to be personally liable for the debts of the association, is, in the opinion of the attorney general, an unauthorized association under § 12303, having no right to transact business in Ohio and ineligible to be licensed under the Blue Sky law as a dealer in securities. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1023; Elliott's Blue Sky Laws, p. 706. See also Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 171; State v. Ackerman, 51 O. S. 163. For contra opinion, see article by Edward C. Daoust, 18 O. L. R. 526.

PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

Pleading in general. Quo warranto is a civil action, by the provisions of this section.

State, ex rel., v. Thompson, 34 O. S. 365 (1878).

State v. Cash Register Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 73; 21 C. D. 637 (1910).

But is nevertheless a special proceeding, and the cause of action must be in harmony with the statutory subject of action. State v. Electric Co., 104 O. S. 120 (1922).

Formerly the common law system of pleading was followed and pleadings were not governed by the code.

State, ex rel., v. McDaniel, 22 O. S. 354 (1872).

State, ex rel., v. Taylor, 25 O. S. 279 (1874).

Redundant and irrelevant matter in the petition prejudicial to the defendant may be stricken out, on motion.

State v. Cash Register Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 73; 21 C. D. 637 (1910).

State v. Gas & Electric Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 12 (1910).

Usurpation and misuser of corporate powers and franchises, and the exercise of privileges and franchises prohibited by law, may be alleged in the petition in general terms, without specifying in detail the particulars thereof. But where such allegations in general terms in a petition are followed by specification in detail of some of the particulars, the specification of particulars, if pertinent to the inquiry, are not prejudicial and will not be stricken out on motion.

State, ex rel., v. Cash Register Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 73; 21 C. D. 637 (1910).

The strictness and certainty of an indictment are not required.

State v. Commercial Bank, 10 Ohio 535 (1844).

Right to jury trial. In a proceeding to determine the title to public office neither party is entitled to trial by jury.

Mason v. State, 58 O. S. 30 (1898).

And in a proceeding to forfeit a corporate franchise, neither party is entitled to a jury trial. State v. Toledo Gardners' Exchange, 13 Ohio App. 250 (1919).

It is said that where the constitutional right to a jury trial is recognized, the right to empanel a jury to try issues of fact is inherent in the exercise of jurisdiction in quo warranto.

See Turnpike Co. v. Waechter, 2 C. C. n. s. 21; 15 C. D. 605 (1903).

Burden of proof—right to open and close. The burden is on the defendants to show by what authority they claim to exercise the powers complained of, and they are entitled to open and close the argument.

State, ex rel., v. Vanderbilt, 37 O. S. 590, 631 (1882).

Section 12304. (Against a corporation.) A like action may be brought against a corporation:

1. When it has offended against a provision of an act for its creation or renewal, or any act altering or amending such acts;

2. When it has forfeited its privileges and franchises by non-user;

3. When it has committed or omitted an act which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rights, privileges, and franchises;

4. When it has misused a franchise, privilege, or right conferred upon it by law, or when it claims or holds by contract or otherwise, or has exercised a franchise, privilege, or right in contravention of law. (R. S. Sec. 6761; March 9, 1881, 78 v. 43; R. S. 1880; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 8; S. & C. 1266.)

What can not be determined in quo warranto proceeding.

Rights and liabilities of third persons.

Society Perun v. Cleveland, 43 O. S. 481 (1885).

See State v. Railway, 13 C. C. n. s. 145 (1909).

Rights of stockholders and policyholders in quo warranto proceeding against insurance company.

State, ex rel., v. Insurance Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 49; 22 C. D. 262 (1910); aff'd, 64 O. S. 272.

Bell v. Insurance Co., 14 C. C. n. s. 385 (1911).

The object of quo warranto proceedings is not to divest the company of its title to property, unless acquired by a usurpation of the proprietary rights of the state, and a prayer that the company be ousted from the right to use the lands of the relator for a private purpose is, in effect, a prayer for the possession of the lands, and not within the purpose of a proceeding in quo warranto.

State, ex rel., v. Railroad Co., 50 O. S. 239 (1893).

Quo warranto is not a remedy for enforcing a contract.

State, ex rel., v. Railroad Co., 50 O. S. 239 (1893).

See State v. Light Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 285; 13 C. D. 603 (1902);
reversed, without report, 73 O. S. 356.

State v. Traction Co., 18 C. C. 490, 498; 10 C. D. 212 (1899);
aff'd, no rep., 84 O. S. 459.

Foreign corporations. A foreign corporation exercising in this state franchises and privileges without authority of law may be ousted therefrom under this section.

State, ex rel., v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

State, ex rel., v. Life Ins. Co., 47 O. S. 167 (1890).

NON-USER OF FRANCHISES.

See also §§ 12323, 12340.

A corporation which fails to complete its organization by the election of directors is liable to ouster for misuse or non-use of its franchise.

See State, ex rel., v. Robinson, 12 W. L. B. 269 (1884).

Irregularities and omissions of statutory requirements, in the organization of a corporation not for profit, are not a sufficient basis for a judgment of ouster, where they were due to inadvertence and not to a design to evade the law.

State, ex rel., v. Burial Ass'n, 8 C. C. n. s. 233; 18 C. D. 397 (1906); (dismissed in supreme court for want of jurisdiction, 4 O.
L. R. 708).

Where an educational corporation, chartered to maintain both classical and agricultural departments, maintained a competent agricultural instructor, the court refused to forfeit its charter because of a partial decay of its agricultural department caused by students refusing to take that course.

State v. College, 32 O. S. 487 (1877).

MISUSER OF FRANCHISE, ETC.

— Exclusion of directors. A proceeding under this section may be brought to prevent the corporation from excluding legally elected directors from the exercise of their duties, and in such a proceeding the persons permitted to act as directors are proper parties.

State, ex rel., v. Ohio, etc., Ry. Co., 6 C. C. 412; 3 C. D. 516 (1892).

See State, ex rel., v. Smith, 6 C. C. 410 (1892).

— Misuser by railroad company. A railroad company assumes the performance of duties for the benefit of the public generally. When such corporation, for a period of five years, fails to construct the line of railroad named in its charter, but condemns private property and constructs a railroad wholly unsuited to the wants of the public, and for the benefit only of the coal mines, owned and operated by the principal stockholders of such railroad company, it is a misuse of its corporate powers, franchises and privileges.

State v. Railway Co., 40 O. S. 504 (1884).

See State, ex rel., v. Railroad Co., 50 O. S. 239 (1893).

Building of a bridge across a navigable river, without permission of the board of public works, is a misuse of a franchise.

Railway v. State, 33 W. L. B. 169 (1894).

— Misuser by interurban railway. Failure to pave between tracks in accordance with its franchise may amount to misuser. State v. Electric Co., 104 O. S. 120 (1922).

— Conducting unlawful business. Where the manner of conducting a business, which the state's charter gives power to a company to conduct as a corporation, is in disregard and defiance of the laws of the state relating to that business, an abuse of the power results, and quo warranto may properly be invoked to stop the abuse, and if the abuse is flagrant, to oust the corporation.

(Illegal manufacture and sale of oleomargarine.)

State, ex rel., v. Capital Dairy Co., 62 O. S. 350 (1900); affirmed, 183 U. S. 238.

(Lottery.)

State, ex rel., v. Investment Co., 64 O. S. 283 (1901).

— Violation of anti-trust act.

See § 6400 and note.

Quo warranto was held to be a proper method of testing the constitutionality of the anti-trust act.

State v. Pipe Line Co., 61 O. S. 520 (1899).

— Misuser by college. Where the trustees of an incorporated educational institution sign diplomas in blank and leave them within the control of one of its officers who sells them and thus confers degrees without merit, there is such a misuse of power conferred as requires the dissolution of the corporation.

State v. College Co., 63 O. S. 341 (1900).

EXERCISE OR CLAIM OF ILLEGAL FRANCHISE, PRIVILEGE, ETC.

Meaning of "privilege."

See State v. Railway Co., 53 O. S. 189, 240 (1895).

— Discrimination in rates. A company operating as a common carrier has no right to discriminate in its freight rates between shippers, and where such a company, for instance, fixes a rate of freight for carrying petroleum oil in tank cars, substantially lower than its rate for transporting it in barrels in carload lots, it is exercising a franchise, privilege or right in contravention of law under this section.

State, ex rel., v. Railway Co., 47 O. S. 130 (1890).

See State, ex rel., v. Gas & Electric Co., 13 C. C. n. s. 12 (1910).

— Eminent domain. A proceeding in quo warranto is the only direct method of testing the right of a corporation to exercise the power of eminent domain, and such proceeding is not barred by a judgment of the probate court under § 11046 as to such right.

State, ex rel., v. Salem Water Co., 5 C. C. 58; 3 C. D. 30 (1890).

See Cemetery Assn. v. Traction Co., 93 O. S. 161.

— Railway relief association. Quo warranto lies to oust a railway relief association, organized and maintained in violation of G. C. § 9010.

State, ex rel., v. Railways, 13 C. C. n. s. 37 (1909).

— Franchise of public service corporation in streets. A proceeding in quo warranto may be brought against a public service corporation using streets in a manner not authorized by its franchise or license from the municipality, or without a franchise.

(Street railway.)

rep., 27 W. L. B. 64.

(Gas company.)

See State, ex rel., v. Cincinnati, etc., Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

State, ex rel., v. Iron-ton Gas Co., 37 O. S. 45 (1881).

Quo warranto was held to be the proper remedy where a consolidated street railway company charged excessive and illegal rates.

State v. Railway & Light Co., 3 C. C. n. s. 285; 13 C. D. 603 (1902);
reversed, without report, 73 O. S. 356.

See State v. Telephone Co., 72 O. S. 60 (1905).

— License to insurance company. Quo warranto is the proper remedy to test the validity of a license issued to an insurance company. State v. Gearheart, 104 O. S. 422 (1922).

— Power of railroad company to hold canal lands. An action in quo warranto will lie against a railroad corporation to contest its claim to exercise a right or privilege to or in the canal lands of the state.

State, ex rel., v. Railway Co., 53 O. S. 189 (1895).

— Directors or trustees exceeding powers. Quo warranto does not lie to prevent directors from exceeding their powers. Injunction is the proper remedy and the trustees or directors are necessary parties.
State v. Toledo, 3 C. C. n. s. 468; 13 C. D. 327 (1902).

Effect of intention. A mere intention on the part of a railroad company to violate its public duties does not change the legal status of the company, or afford ground for the forfeiture of its charter.

Railway Co. v. Railway Co., 6 C. C. n. s. 537; 15 C. D. 705 (1902);
aff'd, no rep., 67 O. S. 523.

Where a company misuses its corporate privileges in such way as to be a public abuse, the writ must issue regardless of intention.

State v. Investment Co., 64 O. S. 283, 317 (1901).

But intention may have an effect on what judgment is rendered.

See State v. Railway, 12 C. C. n. s. 49; 21 C. D. 175 (1909).

State v. Burial Ass'n, 8 C. C. n. s. 233; 8 C. D. 397 (1906).

DEFENSES.

— Statute of limitations.

See § 12340.

— Engagement in interstate commerce. A railroad company misusing its franchise, privileges or right is subject to a proceeding under this section, though it may be engaged in interstate commerce and the misuser or usurpation to be corrected relates to and concerns that traffic.

State, ex rel., v. Cincinnati, etc., Ry. Co., 47 O. S. 130 (1890).

See State v. Penna. Co., 27 O. C. A. 172; 29 C. D. 286; aff'd, 88
O. S. 540.

State v. Railroad, 8 Ohio App. 450; 28 O. C. A. 241.

— License to insurance, etc., company. The issuing of a license to a foreign insurance company is not a bar to quo warranto proceedings.

State, ex rel., v. Insurance Co., 49 O. S. 440 (1892).

State, ex rel., v. Investment Co., 64 O. S. 283, 318 (1901).

— Same acts punishable criminally. The mere fact that the criminal laws of the state provide a punishment for certain acts is no bar to a proceeding in quo warranto to oust a corporation engaged in such acts.

State, ex rel., v. Capital Dairy Co., 62 O. S. 350 (1900).

— Res adjudicata. A judgment rendered in an inferior court in favor of a defendant corporation, upon an information in the nature of a quo warranto, filed by a county prosecuting attorney, upon an individual relation, is not a bar to a subsequent information of a similar character, filed by the attorney general, in the exercise of the discretion given him by the statute.

See State ex rel., v. Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

A judgment of the probate court in an appropriation proceeding by a corporation, to the effect that a corporation had a right to make the appropriation, is not a bar to a quo warranto proceeding to determine its right to exercise the power of eminent domain.

State v. Salem Water Co., 5 C. C. 58; 3 C. D. 30 (1890).

PLEADING.

See also note to § 12303.

When an information in the nature of a quo warranto is filed against a corporation by its corporate name, calling upon it to show by what warrant it claims to be a corporation, and to exercise corporate powers, and the defendant pleads an act of the legislature granting to it the franchise named in the information, it is competent for the relator, by way of replication, to aver a cause of forfeiture, and to pray for a judgment of dissolution.

See State, ex rel., v. American, etc., College, 8 A. L. Rec. 422 (1879).

Where proceedings are instituted by the state against a corporation, by its corporate name, charging a usurpation of certain corporate franchises, it is not competent for the state, by way of replication, to deny the corporate existence of the defendant.

State, ex rel., v. Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

See State, ex rel., v. Canal Co., 23 O. S. 121, 126 (1872).

Where the action is against the corporation for exercising franchises not conferred by law, the corporate existence of the defendant should be alleged.

State v. Granville, etc., Society, 11 Ohio 1, 9 (1841).

The inquiry is limited to the charges in the petition and matters set up in the answer are only material as showing warrant of law for exercising the power claimed to be usurped.

State v. Cincinnati, 23 O. S. 445 (1872).

PARTIES.

See also §§ 12305, 12306, 12307.

A proceeding against the individuals composing a corporation for a nonuser or misuser of franchises is bad on demurrer. The action should be against the corporation after it comes into existence.

State, ex rel., v. Robinson, 12 W. L. B. 269 (1884).

State, ex rel., v. Taylor, 25 O. S. 279 (1874).

Section 12305. (Who may commence action.) When directed by the governor, supreme court, or general assembly, the attorney-general, or a prosecuting attorney, shall commence such action. When, upon complaint, or otherwise, either of such officers has good reason to believe that any case specified in the next preceding section can be established by proof, he shall commence an action. (R. S. Sec. 6762; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 267, §§ 9, 10, 11, 12; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, §§ 1, 8; S. & C. 1264; S. & C. 1266.)

The judges of the supreme court, in their private capacity, have no power to direct proceedings in quo warranto.

A prosecuting attorney may maintain a quo warranto proceeding to oust a railway relief association organized and conducted in violation of § 9010.

State, ex rel., v. Railway, 13 C. C. n. s. 37 (1909).

Section 12306. (Upon whose relation.) Upon his own relation, such officer may bring such an action, or, on leave of the court, or a judge thereof in vacation, he may bring the action upon the relation of another person. If the action be brought under the first division of the first section of this chapter, he may require security for costs, to be given as in other cases. (R. S. Sec. 6763; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 1; S. & C. 1264.)

A proceeding to oust persons claiming to be directors of a corporation should be brought by the prosecuting attorney, who may bring it on his own relation without leave of court. But if brought on the relation of another person, leave of court must be obtained. The name of the state can not be used by an individual without leave of court.

State, ex rel., v. Smith, 6 C. C. 410; 3 C. D. 515 (1892).

Crawford v. State, 52 O. S. 62 (1894).

A writ of mandamus will not be awarded to compel the attorney-general to commence proceedings. An application to him to bring the action is addressed to his discretion, the exercise of which the court will not control.

See In re Bank, 5 Ohio 250 (1831).

Quo warranto can only be brought in the name of the state.

See Railway Co. v. State, 49 O. S. 668, 681 (1892).

A judgment rendered by an inferior court in favor of the defendant corporation, in a proceeding brought by the prosecuting attorney, on an individual relation, is not a bar to a subsequent proceeding by the attorney-general.

State, ex rel., v. Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1868).

Where the attorney-general applies for leave to file a petition in quo warranto, and it appears that the case is not a proper one for such proceeding, the court may refuse leave.

State v. Hunt, 84 O. S. 143 (1911).

Section 12307. (In case of usurpation of office.) A person claiming to be entitled to a public office unlawfully held and exercised by another, by himself or an attorney at law, upon giving security for costs, may bring an action therefor. (R. S. Sec. 6764; 37 v. 70, § 1; S. & C. 1270.)

Any citizen of Ohio may, as a matter of right and without leave granted, file a petition in quo warranto in the supreme court. State v. Fender, 106 O. S. 191 (1922).

Section 12308. (When to prosecute in absence of prosecuting attorney.) When the office of prosecuting attorney is vacant, or the prosecuting attorney is absent, interested in the action, or disabled, the court, or a judge thereof in vacation, may direct or permit any member of the bar to act in his place to bring and prosecute the action. (R. S. Sec. 6765; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 23; S. & C. 1269.)

Section 12309. (Petition against person for usurpation of office.) When the action is against a person for usurping an office, the petition shall set forth the name of the person who claims to be entitled to it, with an averment of his right thereto. Judgment may be rendered upon the right of the defendant, and also on the right of the person so averred to be entitled, or only upon the right of the defendant, as justice requires. (R. S. Sec. 6766; 36 v. 68, § 3; S. & C. 1265.)

Section 12310. (All claimants to be made defendants.) All persons who claim to be entitled to the same office or franchise may be made defendants in one action, to try their respective rights to such office or franchise. (R. S. Sec. 6767; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 7; S. & C. 1266.)

Section 12311. (Actions in quo warranto, where brought.) An action under this chapter can be brought only in the supreme court, or in the court of appeals of the county in which the defendant, or one of the defendants, resides or is found, or, when the defendant is a corporation, in the county in which it is situated, or has a place of business; except that, when the attorney general files the petition, it may be brought in the court of appeals of Franklin county. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 433; R. S. § 6768; February 7, 1885, 82 v. 16, 39; R. S. 1880; May 1, 1852, 50 v. 267, § 13; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 1; S. & C. 89; S. & C. 1264.)

The petition must allege the location of the place of business of the corporation.

State v. Granville, etc., Society, 11 Ohio 1, 9 (1841).

Quo warranto proceedings by the attorney-general against several corporations, for violation of the anti-trust act, may be brought in the court of appeals of any county where one or more of the defendants is located, or has a place of business, and process may issue to other counties for the other defendants.

Railroad Co. v. State, 85 O. S. 251.

The statute construed in State v. Thompson, 34 O. S. 365, requiring the action to be "brought in the county in which the defendant resides or may be summoned in accordance with section 10, chapter 5, title 1, of the act" so far as it relates to the supreme court was repealed by the 1912 amendment to the Ohio Constitution. State v. Fender, 106 O. S. 191 (1922).

Section 12312. (Leave to file petition; notice.) Upon application for leave to file a petition, the court or judge may direct notice thereof to be given to the defendant previous to granting such leave, and may hear the defendant in opposition thereto. If leave be granted, an entry thereof shall be made on the journal, or, the fact be indorsed by the judge on the petition, which shall then be filed. (R. S. Sec. 6769; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 9; S. & C. 1267.)

See State, ex rel., v. Hunt, 84 O. S. 143 (1911).

A judge of the court may, in the exercise of chamber powers, grant leave to file an information in the nature of a quo warranto.

State, ex rel., v. Buckland, 5 O. S. 216 (1855).

A citizen of Ohio may file a petition in quo warranto, as a matter of right, without leave granted. State, ex rel., v. Fender, 106 O. S. 191 (1922).

Section 12313. (Issue of summons and service.) When the petition is filed without leave and notice, a summons shall issue, and be served as in other cases. Such summons may be sent to and returned by the sheriff of any county by mail, who shall be entitled to the same fees thereon as if it had been issued and returned in his own county. (R. S. Sec. 6770; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 2; S. & C. 1265.)

Service on corporations, see § 11288.

Where a petition is filed without leave a summons which fixes answer day as the third Saturday after the return day is bad on a motion to quash. Under § 12315 the time for answer is within thirty days after the return of the summons.

State, ex rel., v. Robinson, 11 W. L. B. 294 (1884).

Service may be made in quo warranto as in other civil actions. Where the defendant is a railroad company, service may be made upon a ticket or freight agent under § 11288.

State v. Standard Oil Co., 15 C. C. n. s. 212 (1912).

Section 12314. (Service by publication.) When a summons is returned not served because the defendant, or its officers or office, cannot be found within the county, the clerk must publish a notice for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the county, setting forth the filing and substance of the petition. Upon proof of such publication, the default of the defendant may be entered, and judgment rendered thereon, as if he had been served with summons. (R. S. Sec. 6771; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 13; S. & C. 1268.)

Where none of the defendants reside in or are found in the county, and none appear, service by publication is not authorized.

State, ex rel., v. Smith, 6 C. C. 410; 3 C. D. 515 (1892).

In a quo warranto proceeding against a corporation, where certain non-resident directors are proper parties, they may be served under this section.

State, ex rel., v. Railway Co., 6 C. C. 412, 415 (1892).

Section 12315. (Pleadings after petition.) The defendant may demur or file an answer, which may contain as many several defenses as he has, within thirty days after the filing of the petition, if it was filed on leave and notice, or after the return day of the summons; and the plaintiff may file a demurrer or a reply to such answer within thirty days thereafter. (R. S. Sec. 6772; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 12; R. S. 1880; S. & C. 1268.)

Pleading.

See notes to §§ 12303 and 12304.

The inquiry in proceedings in quo warranto is limited to the charges in the information, and matter set up by way of plea is only material in so far as it shows warrant in law for the exercise of the authority alleged in the information to be usurped.

State, ex rel., v. Cincinnati, 23 O. S. 445 (1872).

See State, ex rel., v. Greenville, etc., Ass'n. 29 O. S. 92, 101 (1876).

In a proceeding against an interurban railway for failure to pave between tracks as required by its franchise, irregularity of the proceedings to pave the highway constitutes no defense. The defenses in a quo warranto proceeding must be in harmony with the statutory subject of action. State v. Electric Co., 104 O. S. 120 (1922).

Section 12316. (Court may extend time for pleading.)

An order may be made by the court, or a judge thereof, extending the time within which a pleading may be filed; but such order shall not work a continuance of the case. (R. S. Sec. 6773; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 14; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12317. (Judgment where office, franchise, etc., found to have been usurped.) When a defendant is found guilty of usurping, intruding into or unlawfully holding or exercising an office, franchise, or privilege, judgment shall be rendered that he be ousted and altogether excluded therefrom, and that the relator recover his costs. (R. S. Sec. 6774; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 15; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12318. (Judgment where director of a corporation found to have been illegally elected.) When the action is against a director of a corporation, and the court finds that, at his election, either illegal votes were received or legal votes rejected, or both, sufficient to change the result, judgment may be rendered that the defendant be ousted, and of induction in favor of the person who was entitled to be declared elected. (R. S. Sec. 6775; April 28, 1873, 70 v. 176, § 1; R. S. 1880.)

Where persons claiming office as directors are ousted because of unfair election, their predecessors will be restored to office to continue until their successors are elected and qualified.

State, ex rel., v. Bonnell, 35 O. S. 10, 17 (1878).

Persons elected directors by cumulative votes may be inducted into office, although they did not receive the votes of a majority of the stockholders.

Schwartz v. State, 19 C. C. 350 (1900); affirmed, 61 O. S. 497.

See G. C. § 8636.

Where it is impossible to determine which of the candidates for directors were elected, none of them can hold office as the result of the election. State v. McIntosh, 23 C. C. n. s. 305 (1912).

Where a corporation has five directors, the election of four persons entitles them to be inducted into office in the place of the former board of five. State v. DeBrul, 100 O. S. 272 (1919).

Before the enactment of this section it was held that the court could not declare elected and induct into office, persons who had only a minority of the votes received by the inspectors of election, although sufficient legal votes, offered in their favor, had been improperly rejected by the inspectors.

State v. McDaniel, 22 O. S. 355 (1872).

See Renner v. Bennett, 21 O. S. 431 (1871).

Section 12319. (When court may order new election.)

In a case under the next preceding section the court may order a new election to be held, at a time and place, and by judges it appoints, notice of which election, and naming the judges, shall be given as provided by law for notice of elections of directors of such corporation. The order of the court shall become obligatory upon the corporation and its officers when a duly certified copy is served upon its secretary personally, or left at its principal office. The court may enforce its order by attachment, or as it deems necessary. (R. S. Sec. 6776; April 28, 1873, 70 v. 176; § 2; R. S. 1880.)

Where the directors elected were not stockholders, and ineligible and the minority candidates all received the same number of votes so that it was impossible to determine who was elected, the court, on ousting the ineligible directors, set aside the election and ordered a new one.

See State v. Voight, 2 Ohio App. 145; 17 C. C. n. s. 447; 25 C. D. 255 (1913).

Section 12320. (Rights of person adjudged to be entitled to an office.) If judgment be rendered in favor of the person averred to be entitled to an office, after taking the oath of office, and executing any official bond required by law, he may take upon him the execution of the office. Immediately thereafter he shall demand of the defendant all books and papers in his custody or within his power appertaining to the office from which he has been ousted. (R. S. Sec. 6777; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 4; S. & C. 1265.)

Section 12321. (Action for damages.) Within one year after the date of such judgment, such person may bring an action against the party ousted, and recover damages he sustained by reason of such usurpation. (R. S. Sec. 6778; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68; § 6; S. & C. 1266.)

Attorneys' fees in prosecuting the quo warranto proceeding can not be recovered.

See Palmer v. Darby, 2 N. P. 401; 4 L. D. 48 (1895).

Section 12322. (How judgment of court enforced.) If such defendant refuses or neglects to deliver over any such book or paper pursuant to such demand, he shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and shall be fined in any sum not exceeding ten thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the jail of the county until he complies with the order of the court, or is otherwise legally discharged. (R. S. Sec. 6779; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 5; S. & C. 1266.)

Section 12323. (Judgment when corporation has forfeited its rights.) When, in such action, it is found and adjudged that, by an act done or omitted, a corporation has surrendered or forfeited its corporate rights, privileges, and franchises, or has not used them during a term of five years, judgment shall be entered that it be ousted and excluded therefrom, and that it be dissolved. (R. S. Sec. 6780; March 12, 1845, 43 v. 94, § 1; S. & C. 1271.)

There can be no forfeiture without judgment in quo warranto, and corporate property is not lost by mere nonuser.

A building and loan association can not be deprived of its charter for non-user unless it has continued for five years. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 904.

Effect of judgment of ouster. It is not competent for the court, in a quo warranto proceeding ousting a corporation of the right to be a body corporate, to consider or determine the rights or liabilities of third parties who have acquired such rights or liabilities in their dealings with such acting corporation. The court has exhausted its jurisdiction when it has adjudged that the corporation be ousted; and such judgment is not retroactive, and does not affect the rights and liabilities of those who have dealt with the corporation.

Judgment by default. Judgment by default can not be taken unless the petition sets out facts showing a forfeiture.

State, ex rel., v. American, etc., College, 8 A. L. Rec. 422 (1879).

Section 12324. (Other acts.) When it is found and adjudged in such case, that a corporation has offended in a matter or manner which does not work such surrender or forfeiture, or has misused a franchise or exercised a power not conferred by law, judgment shall be entered that it be ousted from the continuance of such offense or the exercise of such power. (R. S. Sec. 6780; March 12, 1845, 43 v. 94, § 1; S. & C. 1271.)

Discretion of court to dissolve corporation, or to oust it from exercise of particular powers only. Where a corporation has been guilty of an act which is a cause for the forfeiture of its franchises, and the state, on the relation of the attorney-general, demands a judgment of dissolution on account thereof, the court has no discretion to refuse such judgment upon the ground that public or private interest would be better subserved by preserving the existence of the corporation.

Section 12325. (Dissolution of corporations; appointment of trustees by court.) The court rendering a judgment dissolving a corporation shall appoint a trustee or trustees, not exceeding three in number, for the benefit of the creditors and stockholders thereof, who shall each severally give an undertaking payable to the state of Ohio, in such sum and with such sureties as the court may designate and approve, conditioned that he or they will faithfully discharge their respective trusts in accordance with the orders of such court or of the court to which such quo warranto proceedings may be remanded, as hereinafter provided, and properly pay and apply all money and other property that may come into his or their hands, as such trustee or trustees, in accordance with such orders. (R. S. Sec. 6781; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 102; March 12, 1845, 43 v. 94, § 2; S. & C. 1271.)

Section 12326. (Remanding to common pleas court.)

Upon the appointment and qualification of such trustee or trustees, the supreme court or the court of appeals in which the proceedings have been instituted, may remand the proceedings to the court of common pleas of the county in which the corporation has or last had its principal place of business for further proceedings in accordance with law; and upon the proceedings being so remanded, the court of common pleas shall become and be vested with full jurisdiction and shall have the same power with reference thereto as the supreme court or court of appeals would have had if such proceedings had not been remanded. The jurisdiction of the supreme court or court of appeals of the proceedings so remanded shall cease upon such remand being made. (May 6, 1913, 103 v. 433; R. S. Sec. 6781; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 102; March 12, 1845, 43 v. 94, § 2; S. & C. 1271.)

Section 12327. (Order of court, effect of.) Any party to proceedings against a corporation under this chapter, including such trustee or trustees, may prosecute error to any order made in such proceedings in the same manner as in civil cases. The orders of the court in which such quo warranto proceedings are instituted or of the court to which they are remanded shall be binding upon the trustee or trustees, stockholders, creditors and other persons interested in such corporation, unless reversed by appropriate proceedings therefor. (R. S. Sec. 6781; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 102; March 12, 1845, 43 v. 94, § 2; S. & C. 1271.)

Section 12328. (Duties of trustee, as to notice of court order.) Upon the appointment and qualification of such trustee or trustees, he or they shall forthwith give notice of the order dissolving the corporation and of his or their appointment as trustee or trustees thereof, and of the date of his or their appointment, by publication once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the corporation has or had its principal place of business. Such notice shall require all persons having claims against the corporation to file them with such trustee or trustees within ninety days from the date of his or their appointment. All claims not filed with the trustee or trustees within ninety days from the date of the appointment shall be barred as against such trustee or trustees and the property of the corporation, unless the court for good cause shown shall otherwise order. (R. S. Sec. 6782; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 103; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 19; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12329. (Rejected claims.) If, in the judgment of such trustee or trustees, any claim or claims so filed with them are for any reason not valid claims against the estate of such corporation, the trustee or trustees shall notify the claimant or claimants that their respective claims are rejected by written notice by registered mail, directed to their last known address. Such claimants at any time within ninety days from the mailing of such notice of rejection may sue such trustee or trustees for the recovery of such claim or claims in any court of competent jurisdiction in the county in which such corporation has or had its last principal place of business. Should such suit finally terminate in favor of the claimant, the judgment therein obtained by him shall be entitled to share with other claims against the corporation, in the manner and to the same extent as if the claim had been allowed in the first instance by the trustee or trustees. Upon the failure of a claimant to bring suit within ninety days from the date of the mailing of the notice that it is rejected by the trustee or trustees, the claim shall be barred and unenforceable against the trustee or trustees or the property of the corporation, unless the court for good cause shown shall otherwise order. (R. S. Sec. 6782; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 103; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 19; S. & C. 1268.)

Jurisdiction can not be obtained over the trustees in a county other than that in which they may be served. Lerenman v. Insurance Co., 11 N. P. n. s. 58 (1910).

Section 12330. (Powers of trustee.) The trustee or trustees so appointed shall be subject to the orders of the court appointing them or of the court to which such quo warranto proceedings may be remanded, and shall be vested with the title to all the estate, real and personal, of the corporation from the date of his or their appointment and qualification, as hereinbefore provided, and under and subject to the orders of the court shall have power to settle the affairs of the corporation, collect and pay outstanding debts, and divide among the stockholders the money and other property which may remain after the payment of debts and necessary expenses; and shall have authority to file in the court of his or their appointment, or to which such proceedings may be remanded, motions, applications for instructions or orders and other pleadings; and in the enforcement of any and all demands shall have any and all rights which the stockholders or creditors of the corporation might otherwise be entitled, to enforce, in addition to the rights of the corporation itself. The stockholders and creditors of such corporation shall not be entitled to enforce any such rights except upon the refusal of such trustee or trustees to do so within a reasonable time upon demand therefor by such stockholders and creditors. (R. S. Sec. 6782; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 103; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 19; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12331. (Demands by trustee.) The trustee or trustees upon his or their appointment and qualification shall forthwith demand all money, property, books, deeds, notes, bills, obligations and papers of every description within the custody, power or control of the officers of the corporation, or either of them or any other persons, belonging to the corporation, or in any wise necessary for settlement of its affairs or for the discharge of its debts and liabilities. He or they, without leave of court may sue for and recover in the name of such trustee or trustees the demands and property of the corporation, and he or they shall be severally liable to the creditors and stockholders to fully and faithfully administer his or their respective trusts, in accordance with the orders of the court, as hereinbefore provided. (R. S. Sec. 6782; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 103; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 19; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12332. (Report to court.) The trustee or trustees shall as soon as possible after his or their appointment prepare and report to such court a statement of assets and liabilities of such corporation; and at such times as may be ordered by such court, shall report to it, his or their proceedings as such trustee or trustees. Upon collecting such assets as may be collectable and disbursing same to the approval of such court, the trustee or trustees and his or their surety or sureties, by order of such court, shall be discharged from any and all further liability in the premises.

(R. S. Sec. 6782; March 12, 1909, 100 v. 103; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 19; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12333. (Application of this amendment.) The next eight preceding sections shall apply to all trustees of corporations who may be hereafter appointed in quo warranto proceedings and to all trustees heretofore appointed in such proceedings, who are now engaged in the execution of their trust. (March 12, 1909, 100 v. 104, § 2.)

Section 12334. (Contempt not to give possession to trustees.) An officer of such corporation who refuses or neglects to deliver over money, or other things, pursuant to such demand, shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and shall be fined not exceeding ten thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the jail of the proper county until he complies with the order of the court, or is otherwise legally discharged. He shall further be liable to the trustees for the value of all money, or other things, so refused or neglected to be surrendered, together with the damages sustained by the stockholders and creditors of the corporation, or any of them, in consequence of such neglect or refusal. (R. S. Sec. 6783; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 20; S. & C. 1269.)

Section 12335. (Costs.) If judgment be rendered against a corporation, or against a person claiming to be a corporation, the court may render judgment for costs against the directors or other officers of the corporation, or against the person claiming to be a corporation. (R. S. Sec. 6784; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68; § 17; S. & C. 1268.)

Section 12336. (How order to deliver property enforced.) In actions under this chapter, when the judgment is against the defendant the court may make an order directing him forthwith to deliver over the books, papers, property, money, deeds, notes, bills, and obligations, to the persons entitled thereto, or the trustees appointed to receive them, and may send a transcript of the proceedings, including a copy of such order, to the common pleas court of the proper county, with a special mandate directing such court to carry it into effect. On complaint being made to such court of common pleas, by affidavit, of a neglect or refusal to comply with such order, that court shall direct an attachment to issue for the defendant, returnable forthwith, who may be required to answer under oath touching the premises. If it appears that he so neglects or refuses, the court shall render judgment for penalty or imprisonment, or both, such as the court making the order might have rendered. (R. S. Sec. 6785; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 21; S. & C. 1269.)

Section 12337. (Injunction in certain cases.) A stockholder, or stockholders, owning not less than one-fourth of the capital stock of a banking association actually paid in, or entitled to the beneficial interest therein, pending proceedings in quo warranto against such corporation, may have an injunction restraining the directors thereof from making any disposition of the assets of such corporation prejudicial to the interests of such stockholder or stockholders, or inconsistent with their duties as directors. (R. S. Sec. 6786; March 20, 1860, 57 v. 50, § 2; S. & C. 1272.)

Section 12338. (Court may require bank directors to give security.) Upon satisfactory proof that the directors of such corporation have violated, or are about to violate any of its franchises, the court, or a judge thereof in vacation, may require them to give security to the stockholders to the satisfaction of the court or judge, for the proper discharge of their duties, and the management and security of the assets. Such court or judge may enjoin such directors from incurring any additional liabilities except for the payment of the necessary services of the officers and employes of such banking association, the amount of which, while such proceedings are pending, shall be under the control of the court. (R. S. Sec. 6787; March 20, 1860, 57 v. 50, § 2; S. & C. 1272.)

Section 12339. (Directors may be enjoined from borrowing or issuing money, etc.) On petition, such court or judge may enjoin such directors from borrowing or issuing, either directly or indirectly, any of the money or assets of such bank, for their individual benefit, while such proceedings are pending. (R. S. Sec. 6788; March 20, 1860, 57 v. 50, § 3; S. & C. 1272.)

Section 12340. (Limitations.) Nothing in this chapter contained shall authorize an action against a corporation for forfeiture of charter, unless it be commenced within five years after the act complained of was done or committed; nor shall an action be brought against a corporation for the exercise of a power or franchise under its charter, which it has used and exercised for a term of twenty years; nor shall an action be brought against an officer to oust him from his office, unless within three years after the cause of such ouster, or the right to hold the office, arose. (R. S. Sec. 6789; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 26; S. & C. 1270.)

A corporation may be ousted in quo warranto from the exercise of a power or franchise, not conferred by law, where the same has not been exercised for twenty years.

State, ex rel., v. Standard Oil Co., 49 O. S. 137 (1892).

State v. Miami Exporting Co., 11 Ohio 126 (1841).

The ouster of a company from the right to be a corporation, for the misuse of a franchise, is limited for five years from the commission of the offense.

State, ex rel., v. Railroad Co., 50 O. S. 239 (1893).

State, ex rel., v. Standard Oil Co., 49 O. S. 137 (1892).

Neither the five years nor the twenty years limitation prescribed in this section bars an action in quo warranto where its object is to oust a corporation from an unwarranted claim to a right or privilege in lands belonging to the state.

State, ex rel., v. Railway Co., 53 O. S. 189 (1895).

Railroad Co. v. State, 85 O. S. 251.

The use of streets by a gas company for twenty years does not bar an inquiry into the right of the defendant to their exclusive use.

State, ex rel., v. Cincinnati, etc., Coke Co., 18 O. S. 262 (1866).

There is no distinction between an action brought by the attorney-general and one brought by a prosecuting attorney.

See State, ex rel., v. Standard Oil Co., 49 O. S. 137, 188 (1892).

A suit ordered by the legislature is subject to the statute.

State v. Granville, etc., Society, 11 Ohio 1, 20 (1841).

A plea setting up the statute, taken as a whole, must show the user of the franchises in question for twenty years, not by the performance of a single act, but by a variety of acts which taken together constitute the exercise of the franchise.

See State v. Granville, etc., Society, 11 Ohio 1, 19 (1841).

A proceeding is commenced when the information is filed, not when an application is made.

See State v. Granville, etc., Society, 11 Ohio 1, 20 (1841).

The statute commences to run from the time the cause of ouster arose.

See State, ex rel., v. Beecher, 16 Ohio 358 (1847).

Where a franchise has been assigned, an action is not barred by this section unless the assignee has exercised the franchise for twenty years. The time prior to the assignment, during which the assignor exercised the franchise, can not be included.

State, ex rel., v. Northern Ohio, etc., Co., 2 Ohio App. 113; 15 C.

C. n. s. 577; 24 C. D. 262; reversed, 93 O. S. 466; judgment of reversal reversed, 245 U. S. 574.

Section 12341. (Action for damages against officers, etc., of ousted corporations.) When judgment of forfeiture and ouster is rendered against a corporation because of misconduct of the officers or directors thereof, within one year thereafter a person injured thereby, in an action against such officers or directors, may recover the damages he has sustained by reason of such misconduct. (R. S. Sec. 6790; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 22; S. & C. 1269.)

Section 12342. (Cumulative remedy.) Nothing in this chapter shall restrain a court from enforcing the performance of trusts for charitable purposes, at the relation of the prosecuting attorney of the proper county, or from enforcing trusts, or restraining abuses, in other corporations, at the suit of a person injured. (R. S. Sec. 6791; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 24; S. & C. 1270.)

Section 12343. (Disposition of fines.) Fines collected under the provisions of this chapter must be paid into the treasury of the proper county for the use of the common schools therein. (R. S. Sec. 6792; March 17, 1838, 36 v. 68, § 25; S. & C. 1270.)

Section 12344. (Actions under this chapter to have precedence, etc.) Actions under this chapter shall have precedence of other civil business. If the matter is of public concern, on motion of the attorney general or prosecuting attorney, the court must require as speedy a trial of the merits of the case as is consistent with the rights of the parties. (R. S. Sec. 6793; March 20, 1860, 57 v. 50, § 1; S. & C. 1272.)

Section 12371. (Definition of "whoever".) In the interpretation of part fourth the word "whoever" includes all persons, natural and artificial, partners, principals, agents, employes, and all officials, public or private. (Codifying Commission, February 15, 1910.)

Section 12472. (Embezzlement by officer of building and loan association.) Whoever, being a president, director, trustee member of a committee, secretary, treasurer, attorney or other officer or agent of a building and loan association or savings association as provided by law, embezzles, abstracts or wilfully misapplies any of the moneys, funds or credits thereof, or issues or puts into circulation a warrant or other order, or assigns, transfers, cancels or delivers a note, bond, draft, mortgage, judgment, decree or other written instrument belonging thereto, or raises money otherwise, or receives money from a member or other person for and in the name of such association unless authorized so to do by the board of directors thereof, shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years and be liable to the person injured thereby to the extent of the damage incurred. Suit may be brought against the person so violating and the sureties on his bond given to such association for the faithful performance of his duty. (May 11, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46; see R. S. Sec. 3836-25.)

Section 12474. (Embezzlement and defaults by bank officials.) Whoever, being president, director, cashier, teller, clerk, or agent of a banking company, embezzles, abstracts, or wilfully misapplies the moneys, funds or credits of such company, or, without authority from the directors, issues or puts forth a certificate of deposit, draws an order or bill of exchange, makes an acceptance, assigns notes, bonds, drafts, bills of exchange, mortgages, judgments or decrees, or makes a false entry in a book, report or statement of the company, with intent to injure or defraud such company, or other company, body politic or corporate, or any person, or to deceive an officer of the company or an agent appointed to inspect the affairs of a banking company, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary, at hard labor, not less than one year nor more than ten years. (R. S. Sec. 3821-85; April 24, 1879, 76 v. 74, § 30; March 21, 1851, 49 v. 41.)

Certificates, that a stockholder had paid sixty percent of the par value of a certain number of shares of stock in a free banking company, are not "moneys, funds or credits" of the bank within the meaning of this section.

State v. Davis, 85 O. S. 43 (1911).

This section is constitutional.

In re Bachtel, 11 C. C. n. s. 537; 21 C. D. 159 (1907); aff'd, no rep., 74 O. S. 524; aff'd, 204 U. S. 36; 15 O. F. D. 457.

This section is limited to banks organized under the free banking act (§§ 9676-9701).

State v. Gibbs, 7 N. P. n. s. 345; 18 L. D. 681 (1908).

The cashier of an unincorporated bank, having exclusive custody of its assets, may be guilty of embezzlement although he is a shareholder.

State v. Kusick, 45 O. S. 535 (1888).

Prosecution against officer of bank incorporated under former Free Banking Act. State v. Barkman, 91 O. S. 248 (1915).

Section 12495. (Violating a rule of cemetery association.)

Whoever violates a by-law, rule or regulation adopted by the trustees, directors or other officers of a cemetery company or association, or by a board of township trustees having charge of township cemeteries, with reference to the protection, good order and preservation of cemeteries, and the trees, shrubbery, structures and adornments therein, shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than fifty dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3580; April 12, 1889, 86 v. 254; Rev. Stat. 1880; April 6, 1869, 66 v. 48, § 2; S. & S. 69.)

Section 12507. (Unlawfully interfering, etc., with electric light power or street railway property.) Whoever wilfully or maliciously injures or destroys or intentionally permits to be injured or destroyed, disconnects, displaces, cuts, breaks, taps, grounds, or makes a connection with or wilfully or maliciously interferes with the poles, cable or wires legally erected, put or strung, electrical apparatus, appliance or machinery used in the construction or operation of an electrical street railway, electric light plant, plant used in producing or generating electric light, or a meter, pipe, conduit, wire, line, post, lamp, burner, heater, machine, motor or other appliance or apparatus belonging to a company engaged in the manufacture or sale of electricity for light, heat, power or other purposes, or wilfully or maliciously prevents an electric meter belonging to a company furnishing electric current for light, heat, power or other purposes from duly registering the quantity of electricity supplied by such company, or interferes with the proper action or just registration by such meter or alters the index in such meter, or, without the consent of such company, wilfully or maliciously diverts an electric current from a wire of such company, or otherwise wilfully or maliciously uses or causes to be used without the consent of such company, electricity manufactured or distributed by such company, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than three years, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3467a; 89 v. 52; 89 v. 100; 90 v. 346; 95 v. 101.)

Section 12508. (Customer tampering with electric light company's meter.) Whoever, being a customer of an electric light company and having in his possession or under his control a meter belonging to it, wilfully permits any person unlawfully and without consent of such company, to disconnect, change, alter or interfere with the wires running into such meter so as to divert current and prevent such meter from duly registering the quantity of electricity supplied by such company, or wilfully or maliciously aids, agrees with, employs or conspires with any person to do any of the aforementioned acts, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than three years, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3467a; 89 v. 52; 89 v. 100; 90 v. 346; 95 v. 101.)

Section 12511. (Injuring or destroying property of telegraph companies.) Whoever unlawfully and intentionally injures, molests or destroys a line, post, abutment or any material or property of a telephone or magnetic telegraph company shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than one year, or both. Prosecution under this section shall be by indictment. (R. S. Secs. 3461-4, 3461-5; 45 v. 34, §§ 4, 5.)

Section 12530. (Written consent of owner or presence required. Penalty.) Whoever, without the written consent of the owner or his agent, enters the premises or building of another, for the purpose of constructing, altering, repairing, examining, or attaching thereto a wire, pole, insulator, frame or other appendage, unless such owner or agent is present and assenting thereto, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one hundred dollars, provided, however, that such owner or agent shall give such written consent when it shall fairly and reasonably appear that the person applying therefor, in good faith, desires to so enter for the purpose of altering, repairing or examining such wire, pole, insulator, frame or appendage. (April 18, 1911, 102 v. 88; R. S. § 6881-1; 82 v. 166, § 1.)

Section 12546. (Constructing bridges, etc., over tracks.) Whoever violates any provision of law relating to the height of bridges, viaducts, overhead roadways, foot bridges, wires or other structures constructed over the tracks of a railroad by a county, municipality, township, railroad company or other private corporation, or person, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars. Each day such structure or wire is permitted to so remain in violation of law shall constitute a separate offense. (R. S. Sec. 3337-19; 91 v. 365, § 2.)

See § 8903 et seq.

Section 12547. (Demanding compensation when telegraph or telephone wires not in use.) Whoever being an officer, agent or other person acting for or in behalf of a steam railway company operating ten or more miles of its railroad for the carrying or transporting of passengers or freight over its road within this state and failing to erect and maintain telegraph or telephone wires in complete working order for use and operation along the line of its railroad with an office and proper means of communication by such wires at each of its principal railway stations, orders, directs, advises, asks, demands or receives compensation for transportation of passengers or freight, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail or a workhouse for not less than thirty days nor more than ninety days, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3354-6; 93 v. 89, § 2.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

Section 12644. (Unlawfully stringing wires, etc., for conducting electricity.) Whoever places, strings, constructs or maintains a line, wire, fixture or appliance of any kind for conducting electricity for lighting, heating or power through a street, alley, lane, square, place or land in a city or village without the consent of such city or village, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars more than five hundred dollars. This section shall extend to all levels above, below and along the surface of public ways, grounds or places, but shall not apply to rights which have been received and exercised heretofore through proceedings in a probate court. (R. S. Sec. 3471a; 92 v. 204; 84 v. 7.)

See §§ 9192 to 9194 and notes.

Section 12645. (Erecting poles in cities having subways.)

Whoever erects a telegraph or telephone pole within that portion of a city or village where subways have been constructed, unless such pole is required for the purpose of distributing wires from such subways to subscribers' stations and is located in an alley if practicable, or, within such city or village, constructs or maintains underground wires, pipes, conduits and other fixtures for containing, protecting and operating such wires in the streets and public ways thereof, without obtaining the consent of such city or village, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars. This section shall not apply to existing telegraph companies until they shall have had authority and sufficient time to construct subways. (100 v. 85, § 1.)

Section 12657. (Corporations may be prosecuted for nuisance.) Corporations may be prosecuted by indictment for violation of any provision of this subdivision of this chapter, and in every case of conviction under such provisions, the court shall adjudge that the nuisance described in the indictment be abated or removed within a time fixed, and, if it is of a recurring character, the defendant shall keep such nuisance abated. (R. S. Sec. 6919; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 310; April 15, 1857, 54 v. 130, § 3; April 12, 1865, 62 v. 137; April 4, 1866, 63 v. 96.)

A corporation may be punished criminally for nuisance.

Strawboard Co. v. State, 70 O. S. 140 (1904).

A nuisance may also be enjoined. Reduction Co. v. Story, 8 Ohio App. 381, 30 O. C. A. 252.

Order to abate nuisance under former laws, see Smith v. State, 22 O. S. 539; Matthews v. State, 25 O. S. 536.

Section 12658. (Proceedings in contempt.) If the defendant, convicted of a violation of any provision of this subdivision of this chapter, fails, neglects or refuses to abate the nuisance described in the indictment, as ordered by the court, or, if the nuisance is of a recurring character, fails, neglects or refuses to keep it abated, proceedings in contempt of court may be instituted against him and all others assisting in or conniving at the violation of such order, and the court may direct the sheriff to execute the order of abatement at the cost and expense of the defendant. (R. S. Sec. 6919; April 23, 1904, 97 v. 310; April 15, 1857, 54 v. 130, § 3; April 12, 1865, 62 v. 137; April 4, 1866, 63 v. 96.)

Section 12870. (Corporation officials, etc., refusing to comply with a requirement of law.) Whoever, being a president, secretary, receiver, accounting officer, servant or agent of a railroad company or of a suburban or interurban electric railroad company, refuses to attend before a lawful board of appraisers and assessors when required so to do, or refuses to submit to the inspection of such board any books or papers of such company in his possession, custody or control, or refuses to answer such questions as may be put to him by the board or upon its order touching the business, property, moneys and credits, or the value thereof, of the company, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days. (R. S. Sec. 2773; 97 v. 573, § 4; R. S. Sec. 2776-4; 59 v. 88, § 4; S. & S. 766.)

Section 12871. (Same.) Whoever, being an officer, employe or agent of an express, telegraph, telephone, sleeping car, freight line or equipment company, refuses to attend before the state board of appraisers and assessors when required so to do, or refuses to bring with him and submit for the inspection of such board, any books or papers of such company in his possession, custody or control, or refuses to answer any questions put to him by such board, or any member thereof, touching the organization, business or property of such company, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days or both. (R. S. Sec. 2779; 91 v. 410, § 4; 92 v. 91, § 4; R. S. Secs. 2780-10, 2780-15; 91 v. 222; 90 v. 332; 59 v. 91, §§ 2, 3; S. & S. 769.)

Section 12872. (Same.) Whoever, being an officer, employe or agent of an electric light, gas, natural gas, pipe line, water works, street railroad, suburban or interurban railroad, express, telegraph, telephone, messenger or signal, union depot, railroad, water transportation, or heating or cooling company, refuses to attend before the state board of appraisers and assessors for laying excise taxes, when required so to do, or refuses to bring with him and submit for the inspection of such board, any books or papers of such company in his possession, custody or control, or refuses to answer any questions put to him by such board, or any member thereof, touching the organization, business or property of such company, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days or both. (R. S. Sec. 2780-20; 92 v. 79, § 4; 95 v. 140; 97 v. 328.)

Section 12924-1. (Penalty for violations.) Whoever, being an officer, agent or employe of any public utility, company, firm, person, co-partnership, corporation or association, subject to the provisions of any law which the tax commission of Ohio is required to administer, shall fail or refuse to fill out and return any blanks, as required by such law, or shall fail or refuse to answer any questions therein propounded, or shall knowingly or wilfully give a false answer to any such question where the fact inquired of is within his knowledge, or who shall, upon proper demand, fail or refuse to exhibit to such commission or any commissioner or any person duly authorized, any book, paper, account, record or memoranda of such public utility, which is in his possession or under his control, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars for each offense. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 258, § 154; See G. C. § 5542-12; 101 v. 399, § 110.)

Section 12924-2. (Forfeiture.) A forfeiture of not less than five hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars shall be recovered from any such public utility, company, firm, person, co-partnership, corporation or association for each violation of the next preceding section, when such officer, agent or employe acted in obedience to the direction, instruction or request of such public utility, company, corporation or association or any general officer thereof. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 258, § 155; See 101 v. 399, § 110.)

Section 12924-3. (Penalty. Construction and enforcement of the law.) Whoever violates any provision of a law, which the tax commission of Ohio is required to administer, or neglects or refuses to perform any duty therein required, for which a penalty has not otherwise been provided, or neglects or refuses to obey any lawful requirement or order made by such commission, for every such violation, failure or refusal shall be fined not less than twenty-five dollars nor more than one thousand dollars for each offense. In construing and enforcing the provisions of this section, the act, omission or failure of any officer, agent or other person acting for or employed by any public utility, company, firm, person, co-partnership, corporation or association acting within the scope of his employment, shall, in every case be the act, omission or failure of such public utility, company, firm, person, co-partnership, corporation or association. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 258, § 156; 101 v. 399, § 111; See G. C. 5542-13.)

Section 12924-4. (Penalty for false list or return of assessment or valuation.) Whoever, being a member of the tax commission of Ohio, or an assessor or a member of a county board of equalization, or a person whose duty it is to list, value, assess or equalize real or personal property for taxation, shall knowingly or wilfully fail to list or return for assessment or valuation, any real estate or personal property, or knowingly or wilfully lists or returns for assessment or valuation any real or personal property at any other than its true value in money, or shall wilfully or knowingly fail to equalize any real or personal property according to its true value in money, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and in addition thereto, if he be an officer, shall forfeit his office or position. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 258, § 157; 101 v. 399, § 112.)

Section 12924-5. (Each day a separate offense.) Every day during which any public utility, company, corporation, association, firm, co-partnership, officer, or individual, subject to the provisions of any law which the tax commission of Ohio is required to administer, or any officer, agent or employe thereof shall wilfully fail to observe and comply with any order or direction of such commission or to perform any duty enjoined by such law, shall constitute a separate and distinct offense. (June 2, 1911, 102 v. 258, § 158; 101 v. 399, § 113.)

Section 12954. (Life insurance company discriminating against colored persons.) Whoever, being a life insurance company organized or doing business in this state, or an officer or agent thereof, violates any provision of law relating to the distinction or discrimination between white persons and colored persons, wholly or partially of African descent, by demanding or receiving from a colored person a different or greater premium than from a white person, or by allowing a discount or rebate upon a premium paid or to be paid by a white person of the same age, sex, general condition of health and hope of longevity of any colored person, or by making or requiring a rebate, diminution or discount from the sum to be paid upon a policy in case of an insured colored person, or by failing to furnish a certificate of a regular examining physician of such company to such colored person as required by law, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars. (R. S. 3631-3; March 28, 1889; 86 v. 164, § 3.)

Section 12955. (Exceptions.) The next preceding section shall not require a life insurance company, or an agent thereof, to take or receive an application for insurance from any person. (R. S. Sec. 3631-3; March 28, 1889, 86 v. 164, § 3.)

Section 12956. (Discriminations prohibited. Penalty.) Whoever for himself or as officer, agent, solicitor, employe or representative of a life insurance company doing business in this state, makes or permits a distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals between the insured of the same class and of equal expectation of life in the amount or payment of premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any other of the terms and conditions of the contracts which such company makes; or pays, allows or gives, or offers to pay, allows or gives, directly or indirectly as inducement to insurance or knowingly receives as such inducement to insurance any rebate of premium payable on the policy or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon or any special advantage in the date of a policy or date of the issue thereof, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatsoever; or gives or receives, sells or purchases, or offers to give or receive, sell or purchase as inducements to insurance or in connection therewith any stock, bonds or other obligations or securities of any insurance company or other corporation, association, partnership or individual, or any dividends or profits to accrue thereon, or any paid employment or contract for services of any kind or anything of value shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars and not exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the jail of the county for a period not exceeding thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court and shall pay the costs of the prosecution, and the fines which shall be levied and collected for the violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be paid to the county treasurer for the benefit of the common school fund; provided, that nothing in this chapter shall be so construed as to forbid a company, transacting industrial insurance on a weekly payment plan, from returning to policy holders, who have made premium payments for a period of at least one year, directly to the company at its home or district offices, a percentage of the premium which the company would have paid for the weekly collection of such premium. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 511; R. S. § 3631-6; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 345.)

Section 12956-1. (Discharging or disciplining employe upon report of "spotter" without hearing, unlawful.) It shall be unlawful for any steam railroad company, its superintendent or manager thereof, employing any special agent, detective, or person commonly known as "spotter" for the purpose of investigating, obtaining and reporting to the employer, its agent, superintendent or manager, information concerning its employes, to discipline or discharge any employe in its service, where such act of discipline or the discharge is based upon a report by such special agent, detective or spotter, which report involves a question of integrity, honesty or a breach of rules of the employer, unless such employer, its agent, superintendent or manager, shall, before disciplining or discharging such employe, grant to him a fair opportunity to be heard in defense or explanation of the complaint against him, at which hearing said employer shall state specific charges on which said act or discharge is based and at which said accused employe shall have the right to furnish testimony in his defense. (107 v. 603, § 1.)

Section 12956-2. (Penalty.) Each and every violation of this act shall be deemed a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty dollars and not more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not more than one year, or both and the imprisonment when imposed shall be imposed upon the officers or agent thereof committing such offense. (107 v. 603, § 2.)

Section 13097. (Issuing notes resembling bank notes.) Whoever, being an officer or member of a banking company, issues or has in circulation a note, draft, bill of exchange, acceptance, certificate of deposit or other evidence of debt which, from its character, form or appearance, resembles a bank note or paper currency, shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, as the court may adjudge. (R. S. Sec. 3821-75; April 24, 1879, 76 v. 72, § 17; March 21, 1851, 49 v. 41.)

This section is limited to banks organized under the free banking act. (§§ 9676-9701.)

State v. Gibbs, 7 N. P. n. s. 345; 18 L. D. 681 (1908).

State banks have no power to issue circulating notes. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1912, p. 712.

Section 13132. (False statement by medical examiner of insurance company.) Whoever, being a medical examiner for a life insurance company or for an applicant for insurance therein, knowingly makes a false statement or report to such company or to an officer thereof, concerning the health or physical condition of an applicant for insurance, or other matter or thing affecting the granting of such insurance, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than three months. (R. S. Sec. 7078; 69 v. 159, § 31.)

Section 13133. (Obtaining money fraudulently from insurance company.) Whoever obtains or attempts to obtain from a life or accident insurance company, money on a policy issued by such company in this state, by falsely and fraudulently representing the insured to be dead, or procures such policy to be issued to or in a fictitious or assumed name and falsely represents the fictitious person so insured to be dead, thereby obtaining or attempting to obtain from such company the amount of such insurance or part thereof, or obtains insurance upon the life of another not applying for such insurance, or attempts to obtain insurance upon another's life for his own benefit without the knowledge of the person to be insured, or falsely obtains or attempts to obtain money from such company upon a policy by a false and fraudulent written representation or affidavit that the insured is dead or injured, or whoever obtains or attempts to obtain from a fire, motor vehicle or other insurance company, money on a policy issued by such company in this state, by falsely and fraudulently representing that any motor vehicle of any kind, covered by such policy, has been stolen or by procuring or conspiring to permit the same to be stolen, or by fraudulently and wilfully damaging any automobile or motor vehicle covered by such policy or procuring the same to be done, shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than fifteen years, or, when the money so obtained or attempted to be obtained is less than thirty-five dollars, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (109 v. 306; R. S. Sec. 7084; 85 v. 119; 64 v. 229, § 1; S. & S. 273.)

Section 13134. (Life insurance; official or agent issuing fraudulent policies.) Whoever, being a trustee, officer, agent or employe of a corporation, company or association, organized to transact the business of life or accident or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, knowingly insures a person, or permits him to be insured without that person's knowledge or consent, or insures a fictitious person, a person over sixty-five or under fifteen years of age, or a sickly or infirm person, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3630g; 82 v. 138; 80 v. 179.)

Section 13135. (Physician abetting same.) Whoever, being a physician or other person, knowingly aids in or abets any person in effecting insurance described in the next preceding section, or in effecting insurance of his own life, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3630g; 82 v. 138; 80 v. 179.)

Section 13136. (Changing life insurance policy.) Whoever, being a life insurance company doing business in this state, or an agent thereof, makes a contract of insurance, or an agreement as to such contract, other than is plainly expressed in the policy issued thereon, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3631-6; 90 v. 345, § 3.)

Section 13137. (Rebates and other inducements from life insurance companies.) Whoever, being a life insurance company doing business in this state, or an officer, agent, solicitor or representative thereof, pays, allows, gives, or offers to pay, allow or give, directly or indirectly, as an inducement to insurance, a rebate of the premium payable on a policy, or a special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefits to accrue thereon, or a paid employment or contract for services of any kind or any valuable consideration or inducement not specified in the policy of insurance, or gives, sells or purchases, or offers to give, sell or purchase as an inducement for insurance, any stocks, bonds or securities of an insurance company or other corporation, association or partnership, or any dividends or profits to accrue thereon, or anything of value not specified in the policy, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than thirty days, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3631-6; 90 v. 345, § 3.)

Section 13138. (Soliciting membership in unauthorized fraternal beneficiary association.) Whoever solicits membership or assists in procuring membership in a fraternal beneficiary association not licensed or authorized by law to do business in this state, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than two hundred dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3631-23q; 97 v. 432, § 30.)

Section 13139. (Failure to comply with laws relating to same.) Whoever, being a fraternal beneficiary association, or an officer, agent or employe thereof, neglects or refuses to comply with or violates any provision of law relating to such association the penalty for which is not specified elsewhere, shall be fined not more than two hundred dollars. (R. S. Sec. 3631-23q; 97 v. 432, § 30.)

Section 13140. (Fraud by official or medical examiner of fraternal beneficiary association.) Whoever, for himself or as an officer, member or physician of a fraternal beneficiary association, as created and defined by law, wilfully makes a false or fraudulent representation in, or with reference to, an application for membership therein or for obtaining money therefrom or benefit therein, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in jail not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3631-23q; 97 v. 432, § 30.)

Section 13141. (Fraud by certificate holder in such association.) Whoever wilfully makes a false representation of a material fact or thing in a sworn statement as to the death or disability of a certificate holder in a fraternal beneficiary association, as created and defined by law, for procuring the benefit named in the certificate of such holder, or wilfully makes a false statement in a report or declaration under oath, required or authorized by the law creating such associations shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than three years nor more than ten years. (R. S. Sec. 3631-23q; 97 v. 432, § 30.)

Section 13141-1. (Suppressing facts. Penalty.) Whoever being an officer, director, trustee, agent or employe of any insurance company, fraternal beneficiary association or assessment association organized under the laws of this state shall wilfully and with intent to deceive the superintendent of insurance or any person interested therein respecting the true financial condition of such company, fraternal beneficiary association or assessment association mutilate, destroy, or falsify any of its books, records, proofs, letters, papers, or documents, or suppress, withhold or conceal any of the same from any person authorized by law to investigate the true financial condition of such company, fraternal beneficiary association or assessment association shall be imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than three years nor less than one year. (April 14, 1910, 101 v. 102.)

Section 13149-1. (Penalty.) Whoever, having accepted a premium note, in payment of the purchase price of a policy of insurance, sells or assigns such note prior to the delivery and acceptance of such policy, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (April 23, 1910, 101 v. 120.)

Section 13151. (Selling bonds, certificates, etc., for companies not complying with law.) Whoever, being an officer, agent or representative of a corporation, partnership or association, other than a building and loan company, engaged in placing or selling certificates, bonds, debentures or other investment securities on the partial payment or installment plan, or of an investment guarantee company doing business on the service dividend plan, attempts to place or sell certificates, debentures or other investment securities or transact business in the name or on behalf thereof, when such company, partnership, association or guarantee company has failed or refuses to comply with any provision of law or to file with the supervisor of bond investment companies the statement or report required to be filed by law, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3821z; 94 v. 150, § 9; 93 v. 150.)

See Bank v. Miller, 1 C. C. n. s. 569; 14 C. D. 198 (1902).

Section 13171. (Misrepresentation in soliciting insurance; penalty. Revocation of license.) Whoever for himself or as an officer, director, agent, solicitor or representative of any insurance company, except fire insurance companies or associations or fraternal benefit societies, doing business in this state, issues or circulates or causes or permits to be issued or circulated any estimate, illustration, circular or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of the policies or policy issued or to be issued by such company or the benefits or advantages promised thereby or the dividends or shares or surplus to be received thereon, or uses any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof, or makes, circulates or uses, or causes to be made, circulated or used, any illustration, circular or statement, whether written or oral, misrepresenting the terms of any policy issued by any such corporation, or the benefits or advantages promised thereby, or any misleading estimate of the dividends or shares of surplus to be received therefrom, or makes any misleading representation or incomplete comparison of policies or certificates of insurance to any person insured in any such corporation for the purpose of inducing or tending to induce such person to lapse, forfeit or surrender his said insurance, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined in any sum not less than one hundred dollars nor exceeding five hundred dollars, or imprisoned in the jail of the county for a period not exceeding thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court, and shall pay the costs of the prosecution, and the fines which shall be levied and collected for the violation of any of the provisions of this section shall be paid to the county treasurer for the benefit of the common school fund; and upon any such conviction the superintendent of insurance shall revoke the license of the person, firm, corporation or association so offending, for not more than one year. And it shall be the duty of the superintendent of insurance when he is of the opinion that any company or association writing life insurance in Ohio, on any plan, is knowingly permitting any of its agents to violate the provisions of this section, to give such company or association reasonable notice of a hearing upon the charge of knowingly permitting said provisions to be violated, and, if he finds said company or association guilty of said offense, he shall revoke its license; provided, that the action of the superintendent of insurance in revoking any license under this section may be reviewed by action in the court of common pleas of Franklin county, to be begun within thirty (30) days after notice is given by the superintendent of the revocation of said license; and in said action said licensee shall be plaintiff and the superintendent of insurance shall be defendant, and the code of civil procedure shall govern the proceedings in said cause and the review thereof as far as possible, and said court shall have jurisdiction to determine the validity of the action of said superintendent in revoking said license and may enter such judgment as is proper. (110 v. 113; 106 v. 235; 102 v. 511; 99 v. 176, § 3.)

Section 13172. (Misrepresentations in advertisement by insurance companies.) Whoever, being an insurance company, corporation or association authorized to transact business in this state, or an agent thereof, by advertisement in a newspaper, magazine or periodical or by a sign, circular, card, policy of insurance, certificate or renewal thereof, or otherwise, states or represents that funds or assets are in its possession, not actually possessed by it and available for the payment of losses and claims and held for the protection of its policy holders or creditors, or advertises a subscribed capital not actually paid up in cash, shall be fined five hundred dollars, and for each subsequent offense shall be fined one thousand dollars. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 177, 178, §§ 1, 3.)

Section 13173. (Such advertisement not corresponding with verified statement.) Whoever, being an insurance company, corporation or association authorized to transact business in this state, purporting to make known its financial standing by an advertisement, public announcement or by making or issuing a circular or card, fails to correspond in all the particulars which it so purports to make known, with the last preceding verified statement made by it to the insurance department of any state, shall be fined five hundred dollars, and for each subsequent offense, shall be fined one thousand dollars. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 178, §§ 2, 3.)

Section 13174. (Disbursements by domestic life insurance companies.) Whoever, being a domestic life insurance company making a disbursement of one hundred dollars or more, fails to have it evidenced by a voucher signed by or on behalf of the person, firm or corporation receiving the money and correctly describing the consideration thereof, or, if such expenditure be for both services and disbursements, fails to set forth in such voucher, the service rendered and an itemized statement of the disbursement made, or, if such expenditure was in connection with a matter pending before a legislative or public body or a department or officer of any state or government, in addition to the foregoing, fails to correctly describe in such voucher the nature of the matter and of the interest of such company therein, shall be fined not less than ten dollars nor more than one thousand dollars. If such voucher can not be obtained such expenditures must be evidenced by an affidavit describing the character and object of the expenditure and stating the reasons for not obtaining such voucher. (April 22, 1908, 99 v. 177, 178, §§ 1, 2.)

Section 13175. (Publishing or permitting fraudulent prospectus, etc., relating to financial condition of corporation and individual.) Whoever knowingly makes or publishes, or permits or causes to be made or published, a book, prospectus, notice, report, statement, exhibit or other publication of or concerning the affairs, financial condition or property of a corporation, joint stock association, co-partnership or individual, containing a statement which is false or wilfully exaggerated and intended to deceive any person as to the real value of any shares, bonds or property or part thereof, of said corporation, joint stock association, co-partnership or individual, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than ten thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than one year nor more than five years, or both. (May 9, 1908, 99 v. 336.)

Section 13188. (Signing name to order without authority.) Whoever, being a president, director, trustee, member of a committee, secretary, treasurer, attorney or other officer or agent of a building and loan association or savings association, as provided by law, signs the name of a person to an order or warrant for the payment of money without proper power of attorney or written order from the person to whose order such order or warrant is made payable, shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

Section 13189. (Declaring dividend greater than earned.) Whoever, being a member of a board of directors of a building and loan association or savings association, as provided by law, votes to declare, or, being a financial or first secretary thereof, declares or advises the board of directors thereof to declare a greater dividend than has been actually earned by such association, for the purpose of deceiving the people or defrauding the members thereof, shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

Section 13190. (False entry in book, etc.) Whoever, being a member of a board of directors of a building and loan association or savings association, as provided by law, certifies to, or makes a false entry on a book, report or statement of or to such association, with intent to deceive, injure or defraud it or another company, body politic or corporate or person, or to deceive any one appointed to examine the affairs of such association, shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

A false statement by the secretary is not included in this section. The secretary, however, may be prosecuted for perjury. State v. Williams, 104 O. S. 232 (1922).

Section 13191. (Aiding officer to violate preceding section.) Whoever, with intent to deceive, injure or defraud a building and loan association or savings association, as provided by law, or other company, body politic or corporate or person, aids or abets a president, secretary, treasurer, committee or other person in violation of any of the next four preceding sections shall be imprisoned not less than one year nor more than ten years. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

Section 13192. (Failing to make reports, etc.) Whoever, being an officer thereof, fails to make the reports required of him by the laws provided for the organization, regulation and inspection of building and loan associations and savings associations, or, being an officer, employe or other person, solicits business for, aids or assists such association to do business contrary to the provisions of such laws, or without having complied therewith, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than six months, or both. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

Section 13193. (Liability on bond.) Whoever violates any provision of the next five preceding sections shall be liable to the person injured thereby to the extent of the damage incurred and suit may be brought against the person so violating and the sureties on the bond given by him to such association for the faithful performance of his duty. Fines collected under the next five preceding sections shall be paid into the state treasury. (May 5, 1908, 99 v. 536, § 46.)

Section 13320. (Money for political purposes by corporations.) Whoever, being a corporation engaged in business in this state, directly or indirectly, pays, uses, offers, or consents or agrees to pay or use money or property for, or in aid of a political party, committee or organization, or for or in aid of a candidate for political office, or for a nomination thereto, or uses money or property for any political purpose whatever, or for the re-imbursement or indemnification of any person or persons for money or property so used, shall be fined not less than five hundred dollars nor more than five thousand dollars. (February 26, 1908, 99 v. 23, 24, §§ 1, 3.)

See §§ 8729, 8730.

A corporation may pay for the insertion of an advertisement in a program of a political convention, although the program is published by a committee of the political party.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 86.

This act does not prohibit a newspaper corporation from publishing a partisan newspaper.

Rep. Atty. Gen. 1908, p. 76.

This section prohibits contributions for promoting or defeating a constitutional amendment. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1919, p. 1392; 11 Dept. Rep. 173.

Section 13321. (Aid or advice of such case.) Whoever, being an officer, stockholder, attorney or agent of a corporation violating the next preceding section, participates in, aids or advises such violation or solicits or knowingly receives money or property in violation of such section, shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not more than one year, or both. (February 26, 1908, 99 v. 24, § 3.)

Section 13322. (Annual report of corporation thereon.) Whoever, being a corporation for profit, violates any provision of the law requiring it to make out, have sworn to by an officer thereof who has knowledge of the facts, and file with the secretary of state, auditor of state or state superintendent of insurance, an affidavit respecting the use of its funds or property for political purposes, or its consent thereto, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (February 26, 1908, 99 v. 24, § 3.)

Section 13323. (Witnesses under next three preceding sections.) A person violating any of the next three preceding sections is a competent witness against another person so offending and may be compelled to attend and testify on a trial, hearing, proceeding or investigation thereof. The testimony so given shall not be used in a prosecution or proceeding, civil or criminal, against the person so testifying nor shall such person thereafter be liable to indictment, prosecution or punishment for the offense with reference to which his testimony was so given, and he may plead or prove the giving of such testimony in bar of such indictment or prosecution. (February 26, 1908, 99 v. 24, § 3.)

Section 13383-1. (False statement affecting solvency of banks or value of stocks and bonds; penalty.) Whoever, directly or indirectly, wilfully and knowingly makes or transmits to another, or circulates, or counsels, aids, procures or induces another to make, transmit or circulate, any false or untrue statement, rumor or suggestion derogatory to the financial condition, solvency or financial standing of any bank, savings bank, banking association, building and loan association or trust company, doing business in this state, or with intent to depress the value of the stocks, bonds or securities of any corporation, directly or indirectly, wilfully and knowingly makes or transmits to another, circulates, or counsels, aids, procures or induces another to make, transmit or circulate, any false or untrue statement, rumor or suggestion derogatory to the financial condition, or with respect to the earnings or management of the business of any corporation, or resorts to any fraudulent means with intent to depress in value the stocks, bonds or securities of any corporation shall be fined not more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the penitentiary not more than two years, or both. (May 3, 1913, 103 v. 469; May 17, 1910, 101 v. 263.)

It is not an offense to circulate a true statement regarding the solvency of a bank, regardless of the intent. State v. Kollar, 93 O. S. 89 (1915).

An advertisement stating in substance that all banks are not safe and that banks which carry bankers insurance are safer than those without it, is not in violation of this section. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1916, p. 1904.

Section 13388. (Divulging telegraph message.) Whoever, being connected with a telegraph or messenger company, incorporated or unincorporated, operating a telegraph line or engaged in the business of receiving and delivering messages, wilfully divulges the contents or the nature of the contents of a private communication entrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or wilfully refuses or neglects to transmit or deliver it, or wilfully delays its transmission or delivery, or wilfully forges the name of the intended receiver to a receipt for such message or communication or article of value entrusted to him by said company, with intent to injure, deceive or defraud the sender or intended receiver thereof or such telegraph or messenger company or to benefit himself or any other person, shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in jail not more than three months. (R. S. Sec. 3466; April 14, 1900, 94 v. 209; March 31, 1865, 62 v. 72, § 10; S. & S. 156.)

Section 13389. (Delaying telegraph message.) Whoever, being a telegraph operator of a railroad or telegraph company, in case of an accident to a railroad train by which a passenger is delayed, fails, neglects or refuses, on tender of the usual charge at regular commercial offices, to accept a telegram for transmission from any person so delayed, or to send it forthwith to the person and point designated, without alteration, revision or approval, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. If such violation arises from obeying an order or rule of his employer, such employer shall repay to him such fine and costs. (R. S. Sec. 3373-2; April 29, 1891, 88 v. 429, § 3.)

Section 13402. (Unlawfully interfering, etc., with telegraph or telephonic messages.) Whoever wilfully and maliciously cuts, breaks, taps or makes connection with a telegraph or telephone wire or reads or copies in an unauthorized manner, a telegraphic message or communication from or upon a telegraph or telephone line, wire or cable, so unlawfully cut or tapped, or makes unauthorized use thereof, or wilfully and maliciously prevents, obstructs or delays the sending, conveyance or delivery of an authorized telegraphic message or communication by or through a line, cable or wire, under the control of a telegraph or telephone company, shall be fined not less than fifty dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned not less than one year nor more than three years, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3467a; April 4, 1902, 95 v. 101; April 27, 1893, 90 v. 346; March 15, 1892, 89 v. 100, § 52.)

Section 13415. (Acting as agent, etc., for certain companies in default of taxes.) Whoever, directly or indirectly, acts as agent, or transacts any business on account of or for the benefit of an express, telegraph, telephone or insurance company, against which taxes have been assessed in any county in this state and remain unpaid for twenty days after the time provided by law for the payment thereof, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail and fed on bread and water only not more than thirty days, or both. The payment of such unpaid tax by an agent or other person, shall not be a violation of this section. (R. S. Sec. 2843; 82 v. 92; 59 v. 91, § 7; S. & S. 770.)

Section 13416. (Unlawful reinsurance by life insurance company, etc.) Whoever, being an officer, director or stockholder of a company organized under the laws of this state, to do the business of life, accident or health insurance, either on the stock, mutual, stipulated premiums, assessment or fraternal plan, violating or consenting to a violation of any provision of law governing or forbidding the reinsurance of the risks, or any part thereof, or the consolidation of such company with any other company or association, or the assumption or re-insurance of the whole or any portion of the risks of another company by such company, shall be fined not less than ten thousand dollars and imprisoned in a county or city jail not less than one year. (R. S. Sec. 3597; April 6, 1900, 94 v. 103; April 15, 1880, 77 v. 267; April 27, 1872, 69 v. 150, § 2; S. & S. 218.)

Section 13417. (Foreign life insurance companies on the assessment plan.) Whoever, being an officer or agent of a corporation, company or association organized under the laws of any other state of the United States to transact the business of life or accident insurance, or life and accident insurance on the assessment plan, fails or neglects to comply with, or violates any provision of law relating to such corporation, company or association, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisonment not more than six months, or both. (R. S. Secs. 3630e, 3630g; 77 v. 181; 80 v. 180; 88 v. 252; 97 v. 144; 82 v. 138; 80 v. 179.)

Section 13418. (Violations by accident insurance companies and officers thereof.) Whoever, being a company organized under the laws of this state for the special purpose of insuring against accidental personal injury and loss of life sustained while traveling by railroad, steamboat or other mode of conveyance, against accidental personal injury and loss of life sustained by accident of every description, and against expenses and loss of time occasioned by injury or sickness, and on such terms and conditions, and for such periods of time, and confined to such countries and localities, and to such persons as from time to time, may be provided in the by-laws of such company, or any officer thereof violating any provision of law relating to such company, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or imprisoned in the county jail where such officer resides, not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3630i; 84 v. 130; 91 v. 332; 97 v. 435.)

Section 13418-1. (Penalties.) Any person, officer, member or examining physician of any society, authorized to do business under this act, who shall knowingly or wilfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for membership, or for the purpose of obtaining money from or benefit in any society transacting business under this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both, in the discretion of the court; and any person who shall wilfully make a false statement of any material fact or thing in a sworn statement as to the death or disability of a certificate holder in any such society for the purpose of procuring payment of a benefit named in the certificate of such holder, and any person who shall wilfully make any false statement in any verified report or declaration under oath required or authorized by this act, shall be guilty of perjury, and shall be proceeded against and punished as provided by the statutes of this state in relation to the crime of perjury.

Any person who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any fraternal benefit society not licensed to do business in this state, or who shall solicit membership for, or in any manner assist in procuring membership in any such society not authorized as herein provided, to do business as herein defined in this state, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars.

Any society, or any officer, agent or employe thereof neglecting or refusing to comply with, or violating any of the provisions of this act, the penalty for which neglect, refusal or violation is not specified in this section, shall be fined not exceeding two hundred dollars upon conviction thereof. (May 31, 1911, 102 v. 547, § 31.)

Section 13419. (Divulging telephonic communication.)

Whoever, being connected with a telephone company, incorporated or unincorporated, operating a telephone line, or engaged in the business of transmitting to, from, through or in this state, telephone messages, in any capacity, wilfully divulges a private telephone message, or the nature of such message, or a private conversation between persons communicating over the wires of such company, or wilfully delays the transmission of a telephonic message or communication, with intent to injure, deceive or defraud the sender or receiver thereof or any other person, or any such telephone company, or to benefit himself or any other person, shall be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars and imprisoned in the county jail not less than thirty days nor more than three months. (100 v. 10.)

Section 13420. (Diverting freight.) Whoever, being the agent of a railroad company, knowingly diverts or permits freight under his control to be diverted from the railroad or railroads over which it is ordered to be conveyed by the shipper thereof, shall be fined not more than one hundred dollars or imprisoned in the county jail not more than thirty days, or both. (R. S. Sec. 3370; 58 v. 74, § 3; S. & S. 117.)

See § 8985.

Section 13440. (Humane society may employ an attorney.) A humane society or its agent may employ an attorney to prosecute the following cases, under this section, who shall be paid for his services out of the county treasury in such sum as the judge of the court of common pleas or the probate judge of such county or the county commissioners thereof may approve as just and reasonable:

1. Violations of law relating to the prevention of cruelty to animals or children;

2. Violations of law relating to the abandonment, non-support or ill-treatment of a child by its parent;

3. Violations of law relating to the employment of a child under fourteen years of age in public exhibitions or vocations injurious to health, life or morals or which cause or permit such child to suffer unnecessary physical or mental pain;

4. Violations of law relating to neglect or refusal of adult to support destitute parent. (R. S. Sec. 3718a; 81 v. 181; 85 v. 144; 90 v. 335; 91 v. 412; 94 v. 92; 95 v. 517.)

An attorney employed by a humane society can not be paid from county funds for services in a prosecution for delinquency in a juvenile court. Opins. Atty. Gen. 1915, p. 2402.

An attorney employed by a humane society can not be paid out of the county treasury for services in prosecution under G. C. § 12493 but may be paid for services under G. C. § 13440. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1914, p. 1730.

A prosecuting attorney is not ex-officio legal advisor of a humane society. But he may be employed by a society. Rep. Atty. Gen. 1913, p. 1120.

Section 13607. (Summons and indictments against corporations.) When an indictment is returned against a corporation, a summons, commanding the sheriff to notify the accused thereof returnable on the seventh day after its date, shall issue on the precept of the prosecuting attorney. Such summons, with a copy of such indictment, shall be served and returned in the manner provided for service of summons upon such corporation in civil actions. If the service can not be made in the county where the prosecution began, the sheriff may make service in any county of the state upon the president, secretary, superintendent, clerk, cashier, treasurer, managing agent or other chief officer thereof or by a copy left at a general or branch office, or usual place of doing business of such corporation, with the person having charge thereof. Such corporation, on or before the return day of a summons duly served, may appear by one of its officers or by counsel, and answer to the indictment by motion, demurrer or plea, and upon failure to make such appearance and answer, the clerk shall enter a plea of "not guilty;" and upon such appearance being made or plea entered, the corporation shall be deemed thenceforth continuously present in court until the case is finally disposed of. (R. S. Sec. 7231; April 28, 1890, 87 v. 351; R. S. 1880.)

In a criminal or quasi-criminal proceeding, service can only be made on a corporation under this section.

Reinhart & Newton Co. v. State, 26 C. C. n. s. 429 (1915); affirming, 15 N. P. n. s. 92; 23 L. D. 500.

Where the president of a corporation is arrested on complaint against the corporation for violation of a penal statute, a motion to quash filed by the corporation, on grounds other than lack of jurisdiction of the person, is a voluntary appearance by the corporation.

Reinhart & Newton Co. v. State, 26 C. C. n. s. 429 (1915); affirming, 15 N. P. n. s. 92; 23 L. D. 500.

An indictment against a corporation need not aver that it is a corporation. If such were the requirement, however, the name, The Company, would sufficiently import that it is a corporation.

APPENDIX

Street Railways.

§ 14770. Municipalities may agree with street railway company for payment of percentage of gross receipts in lieu of car license fees.

§ 14771. No subsequent change in five years.

[Section 14770.] [Municipalities may agree with street railway company for payment of percentage of gross receipts in lieu of car license fees.] That it shall be competent for the board of public service, in any city of the first grade of the first class, and for the council or other legislative body of any other municipal corporation, by and with the consent of the mayor, to agree with any street railway company or companies operating any street railway route or routes in such city or other municipal corporation for the payment of a percentage or additional percentage not less than one per cent. upon its gross receipts in lieu of car license fees that may have been exacted under existing grants, and upon such changes in and extensions of existing street railway route or routes, and any changes in or revision of any prevailing or existing system of transfers between such routes as such board of public service or council, or other legislative body, may deem to be to the benefit, convenience or advantage of the public;

[No increase in rate of fare.] provided, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize any increase in the rate of fare by reason of any such changes, revisions or extensions;

[When not necessary to secure consents to changes or extensions of existing routes.] and provided, further, that when any such changes in or extensions of existing routes are made so as to run in whole or in part over and along existing tracks already belonging to such company or companies, it shall not be necessary to secure and file the consents to such changes or extensions of the owners of the property abutting on the streets on which such existing tracks are located. Provided, further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize the extension of the track or route of one street railway company over those of any other street railway company, otherwise than in the manner already provided by law, excepting by agreement of both such companies.

[No extension in length of franchise.] Provided, that nothing herein contained shall authorize the extension of existing street railway routes or any portion thereof over and along existing tracks or portions thereof for a longer period than the terms for which the original franchises for such roads or routes existing at the time of the passage of this act, were granted.

[Notice of pendency of ordinance to extend or change route.] Provided, further, that no resolution or ordinance, providing for such extension or change of route or routes, or changes or revision of systems of transfers, shall be passed until public notice of the pendency of such resolution or ordinance shall have been given in one or more of the daily newspapers published in said municipal corporation, if there be such, and, if not, then in one or more newspapers of general circulation in said municipal corporation, for the period of at least three consecutive weeks;

[When consent to change, etc., necessary.] and provided, further, that no change or extension of any existing route shall be granted over any street or streets now unoccupied by street railway tracks, unless the consent of a majority of the owners of property abutting on such street or streets shall have been first obtained as now by law required. (May 10, 1902, 95 v. 502, § 1; Bates St. § 1536-189.)

[Section 14771.] No subsequent change in five years.—

Whenever any street railway route or routes shall have been changed under agreement as provided in the preceding section of this act no subsequent change of said route or routes shall be made within a period of five years thereafter. (May 10, 1902, 95 v. 503, § 2; Bates St. § 1536-190.)

Publication of notice. Not required when. The requirement of these sections as to the publication of notice does not apply to an ordinance under G. C. Sec. 3777.

Belle v. Glenville, 5 C. C. n. s. 461; 17 C. D. 181; aff'd, no rep., 73 O. S. 392, 397; 75 O. S. 574.

Consents of abutting owners are necessary, when existing tracks unlawfully occupy street. Consents of abutting owners are necessary to a valid extension under the two foregoing sections, where the existing tracks occupy the street unlawfully under an expired franchise.

Isom v. Low Fare Ry. Co., 10 C. C. n. s. 89; 19 C. D. 583; aff'd, no rep. 77 O. S. 638.

FEDERAL CAPITAL STOCK TAX.

(From Revenue Act of 1921, approved November 23, 1921.)

SEC. 1000. (a) That on and after July 1, 1922, in lieu of the tax imposed by section 1000 of the Revenue Act of 1918—

(1) Every domestic corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of so much of the fair average value of its capital stock for the preceding year ending June 30 as is in excess of $5,000. In estimating the value of capital stock the surplus and undivided profits shall be included;

(2) Every foreign corporation shall pay annually a special excise tax with respect to carrying on or doing business in the United States, equivalent to $1 for each $1,000 of the average amount of capital employed in the transaction of its business in the United States during the preceding year ending June 30.

(b) The taxes imposed by this section shall not apply in any year to any corporation which was not engaged in business (or, in the case of a foreign corporation, not engaged in business in the United States) during the preceding year ending June 30, nor to any corporation enumerated in section 231, nor to any insurance company subject to the tax imposed by section 243 or 246.

(c) Section 257 shall apply to all returns filed with the Commissioner for purposes of the tax imposed by this section.

INCOME TAX RETURNS TO BE PUBLIC RECORDS.

SEC. 257. That returns upon which the tax has been determined by the Commissioner shall constitute public records; but they shall be open to inspection only upon order of the President and under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary and approved by the President: Provided, That the proper officers of any State imposing an income tax may, upon the request of the governor thereof, have access to the returns of any corporation, or to an abstract thereof showing the name and income of the corporation, at such times and in such manner as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided further, That all bona fide stockholders of record owning 1 per centum or more of the outstanding stock of any corporation shall, upon making request of the Commissioner, be allowed to examine the annual income returns of such corporation and of its subsidiaries. Any stockholder who pursuant to the provisions of this section is allowed to examine the return of any corporation, and who makes known in any manner whatever not provided by law the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures, or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any such return, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

The Commissioner shall as soon as practicable in each year cause to be prepared and made available to public inspection in such manner as he may determine, in the office of the collector in each internal-revenue district and in such other places as he may determine, lists containing the names and the post-office addresses of all individuals making income-tax returns in such district.

CONDITIONAL AND OTHER EXEMPTIONS OF CORPORATIONS.

SEC. 231. That the following organizations shall be exempt from taxation under this title—

- (1) Labor, agricultural, or horticultural organizations;
- (2) Mutual savings banks not having a capital stock represented by shares;
- (3) Fraternal beneficiary societies, orders, or associations,
(a) operating under the lodge system or for the exclusive benefit of the members of a fraternity itself operating under the lodge system; and (b) providing for the payment of life, sick, accident, or other benefits to the members of such society, order, or association or their dependents;

(4) Domestic building and loan associations substantially all the business of which is confined to making loans to members; and cooperative banks without capital stock organized and operated for mutual purposes and without profit;

(5) Cemetery companies owned and operated exclusively for the benefit of their members or which are not operated for profit; and any corporation chartered solely for burial purposes as a cemetery corporation and not permitted by its charter to engage in any business not necessarily incident to that purpose, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;

(6) Corporations, and any community chest, fund, or foundation, organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;

(7) Business leagues, chambers of commerce, or boards of trade, not organized for profit and no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual;

(8) Civic leagues or organizations not organized for profit but operated exclusively for the promotion of social welfare;

(9) Clubs organized and operated exclusively for pleasure, recreation, and other nonprofitable purposes, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or member;

(10) Farmers' or other mutual hail, cyclone, or fire insurance companies, mutual ditch or irrigation companies, mutual or cooperative telephone companies, or like organizations of a purely local character, the income of which consists solely of assessments, dues, and fees collected from members for the sole purpose of meeting expenses;

(11) Farmers', fruit growers', or like associations, organized and operated as sales agents for the purpose of marketing the products of members and turning back to them the proceeds of sales, less the necessary selling expenses, on the basis of the quantity of produce furnished by them; or organized and operated as purchasing agents for the purpose of purchasing supplies and equipment for the use of members and turning over such supplies and equipment to such members at actual cost, plus necessary expenses;

(12) Corporations organized for the exclusive purpose of holding title to property, collecting income therefrom, and turning over the entire amount thereof, less expenses, to an organization which itself is exempt from the tax imposed by this title;

(13) Federal land banks and national farm-loan associations as provided in section 26 of the Act approved July 17, 1916, entitled "An Act to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgage, to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create Government depositaries and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes";

(14) Personal service corporation. This subdivision shall not be in effect after December 31, 1921.

EXCERPTS FROM THE CLAYTON ACT.

38 U. S. Stats. 730.

Approved October 15, 1914.

SEC. 7. That no corporation engaged in commerce shall acquire, directly or indirectly, the whole or any part of the stock or other share capital of another corporation engaged also in commerce where the effect of such acquisition may be to substantially lessen competition between the corporation whose stock is so acquired and the corporation making the acquisition, or to restrain such commerce in any section or community, or tend to create a monopoly of any line of commerce.

No corporation shall acquire, directly or indirectly, the whole or any part of the stock or other share capital of two or more corporations engaged in commerce where the effect of such acquisition, or the use of such stock by the voting or granting of proxies or otherwise, may be to substantially lessen competition between such corporations, or any of them, whose stock or other share capital is so acquired, or to restrain such commerce in any section or community, or tend to create a monopoly of any line of commerce.

This section shall not apply to corporations purchasing such stock solely for investment and not using the same by voting or otherwise to bring about, or in attempting to bring about, the substantial lessening of competition. Nor shall anything contained in this section prevent a corporation engaged in commerce from causing the formation of subsidiary corporations for the actual carrying on of their immediate lawful business, or the natural and legitimate branches or extensions thereof, or from owning and holding all or a part of the stock of such subsidiary corporations, when the effect of such formation is not to substantially lessen competition.

Nor shall anything herein contained be construed to prohibit any common carrier subject to the laws to regulate commerce from aiding in the construction of branches or short lines so located as to become feeders to the main line of the company so aiding in such construction or from acquiring or owning all or any part of the stock of such branch lines, nor to prevent any such common carrier from acquiring and owning all or any part of the stock of a branch or short line constructed by an independent company where there is no substantial competition between the company owning the branch line so constructed and the company owning the main line acquiring the property or an interest therein, nor to prevent such common carrier from extending any of its lines through the medium of the acquisition of stock or otherwise of any other such common carrier where there is no substantial competition between the company extending its lines and the company whose stock, property, or an interest therein is so acquired.

Nothing contained in this section shall be held to affect or impair any right heretofore legally acquired: Provided, That nothing in this section shall be held or construed to authorize or make lawful anything heretofore prohibited or made illegal by the antitrust laws, nor to exempt any person from the penal provisions thereof or the civil remedies therein provided.

SEC. 8. That from and after two years from the date of the approval of this Act no person shall at the same time be a director or other officer or employee of more than one bank, banking association or trust company, organized or operating under the laws of the United States, either of which has deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $5,000,000; and no private banker or person who is a director in any bank or trust company, organized and operating under the laws of a State, having deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $5,000,000, shall be eligible to be a director in any bank or banking association organized or operating under the laws of the United States. The eligibility of a director, officer, or employee under the foregoing provisions shall be determined by the average amount of deposits, capital, surplus, and undivided profits as shown in the official statements of such bank, banking association, or trust company filed as provided by law during the fiscal year next preceding the date set for the annual election of directors, and when a director, officer, or employee has been elected or selected in accordance with the provisions of this Act it shall be lawful for him to continue as such for one year thereafter under said election or employment.

No bank, banking association or trust company, organized or operating under the laws of the United States, in any city or incorporated town or village of more than two hundred thousand inhabitants, as shown by the last preceding decennial census of the United States, shall have as a director or other officer or employee any private banker or any director or other officer or employee of any other bank, banking association or trust company located in the same place: Provided, That nothing in this section shall apply to mutual savings banks not having a capital stock represented by shares: Provided further, That a director or other officer or employee of such bank, banking association, or trust company may be a director or other officer or employee of not more than one other bank or trust company organized under the laws of the United States or any State where the entire capital stock of one is owned by stockholders in the other: And provided further, That nothing contained in this section shall forbid a director of class A of a Federal reserve bank, as defined in the Federal Reserve Act, from being an officer or director or both an officer and director in one member bank: And provided further, That nothing in this Act shall prohibit any private banker or any officer, director, or employee of any member bank or class A director of a Federal reserve bank, who shall first procure the consent of the Federal Reserve Board, which board is hereby authorized, at its discretion, to grant, withhold, or revoke such consent, from being an officer, director, or employee of not more than two other banks, banking associations, or trust companies, whether organized under the laws of the United States or any State, if such other bank, banking association, or trust company is not in substantial competition with such banker or member bank. (As amended by Acts of May 15, 1916 and May 26, 1920.)

The consent of the Federal Reserve Board may be procured before the person applying therefor has been elected as a class A director of a Federal reserve bank or as a director of any member bank. (As amended by Act of May 15, 1916.)

That from and after two years from the date of the approval of this Act no person at the same time shall be a director in any two or more corporations, any one of which has capital, surplus, and undivided profits aggregating more than $1,000,000, engaged in whole or in part in commerce, other than banks, banking associations, trust companies, and common carriers subject to the Act to regulate commerce, approved February fourth, eighteen hundred and eighty-seven, if such corporations are or shall have been theretofore, by virtue of their business and location of operation, competitors, so that the elimination of competition by agreement between them would constitute a violation of any of the provisions of any of the antitrust laws. The eligibility of a director under the foregoing provisions shall be determined by the aggregate amount of the capital, surplus, and undivided profits, exclusive of dividends declared but not paid to stockholders, at the end of the fiscal year of said corporation next preceding the election of directors, and when a director has been elected in accordance with the provisions of this Act it shall be lawful for him to continue as such for one year thereafter.

When any person elected or chosen as a director or officer or selected as an employee of any bank or other corporation subject to the provisions of this Act is eligible at the time of his election or selection to act for such bank or other corporation in such capacity, his eligibility to act in such capacity shall not be affected and he shall not become or be deemed amenable to any of the provisions hereof by reason of any change in the affairs of such bank or other corporation from whatsoever cause, whether specifically excepted by any of the provisions hereof or not, until the expiration of one year from the date of his election or employment.

SEC. 10. That after two years from the approval of this Act no common carrier engaged in commerce shall have any dealings in securities, supplies or other articles of commerce, or shall make or have any contracts for construction or maintenance of any kind, to the amount of more than $50,000, in the aggregate, in any one year, with another corporation, firm, partnership, or association when the said common carrier shall have upon its board of directors or as its president, manager or as its purchasing or selling officer, or agent in the particular transaction, any person who is at the same time a director, manager, or purchasing or selling officer of, or who has any substantial interest in, such other corporation, firm, partnership or association unless and except such purchases shall be made from, or such dealings shall be with, the bidder whose bid is the most favorable to such common carrier, to be ascertained by competitive bidding under regulations to be prescribed by rule or otherwise by the Interstate Commerce Commission. No bid shall be received unless the name and address of the bidder or the names and addresses of the officers, directors, and general managers thereof, if the bidder be a corporation, or of the members, if it be a partnership or firm, be given with the bid.

Any person who shall, directly or indirectly, do or attempt to do anything to prevent anyone from bidding or shall do any act to prevent free and fair competition among the bidders or those desiring to bid shall be punished as prescribed in this section in the case of an officer or director.

Every such common carrier having any such transactions or making any such purchases shall within thirty days after making the same file with the Interstate Commerce Commission a full and detailed statement of the transaction showing the manner of the competitive bidding, who were the bidders, and the names and addresses of the directors and officers of the corporations and the members of the firm or partnership bidding; and whenever the said commission shall, after investigation or hearing, have reason to believe that the law has been violated in and about the said purchases or transactions it shall transmit all papers and documents and its own views or findings regarding the transaction to the Attorney General.

If any common carrier shall violate this section, it shall be fined not exceeding $25,000; and every such director, agent, manager or officer thereof who shall have knowingly voted for or directed the act constituting such violation or who shall have aided or abetted in such violation shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not exceeding $5,000, or confined in jail not exceeding one year, or both, in the discretion of the court.

The effective date of sec. 10 was extended by Congress from time to time, the last extension being in the Transportation Act of 1920, in which the effective date was fixed at January 1, 1921, except as to corporations organized on or after January 12, 1918, for which the effective date was fixed at January 8, 1918.
